The County Line

Only 10 school board filings so far

By FRED SWIFT

As we near the midway point in the candidate filing period for this year's school board elections, only ten hopefuls have filed for seats on the six Hamilton County school boards.

There are 18 seats at stake countywide in the Nov. 4 non-partisan school election, two in Noblesville, four at Southeastern and three each in Carmel, Westfield, Heights and Sheridan.

Those candidates filed as of Tuesday afternoon are:

- Daniel Degnan, Westfield;
- Katrina Hockemeyer, Hamilton Southeastern;
- Matthew W. Stolle, Hamilton Southeastern;
- Julia Church Kozicki, Noblesville;
- Doug Ozolins, Hamilton Heights;
- Gwen B. Hunter, Hamilton Heights;
- Arnett T. Cooper Hamilton Heights;
- Pamela S. Knowles, Carmel;
- Jason Todd Burton, Sheridan.
- and R. Birch Dalton, Westfield.

Candidates have until noon on Friday, August 22 to file their petitions of candidacy with the county elections office.

One would think there would be more interest in the election with numerous candidates seeking to be on the school board. After all, the schools control more tax money than any other local government entity. But, in many of these school elections some candidates run unopposed for election or re-election.

The question then arises as to whether this means the general public is satisfied with schools as they are, or whether it is simply apathy on the part of the public. Then there's also the possibility that a great portion of the public is not informed enough to know anything about their school board or how its members are selected.

Naturally, we'd like to believe the schools are all doing an outstanding job and the data indicates Hamilton County schools are doing a good job when compared with other schools in the state. But, I suspect there is also apathy and a lack of understanding of what's involved which is unfortunate when dealing with such an important subject as public education.

Fishers Fire Station #92 has temporarily relocated to 13021 E. 116th St., where it will stay for the next six months. The station's regular home at 116th Street and Brooks School Road is being renovated.

Fishers Fire Station #92 has temporary new home

Fishers Fire Station #92, located at 116th Street and Brooks School Road is temporarily moving. On Tuesday, the engine company relocated to 13021 E. 116th St., to a rental house for approximately six months. Construction will begin on or about August 11th by Myers Construction.

This temporary location is about a ½ mile east of the current station and will not impede emergency service at all. Temporary shelter is being installed for the engine in front of the residence and will have access to respond east and west on 116th St.

The current Station 92, located at the corner of 116th and Brooks School Road is being renovated in order to accommodate an additional fire suppression crew to increase the departments' capabilities of getting more emergency responders on the scene quicker. The structure will be expanded 1700 square feet, predominately on the west end of the current structure. This additional space will allow for living space for the additional personnel and storage for additional equipment.

Upon completion of this project, this station will house an Advanced Life Support (ALS) engine with a minimum of three firefighters and a 102' aerial ladder truck with a minimum of three firefighters. This will decrease the time to get two trucks on the scene of a fire emergency by 4-8 minutes amplifying the department's ability to make a rescue and put the fire out.

Firefighters remind everyone to check their smoke detectors once a month, sleep with your bedroom doors closed and always know two ways out of your home.

The Indiana Department of Education released some good news when publishing 2014 ISTEP scores earlier this week.

But, there also was some, perhaps, not so good news.

The good news is that more than 80 percent of Indiana students passed the English/Language Arts portion of the test, up from 79.5 percent in 2013. More than 74 percent passed both English/Language Arts and Math, up from 73.7 percent last year.

Jonathon Paul Brumley

July 31, 2014

On Thursday, July 31, 2014 at 11:45 p.m., Heaven called one of their angels home. Jonathon Paul Brumley passed away unexpectedly at home.

Sheriff's Office to host forum on heroin, illegal drugs, and underage drinking

Hamilton County Sheriff Mark Bowen announced the agency will be hosting a free public education forum on Heroin, Illegal Drugs, and Underage Drinking. Like many communities across the country, Hamilton County has experienced an increase in drug and alcohol activity in recent years. All Hamilton County residents and concerned citizens are invited to attend this important meeting at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 28, at the Hamilton County 4H Fairgrounds. Among the presenters will be Brandon Robinson who was arrested for involvement in a fatal drunk driving crash; Jeanine Motsay who lost her son to the synthetic drug NBOME; a recovering heroin addict; and Major A. Dietz of the Hamilton - Boone County Drug Task Force.

"We can't turn our backs on the increasing problems of illegal drug use and underage drinking that are present in central Indiana and people are asking for information," said Sheriff Bowen. "Our goals for the evening are to present current and accurate information on the situation, give ideas on how families and friends can proactively address the problem, and to honestly answer questions those in the community have." The featured panelists will share their own life stories on how they have dealt with drugs and alcohol. "There is a misconception that drugs and alcohol only affect a certain part of society but we need Hamilton County residents to see the impact of these threats and to join in the fight against the problem."

Over the past years, Hamilton County has seen a steady rise in the number of drug arrests, overdoses, and underage drinking incidents. Drug overdose reports to the Sheriff's Office have risen fourfold since 2010 and the number of drug possession arrests has seen an increase with nearly 60 arrests so far in 2014 by the Sheriff's Office. Similarly, arrests for driving under the influence of drugs have doubled in the past year. An indication of the underage drinking problem is reflected in the number of arrests for illegal consumption. In 2013, more than 600 arrests were made in Hamilton County for minor consumption of alcohol and 2014 is on course to equal or surpass that number.

In addition to the featured speakers, resources such as the Hamilton County Prosecutor's Office and Probation Office, the Hamilton County Council on Alcohol and Drugs, Proactive, and other addiction recovery and treatment programs will be available to provide information.

Queen bee: 2014 Honey Queen spreads bee awareness with sweet title

By Alex Kincaid
BSU JOURNALISM AT THE FAIR

Not all queen titles with sashes and tiaras come from beauty pageants. For 2014 Indiana Honey Queen Katie Neighbors, the process involved essay writing and an interview in front of a panel of judges about none other than bees and honey.

Pairing her sparkling crown and white sash with a black business-suit jacket, the 19-year-old Purdue University student stood by handing out ribbons at the Watermelon Seed Spitting Contest at the Indiana State Fair on Saturday.

At the State Fair, Honey Queen and Princess duties also include presenting honey-cooking and candle-making demonstrations, manning the Indiana State Beekeepers Association booth and answering people’s questions in an effort to spread bee knowledge. But their work doesn’t end with the fair. They promote beekeeping through presentations at schools, farmer’s markets and 4-H groups throughout the year.

Neighbors has been beekeeping for three and a half years. Already fascinated by bees, she went to beekeeping school on scholarship in 2012, running for Indiana Honey Queen in 2014.

“I really like trying new things,” she said. “I’ve always liked helping people. Before I was queen I would come up here sometimes and help out with some of the booths, and I really wanted to get more younger people involved in beekeeping,” she said.

Neighbors wrote her essay for the Honey Queen competition on the antibacterial aspect of honey, and then underwent an interview with three judges from the Indiana State Beekeepers Association.

“They want someone who can speak in front of people,” Neighbors said.

“They’re kind of like our ambassadors,” said Lacy Dooley, board director of the Indiana State Beekeepers Association and 2011 Indiana Honey Queen.

Like Neighbors, Dooley was motivated to become Honey Queen to share her knowledge of bees with others and enjoyed the friendships and connections she made.

Being the youngest contestant running this year, Neighbors was shocked to win.

“People cheered,” Neighbors said. “I actually had some of my friends from college come down because I told them I was running for the Indiana State Honey Queen, and they just wanted to see what was going on even though none of them really like bees or beekeeping.”

More people than just beekeepers should be concerned about honey bees. Jeff Dittmore, board president of the Indiana State Beekeepers Association, said bee colonies have dwindled from 6 million in the early 1940s to less than 3 million today for many reasons, including pesticides, poor farm practices—and a dwindling number of beekeepers.

“Our agriculture is literally built on the backs of bees,” Dittmore said.

For example, each year 1.2 million colonies of bees must be transported to California for the purpose of pollinating almond trees. This is 1.2 million of the fewer than 3 million colonies in the nation. Without the transportation of these bees from February to April, the state that produces 90 percent of the world’s almonds, an $8 billion industry, would not be able to do so.

Bees alone put $29 billion into the U.S. economy, Dittmore explained. That doesn’t include the $7 billion in hive products like honey, honeycomb and beeswax produced by bees.

“I don’t know of any other animal on the entire agricultural field that pulls that much financial weight,” Dittmore said.

The Honey Queen helps draw attention to these important issues. “They’re a face for us,” Dittmore said. Coming with a sparkly crown, the title also comes with a bit of fame.

People interrupted Neighbors’ duties to snap her picture and congratulate her on her title as she walked around the Agriculture and Horticulture Building.

“Are you Queen? Can I take your picture?” said an anxious fan fumbling with her camera. “I have a picture of all the Honey Queens!”

Neighbors said she enjoys the attention, especially from young girls who like to look at her tiara. It’s the perfect excuse to talk about bees.

“Yay Disney movies, for making me seem cool,” the environmental science major said with a laugh.

Kids dissect owl pellets for science and fun

By Kayla Crandall

Right behind the misting rock fountain, under the DNR front porch at the Indiana State Fairgrounds, children dissected owl pellets provided by the Gene Stratton-Porter State Historic Site.

Yes, owl pellets. They’re often mistaken for poop. They’re small hairballs full of bones that are regurgitated by owls as part of their unique digestive system. Disgusting. Yet a ring of parents, strollers and grossed-out but intrigued kids clustered around a folding table covered in the pellets they were taking apart and examining.

“It’s a great experience for kids. Owls eat a lot different than other animals,” said Dave W. Fox, the site manager for Gene Stratton-Porter State Historic Site.

Owls have two stomachs and do not digest bones and fur; instead, they vomit up the remnants of their dinner they don’t need in the form of pellets.

“I loved it. I want to be a vet someday so it was really fun to do,” said Maeve Pintal, 8, who was touching the pellets with her bare hands. “I got to take some owl pellets home!”

Gene Stratton-Porter workers had sticker-covered sandwich bags ready for kids to take home their finds.

“People are curious and scared to come over,” said Fox, who has set up a state fair booth representing the Gene Stratton-Porter Museum for eight years.

The cabin museum honoring Stratton-Porter, the famous Hoosier author and conservationist, is in Rome City and hosts a wide variety of activities like nature walks and afternoon teas on the grounds.

“[Gene Stratton-Porter] was all about education,” Fox said.

And so were the owl pellets teaching kids that owls are a more environmentally friendly version of mousetraps.

“You can get a good idea of what the ecology is based on the type of animals found,” Fox said.

“I found a skull,” Maeve said. “It may be a rodent.”

Maeve’s mother, Beth Pintal, said, “She asked to come to the DNR barn. We just bring her here and turn her loose.”

Even though the pair are allergic to hand sanitizer, they dove right in picking apart the owl pellets.

Pintal said she had already located where all the bathrooms were to get cleaned up afterward.

The Carmel girls golf team started their season with an excellent performance at the Hamilton Southeastern Invitational Tuesday at Stony Creek. The Greyhounds carded a team total of 292, with two girls shooting in the 60s.

Fast start for county golf teams

By RICHIE HALL
Reporter Sports Editor

The standard of golf just keeps going up in Hamilton County.

For example: The Hamilton Southeastern girls team opened its season on Tuesday by shooting 294 at its own Invitational at Stony Creek Golf Course. Three Southeastern players carded 73. Very impressive.

And the Royals finished second. Carmel got HSE by two strokes, totaling 292. Two Greyhound players broke 70, and one of them nearly broke the Carmel school record.

That would be Alyssa Cook, one of two players who was on the Greyhounds' record-setting state championship team last year. Cook lit up Stony Creek with a four-under par 66, running away with medalist honors.

Carmel's school record is 65, set by Milena Savich in 2007. As a team, the Greyhounds were just two strokes off the school record of 290, which was set in 2011.

"(Alyssa) told me she would have not bogeyed the last hole if she'd known that," said Hounds coach Ken Kelly.

Maggie Rees, also returning from last year, followed that up with a one-under par 69. Rees tied for second with Jaylee Bunner of Fort Wayne Blackhawk Christian.

"That was a great, great two rounds by those two girls," said Kelly. "They're going to be leading the team all season between the two of them."

Carmel played two teams at Stony Creek, with the Gold team carding a 325. Hannah Sharkey finished with a 73, putting her in a five-way tie for fourth place.

Sharkey joined the three Royals - Marissa Holliday, Ciara McAree and Kat Leighty - with their 73s. Phoebe Cha's 75, which tied her for ninth place, gave Southeastern its strong score.

"We are very excited about what the girls did today," said HSE coach Steve Guenin. "We got to see a lot of girls play, so we're very excited about that."

The Royals had three teams compete - Blue, White and Black. The Blue team scored the 294, but there were decent scores on the other two teams. Rachel Eaton (78) and Esther Bahn (79) led the White team, with Phyllis Cha's 80 the best of the Black team. Kaitlyn Johnson competed as an individual, giving Southeastern 16 players on the course.

All of them are there to help Southeastern carry on its girls golf tradition.

"We feel like we have a solid group of returning girls all with state tournament experience," said Guenin in an earlier email to The Reporter. "Seniors Marissa Holliday and Kat Leighty have been big contributors for the last three years and we are hoping for big things from them this year. Juniors Ciara McAree and Phoebe Cha bring with them two years of varsity experience. The girls have been working hard this summer and are excited for our season to begin and to improve on last year's achievements. We have a nice group of girls ready to contribute and we look forward to seeing them."

Meanwhile, Fishers was third and gave notice that it will be a team to contend with. The Tigers carded 321 with a majority freshman line-up. Two of them were Kennedy Brooker, who scored 77 and Morgan Lewis, who carded 78.

Fishers coach Danny Smith said it was the best opening score ever for the Tigers, and he was "pretty sure" that it was a school record. What a way to begin the season.

"They didn't play like freshmen," Smith said of his new golfers. "If they had a bad shot, they were able to overcome that and make a good shot right after that."

It looks as if that line-up - four freshmen and senior Katie Brooks - will be Fishers' front five for the year, but there are other players who can step in for the Tigers as well.

"We've got three or four other freshmen, a couple of sophomores, who have the ability to also get into the varsity line-up," said Smith.

With this fast start, Fishers is truly taking aim at putting itself into the girls golf elite. Smith said the Tigers' goal is to get to the state meet this year.

"We're looking to do a lot more than what we've done in the past," said Smith. "Today obviously shows that we've taken that first step."

Another player with a goal of getting to state is Hamilton Heights' Caitie Gehlhausen. As a freshman, she almost qualified as an individual for regionals. She is also out to a fast start in her sophomore year, shooting a 75 at Stony Creek and tying for ninth place with Phoebe Cha.

Team scores: Carmel Blue 292, Hamilton Southeastern Blue 294, Fishers 321, Carmel Gold 325, Hamilton Southeastern White 335, Plain-

Gehlhausen

Lopez, Blalock To Be Inducted Into Legends Hall of Fame

Legends Tour co-founder Jane Blalock and LPGA and World Golf Hall of Fame member Nancy Lopez will be inducted into The Legends Hall of Fame on Thursday, Aug. 14, in French Lick, Ind. The induction will be held during tournament week of The Legends Championship, set for Aug. 13-17, at the Pete Dye Course at French Lick Resort. "I am very honored to be inducted into the Legends Hall of Fame," said Lopez, a 48-time winner on the LPGA Tour with three major championship victories. "When you get older, this honor becomes even more special after playing against so many great competitors over the years." During her first full season on the 1978 LPGA Tour, Lopez won nine tournaments, including five consecutive events. She also won the Vare Trophy for the LPGA's low scoring average, was the LPGA's top rookie and LPGA Player of the Year, becoming the only woman to have won all three LPGA top honors in the same season (1978). Her three major championships all came at the LPGA Championship -- in 1978, 1985 and 1989. Lopez was inducted into the World Golf Hall of Fame in 1987. She was a member of the inaugural 1990 United States Solheim Cup team and was captain of the team in 2005. Lopez has played in more than a dozen Legends Tour events, earning two top-10 finishes. Blalock is a 29-time LPGA tour champion who still holds the record for most consecutive cuts made on a professional tour with 299. She was the LPGA's top rookie in 1969, won her first tournament in 1970, and won 25 tournaments during the 1970s - never missing a cut through 1980. She won her last two tournaments in 1985 and retired from competition in 1987. A founding member of The Legends Tour, Blalock currently serves as the tour's CEO. Since its inception in 2000, the Legends Tour grew from two annual events to 11 events in 2013. A determined promoter of veteran LPGA players, Blalock also worked to get the Legends Tour's designation as the official senior tour of the LPGA in 2001. "Once I recovered from the shock of learning about my nomination, the most incredible sense of fulfillment and elation set in," said Blalock. "It gave me the opportunity to reflect upon my entire LPGA and Legends Tour journey and to realize how fortunate I am to have lived this life." The Legends Hall of Fame is a permanent installment displayed year-round at West Baden Springs Hotel in French Lick and was created by the resort to showcase some of the greatest names in women's golf history. The Legends' exhibit features photos and memorabilia showcasing the history of players' careers. Nominated candidates will be reviewed and approved annually for induction by a committee comprised of French Lick Resort officials and ambassadors, as well as active and former Legends Tour players. Annual inductions of two individuals will be held in conjunction with The Legends Championship. One inductee will be an active member of The Legends Tour who is still regularly competing in official Legends Tour events. The second inductee will be a semi-retired Legends Tour member who has made a significant impact on the game during her LPGA and Legends Tour careers. Legends Tour members Jan Stephenson and Kathy Whitworth were inducted into the 2013 Legends Hall of Fame. Three additional honorees -- Mickey Wright, Louise Suggs and Betsy Rawls -- were recognized last year for their contributions to the game. The Legends Hall of Fame committee also honored golf course designer and architect Alice Dye with a special 2013 induction. # Quiet practice day for Colts on Tuesday

By KEVIN BOWEN

It was probably the quietest practice day of the 2014 Training Camp from a competition standpoint. With the preseason opener a little more than 48 hours away, things were slowed down on Tuesday afternoon with some extra attention for the second and third teamers, players who will be seeing a bulk of the work on Thursday night.

Andrew Luck was 7-of-9 on the afternoon with Hakeem Nicks back practicing after sitting out with a sore foot on Monday. Tuesday's two-hour session included a lot of first vs. second team looks, which is something we haven't really seen much during camp.

LaRon Landry and Vontae Davis were both back on the practice field on Tuesday for their second straight day of work. Pagano said during the morning walk-through that he wants their reps to be ramped up now that they are back participating. Even though the practice was a bit slower paced on Tuesday, Landry and Davis were active and that could easily be seen by the two colliding with each other in trying to intercept an errant throw.

The next question becomes when we will see the two on the playing field. I'd be surprised if they played on Thursday. Even though starters are only going to play one to two series on Thursday night, it might be best to keep Davis and Landry from game action until a week from Saturday.

There weren't too many highlight type plays on Tuesday (Sergio Brown did have an interception to ignite the defensive sideline). One play that did draw some chatter was tight end Weslye Saunders catching a fade pattern for a touchdown over Landry.

The competition battles at the tight end position haven't really been talked about this camp because I think it's taken for granted that you have four guys that played pivotal roles for this team over the last two seasons. Jack Doyle has had a strong last week of camp and if the Colts only keep three tight ends, then he and Saunders would likely be in a battle for that final spot.

ROSTER MOVES

The Indianapolis Colts today signed free agent outside linebacker Phillip Hunt and waived wide receiver Nu'Keese Richardson.

Hunt, 6-1, 254 pounds, played in 22 career games with the Philadelphia Eagles from 2011-12, recording 15 tackles (14 solo) and 3.0 sacks. He spent the 2013 season on Injured Reserve after suffering an injury in the preseason. Prior to signing with the Eagles, Hunt spent two years (2009-2010) in the Canadian Football League with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, where he totaled 64 tackles, 19.0 sacks and one fumble recovery. In 2010, he was named the team's most outstanding defensive player after leading the CFL with 16.0 sacks. He also set a CFL record with at least 1.0 sack in each of his last 10 games.

Richardson was signed by the Colts as a free agent on August 3, 2014. He played for the University of Pikeville in 2013, where he recorded 39 receptions for 588 yards and three touchdowns in nine games. In 2009, Richardson played in nine games for the University of Tennessee and caught eight passes for 102 yards and a touchdown.

Gerrit Cole pitched fast, but gave up 10 hits in the Indianapolis Indians' 9-4 loss to Toledo on Tuesday.

Cole train derailed by Toledo in 9-4 rout

Pirates ace Gerrit Cole touched high 90s on the radar gun during his second rehab start with the Indianapolis Indians (59-60), but the former No. 1 overall draft pick was tagged for five runs on 10 hits in 4 1/3 innings of a 9-4 rout by the Toledo Mud Hens (59-60) on Tuesday night at Victory Field.

Eight days removed from whiffing seven in five shutout frames at Rochester, Cole saw his 24-inning scoreless streak snapped in the opening frame on an RBI double from veteran Mike Hessman.

The rehabbing righty scattered three hits while blanking Toledo over the next three innings until four consecutive extra-base hits brought home four and chased Cole in the top of the fifth. Hessman knocked his second of two RBI doubles, James McCann lifted a three-run homer and Ben Guez capped the thumping with a triple.

Brent Morel homered in the sixth to bring home a pair of back-to-back singles from Jose Tabata and Andrew Lambo and cut the deficit to 6-3.

Andy Oliver worked a scoreless ninth, his 30th appearance without an earned run of 39 total games, before Matt Hague plated Tabata with a run-scoring single in the bottom of the frame for his team-high 62nd RBI.
