The County Line

Big projects need more publicity from city, county officials

By FRED SWIFT

Our public officials need to speak out more frequently on the progress of various projects reportedly underway in the county, plans that often drop from view with no certainty that they are still in the pipeline. City and county officials would do themselves a favor by taking up pending projects designed for the public in public meetings or media announcements.

What projects am I talking about? How about the Midland Trail, the proposed Pleasant Street bridge over White River, the 8th Street Cultural District, building of overpasses on Ind. 37, expansion of the Judicial Center, progress of the Hamilton County Express, or even the Sheridan Convention Center?

I've noticed (how could you miss) Carmel telling the world about its projects almost to the extent that it makes one dizzy. Noblesville and Hamilton County have some great plans, hopefully on the drawing boards, that might be helped along with the public's knowledge and buy-in.

We can suspect, and hope, that things are happening behind the scenes. Let's hear about them even if progress is slow or problems have developed. Trying not to be too critical, I would say the city and county Parks Departments and most of the schools do a good job of telling the public about their acquisitions, plans for further development, etc.

I don't know why some public officials are slow to reveal progress or problems they encounter. I don't think in most cases it's intentional withholding of information. I suspect they just don't get around to sharing with the folks they work for---the public. Too bad.

Having been in the news business in the past, I always think why not tell as much as you can instead of as little as you have to.

Well, it's all just my crazy idea. They probably won't pay attention to me, but I wish they would. It would make us all feel like we're getting more out of our local government.

SPECIAL ELECTION SECTION TO BE PUBLISHED NEXT WEEK

The Hamilton County Reporter is working to put the "finishing touch" on our first-ever Hamilton County Election Special Edition.

The special section will be published first in the regular Sunday, May 4 email newspaper.

The exact special section also will appear in the print edition on Tuesday, May 6. The print edition also will appear in email on Monday, May 5.

The print edition, as well as being delivered to homes throughout the southern Hamilton County area, can be purchased at news stands throughout the area.

Fred Swift will lead our election coverage. No one in Hamilton County has covered more local elections than Fred Swift, nor does anyone know the election climax in Hamilton County better than Fred Swift.

Still trying to decide on whom to vote for? Don't miss what Fred Swift has to stay in the Hamilton County Reporter.

Post Office Looks to expand

By DON JELLISON
Reporter Editor

Fifty years ago the Noblesville Post Office, then located on 9th Street in downtown Noblesville, announced it needed to expand by building a 40x60 extension on the south side of the building at a cost of $160,000. Postmaster James Gaddis said that an alley between Maple and Cherry would be closed. The Post Office also filed with Federal Court to condemn (take over) the law offices of Campbell, Malan, Kyle and Proffitt *Stanley Urban, running for Sheridan School Board, was informed he could not do that because he had filed too late.

*Noblesville was preparing to run it's first-ever School Board election. Fifteen were in the race. Because of state and national elections it was predicted that the local election would attract a record 12,000 voters.

*Forest Park Inn was opening (Sundays only) for the summer season.

Sports

Donnie Dunker, who already had thrown two no-hitters for the Miller baseball team, tossed a two-hitter as Noblesville defeated Alexandria, 5-0.

*Coach Dale Snelling's Millers won the school's 11th straight Hamilton County Meet, outscoring second-place Carmel 83-38. Steve Mullin won two events and Charlie Core broke the high jump record. Carmel's Jim Sanford broke two county records in the hurdles.

*Karen Baker of Walnut Grove, Susie Radloff of Carmel, Beth Howe of Noblesville, Carol Williams of Fishers, Tink Mosbaugh of Jackson Central and Pat Martin of Sheridan were the Queens at the Hamilton County Track & Field Meet.

Business

Two new housing developments were opening in Noblesville, Willow Cress and Stardust Village.

*The home show was an attraction at the 4-H Grounds.

*Rexall had a 2-for-1, plus a penny, sale.

Annual Walnut Grove banquet offers history, chance to share memories

By JEFF JELLISON

On Saturday evening members of the Walnut Grove Alumni Association gathered at Hamilton Heights Elementary school for their annual banquet.

Attending the event were approximately 155 members of Walnut Grove classes ranging from 1938 through 1965.

This year's event honored the Walnut Grove class of 1964.

Throughout the evening alumni members reminisced about the history of the school.

A written presentation of the history compiled by Cloe Morris include the following information.

In 1869, during the trusteeship of Joseph Peck, School #15, a one-room frame schoolhouse was built by Joseph Orth for $600. The school was later named Walnut Grove.

In 1903, on two additional acres donated by John Newby, Trustee Fred Tischer erected a modern brick building. For the first time a four-year accredited high school curriculum was offered Walnut Grove's first high school class of seven members graduated in 1905.

In 1908, with donated materials and labor, Frank Rigsby, a local builder, supervised the building of a gymnasium. The gym was the first building in the state to be used for physical education and athletic purposes.

During 1953 Walnut Grove was awarded a first-class commission. This commission was the highest award ever made to a rural school in Indiana. Reports indicate the award was a result of Principal John Kerr's efforts to earn the honor.

Marian Noggle, 99 years of age, served as a school teacher for 38 years, 12 of those years were at Walnut Grove. Noggle taught Latin and English. Noggle stated "Walnut Grove students were such a pleasure to teach. They were a bunch of well behaved farm kids."

Walnut Grove's last class graduated in 1965 when students from Jackson Township and White River Township consolidated forming Hamilton Heights.

In March of 1994 Walnut Grove was demolished leaving many area residents with only memories.

Walnut Grove historians indicated it has been 109 years since the first graduating class in 1905.

Too much water has Arcadia fed up

By DON JELLISON
Reporter Editor

Small towns standing up and battling for their rights. Happens all the time, although not so much today in Hamilton County, Indiana. One reason for that is that there aren't many small towns in this county.

However, Arcadia is a small town, located in northern Hamilton County. Arcadia has had it. Arcadia has too much water and, what Arcadia folks believe, not enough help from county government.

Flooding is Arcadia's problem. When heavy rains come, water from surrounding farm fields come rushing into Arcadia, with no place to go. The problem has gotten so bad that at the Arcadia Town Council meeting earlier this week three residents told the Council that they've had enough, they are moving, if, of course, they're able to sell that often-flooded homes.

"If this was Noblesville or Carmel, the problem would have been fixed a long time ago," said Council president Bill Cook shortly after calling the meeting to order. Fellow Councilmen Glen Shrock and Maurice St. Louis agreed.

Then, along came a fresh breath, a knight in shining armor riding a white horse, coming for affluent southern Hamilton County.

Well, something like that. Actually, it was Hamilton County Commissioner Mark Heirbrandt, driving in from Westfield.

Heirbrandt listened to the Arcadia folks. He took notes. He formed a committee to help find a solution.

"I'll help," Heirbrandt promised. "But, I'm only one of three (commissioners)."

Heirbrandt represents a huge area, an area which has grown in recent years with the population growth of Westfield. And, with the growth of still-small, but growing, Cicero.

Cicero is Arcadia's "sister city." Back in the day, the territory was known as the "Tri-Towns," Cicero, Arcadia and Atlanta. Cicero, population-wise, is quickly outgrowing Arcadia and tiny Atlanta.

Cicero sits south of Arcadia, not all that far away from Noblesville (the county seat) and Westfield. Arcadia, and Atlanta are closer to Tipton in Tipton County, which hasn't grown like Noblesville and Westfield.

Cicero has Morse Reservoir, a big plus to growth. Arcadia has the schools, the high school, junior high, elementary. Morse has become a bigger attraction to Cicero than Huskyland schools have become to Arcadia.

Heirbrandt represents Adams, Fall Creek, Jackson, Washington, Wayne and White River townships and the towns of Arcadia, Atlanta, Cicero, and Sheridan and the city of Westfield.

County Commissioner Christine Altman represents Carmel and Clay Township and Steve Dillinger represents the cities of Noblesville and Fishers and the townships of Delaware and Noblesville.

Shrock said that in 1983 Arcadia signed an agreement with Hamilton County to maintain the drainage system. He believes that doesn't include the mess the town currently is in.

"We don't have the money to fix it," Shrock said.

"Mark (Heirbrandt) seems like a nice guy," Shrock continued. "Right now nobody knows what to do."

"We haven't received a lot of help up here in the northern part of the county. We don't have lots of votes. Even if every resident we have would vote for a commissioner, we alone couldn't elect one. The votes and the money are in the south."

Heirbrandt is the new kid on the block, and, actually, didn't receive the traditional votes to become commissioner. When Doug Carter resigned in January of 2013 after being selected by Governor Mike Pence as the Superintendent of the Indiana State Police, Heirbrandt was selected at a Republican caucus to complete Carter's term.

So, he hasn't been around as Commissioner during all he years Arcadia has cried for county help. He has lived in the Westfield area for 20 years and served on the Westfield Board of Public Works and Safety for five years.

Still unknown to most of the Arcadia area, he may be the guy to stop the flood waters coming into the community. If, however, anyone knows exactly how to do that, they should call Commissioner Heirbrandt, or the Arcadia Town Councilmen.

Angel of Hope memorial special dedication will be May 4

By MARY SUE ROWLAND
On May 4, 2014 at 3 p.m. near the south entrance of Forest Park in Noblesville, a special dedication will take place for the Angel of Hope memorial. After years of "hope" and dedication, a group of people, the Park Board and many contributors will officially open a place for everyone who wishes to have a quiet moment to reflect on a child or loved one who is no longer with their family. Everyone is welcome to the dedication.

The angel is bronze with the face of a child, arms raised out as a child wanting to be lifted. In her wings is HOPE. The angel represents all children who have passed away regardless of age. The first Angel of Hope was dedicated December 6, 1994 in Salt Lake City. Since then 115 of the monuments have been created and placed in special memorial gardens around the country. Contributions can be made to the Angel of Hope Memorial, Inc., 16 Hampshire Court, Noblesville, IN 46062 or go on line to www.angelofhope.info/donate. This special place will be a place of healing for parents and families to remember their children and family members. It will also be a memorial to children who may have once played in Forest Park at the very place that now holds their memory. Though they are absent, they will be remembered.

CULVER'S HOSTS FUNDRAISER MAY 1

Culver's in Noblesville will be hosting a fundraiser for the Noblesville Angel of Hope on Thursday May 1st from 5 PM to 8 PM. A portion of the sales that evening will help support the Angel of Hope Project in Forest Park.

Learning a new normal

By JANET LEONARD

Chuck and I are finding a new normal, actually, lots of new normals.

Sitting across from each other at lunch on Wednesday, out of the blue Chuck said to me "you have the strangest way of taking margarine out of the container". I got so tickled that tears began streaming down my cheeks. We were not even eating anything that involved margarine. It was such a random statement while eating chips and salsa.

We have had so many of these conversations since we got married, nine weeks ago.

The first conversation over our different ways of doing things began the first time that we were folding towels. He folded a hand towel and looked up at me. Apparently I had an odd look on my face. He asked me if he had folded it wrong. I told him that it wasn't wrong, it just wasn't folded correctly. In other words...the way I do it.

I showed him the way that I fold hand towels. I know it is a bit complicated and I admit a bit strange, but it's my way. He was able to fold the rest of the towels the way that I do. He even put them away...upside down. He continues to do so but don't tell him.

One day I asked him if he wanted a peanut butter and jelly sandwich. I got the peanut butter and the jelly and the bread and sat them on the kitchen counter. Chuck said "but what about the butter?" BUTTER? Yes he puts it on his PB&J sandwich.

Chuck has learned to appreciate watching The Voice every Monday and Tuesday. He had never watched it before falling in love with me. I have always been a football and basketball fan but watching the golf channel was new to me as well as the baseball channel. Chuck was thrilled to learn that I have every sports channel available. I have seen them all, as he channel surfs.

Funny how we each have our own way of doing things. Funny how we have learned to appreciate our differences with laughter.

Chuck enjoys a cup of tea in the morning and I need a cup of coffee in the morning. Whoever gets up first, makes them. I know he takes a teaspoon and a half of sugar in his tea and he knows that I need lots of Hazelnut Creamer in my coffee. We are learning how to make life sweeter for each other.

I can't wait to enjoy more differences with this man. Those differences are teaching us a new normal. Now if I can just get him to take the margarine out of the tub, correctly...the way I do.

5 Questions to Avoid Asking a Cop

By AIMEE GEBHART

Being married to a cop definitely has its perks. First and foremost, it's nice to have a trained shooter in the house when I hear strange noises in the middle of the night. In addition to that, I like that Ed knows the fastest route to any location, he is great in any emergency, and he looks fantastic in a uniform.

Of course these perks also come with some disadvantages, and I'm not talking about long hours, danger, or stress. I'm talking about parties. One of the most annoying parts of being a cop (or a cop's wife) is trying to navigate the conversations that often come up during social gathering with friends. These get-togethers usually include some new acquaintances who are eager to ask questions about his job and our life. Most are legitimate, but some are just plain rude. Over the years, we have compiled a list of some of our favorite questions and our responses...or at least what we'd like to say.

1. "Can you get me out of a speeding ticket?"

Sure! I mean, Ed just met you and all, but he'd love to put his name on the line for you, Mr. or Mrs. Leadfoot! And while we're at it, you're a doctor, right? Would you mind prescribing some narcotic pain pills for us?

2. "Have you ever shot someone?" (Usually asked with excited anticipation)

This question is just awful. Shooting someone is not "exciting". This isn't T.J. Hooker for heaven's sake – it's real life. No self-respecting police officer would discuss this casually at a party with strangers.

3. Have you guys ever used the handcuffs? (wink, wink)

Eww. Really? No. Please don't ask this, unless of course you are a good friend and you're teasing.

4. Aren't you afraid he's going to die every time he goes to work?

This one is obviously directed at me, and it's actually a fair question. But honestly, no, I don't think that way. If I did, I would be a nervous wreck all of the time. I trust that he is well trained and that his fellow officers have his back. I also pray for him a lot – not out of fear, but out of love.

5. What would you do if...? (Insert their sad story about the "jerk" cop they encountered here)

This is by far the most aggravating question/conversation that we deal with. For some reason, people think that Ed wants to hear about all of the "bad" cops that have wronged them, and they expect him to verify that they were right and the cop was wrong. Talk about awkward! We end up either doing the polite, sympathetic head nod (which is fake, by the way), or Ed just shuts them down immediately and they spend the rest of the night thinking he's a jerk. I guess the positive is that they probably won't bother him about it again!

I am sure that most people mean well when they strike up conversations about the police with Ed and me, and usually their questions are genuine and thoughtful. It's only when someone puts us in an uncomfortable spot that we start to get annoyed and snarky. All of that aside, I wouldn't have him trade his job for anything. The perks of having a police officer for a husband definitely outweigh any disadvantages. After all, who else is going to know where to take me for the best donuts in town? (Come on...you didn't actually think I could write a story about my cop husband and not throw a donut joke in there, did you?)

Not the Perfect Mom

A New Creation

By TAMAR KNOCHER

"Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, He is a new creation. The old has passed away; behold the new has come." 2 Corinthians 5:17

The Spirit of the LORD changes people. Sometimes people say they don't feel any different after being saved, but many times they do. I've heard testimonies of people who were deeply addicted to substances until they received the Spirit and suddenly had NO urge to go back to those substances ever again!

I certainly have had experiences where the Spirit of God has rushed upon me and turned me into a new creation. I was definitely different after I got baptized in the Spirit. I could literally FEEL the Spirit of God inside me acting like a rudder on a ship, pointing me in the direction I should go. He's led me down many paths I thought I had no reason to go down only to find out I did have a reason to go down them after all. Over the years I've learned that if my insides are spinning and churning in agitation over something, then there's something wrong - even if it seems right to my "thinker". I've learned that things aren't always as they seem. What our eyes perceive can deceive us. It says in Genesis chapter two that the forbidden fruit looked good to eat and was pleasing to the eye; yet look at the tremendous harm it brought all of humanity! Just because something looks good for us doesn't mean that it is, or isn't. And that's where we've got to have the Holy Spirit to guide us in the way that we should go.

Jesus told us (in John 16:13) that the Holy Spirit would come and lead us into all Truth. And I've prayed for Him to come and do that for you today. God gave me a breath prayer that I'd like to share with you. It only takes one breath to speak this powerful prayer that can literally change who you are on the inside because it's asking the Spirit of God to come and live inside you and guide your gut along paths of righteousness for His name's sake. (Psalm 23:3)

Now be prepared, because you will not be given a spirit of Fear. This is a spirit of POWER and of LOVE and of a SOUND MIND. (2 Timothy 1:7) And it will change you into a NEW creation. You will be immediately changed, and will continue changing for the rest of your life - it's called growth.

OK, here it comes, are you ready to be made new?

"Come Holy Spirit, fill me with Your fire, I want to be more like you."

That's it! Simple right?

Jesus loves you. He wants to be a part of your life. He's GOD. He knows everything there is to possibly know about everything. Isn't that someone YOU want to have guiding your steps to success through the rat race of life?

I DO!!!

Letter to the Editor

Let's make Sheridan a great place to call home

My name is Glen Bougher and I am seeking re-election for Sheridan Town Council.

I am married, my wife's name is Margaret and I have two children and three grandchildren. I retired from Caterpillar as a Tool Maker, I also retired from Chrysler Corp. in Indianapolis and I volunteer at Riverview Health in Noblesville. I graduated from Sheridan High School and attended IVY Tech and Indiana Wesleyan University.

I am a Member of the Sheridan Masonic Lodge and Past Master, Indiana Sheriff's Association, Board of Zoning Appeals, Redevelopment Commission, Storm water Board, Board of Public Safety and Board of Public Works. I attend the First United Methodist Church in Sheridan and serve on the Board of Trustees.

I have lived in the Sheridan area for 51 years. Moved into town in 2007 at which time I started to get involved with the Town government, 2008 is when I was appointed on the Board of Zoning Appeals. 2012 is when I started my first term on the Town Council.

I was elected by the citizens of Sheridan three years ago, and I feel it is my duty to continue with what I started out to do. Those who have attend the council meetings know what kind of struggle it has been. I have always kept the Town of Sheridan first in mind when casting my vote. If re-elected I will continue with what I can to make Sheridan a place where people want to call home.

One of the important issues we are facing is to see what can be done to have Sheridan ready for growth. With the new Sports Park in Westfield on our doorstep, we need to react as soon as possible. There is going to be a large Golf Course and housing development also going in. There will be need for more Hotels and restaurants in the very near future. We will need to look at zoning issues and possible annexations in prime areas around Sheridan. We need to move forward and concentrate on what we can do to bring in more business such as some of the restaurants and possibly a Hotel. I feel we need to seriously look at State Road 38 for future growth within a few years. Growth is on our doorstep and we need to act now. With growth comes more revenue for the Town of Sheridan which in turn will help us with improving infrastructure.

There has been news articles about Sheridan losing its Police force and going with the Sheriff's Department for Public Safety. I will do what I can to see that we keep our Police Department intact. I feel without our own Police force we will be taking a step back, that is not what we need to do. I feel we would be sending out the wrong message to business and possibly home owners considering on calling Sheridan their home. I know I would not make a move to a town that had disbanded its local law enforcement or even considering such a thing.

Let's make Sheridan a place any one would be proud to call HOME.

Glen Bougher
Sheridan

County turned down for FEMA funds

By DON JELLISON
Reporter Editor
If at first you don't succeed, try, try again.
That's what Hamilton County will do after being informed by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) that it will not be granted federal assistance for the severe winter storms that hit the state in early January.
FEMA will allow grants to 19 counties.

Hamilton County had applied for approximately $960,000.
"We were turned down because they said part of what we submitted did not qualify," Hamilton County Commissioner Steve Dillinger told The Reporter.
Counties granted public assistance include: Boone, Clay, Hendricks, Huntington Jasper, Kosciusko, Madison, Morgan, New, Noble, Noble, Parke, Putnam, Sullivan, Tipton, Vigo, Wabash, White and Whitley.

Boone County borders Hamilton County on the west; Tipton on the north and Madison County on the east.
"We have resubmitted and feel confident that we will qualify," Dillinger said. "For us, it is not a life or death issue. We have the funds to handle it ourselves. However, we feel we meet their qualifications for this reimbursement, so we should receive it.

"After all, it is Hamilton County's money that provides these funds," the Commissioner added.
FEMA public assistance grants will pay 75 percent of eligible expenses for damage to roads, bridges, utilities, debris removal, buildings' contents and equipment, water control facilities, parks and recreational facilities and others
Along with Hamilton County, 28 other counties that were denied assistance.

Women of Vision honored at Riverview Luncheon

On April 17, Riverview Health Foundation hosted the 10th Annual Women of Vision Luncheon. The luncheon was created in 2004 to bring together interesting and talented women to educate them about their health and inspire them to follow their dreams. Over the last ten years, Riverview Health Foundation has reached out to 3,000 women and men who have helped us raise more than $600,000 for women's services, programs and equipment at Riverview Health. In addition, this year's luncheon raised nearly $62,000 to help fund women's initiatives.
Riverview Medical Group physician, Amy Banter, MD, and her sister, Cynthia Husted, PhD, shared their knowledge of holistic medicine and Dr. Husted's story of strength and healing after being bitten by a black widow spider. Dr. Husted was also presented with the Women's Retreat Impact Award, which is given to women who best exemplify life balance through who they are and the time, talent and energy they give through business, civic or philanthropic leadership.

Lastly, the Riverview Health Foundation was honored to present eleven 'Women of Vision Giving Club' grants, totaling $28,287, to the following areas and programs at Riverview Health: Maternity Center, OB/GYN Specialists, Rehab & Fitness and Women's Boutique. These grants are awarded to programs at Riverview Health that impact the lives of women and girls in Hamilton County. (See a picture on Page 3).
On the day of the event, the attendees opened their hearts by raising $24,879 and 48 women renewed or joined the Women of Vision Giving Club. If you'd like more information on how to join, please contact Jessica Deering at 317.776.7938 or jdeering@riverview.org.
The day was fun, inspirational and benefited a great cause.

End of an era: Cook retires from Cicero Town Board

By DON JELLISON
Reporter Editor

For the first time in a long time, the Town of Cicero soon will be running out of "Cookies."

Jerry Cook, an eight-year member of the Cicero Town Board, is not running for re-election. That will mark the end, officially, for now, for a member of the Cook family not being a public servant in the northern Hamilton County community.

"My Dad (Gus) was Cicero Town Marshall from 1942-1961," Cook told The Reporter in an exclusive interview earlier this week.

Jerry Cook has done it all, seen it all as Cicero has grown. In his earlier years he served as the Town Marshall, a job Cook said also meant handling the duties as the "unofficial" Fire Chief for a period of time. That was in 1964-67 and then again in 1970-98. Jerry left for three years to work for the Hamilton County Sheriff Department.

"Our base station was our home, and my wife was the dispatcher," Cook said about his first service as Town Marshall.

The Cook family, arguably, has been the No. 1 family in law enforcement in Hamilton County. Brother Larry was the Cicero Town Marshall from 1961-64 after his Dad's death and the Hamilton County Sheriff from 1971 to 1979. Brother Gary, who currently serves in the Hamilton County probation department and also does drug testing for the county, was the Town Marshall 1998 to 2010.

"This time I'm done," Jerry said in a manner in which he appeared to be trying to convince himself.

"There is no term limit for being on the Town Board, but I came to this positions with my own limits. I told myself eight years would be enough. I limited myself to two terms. I believe in the two party system and I believe in term limits."

Would he reconsider at a later date?

"Maybe," Cook answered. "But, for now, I'm done."

Cook is leaving behind many accomplishments.

"I guess the causeway currently under construction is the biggest thing which has happened in Cicero in my eight years on the board," Cook said. "Heck, that's a $2.5 million project. It will connect the two sides of Morse Reservoir, and that's something which is badly needed. It's a 12-foot wide walkway (not connected to the bridge) on the south side of the bridge. There are 420 homes in Morse Landing (on the west) and many of those homes have young kids who use the bridge to cross the reservoir. That has been a dangerous situation.

"The road (State Road 47) should be open in June. (Currently, there is a stop-and-go traffic light on both sides of the bridge). After that, the road will be repaved from the cemetery to the east end of Jackson Street. Completion date is June."

There will be no parking on the north side of the bridge and no fishing from the causeway.

The area on the west side of the bridge, Morse Landing, has been Cicero's biggest growth area since the hosing section first opened in 1980.

"Drainage problems have been the biggest reason why Cicero hasn't grown in other directions," Cook said.

"We starting to grow a little on the south side. We have a new Dollar General Store and a CVS and a couple of new restaurants have opened in the downtown

"We need more businesses in order to grow," Cook believes. "We need more retail. We could use a factory, too, but that is a dog eat dog battle with southern Hamilton County."

The west side of Cicero certainly looks promising for growth, the area bounded by 231 Street and Tollgate, near Bear Slide Golf Course. There are about 50 homes in a subdivision, Vintage Woods.

Cook also is proud of the growth of park facilities and walking trails. Cicero Community Park, located near the library, has seen growth with leaps and bounds, especially with the number of new youth baseball and softball diamonds.

Cicero will continue to grow in the future. It may be the best kept secret in Hamilton County. Among others, Cicero can thank Jerry Cook for what it is today. And, don't bet he is finished with what he helped start.

Kinhead declines to speak before Atlanta Town Council

A spokesperson for the Town of Atlanta indicated Sheridan Town Council President David Kinhead withdrew his request to appear before the Atlanta Town Council.

The Hamilton County Reporter earlier reported Kinhead had requested to discuss with the Atlanta Town Board the transition of law enforcement duties from Atlanta to the sheriff's department.

Last week several Sheridan residents and business owners expressed concern Sheridan might be considering disbanding its police department and contracting out law enforcement duties to the sheriff.

Millers go 2-1 at Carmel Invitational

The Noblesville softball team was busy at the Carmel Invitational on Saturday, playing three games. The Millers dropped their first game to Class 4A No. 10 Penn 6-2, but rebounded to defeat Castle 10-0 and West Lafayette 6-2. Zoe Schafer hit a home run for Noblesville in the Penn game. Ellie Baker also had a nice day at the plate, with a triple against Penn and two doubles in the Castle game.
