Westfield Schools enters long-term agreement...

Shamrocks' new football stadium: Riverview Health

Riverview Health announced last evening that it has entered into a long-term agreement with Westfield Washington Schools to serve as the exclusive healthcare provider for its students and employees.

"We're very excited to partner with Riverview Health for our healthcare needs, including nursing and sports medicine services," said Nick Verhoff, director of Business and Operations at Westfield Washington Schools. "This partnership will allow us to provide our students, parents and employees with easy access to top-notch healthcare services and experts, while enabling us to build a stronger relationship with an exceptional organization like Riverview Health."

As part of the agreement, Riverview Health will also have its name on the new 5,500-seat stadium that Westfield Washington Schools plans to break ground on in July 2014. In addition, this partnership will provide school employees with access to high-quality healthcare options via an onsite employee clinic.

"This partnership further solidifies our strong commitment to our community," said Larry Christman, chief operating officer at Riverview Health. "The students, parents and employees in our local community rely on us to help them manage their overall health and well-being. And we're here to provide them with extraordinary primary and specialty care."

The intersection of 146th Street and State Road 37 is one of several intersections along the state highway that would see its stop lights replaced by a roundabout interchange. The interchanges would be designed to help alleviate traffic on the busy 37 corridor.

6 miles of morning, evening hell...

County, Noblesville on same '37' track?

By DON JELLISON
Reporter Editor

The ball may be rollingright down Highway 37, a stretch of six-mile highway which long is overdue for a face lift.

The Hamilton County Commissioners last week shared with the Hamilton County Council their hopes and dreams and plans for a '37 Corridor' on the east side of the county which would in many ways duplicate what the City of Carmel has done with Keystone Parkway on the west of the county.

That being more of a "straight shoot" for Hamilton County drivers to travel to and from Indianapolis.

"Something has to be done and we (Hamilton County, Noblesville and Fishers) need to do it before the State does to State Road 37 what it did to Highway 31," Hamilton County Commissioner Steve Dillinger told the County Council last week.

"The State's job is getting motorists north and south, which is the way it should be," Dillinger said. "Our job is making sure we get people east and west, and to make

Lookout, here comes INDOT

Noblesville motorists may want to fasten their safety belts and look for alternative routes around the city, starting Monday.

That's when INDOT (Indiana Department of Transportation) plans to begin paving Highways 38/32 (Conner Street) east and west through Noblesville.

The first leg of paving will be from Hague Road to Highway 19 on the west side of the city.

INDOT has informed the City of Noblesville that one lane will be open most of the time, except for Monday evening. Much of the work, INDOT has said, will be done in the evenings.

Detour signs will be posted by INDOT to help motorists around the paving process. The project could take 10-12 days, or more. Or, hopefully, less.

No one who has driven Connor Street in recent weeks would disagree that the paving is badly needed.

sure there are still businesses there for people to shop."

Noblesville Mayor John Ditslear, when approached by the Reporter on the subject last evening following a City Council meeting, echoed Dillinger's concerns.

"Something has to be done," Ditslear said.

"Westfield lost million of dollars in assessment when the State came through and took out those businesses on Highway 31," said Noblesville City Attorney Mike Howard.

After meeting with the Hamilton County Council last week, the Commissioner down the road will meet with the Noblesville City Council and the Fishers City Council.

Operation Indy Commute:
I-69 nearing completion

Contractors for the Indiana Department of Transportation (INDOT) expect to finish the final improvements to Interstate 69 between I-465 and State Road 37 by the end of this week—weather permitting. New southbound auxiliary lanes connecting between interchange ramps at 116th, 96th and 82nd streets are anticipated to open to traffic this week as the interstate is restriped during the overnight hours.

Crews plan overnight painting of lane markings this week to shift traffic into its permanent configuration. Beginning tonight at 8 p.m., motorists should expect various lane restrictions on southbound I-69 between 116th Street and 96th Street. Multiple lanes may be restricted after 10 p.m. Tuesday night crews expect to work between 96th Street and 82nd Street, and Wednesday night work will be completed south of 82nd Street to I-465. This schedule is subject to rain delays.

Drivers are advised to be cautious and practice safe habits in highway work zones. While the new lanes are anticipated to open to traffic this week, contractors will still be working in the area finishing minor items. Always follow speed limits, maintain safe distances from other vehicles and avoid all distractions—including cell phones.

Last year, Rieth-Riley Construction built a new southbound travel lane between 116th Street and I-465 to add capacity and improve traffic flow. The contractor also built northbound auxiliary lanes connecting interchange ramps at 82nd, 96th and 116th streets. The auxiliary lanes are intended to improve traffic flow and strategically alleviate recurring commuting bottlenecks by allowing traffic traveling from one interchange ramp to the next to avoid unnecessarily merging with mainline interstate traffic.

A separate contract with Milestone Contractors built capacity and configuration improvements to the I-69 Exit 205 interchange at State Road 37 and 116th Street that are now open to traffic. Another Operation Indy Commute project is currently underway at the south side I-465 and I-65 interchange, and improvements are expected to be complete before the end of this year. For more information about Operation Indy Commute, visit www.IndyCommute.indot.in.gov.

Motorists, businesses and residents are encouraged to subscribe to receive email updates using the red envelope GovDelivery icon found on any INDOT web page. COUNTY

The County has presented to the Reporter four sets of designs on how to get traffic across a ‘37 Corridor’. One of the plans is published today on Page 1. Others will appear this week.

Ditslear last evening said the biggest difference currently between the County and Noblesville is the height of the overpasses. Ditslear wants to make sure the businesses along the ‘37 Corridor’ can be easily seen from the highway.

Also, of course, there is a matter of funding. The project could, if started today, cost as much as $250 million.

The County Commissioners want the State to relinquish State Road 37, and with that it appears that 70 to 80 percent of the construction cost would come from the State, the remainder being split by the County, Noblesville and Fishers.

“INDOT (Indiana Department of Transportation) paid $90 million of the $115 million for the Keystone Parkway,” Howard said. “That’s 80 percent of the cost.”

Keystone Parkway has seen a 10 percent decrease in overall crashes despite a 30 percent increase in traffic over the last three years. Personal injury crashes have been reduced by 75 percent.

Ditslear said last evening that he believes the intersection changes (a series of roundabouts and overpasses) would start in Fishers and then work would continue north to Noblesville.

“We currently have a big problem, but not as much as Fishers is having,” the Mayor said.

Ditslear said he has talked with the County Commissioners.

The Mayor was asked if a ‘37 Corridor’ project would slow down or derail Noblesville’s plans for an east-west detour around the city.

“They are two different needs,” answered Ditslear. “Both are important to Noblesville.”

The Hamilton County Commissioners have suggested that they would build a bridge across Pleasant Street and the detour would run from that bridge, on the west side, to connecting traffic to the east side.

That would be a major cost to Noblesville, running that detour east and west on Pleasant Street.

“Pleasant Street is one of the sites being discussed and appears to be the best at this time,” Ditslear said. “The County has offered to build a bridge. Building a bridge is one thing; running a detour through Pleasant Street is something else.”

Healthy diet, movement key to fighting irregularity

By SHARON MCMAHON
“You don’t have to be great to start, but you have to start to be great.” - Zig Ziglar

An odd quote for an “uncomfortable” but important subject! Writing about constipation is not much more fun than having it but something that most people can relate to at some point in their lives. Most “irregularity” issues are infrequent but very annoying and can certainly derail a fitness plan.

(Please Note! Often constipation can follow a surgery or be related to necessary prescription drug therapy – in which case you must listen carefully to your physician’s diagnosis and recommendations, I will not address those issues in this piece. My suggestions do not address post-surgery and issues related to prescription drug side effects.)

In recent years our diets have progressively incorporated more processed foods with many additives and fewer high-fiber foods; most of us have been made aware of that I believe – that is not news. However, poor diet and relying too much on soft drinks for our fluids have made the business of laxatives a multi-billion dollar business! Over the counter laxatives are NOT a cure, and can be habit forming. My recommendations to my clients include increasing the amount of fiber intake to 25-35 grams per day and including whole grain breads and cereals. There is such a wide variety of grains available at most supermarkets, including barley, oats, farro, kamut, and quinoa. Choose fresh fruits over juices which are often laden with sugar. Apricots and figs are delicious and a great choice. Drink water! Fluids help your body process fiber without discomfort. Consider adding dried beans or peas to just about any dish. Seeds are excellent (unless you suffer from diverticulitis – please follow your physician’s advice!) and I particularly enjoy chia seeds added to my Greek yogurt. Avoid frozen and boxed meals and canned goods when other good food items are available.

Unless you are instructed otherwise – move your body! Movement assists in movement if you get my meaning! Walk, cycle, dance, do whatever works for you. I teach stretching and flexibility classes which are greatly helpful in relieving digestive problems. I am sometimes asked what kind of expectations to have in regard to the frequency of regular bowel habits, and I do not have specific answers to that, regularity differs from person to person. I will say that your own body will let you know – a healthy digestive system leaves you feeling refreshed, energized and alert.

As we age and our metabolism naturally slows we may be more challenged with constipation discomfort, and most of the time my suggestions here will bring relief. However, if you become constipated do see your physician first to rule out any more serious problem such as intestinal disease or abnormality. If your doctor approves cut back on processed foods, incorporate those delicious fresh fruits and vegetables and drink plenty of water. (Note that if you suffer from heart, circulatory, or kidney problems your physician should advise on the amount of liquids you consume.)

Back to Mr. Ziglar’s quote – not the subject he intended to address but very relevant to our topic today!

Fishers’ Deona Puckett named as Woodrow Wilson Teaching Fellow

On Tuesday, the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation announced the 2014 Woodrow Wilson Indiana Teaching Fellows, among which is Fishers’ Deona Puckett. Also announced was the inaugural class of Woodrow Wilson MBA Fellows in Education Leadership, among which is Monon Trail ES principal Mike Hall.

As a Woodrow Wilson Teaching Fellow, Ms. Puckett will receive a $30,000 stipend to complete a special intensive master’s program at Ball State University that will prepare her to teach math and/or science in Indiana’s urban and rural public schools.

Puckett graduated from IUPUI in 2014 with a major in biochemistry. She is an undergraduate medical researcher; math and science tutor, Indianapolis Public Schools; Dean’s List student; Sunday School teacher and church youth team member; member of Women in Science House Council.

Both Fellowships are designed not only to recruit and prepare talented educators, but also to change the way they are prepared. “Attracting talent in science, technology, engineering and math to the teaching field will help our students better understand and be successful in these fields, which are so important our state’s future success,” said Governor Mike Pence. “Additionally, the new MBA program can prepare our future school administrators with more tools for making sound business and operational decisions. Advanced educational development for our teachers is an investment that will pay dividends to Hoosier students.”

Each Woodrow Wilson Teaching Fellow receives $30,000 to complete a specially designed, cutting-edge master’s degree program based on a year-long classroom experience. In return, Fellows commit to teach for three years in the urban and rural Indiana schools that most need strong STEM teachers. Throughout the three-year commitment, Fellows receive ongoing support and mentoring.

Nearly 300 WW Teaching Fellows have been named in Indiana to date. The Woodrow Wilson Foundation estimates that they teach 30,000 students each year, helping Indiana’s young people prepare to contribute and thrive in a knowledge-based, global, digital economy and workforce. Students in high-need schools are significantly less likely to have access to strong STEM teachers.

Fishers Police save suicidal man’s life

Shortly after 7 p.m., Monday night, Fishers police officers responded to a man standing on the railing of the Brooks School Road Bridge over Interstate 69. While responding to the scene, officers learned the man and his wife had been arguing in their car. The man stopped the car on the bridge. As he exited the car he told his wife he wanted to kill himself and threatened to jump off the bridge.

Officers quickly worked to get traffic stopped, in both directions, on Interstate 69. Sergeant Wayne Druelinger, Sergeant Andrew Burks, and Officer Seth Goldstein were the first officers to arrive at the bridge. The officers attempted to speak with the man; however he was very upset and would only scream and curse at the officers. Sergeant Eric Patton arrived and attempted to convince the man not to jump. The man ignored officers and attempted to jump. The officers were able to grab him as he fell. As the man hung from the bridge, he attempted to punch an officer in the face. Officer Adam Brockman rushed over to assist and together the five officers lifted the man over the railing and safely onto the bridge surface.

The man was detained and transported to Community North Hospital for a mental evaluation. No officers were injured during this rescue.

5 greats from county’s past

By DON JELLISON
Reporter Editor
Sam. Goose. Roger. Cindi.
If you’re familiar with the history of Hamilton County high school basketball, you don’t need last names to fill in the blanks.
Sam Watson, manager at Jim Dandy Restaurant in Noblesville, has been involved in supporting local high school athletics for years. Jim Dandy is the “home” of the Hall of Fame. Pictures of all the inductees are on a wall at the restaurant.

Dave Sanders played for Sheridan and has the unique experience playing for two legendary basketball coaches, Larry Hobbs at Sheridan and Tony Hinkle at Butler. A Butler team MVP as a senior, he scored 1,126 points and averaged 20.6 points a game. Goose played for Joe Hobbs at Sheridan as a junior, the year the Blackhawks upset one of Noblesville’s all-time best teams.
Cindi Merrill was an Indiana All-Star while at Noblesville as a senior. She went on to become the fourth all-time leading scorer at Miami of Ohio, netting a career total of 1,497 points. She averaged 23 points a game as a senior at Noblesville. Currently, Cindi serves as assistant director of enforcement with the NCAA.

Roger Bryant was one of the county’s first great big man center while at Walnut Grove. He graduated in 1960. Bryant holds the record of 71 points in a Hamilton County Tourney. He also holds the record of 32 points in the tourney in a single game. He scored 1,071 points at Walnut Grove as a three-year letterman for the Wolves.
The late Fred Anderson coached Arcadia to five consecutive Hamilton County Tourney championships in the mid-1920s. That was a record which later was broken by Sheridan’s Larry Hobbs. The Hall of Fame committee still is searching for any relative of Fred Anderson, whose plaque can be claimed at Hamilton Heights.

Neurologist shares the science behind its effectiveness...

3 Tips for practicing mindfulness in a multitasking workplace

Google, eBay, Intel and General Mills offer classes on it. So do Harvard Business School, Ross School of Business and Claremont Graduate University, among other campuses. Mindfulness is not just a corporate trend, but a proven method for success.

Mindfulness – being focused and fully present in the here and now – is good for individuals and good for a business's bottom line.

How can people practice it in a workplace where multitasking is the norm, and concerns for future profits can add to workplace stress?

"Even if a company doesn't make it part of the culture, employees and managers can substitute their multitasking habits with mindfulness in order to reduce stress and increase productivity," says Dr. Romie Mushtaq, www.BrainBodyBeauty.com, a neurologist with expertise in Mind-Body medicine and Mindful Living.

"The result that you and your colleagues will notice is that you're sharper, more efficient and more creative."

Dr. Romie says the physiological benefits of clearing away distractions and living in the moment have been documented in many scientific and medical studies.

"Practicing mindfulness, whether it's simply taking deep breaths, or actually meditating or doing yoga, has been shown to alter the structure and function of the brain, which is what allows us to learn, acquire new abilities, and improve memory," she says. "Advances in neuroimaging techniques have taught us how these mindfulness-based techniques affect neuroplasticity.

"Multitasking, on the other hand, depresses the brain's memory and analytical functions, and it reduces blood flow to the part of the right temporal lobe, which contributes to our creative thinking. In today's marketplace, creativity is key for innovation, sustainability and leadership.

Romie offers these tips for practicing mindfulness in a multitasking business:

- Focus on a single task for an allotted amount of time. You might say, "For 15 minutes, I'm going to read through my emails, and then for one hour, I'm going to make my phone calls," Dr. Romie says.

If your job comes with constant interruptions that demand your attention, take several deep breaths and then prioritize them. Resist the urge to answer the phone every time it rings -- unless it's your boss. If someone asks you to drop what you're doing to help with a problem, it's OK to tell them, "I'll be finished with what I'm doing in 10 minutes, then I'm all yours."

- When you get "stuck" in a task, change your physical environment to stimulate your senses. Sometimes we bounce from one task to another because we just don't have the words to begin writing that strategic plan, or we're staring at a problem and have no ideas for solutions.

"That's the time to get up, take a walk outside and look at the flowers and the birds – change what you're seeing," Dr. Romie says. "Or turn on some relaxing music that makes you feel happy."

Offering your senses pleasant and different stimulation rewires your brain for relaxation, and reduces the effects of stress hormones, which helps to unfreeze your creativity center.

- Delegate! We often have little control over the external stresses in our life, particularly on the job. How can you not multitask when five people want five different things from you at the same time?

"Have compassion for yourself, and reach out for help," Dr. Romie says. "If you can assign a task to somebody else who's capable of handling it, do so. If you need to ask a colleague to help you out, ask!"

This will not only allow you to focus on the tasks that most need your attention, it will reduce your stress.

"And who knows? The colleague you're asking for help may want to feel appreciated and part of your team!"

Boys golf sectionals

‘Hounds, Royals win close ones

By RICHIE HALL
Reporter Sports Editor

At most boys golf sectionals, a team score of 306 is good enough to win.

But Westfield carded a 306 at Monday's sectional at the Golf Club of Indiana, and the Shamrocks were instead breathing a big sigh of relief that they got out to regionals.

Such is life at the Zionsville sectional, where three of the top five teams played. All three of those teams advanced to regionals - fifth-rated Carmel edged No. 4 Zionsville for the trophy, with No. 3 Westfield getting that third spot.

The Greyhounds carded 288 to the Eagles' 289. Jake Brown delivered the win for Carmel with a birdie putt on the 18th hole.

"It came down to the last hole, and we knew we were tied going in," said 'Hounds coach Chard Reid. "We were paying pretty close attention to the scores down the wire. I told Jake at the tee box 'Hey man, it's tied. You got to win this hole.'"

Reid said Brown made that put from about 15 feet.

"It was good," said Brown. "It was good for the team. I knew that we were close."

All five of Carmel's players were in the 70's. Brown led the way with a two-under par 70, making three birdies in total. Jon Hicks and Michael Walters both carded 72s, with five birdies for Hicks and three for Walters. Kevin Stone made a birdie on his way to a 74, and Jeff Doty had 79.

The defending state champion Shamrocks fought off No. 13 Lebanon for a place in regionals, with the Tigers carding a 310. Timmy Hildebrand had Westfield's low round with a 72, that included four birdies. Thomas Lewis scored 75 and Johnny Deck made two birdies in his round of 76.

"We're given a second chance," said WHS coach Jon Hoover. "Obviously, we'd like to come over here and compete to win it, but we were outplayed by both Carmel and Zionsville. Very fortunate to get out of here and advance to regional."

Noblesville's Jackson Wright was the individual medalist at Purgatory, with a three-under par 69.

Carmel, Zionsville and Westfield will play at the Lafayette Jeff regional, which takes place Thursday at Battle Ground Golf Course. Play begins at 8 a.m.

Guerin Catholic finished fifth with a 319. Drew Fellmeth had two birdies while shooting a 77. Ryan Kimmerling, Travis Fellmeth and Matthew Godfrey all had one birdie.

"Drew Fellelth and Matthew Godfrey both had pretty good days," said GCHS coach Mark Mathews. "They're coming back next year, so we're excited about that."

University scored 384, Jake Tanner's 84 led the Trailblazers. Sheridan carded 411, with Elliot Barker shooting a 97.

ROYALS WIN ON TIEBREAKER

Over at Purgatory Golf Club, No. 1-ranked Hamilton Southeastern edged host and No. 12-ranked Noblesville to win the sectional trophy there.

Both teams finished with scores of 298, but the Royals won on the fifth man score. Graham McAree had a one-under par 71, with three birdies to his credit.

Nick Kuster had 73, including a birdie. Cedric McAree's 75 was with three birdies, including the last two holes. Johnny Watts carded 79, with a birdie on 18. Chase Campbell had a birdie as well.

The Millers did claim the individual winner: Jackson Wright fired a three-under 69. Wright began the day with a birdie and an eagle, and never looked back. He made two more birdies on the back nine.

Noah Lodin made three birdies on his way to 74. Josh Keating's 76 included two birdies, Chase Kluth carded 79, and Parker Deakayne birdied 18.

Tenth-ranked Pendleton Heights was third with a 306, securing the third and final spot at regionals. Fishers was fourth at 311, but two Tigers advanced to regionals as individuals. They will join Noblesville and HSE at the Players Club in Yorktown Friday morning, with action starting at 8 a.m.

Jackson Brooker and Jason Feuerstine both had 76s. Brooker had two birdies and

Noblesville's Cutter among members

Milan Miracle team to be honored at Victory Field tonight

On its 60th anniversary six members of the 1954 Milan Miracle high school basketball team, whose story inspired the iconic sports movie “Hoosiers”, will be honored at Victory Field on Wednesday, June 11, prior to the Indianapolis Indians 7:05 p.m. contest against the Durham Bulls.

Bobby Plump, Ray Craft, Noblesville’s own Rollin Cutter, Roger Schroder, Gene White and Glen Butte are all scheduled to throw out a ceremonial first pitch in addition to being honored in a pre-game ceremony. They will also sign autographs for fans in front of the standings and lineup board through the second inning of the contest.

Though people around the world know the story thanks to the movie, it holds a special place in the heart of Indianapolis Indians President and Butler University alum Max Schumacher, who was actually in Milan on the night of legendary game in 1954. At that time, Schumacher was working as a reporter for the Indianapolis Times and was tasked with going to Milan to cover fan reaction to the game from the few residents of the tiny community that did not make the trip to Indianapolis for the game.
