Unanimously passed resolution first step...

Council shows support for training facility

By PETE SMITH
The Noblesville City Council unanimously passed a resolution that could potentially help the county to get the support it needs to fund improvements to a training facility used by police and firefighters from all the cities in Hamilton County.

County Commissioner Mark Heirbrandt was in attendance at Tuesday night's council meeting seeking a show of faith that if the county were to fund the training center improvements, that the participating cities would fund operational costs.

So far, Noblesville, Westfield and Fishers have tentatively agreed to annually contribute $40,000 each towards the facility's operational costs. Noblesville currently pays $15,000 per year to use the facility said Mayor John Ditslear.

Heirbrandt said he will meet with officials from Carmel next week in an attempt to garner equal support from all each city.

With that support, he said he hopes to convince the county council to fund $3 million in upgrades to a property at 161st Street and River Road that the city of Westfield owns and is used for public safety training. The improvements would include a new gun range for police officers and a new fire tower for firefighters.

Heirbrandt said he is hopeful that he can bring an interlocal agreement back to the participating municipalities sometime this spring for final consideration.

"Everybody has to have professional training," he said. "And these (public safety) employees have a need for sets and repetition to improve their skills."

"It would save us a lot of money and time," Ditslear said of why he supports the plan.

In other action
Noblesville Planning Department Director Christy Langley had good news for residents who live near any of Noblesville's waterways.

She's hopeful that professional training of city staff could lead to a decrease of 10 to 13 percent in the cost of flood insurance for people who live in any of the city's flood plains.

And that decrease has the potential to grow to a 20 percent savings by 2016.

Mac's trial....

Set for Jan. 12, 2016

By BRIAN REDDICK
Former Noblesville High School basketball coach Dave McCollough was present Monday morning for what is sure to be the first of many appearances in Hamilton County Circuit Court.

Representing McCollough was Matt and Steve Cook of the Noblesville law firm of Cook & Cook. Noblesville Schools was represented by Alex Pinegar and Andrew Manna of Church Church Hittle & Antrim. Noblesville High School principal Jeff Bryant, who was named in the lawsuit, was not present nor were any representatives from Noblesville Schools.

Monday's appearance was a pre-trial conference. Circuit Court Judge Paul Felix told both sides that he typically held pre-trial conferences in his chambers and not in open court. Steve Cook, representing McCollough, told the court that it was important to his client to be on the record in all aspects of this suit.

When asked by Judge Felix if the plaintiff and the defendant were compliant with trial rule 16 both sides said no. Trial rule 16 is a pre-trial procedure formalizing many aspects of the proceedings including completion of the discovery process. Due to the McCollough's legal team still being active in the discovery process Judge Felix was hesitant to set a trial date anytime soon.

Judge Felix requested from both sides an approximate amount of days they thought the trial might last. Matt Cook, representing McCollough, said "a 5 day trial from the plaintiff perspective your honor". The defense team thought 3 days was more accurate from their perspective.

Judge Felix gave both sides 15 days to agree on a mediator and mediation to be completed no later than July 17, 2015. A final pre-trial hearing will be held on December 11, 2015 and a trial date was set for January 12, 2016.

Fishing trip put on hold...

As guest of Jim Irsay....

Bud is going to Super Bowl

By DON JELLISON
Reporter Editor
Late last week Bud Wright and wife Ellen loaded the truck, attached the fishing boat to the truck and headed for Florida.

That's what the Sheridan football coach does this time of year, every year. No football; just fishing.

All of that changed on Monday after the Wrights arrived in Florida.

"We spent the night in Georgia on the way down," Wright said in an interview with the Hamilton County Reporter on Monday afternoon. "The call really caught me by surprise."

The Colts called and invited Bud and Ellen to the Super Bowl in Arizona.

What Bud Wright was trying to do when reached by The Reporter was finding a flight back to Indiana so he could connect with the Colts' flight to Arizona, thanks to Colts owner Jim Irsay.

"With the snow storm on the east coast, we're trying to find the best available flight back to Indiana," Bud said.

COUNCIL

The city council also introduced multi-ple new ordinances dealing with proposed new housing subdivisions. The develop-ments’ fates could be decided at upcoming council meetings.

The first proposed development would be south of Guerin Catholic High School and northeast of the intersection of 146th Street and Gray Road.

Holston Hills would potentially bring 127 new homes to a 58 acre site. The neigh-borhood would feature minimal community improvements and be marketed toward empty-nesters.

The second proposed development the city is considering approving would be lo-cated south of Sagamore Golf Club on the east side of Union Chapel Road.

The proposed Chapel Villas calls for 56 new homes on 14.5 acres north of Green-field Ave.

The next city council meeting will be conducted at 7 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 10 at Noblesville City Hall.

Ditslear said he is supportive of the new developments as long as they are of a high quality and meet the city’s standards.

“I think this is a sign that people have confidence in Noblesville. Without new homes, then you’re not going to get a Scotty’s Brewhouse,” he said.

Scotty’s has recently announced plans to open a new location in the former Mud-socks Grill space at Hazel Dell and 146th Street, he said.

Artistic rendering submitted

This rendering is symbolic of the type of home that developers are proposing for a potential new subdivision called Chapel Villas which could be built on property south of Sagamore Golf Club on Union Chapel Road.

Sheridan football coach Bud Wright will be going to the Super Bowl after all. Indianapolis Colts owner Jim Irsay invited Wright and his wife to attend the game; they will leave for Arizona at 4:30 p.m. Thursday.

BUD

On a Colts charter flight, the Wrights will leave for Arizona at 4:30 p.m. on Thursday. They’ll be guests of Irsay in Arizona; will watch the big game, and then on Monday will fly home.

After that, of course, it will be back to fishing, as planned, in Florida.

Wright said he doesn’t have a favorite team or even a pick between New England and Seattle.

“Not really,” Bud said. “I’m just looking forward to watching the game.”

This is the 49th Super Bowl. When the first was held, Bud Wright was in his first season of coaching at Sheridan.

Last summer the Wright family was selected as a finalist in the NBC “Together We Make Football” contest.

Football has been a way of life with the Wright family. Bud has three sons, Kevin, Kent and Travis, in the coaching business and an assistant athletic director daughter, Cheri Wright Hume, at Sheridan.

NBC sent a film crew to Sheridan and to Carmel (where Kevin is the head coach) last summer to film the Wright’s story.

The Wrights didn’t win the contest, but Irsay stepped in to make sure Bud could attend the Super Bowl.

Thursday at 4-H Fairgrounds...

Workplace and School Violence Public Forum

Have you been a victim of workplace violence? Do you know how to address issues surrounding bullying, harassment, stalking, or other types of workplace violence? If there was an active shooter in your workplace, is there a plan and would you know how to respond? Are you prepared to react to issues of violence in the workplace or school? The Hamilton County Sheriff's Office will be offering a free public education forum on the topic of Workplace and School Violence on Thursday, January 29, at 7:00p.m. at the Hamilton County 4-H Fairgrounds. The goal of the evening is to educate area residents on how to prevent and respond to issues of violence.

It is seldom that a week goes by without at least one incident of violence in the workplace being reported by the media. For example, according to a US Department of Justice study, there were around 572,000 occurrences of non-fatal workplace violence issues in 2009. These include various forms of workplace assaults and non-fatal injuries against people 16 years and older. Incidents of fatal violence through means such as active shooter type situations also continue to concern many. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration, FBI and U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics have released preliminary data from 2013 which shows that there were 397 fatal workplace injuries in the United States that were classified as homicides.

As we settle into work routines in 2015, Sheriff Bowen feels that it is necessary to educate the citizens of Hamilton County about what to look for, how to prepare, and what to do if an incident of workplace or school violence should occur. Sgt. Bill Clifford from the Hamilton County Sheriff's Office will be the key speaker for the Workplace and School Violence forum. Bringing years of experience and study in the field of use of force issues, Sgt. Clifford will examine how to prepare for and respond to issues of violence that might arise in the workplace. Joining Sgt. Clifford will be Deputy Brad Osswald, a School Resource Office for the Sheriff's Office. Deputy Osswald will help parents and residents understand the ALICE response program that is taught to many area school students in responding to school violence.

Please join us on Thursday, January 29 at 7:00pm at the Hamilton County 4-H Fairgrounds as we delve into this important and timely topic. Doors open at 6:30 and no advance registration is required for this free event.

HSE's Zach Gunn nominated...

Welage, Brown headline Player of the Week honorees

Greensburg senior Ryan Welage averaged 45.0 points over two games and Indianapolis Howe senior Harris Brown netted 39.0 points over three games to headline this week's winners in the IBCA/Subway Player of the Week program.

Welage and Brown are joined by East Chicago Central junior Damien Jefferson, Garrett senior Justin McCoy, Fort Wayne Canterbury senior Darby Maggard, Twin Lakes senior Laurhen Pickett and Providence sophomore Claire Rauck as honorees for the week of Jan. 19-24 in the awards program overseen by the Indiana Basketball Coaches Association.

Jefferson and McCoy are co-recipients for boys' District 1, while Brown is the boys' District 2 winner and Welage is the boys' District 3 honoree. Maggard, Pickett and Rauck are respective girls' recipients in District 1, District 2 and District 3.

His outburst eclipsed the old school best of 45 points by Bob Barker set in 1967. For the two games, Welage sank 28-of-42 shots, 5-of-6 3-pointers and 29-of-33 free throws. This is Welage's third POW award of the season. He previously was cited Nov. 24-29 and Dec. 22-27.

For the three games, Brown converted 42-of-77 shots, 21-of-42 3-pointers and 12-of-16 free throws for the Hornets (12-2).

He opened with 26 points, 12 rebounds, five assists and five steals in a 76-62 victory over Hammond. The high-flying forward followed with 27 points and 11 rebounds as the Cardinals crushed Griffith 78-46 in front of a capacity crowd.

McCoy, a 6-2 senior guard, was ultra-efficient in leading Garrett to a 39-38 victory over Westview in its only game of the week. McCoy netted 28 points with seven rebounds as the Railroaders improved to 8-7. He sank 11-of-18 shots from the field, including 1-of-2 free throws, plus 5-of-5 free throws.

The 5-4 Maggard averaged 28.7 points and surpassed 2,000 career points in helping Canterbury post three victories. The Belmont recruit opened with 25 points, five assists and two steals in an 82-49 rout of Fort Wayne North. After great start...

Big 2nd quarter sends Toronto past Pacers

By WHEAT HOTCHKISS

The Pacers got off to a great start on Tuesday night, but the Toronto Raptors (30-15) took control with a strong second quarter and pulled away in the third for a 104-91 win at Bankers Life Fieldhouse.

Though there is no shame in losing to one of the top teams in the Eastern Conference, Indiana (16-31) has now lost eight of their last nine games and hasn't won consecutive games since Dec. 31-Jan. 2.

Kyle Lowry, elected to start this year's All-Star Game last week, keyed a big third quarter for Toronto. The Raptors point guard scored 10 points and dished out three assists in the period, hitting a couple of deep 3-pointers during a 15-4 run that gave Toronto a 14-point lead.

Indiana never managed to get within two possessions of the lead the rest of the way.

"They just strung together consecutive plays, we weren't able to do that, weren't able to string together stops and slow them down," Pacers forward David West said. "I thought our half-court defense was decent, we just couldn't string together enough stops and get ourselves some good looks on the other end."

It was a second half short on storylines after a much more interesting first two quarters that gave new meaning to the expression "basketball is a game of runs."

The Pacers got off to a splendid start, scoring the game's first nine points and stifling the Raptors on the defensive end in the early going. Toronto hit just two of their first 12 shots as Indiana jumped out to a 15-6 lead with 4:31 remaining in the first quarter.

But the Raptors quickly found their shooting stroke, outscoring the Blue & Gold 13-5 in less than three minutes to take their first lead of the night.

Indiana then reeled off a run of its own.

George Hill, in his third game back from a groin injury that kept him out 11 games, put together a memorable sequence at the end of the third quarter. Hill drained a corner three, then stripped the ball from Greivis Vasquez on the other end and streaked down the floor to sink a floater just as the buzzer sounded. Hill's 5-point sequence was part of a 12-0 Pacers run stretching across the end of the first and beginning of the second quarters.

The Raptors, however, didn't wait long to answer. Toronto scored 20 unanswered points to turn an 11-point deficit into a nine-point lead. Over that 4:12 stretch, the Pacers struggled offensively, committing five turnovers and missing five shots.

"When we got out of rhythm offensively in the second quarter, I thought we started getting hesitant," Pacers head coach Frank Vogel said. "And I think that impacted our defense."

The Pacers responded to the Raptors' run with an 11-2 spurt, tying the game on Rodney Stuckey's jumper with 3:02 remaining in the half, only to have the Raptors score the next seven points to take a lead into the locker room. They would effectively put the game away in the third quarter.

Stuckey led the way for Indiana on Tuesday, scoring 22 points on 8-of-16 shooting and grabbing seven rebounds. Solomon Hill added 15 points, David West and Roy Hibbert each scored 11, and George Hill had 13 in just over 20 minutes off the bench.

DeMar DeRozan had a team-high 24 points for Toronto on 7-of-15 shooting. Lowry flirted with a triple-double, finishing with 19 points, seven rebounds, and eight assists.

The Pacers return to the floor on Thursday night, when they host the New York Knicks in the second game of a five-game homestand.
