Godby “raises flag” at Legion

By DON JELLISON
Reporter Editor

You may be able to take the boy out of Sheridan, but never really able to take Sheridan out of the man.

That’s the impression coming from Jim Godby early Saturday afternoon when the now well-known Central Indiana furniture store owner sat on the steps of the Sheridan American Legion porch waiting for a ceremony to dedicate a new flag pole and flag to the Legion post.

The flag pole was dismantled when Godby’s Westfield furniture store was plowed under to make way for new Highway 31.

While waiting for the ceremony, Godby talked about his early days in Sheridan; his boyhood days and then his days playing in legendary high school basketball coach Larry Hobbs’ program, waiting for his chance to become a Blackhawk.

“I grew up on a farm,” Godby began. “We didn’t have an organized youth sports program. We enjoyed taking part in 4H and FFA activities.

“I had great parents. Dad was involved in several things in the community, and I guess you could say that I’m following in his path.”

Giving to the American Legion is right down Godby’s alley. He spent nine years in the service, and during that period he spent nearly a year in Viet Nam.

“I was in Vie Nam the same time Harry Hobbs was there,” Godby recalled. “I remember Larry (Hobbs) writing me and saying maybe I might run into Harry, but I never did.”

Godby grew up during the famous Hobbs era in Sheridan. After Larry Hobbs resigned, Jim played for Joe Hobbs and his senior year the Blackhawks won the sectional championship.

His role model had always been Coach Larry Hobbs and sons Harry and Joe. He

The County Line

Be vigilant against cemetery vandalism

By FRED SWIFT

Cemetery vandalism is not a very common crime in Hamilton County, and that is fortunate. But, in the past couple of weeks a beautiful rural cemetery in Jackson Township was vandalized with more than 30 tombstones knocked over, some broken, in a rampage of violence against property.

Taylor Cemetery is located in a remote rural area at the dead end of a virtually abandoned county road. It has been known to be the site of drinking parties and has fallen victim to vandalism in the past, but not for several years. It is the final resting place for pioneers and Civil War veterans and named for the Taylor family which settled in the area in the 1830s.

The suspects in the recent crime are teenagers or young adults who suffer from two problems: not enough to do and never taught to respect other people's property. Now it will be the taxpayers who have to pay for repairing the damage if indeed it can be repaired.

Taylor Cemetery is under the care of the Hamilton County Cemetery Commission. It is one of 20-odd graveyards that would be abandoned and overgrown if were not for the commission's care and supervision. The commission's work is funded by tax money.

Don't buy a ticket to the circus

By JANET LEONARD

"Not my circus. Not my monkeys"

As I read those words on a sign this past week I was glad that I was not drinking anything. If I had been, it would have probably spewed out of my nose. I just cracked up.

How many times have I been invited to give my opinion about a situation that did not personally involve me? How many times have I just been sitting and minding my own business when I suddenly felt the need to voice my opinion?

I have always wanted to "fix" things, situations, and people. It's one thing when I am directly involved with the "circus" and the "monkeys" are mine. But, and that is a big but, I have learned to mind my own business...for the most part.

With age there has come a bit of wisdom and common sense. I don't HAVE to open my mouth and invite myself to become a main character in everyone's drama. When the ringmaster at the circus asks for volunteers to enter the center ring, I do not have to raise my hand and my voice.

I have learned that my opinion can be rephrased and misconstrued as the drama in the circus is spread from ring to ring to ring. The monkeys may not bite but my words may come back to bite me. I still have the teeth prints on my backside from a few well meant words that later were misspoken by others.

I have slowed down my mouth to catch up with my thoughts after mulling them over in my "is this really necessary?" sifter. Where is my sifter located? Well, I think it gets closer to my heart the older and wiser that I get.

Indiana Governor Mike Pence and Westfield Mayor Cook cut the 1000 foot ribbon to officially open Grand Park on Saturday. The 400-acre facility will be home to 31 multi-use fields and 26 baseball and softball diamonds once it is completed.

Grand Park...Grand Opening

By BRIAN REDDICK
Saturday afternoon’s Grand Park grand opening ceremony was in grand style. The City of Westfield’s Chief of Staff, Todd Burtron, was master of ceremonies for the crowd of around 200 in attendance.
The official opening of the United States largest youth sports facility drew Indiana Governor Mike Pence and Congresswoman Susan Brooks. Governor Pence praised Westfield Mayor Andy Cook for his strong leadership abilities and great vision of the still under construction sports campus.
Once completed the 400 acre facility will be home to 31 multiuse fields and 26 baseball and softball diamonds.
Mayor Cook announced during the ceremony that within the next 30 – 60 days South Bend based Holladay Properties would break ground on a 370,000 square foot indoor sports arena. The facility will hold 3 regulation size soccer fields and a full service food facility operated by Indianapolis based Jonathan Byrd. Mayor Cook was also pleased to announce that the facility would see no public money from the City of Westfield. The land will be purchased, owned and developed by Holladay Properties.
Plans are also in the works for the development a 96,000 square foot indoor baseball facility that will be built within the Grand Park campus.
Grand Park has already seen higher usage that originally expected. Mayor Cook said “we were anticipating about 500,000 visitors here for the first year, so far in only three months we have already had 400,000”. Mayor Cook also noted that Westfield’s one and only hotel as of right now stays booked to capacity every single weekend.

With the very near future development of Grand Village adjacent to Grand Park the entire master plan outlines approximately 1,400 acres of land available for residential and commercial development including hospitality (hotel, restaurant and retail), mixed-use, life science and corporate office uses. Grand Village will consist of an 18 acre lake with a boardwalk, shops, retail space and entertainment.

Once completed the City of Westfield expects 1.5 million visitors annually in and around the park and village producing huge economic growth for Westfield and Hamilton County.
Westfield topped off the night with a concert by the Wright Brothers and a grand display of fireworks.

Let me take a selfie...in my bathroom

By AIMEE GEBHART

Last week I had the rare privilege of a Girls Night Out with some of my best childhood girlfriends. The four of us have stuck by each other’s sides since the days of braces, big hair, and thick glasses. I have to say, much like fine wine, we have all improved with age. At least we thought we had improved.

Like any group of moms, we wanted proof that we had actually gussied up and gone out for the evening, so we insisted on heckling complete strangers (and even our own children) to take a million group shots of us together. Knowing that these pictures would end up on Facebook in a matter of minutes, we would settle for nothing less than magazine worthy photos.

That explains why as soon as the poor, unsuspecting photographers finished snapping shots of us we started screeching things like, “Let me see!”, “How do I look?” , and “Are there any good ones?” After wrestling for each other’s phones, the next few minutes were filled with self-loathing comments like, “I look so awful!”, “My arms look squishy!”, “Why do my bosoms look so old?”, and “Who invited the ugly girl?” (Oh wait, that ugly girl was actually me.)

Here’s the really strange part: each of us thought we looked pretty darn good before we left our homes that evening! This was not an isolated incident either; it seems to happen every time we have a big night out on the town. So we started to wonder, how does this happen? How do we go from looking so cute at home to thinking we look like trolls in all of our photos? Is it some psychological trick that our brains use to get us out of the house, or is it possible that we all just look better in our bathrooms?

The only conclusion we could come to is that our bathrooms lie. There must be something special about the lighting that makes us look slimmer, tanner, smoother, and less hairy than we do in actual daylight. And considering the obscene amount of selfies that I’ve seen taken in bathrooms, I’m guessing that this must be a universal phenomenon.

I will admit, I used to mock the whole bathroom-selfie-craze, but that was before my great epiphany. As gross as it is, I finally understand the motivation behind it. I’m thinking that from now on I will only have my picture taken in my bathroom. In fact, I may even start hosting dinner parties in there. Sure it might seem a little weird to eat hors d’oeuvres and sip cocktails around a potty, but who cares? The important thing is that we’ll all look fabulous!

Indianapolis Indians win...

Decker-Ashley duo sparks 10-4 rout of Tides

The Indianapolis Indians (44-31) put their recent offensive struggles behind them by exploding for 15 hits to blow past the Norfolk Tides (30-46) 10-4 on Saturday night at Harbor Park.

Although Norfolk jumped out to a quick 2-0 lead by the second inning, the Tribe would quickly erase the deficit with the red-hot bat of Jaff Decker. Stepping to the plate with Mel Rojas Jr. on and nobody out in the third, Decker quickly deposited the second pitch of his at-bat into the river behind the right field wall for a two-run shot that evened the game 2-2. Not letting up after knotting the score, the Tribe captured its first lead of the evening on a Chris Dickerson groundout that scored Decker give Indy a 3-2 edge in the fifth.

One inning later, Nevin Ashley broke things open by smashing his first triple of the season to score Brent Morel and Chris McGuiness and make it 5-2 in the sixth. The three-run advantage marked only the start of Indy's onslaught as its lead ballooned to 10-3 over the Tides behind a three-hit, four-RBI night from Ashley and a 3-for-5, three-RBI effort from Decker.

With a sizable cushion from his offense, Indians starter Adam Wilk authored his seventh quality start of the season with just six hits and 1 ER/7.0IP. Indy's bullpen handled the final 2.0IP to nail down the 10-4 victory.

Nevin Ashley hit his first triple of the season, which scored two runs in the sixth inning for Indianapolis against Norfolk on Saturday. The Indians won 10-4.
