

Discussing communities coming together...

Mayor Cook speaks to Sheridan Chamber

By JEFF JELLISON

Westfield's Mayor Andy Cook on Thursday spoke to members of the Sheridan Chamber of Commerce during the chamber's monthly luncheon.

Cook, Westfield's Mayor since 2008, talked about the importance of local communities working together and tapping each community's resources. Cook indicated communities working together creates a more efficient government and aides in economic development.

The Mayor discussed growth that was occurring just outside of Sheridan with Grand Park and Chatham Hills. Grand Park, a sports complex which sits just a few miles southeast of Sheridan in Westfield, is expected to attract 1.5 million visitors annually. Chatham Hills, an upscale residential development with a Pete Dye championship designed golf course, will be located on Adams Township's doorstep near U.S. 31 and State Road 38. Referring to potential future growth for Sheridan Cook said, "Sheridan is in a perfect place and time."

In addition to growth Cook discussed issues surrounding school funding and the challenges towns will face with the possible elimination of business personal property tax.

Cook praised the Sheridan Community for their selection of Dr. David Mundy as the new Superintendent for Sheridan Community Schools. Mundy previously served as Assistant Superintendent in Westfield. Cook indicated he was certain Dr. Mundy would lead Sheridan Schools in the right direction.

Cook was just recently awarded the Outstanding Public Official award from the Greenways Foundation of Indiana. The award goes to public officials whose efforts have been crucial in trail development in the state of Indiana.

"It really is an honor to be recognized by the Indiana Greenways Foundation, and I look forward to continue working toward our mutual goals of creating connected communities," Mayor Cook said. "This is a clear signal that we are on the right path in making Westfield a destination for families, visitors and businesses."

Foundry brought back with $51.4 million investment

By DON JELLISON
Reporter Editor

The old Noblesville Foundry on South Eighth Street is back.

Actually, what may be a surprise to Noblesville residents who drive South Eighth, the foundry never went away.

ID Castings LLC officials have told the City of Noblesville that it will invest $51.4 million to overhaul a business which once stood just a notch under Firestone as being the leading industry in the city.

But, plant manager Jack Kruse Tuesday evening told the Noblesville Common Council the foundry has been operating with a limited staff, and that the foundry has not been closed.

"Only for about three months, in 1989, was the plant closed," Kruse told the Hamilton County Reporter.

That – the foundry being a working foundry – was the main reason ID Castings choice Noblesville for its new facility, Noblesville Mayor John Ditslear said.

Landing the foundry in Noblesville is a big "home run" for the Ditslear administration as the Mayor has led a challenge of restoring old Eighth Street and the beautification of an area which long has been an eyesore to the south side of Noblesville.

Get ready for a renewed Noblesville Foundry. ID Castings LLC has agreed to invest $51.4 million in the business, which includes adding 25 employees with an average salary of $35,000.

ID Casting has been given a three-year abatement on personal property taxes, tied to a $1 million in manufacturing equipment it plans to install.

The abatement will save the company approximately $1.3 million in taxes.

"That's one reason why they decided to come here," Mayor Ditslear told The Reporter. "Another reason is that we spent $71,000 from a federal grant on an environment study of soil and groundwater on the site. That saved ID Casting more money.

"But," said Ditslear, "the main reason is they wanted a working foundry."

"That was important," Kruse said. "That is a much better financial move than having to go out and build a new facility."

Some of the old facility will be demolished. The company plans to tear down three of the buildings located on the 14-acre site.

The company has 27 workers at the site and it plans to add another 25 with an average salary of $35,000.

"The property has been an eyesore for years," said Noblesville Economic Development Director Judi Johnson.

The foundry dates back to the 1800s, and originally was housed in downtown Noblesville before being moved to the Eighth Street location.

"There was a time when many young men graduating from Noblesville High School went either to Firestone or the foundry," Ditslear said.

One of those young men was Steve Wood, who as a member of the Common Council last evening listened to first Johnson and then Kruse speak.

"I had a college degree and a family to support, and I had no job at that time," Wood said. "It was a great place to work."

First day will be Aug. 4...

Heights board approves 2014-15 school calendar

Hamilton Heights School Corporation has set its school calendar for the 2014-15 year. The calendar, approved by the Hamilton Heights School Board at its February 20, 2014 meeting, sets the first day of school for students at August 4, 2014 and the last day at June 3, 2015.

"The recommended revisions to next year's calendar were made to accommodate the third grade I-Read Test which had problematic dates this year," explained Dr. Derek Arrowood, Superintendent, Hamilton Heights School Corporation. "In addition, the revised calendar makes Martin Luther King Day a Flex Day, adjusts the March Personnel Development Day (PDD), allows for May ISTEP administration, and helps keep Heights' spring break dates in line with other Hamilton County.

Schools, students and faculty will still have the extended fall and spring breaks. There are three days built into the calendar to allow for inclement weather. Any additional lost days will be added to the end of the calendar and made up in June 2015.

Dr. Arrowood also said that in the fall of 2014 a committee made up of parents, teachers, and administrators will use data gathered from the 2013-2014 school year to create a calendar for 2015-2016 school year. This committee will thoroughly investigate both the positive and negative aspects of the balanced calendar with the goal of creating the best possible calendar for our students."

"Hamilton Heights School Corporation's 2013-2014 calendar had enough built in make-up days that adding additional time to the school day is not necessary to have students complete the academic calendar prior to the June 7, 2014 graduation date," he continued. However, if future cancellations are necessary during the 2013-2014 school year HHSC will investigate adding time to the school day to make up days lost because of cancellations. There are no plans to move the 2013-2014 graduation date."

The calendar can be found online at www.hhsc.k12.in.us.

Rhonda Daly joins Grand Park

The city of Westfield has added Rhonda Daly to head up its hospitality and Grand Park initiative.

Daly

"I am exceedingly excited and privileged to play even a small role in promoting Grand Park and engaging the community in this initiative," Daly said. "It's great to be a part of the enormous potential that this brings to Westfield."

Daly graduated from Butler University with a degree in journalism, and went on to become a flight attendant for US Airways for 20 years. She cites her successful experiences in hospitality due to years of managing suites at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, a restaurant and from her work with the banquet services of Meridian Hills Country Club.

"I am thrilled to have someone as passionate and energetic as Rhonda heading up the hospitality initiative and Grand Park initiative," Mayor Andy Cook said. "Grand Park is going to be a huge benefit to our community in terms of the visitors it will bring and the effect it will have in growing our community's tax rate."

Daly hopes to incorporate Super Services, a hospitality initiative that Indianapolis adopted when the city hosted the Super Bowl in 2012.

Grand Park, Westfield's world-class sports complex, is expected to officially open in June, but will begin hosting tournaments in March.

Not the Perfect Mom

Jesus is there, stage by stage

By TAMAR KNOCHEL
"Moses wrote down their starting places, stage by stage," Numbers 33:2

For the last four years I've been writing down my journey, stage by stage. Each stage has been unique and filled with... chaos; at least it felt like it at the time anyway. But to look back on each of them, it wasn't chaos at all. It was measured steps towards the place where I find my feet today. Sometimes the hardest thing to do is start something new. It's scary and unfamiliar, yet holds the very potential to be a fantastic adventure! IF we let it become that to us.

Life is full of chaos & uncertainties. It's filled with pain and heartaches that can't even be put into words. There are some lessons that just can't be taught in outlines and sermons, they have to be felt, experienced, LIVED!

Jesus came so that we might have life, and have it to the FULLEST. But what is that? What does it mean? To me, right now, it means that Jesus has given me the opportunity to enjoy each moment of this life, even the ones that hurt. In the pain, there is a joy. It's hard to describe except to say that it's there.

There's something about being sad that feels good. It feels good to have emotions and to let them out. It feels good to cry until you can't possibly cry anymore. It even feels good to be mad, sometimes, but not all the time, that's just a poison. No matter what happens, life is meant to be lived, not just survived. That involves risks, and faith. It requires patience and trust. It takes time and love. Life is HARD, but it's GOOD and shouldn't be wasted. Life involves loving people without abandon. Which means that there will be times when those people you've been tender with will turn sharp and cut you to the quick. But that doesn't mean that the relationship is irreparable.

Even though all relationships have a shelf-life, that doesn't mean that both parties have to leave the relationship wounded. There is always forgiveness. There is always hope, because there is always Jesus, our eternal King and High Priest.

No matter what wounds you have suffered from the hand of your Beloved, Jesus can heal them. You need only to ask Him, He is MORE than willing to do it. Although it may take more time than you'd like. Wounds heal in layers. Jesus can take you on the adventure of a lifetime where you find yourself over the rainbow in a world you've never seen before with more color and life than you've ever imagined. No, life with Jesus isn't all flowers and lollipops. There are some really hard knocks that come with the territory. But those knocks are never suffered alone. Not ever. And that's the beauty of Jesus. He's not a religion, or a denomination. He's a person; a real live person who simply wants to be your friend. He wants to hold your hand through the tough times and shout for joy with you in the fun times. He wants to sing with you when you're happy and cry with you when you're sad.

A lot of times Christians make life with Jesus a lot more technical and difficult than it really is. Christianity isn't a religion, it's a friendship. It's as simple as that.

"No longer do I call you servants, for the servant does not know what his master is doing; but I have called you friends, for all that I have heard from My Father I have made known to you. You did not choose Me, but I chose you and appointed you that you should go and bear fruit and that your fruit should abide, so that whatever you ask the Father in My name, He may give it to you." John 15:15-16

Chaplain Tom Burton

December 18, 1943 - March 1, 2014

Chaplain Tom Burton 70, of Noblesville, born December 18, 1943 to George and Kathryn Burton (deceased) was called home to be with the Lord March 1, 2014. He is survived by his loving and devoted wife, Joyce, of 48 years and children Tommy (Paula) Burton, Shanoah (Jeff) Bruner, Jim Hunt, David (Vivian) Burton, Angela Burton. Blessed and loved by his grandchildren Nicole, Mitchell, Leah, Kayleigh, Mia, and Hannah. Also, he leaves behind brother, Jack (Shirley) Burton, and sister, Alice (Jack) Ruppel.

Tom's love for the Lord and obedience to our Heavenly Father led him away from being lead mechanic at Trans World Airlines of 21 years to attend Southern Baptist Seminary. His passion to serve and spread The Gospel to others sent him to preach in Noblesville. Besides pastoring his church home he volunteered at the Hamilton County Sheriff's Department. His service from 2000 until his passing as the Agency's Senior Chaplain he was instrumental in the development and organization of the support teams and services.

He found absolute joy in every opportunity to serve others: family, including 17 foster children, chaplains, inmates, and any passing stranger.

He went peacefully leaving his earthly desire to grow God's Kingdom. His favorite passage he wants to share with you today is 1Thess 5:16-18. "Rejoice always, pray without ceasing, and in everything give thanks, for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you."

Services will be held at 11:00 am on Thursday, March 6, 2014, at Christ Community Church of Hamilton County, 772 North 10th Street, in Noblesville, with Pastor Mark Fidler and his son Tommy Burton officiating.

Visitation will be Wednesday, March 5, 2014 from 3:00 pm to 8:00 pm at Christ Community Church of Hamilton County, 772 North 10th Street, Noblesville the funeral home. Inurnment will be at 11:00 am Saturday March 8 in Crownland Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hamilton County Chaplaincy Fund, 18100 Cumberland Road, Noblesville, IN 46060 <http://www.hamiltoncountychaplains.com/>. Condolences: www.randallroberts.com.

Spring storms can bring scam artists

By BRIAN BRAGG

As winter winds down and we draw closer to spring you will begin to hear the importance of being prepared for the springtime storms. As everyone knows we are at a greater risk for tornadoes and serious wind and hail storms in the spring and fall.

These storms can turn your home and your life upside down. If your home is damaged in a storm you are eager to get your home repaired as quickly as possible so that you can get your life back to normal. It's during this time of eagerness that you can become victim to another "natural disaster," a scam artist.

Most contractors are reputable business people. But each year, there are a few dishonest ones who chase storms from state to state. They will try to convince you that you have hail or other damage and that you need a new roof when in fact you really don't. They'll ask to be hired for the work, explaining that your insurance company will pay for the repairs.

Most homeowner's insurance policies will cover damage caused by hail and wind-storms, but they will not cover the cost to replace a roof or siding when no damage has occurred. It is always recommended that you obtain a second and even a third opinion before starting any contract work.

What can you do?

If you're beginning to repair or rebuild after a storm, or even if you are just planning a home improvement project, keep these tips, recommended by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, in mind for choosing contractors wisely:

- Get more than one estimate.
- Don't be pushed into signing a contract right away.
- Get everything in writing. Cost, work to be done, time schedules, guarantees, payment schedules and other expectations should be detailed.
- Check references before deciding which contractor to choose.
- Never sign a contract with blanks.
- Don't pay a contractor in full until the work is complete.

Check with county or city licensing authorities to see if the contractor is licensed in your jurisdiction, as well as checking for complaints with their regional Better Business Bureau.

Contact your local independent agent.

If you need suggestions about who to hire or how to repair your home after a storm, your local independent agent can help you contact an insurance claims adjuster. Most insurance carriers have professional claims adjusters who are trained to assess your property, identify storm damage and prepare an estimate for proper repair. They can also provide recommendations for reliable, licensed contractors in your area—although the final choice of contractor is always yours.

Cheated at the gas pump...

Someone is watching

By FRED SWIFT

Ever have good reason to think you were shortchanged at the gas pump or the grocery meat counter? There are people in Hamilton County who can check on these weights and measures for you.

Although it gets little publicity, the county Department of Weights and Measures exists to see that consumers get accurate amounts of product for their money. Inaccurate weighing or measuring is one of the easiest ways for buyers to get cheated.

In Hamilton County all the devices that determine weight and proper measure are inspected at least once a year. Inspection stickers should be visible for consumers to easily view. Discrepancies have not been found in large numbers, but they can occur. Generally faulty weighing or measuring are not intentional, and they can actually hurt the merchant as often as the customer.

The county inspector is Cary Woodward, and while the State Board of Health is ultimately responsible for protecting the consumer, the responsibility for checking scales, pumps, etc. is delegated to the counties. Woodward's reports indicate problems found here are among the fewest in the state.

If, however, a consumer finds or strongly suspects a problem, he or she has the right to contact Woodward and ask for a specific device to be checked. The office is located at 1717 E. Pleasant St. in Noblesville and can be reached by phone at 776-8407. Complaints are few. It's hard to tell whether this is because few folks have concerns or because few people know who to call.

The Weights and Measures inspectors check at nearly 600 sites in the county with a total of over 9,000 devices. (There are over 600 gas pumps among those thousands of devices.) In grocery stores, the scales at meat counters, deli counters and produce location are checked.

Among the other inspections are hospital and pharmacy scales, grain elevators, concrete and asphalt plants, propane gas dealers, livestock dealers, and even the scales at county high schools. It's a big job that's getting bigger as more stores open in our rapidly growing county.

If violations are found, the improperly operating device is sealed and the owner is advised there will be a re-inspection after repairs are made.

The watchdog agency is one of those rarely noticed arms of local government, but an important one because just a few improper measurements going on month after month could cost customers significant money.

A walk to remember

By JANET LEONARD

It was just about twenty steps... to the front of the church...to a new life. A beautiful life.

I stood at the back of the church with my son, Brandon, on my left and my son-in-law, Drew, on my right. Canon D was the music that the organist was playing. Over 300 of our closest family and friends were gathered in the pews. I looked up and whispered a prayer of Thanksgiving.

The day that I had waited for, and prayed for, had arrived. Psalms 37:4 says "Take delight in the Lord and He will give you the desires of your heart." For 14 years God knew the desire of my heart. And I never gave up hope.

When I spoke to women's groups I would often tell of my "white picket fence" dream. To be loved. To be cherished. The day began with a sense of calm and yet sweet anticipation. As I drove into the parking lot at the church I looked up at the white steeple with the thought "I am living a Hallmark movie." As the families arrived I saw how easily my family and Chuck's family had blended together. It was just a few hours before that they had met yet it was as if their hearts had known each other for a long time.

Three year old Aiden walked in front of me carrying a sign that said "GrandChuck, here comes your bride." As I started down the aisle I saw Chuck waiting for me with the biggest smile and eyes that were beginning to leak. I was not the least bit nervous. This day had been planned by God, long before we met. It was a love story written with the pen of God. It doesn't get any better than that.

Our kids and kids-in-laws were standing at the altar with us. Pastor Frank Beard spoke about if you want to get somewhere quickly, walk alone, if you want to go far, then find someone to go with you. Rev. Paul Kern prompted us as we repeated our vows. "For better for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health, forsaking all others, pledging to love each other...til death do us part. Words spoken from our hearts, tipping over our Comfort and Joy buckets. Tears trickled.

Then the grandmunchkins joined us at the altar. My dear friend, Pastor Corinne Gunter, prayed a beautiful prayer to unite the families. And then the music began. My daughter, Emily, and Chuck's son, Jeff, began singing "Great is Thy Faithfulness," then with the entire family and then the congregation joining in. "All I have needed thy hand hath provided." God had been faithful. He kept his promises. We had been given the desires of our hearts.

We were then pronounced husband and wife. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leonard.

A few days later Chuck said to me. "In the Spring I am getting you a gift". What's that? A white picket fence.

Sharing Noblesville school history

By MARY SUE ROWLAND

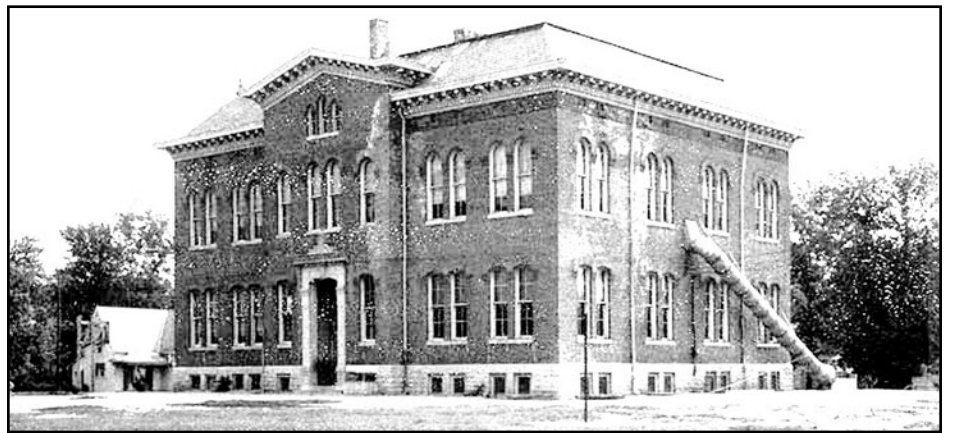

The pictures of 1st Ward, 2nd Ward and Seminary Schools (located at right) should be shared for all those who remember and all those who came to Noblesville after 1966. Irv Heath, the man behind the camera was always in the right place documenting the community because he knew change was coming and these historic buildings would soon be gone forever.

In 1888, Noblesville had only one school building, the Seminary which housed all grades. There were 56 students in high school with a total of 600 students and 13 teachers. Because of an average of 46 students per teacher, Noblesville was in need of expansion. Adding a 1st Ward and a 3rd Ward school to the existing Seminary School gave elementary students a neighborhood school that could be walked to in each end of old town. Seminary School became 2nd Ward School in 1900. These three Ward elementary schools served the community until 1951 with many more additions to follow.

To buffet or not to buffet

By AIMEE GEBHART

I am a firm believer that there are two kinds of people in this world: those who buffet and those who do not. I, for one, can appreciate a nice, self-serve spread at a restaurant. At least I used to, until an unfortunate incident at a pizza buffet left me scarred for life.

My daughter and I were dining alone one evening and decided that a particular restaurant's buffet would be a reasonable compromise for us. She could have all the pizza she wanted, and I could fool myself into thinking that I was eating "healthy" off of the salad bar. Our experience was going great until right before we were about to leave.

As I waited for Faith to finish up, I noticed a woman at the salad bar. She appeared to be having some kind of internal conflict about which dressing to put on her salad and kept hemming and hawing and talking to her husband about it. I thought it was a strange thing to be perplexed about. I mean, what adult doesn't know the difference between ranch, thousand island, and Italian dressing? For heaven's sake – she was choosing a salad dressing, not a mate!

Her husband seemed to be expressing my same sentiments, but his words were falling on deaf ears. His wife was clearly the kind of person who couldn't just take his word for it because the next thing I knew she was sticking her finger into the dressing for a taste test! Then, after sucking it off, she stuck the same finger into a different dressing to give it a try! She continued this little "lick and stick" routine until she had sampled every single one of the dressings!

I wanted to scream and yell and call for help, but being the introverted weenie that I am, I could do nothing more than sit and stare in horror. Faith was just as horrified, and she tried to get me to say something. But what was there to say? How could a grown woman not already know that sticking her saliva in the salad bar condiments was unacceptable? She might as well have just stood at the door and French kissed every patron who planned to order the salad bar that evening!

Looking back, I know that I should have told the manager what I witnessed so that they could have (hopefully) removed those contaminated cootie cauldrons from the salad bar lineup. But I didn't. And that leads me to wonder...how many times have I eaten off of a buffet after someone stuck their dirty digits into the food? Probably more times than I care to know. That is why I no longer choose to buffet. But if you are one of the daring types who enjoy the self-serve buffet at your local restaurant, please beware. Don't let that that sneeze guard lull you into a false sense of security because it will do nothing to protect you against the likes of Miss Lick and Stick.

‘Rocks, Millers make their swims count

By RICHIE HALL
Reporter Sports Editor
Westfield and Noblesville represented themselves well at the boys state swim meet on Saturday.

The Shamrocks had six swims at the Natatorium, including one in the championship heat. That was senior Eric Oleson, who placed seventh in the 500 freestyle.

"I think I swam pretty well, I was pretty proud of it," said Oleson, who also finished seventh in the event last year. Oleson also swam in the 200 freestyle consolation this year, finishing 14th.

Westfield's four other consolation swims also included a couple of relays. The 200 free relay team of sophomore Thomas Kenney, freshman Matthew Carr, Oleson and junior Nathaniel Bledsoe finished in a tie for 13th place, while the medley relay squad of Bledsoe, junior Joseph Niederberger, Carr and Kenney were 16th.

Bledsoe also had a nice individual meet, finishing 12th in the butterfly and 13th in the individual medley.

Noblesville senior Cam Gill had a busy day, swimming in three events. He joined junior Luke Conner, senior Alex Wolfred and junior Alec May to place 14th in the medley relay, then got finishes of 14th in the 100 free and 15th in the 100 backstroke.

"I've swam better, but I'm really happy with my races," said Gill. "My goal this season was to get a top 16 in both those events, and I achieved that. Walked away with two individual school records, so I really couldn't ask for more out of this meet."

Westfield finished 21st in the team standings with 33 points, while Noblesville was 35th with 11 points.
