Elections are over, so big projects could start

By FRED SWIFT

For all practical purposes the city election season is over in Hamilton County and many folks are glad of it. In a couple of communities there will have to be an election in November, but it will be largely a formality. Assuming no Democrats or Independents file for office by July 1 there won't be a need to hold an election in most municipalities.

So, then the question becomes, what will citizens see happening next year when the recently elected officials take office? There will be virtually no changes in leadership since the mayors of Noblesville, Carmel, Fishers and Westfield were all re-elected.

However, some planned or promised projects may get underway now that city officials are certain of another four years in office.

In Noblesville, a couple of big projects that should emerge include a solution to downtown parking needs and progress on a new bridge over White River. Both these matters require cooperation between city and county government. Preliminary talks on both have been held, but are awaiting more formal discussion and agreement.

The administration of Mayor Ditslear has also indicated an interest in putting efforts into improvements for the so-called Southwest Quad. This is the area generally south of Conner Street and west of 10th Street.

Another plan of the administration is development of the area west of White River including a proposed Federal Hill Park and possible surrounding business development. Action on this initiative has been scheduled for next year.

Yet unannounced, but rapidly approaching is the need for a plan for the site of the Farm Bureau Co-op grain terminal and silos now undergoing demolition. When cleared the land will leave a large "hole" in the near south-side that might be ripe for public or private development.

At Carmel the Jim Brainard administration will likely move ahead with plans revealed before and during the city election campaign. An aggressive Midtown Redevelopment plan will transform the area between downtown and the City Center Drive generally along the Monon Trail and Range Line Road.

The administration has also pledged to pursue intersection improvements on the east side of town. In Carmel that means roundabouts including a big and expensive one at 96th and Keystone.

Joining the race for community enhancement will be Westfield which has plans for further development at and near Grand Park with private developers providing a new high school football stadium and then using the site for a hotel complex. North on U.S. 31 a new golf and housing complex is planned.

Not to be left out, Fishers has plans to create a new look to its downtown area and encourage private development of a huge athletic complex.

While the changes from current plans and current personnel will not be substantial, the results if all works out as promised, should bring some amazing changes under the leadership of soon-to-be elected local officials.

Oh, the stories we have to tell...

By JANET HART LEONARD

If anyone would have ever told me...

A one year old can get their tiny fingers through a crib to take off newly hung wallpaper.

A toddler can open a jar of Vaseline and apply it to every crease on their little body and the shag carpeting as well.

A toddler can twist the lid of the baby powder to open it and then shake the entire contents onto shag carpeting creating a powder storm.

A three year old granddaughter can open the refrigerator and remove a carton of eggs and play in their little kitchen and surprise Grandma with uncooked scrambled eggs in her bedroom...carpet.

A little one can find scissors, which were well hidden, and cut their hair and their sister's hair right before getting their pictures taken.

A mom can get her wits together enough to drive to Methodist Hospital after receiving a call that her son was being Lifelined, after a bad car accident, when his injuries included a six inch piece of glass in his neck.

A mom can drive an hour, sit on hard bleachers, in the rain, and watch her son play football and laugh the entire time.

Well no one told me and if they had, I would have still signed up for motherhood. It's been a sweet, crazy, never boring, sometimes overwhelming adventure.

A challenger in November?

No way; right, Mr. Mayor?

By DON JELLISON
Reporter Editor

So, now Noblesville Mayor John Ditslear is in the record book. Or, close.

After winning the primary last week, Ditslear appears to be home free in becoming the first man, or woman, to be elected to a fourth term.

There still remains the general election in November. Yes, the Democrats can still file a candidate to run against the Republican Ditslear. Or, someone could run on an independent ticket and take on the elected Republican

No way. Not in Noblesville. Not in Noblesville, a city in which trying to find a Democrat at election time is even more difficult than finding a parking spot on the courthouse when probation sessions are being held at the Judicial Center.

It just won't happen here. No one will challenge the man who will represent the Republicans come November.

Just ask John Ditslear.

Yes, just ask John Ditslear.

Ask Ditslear about the time in history that he ran as an independent and defeated the Republican. Ditslear, officially, became an independent...and won. Although, give Ditslear credit. He was a registered Republican.

Here is how it happened in the election of 2003.

In the primary, the incumbent mayor, Dennis Redick, won the bat-

Hamilton County’s mayors supported the efforts of the Advocates for Children and Families of Hamilton County by making proclamations urging citizens to help reduce child abuse and neglect. # County mayors help raise awareness for Child Abuse Month

Advocates for Children and Families of Hamilton County recognized National Child Abuse Prevention Month by engaging the cities of Hamilton County. This year they encouraged the community to come together to celebrate efforts to ensure all children had safe environments to thrive, through the month of April and all year long.

Mayors from Noblesville, Carmel, Westfield and Fishers supported AFCF’s efforts by proclaiming citizens of each city to recognize April as Child Abuse Month and urge all citizens to work together and participate to reduce child abuse and neglect in our communities. Mayors John Ditslear, Andy Cook, Jim Brainard and Scott Fadness took part by presenting Wendy Rayburn, director of AFCF, with the proclamations.

“I hope that by having support from our city that all people in our community will start getting involved and taking the steps necessary to protect our children”, says

Rayburn. “Everyone’s participation in promoting protection for children is critical.”

Every year in Indiana, approximately 60,000 children suffer abuse or neglect from people that are supposed to nurture them.

tle of his life. In a four-person race, which included Jim Crask and Susan Jennings, Redick defeated Rex Dillinger by 10 votes. No, your eyes aren’t playing tricks. That’s 10 votes. Redick had 1,594 votes and Dillinger 1,584. That’s Rex Dillinger, not Steve. Rex is the brother of Hamilton County Commissioner Steve Dillinger.

Rex Dillinger did not ask for a recount, so, as normal, Redick was all set to in November to be elected to a second term.

But, between the primary in May and the general election in November, Redick was arrested on an alcohol-related charge while attending a concert at Deer Creek Music Center.

That opened the door in the general election. Ditslear, as an independent, put his hat in the circle as did Democrat Karen Goldstein and independent Larry Snair. In November, the battle was fought between Redick the incumbent mayor, and Ditslear, whose only government service to this time was serving on the Noblesville School Board.

Ditslear blew away Redick, capturing 3,504 votes to the Mayor’s 1,874.

The Republicans were shocked. Well, many of them were shocked. You have to think several Republicans voted for Ditslear in the general election.

The Republicans put on a good face.

“Dennis Redick was a good mayor,” said Lee Ann Cook, Chairman of the Republican Party. “We need to get the Party back together.”

That is what the Republicans did, just four years later when Ditslear ran for a second term, this time as a Republican.

That, too, was an interesting election, the primary election of 2007. Ditslear, was unopposed for mayor. And, in just four years he had become powerful enough in the position to stack the deck, a little.

Ditslear endorsed political newcomers Steve Wood, Mark Boice, Roy Johnson and Greg O’Connor. You may have heard about this foursome. All won that year and all four won election on the Republican ticket in the recently completed primary.

Wood ran against Alan Hinds, who had served 16 years on the Council. Boice defeated Katie Stretch, running for a second term. The big shocker, if you will, was Johnson’s victory over Busby, who had served a record 25 years on the Council. O’Connor ran unopposed. Laurie Jackson, after 16 years on the Council, decided not to run.

Wood, Boice, Johnson and O’Connor joined newcomers Brian Ayer, Mary Sue Rowland and Dale Snelling when the new Council was seated in 2008. It was the first time since 1980 that all seven members of the Council were new.

When Ditslear became mayor in 2008, he became the first sitting mayor to return since Joe Butler in 1968.

Ditslear had a Democratic opponent in his third run for mayor, the primary of 2011. He received 73.7 percent of the votes and defeated Steve Brown.

|   | John Ditslear, 2004-present.   |

Then came the general election and for the first time ever in Ditslear’s Republican run the general election was contested. Ditslear got 65 percent of the votes, running against Mike Corbett.

That election time was saddened with the death of Pat Logan, Noblesville’s first female mayor and Noblesville’s first full-time mayor during her eight year term, 1980-88.

Now we move to the current election. This time Corbett decided to go head to head against Ditslear in the Republican primary. Same results.

Could we have a Democrat or an independent challenge against Ditslear in the general election? No way. Not in Noblesville. Just ask Mayor Ditslear.

JANET

So many memories wrapped up in being a mom. They have come together to write so many stories and to purchase new carpet...several times.

I have laughed until I had to wipe the tears. I have wiped tears until I had none left to wipe.

There were times when I fell into bed so exhausted that I thought I would sleep for days only to hear Brandon or Emily yell "Mom, I need you". Somehow the last drop of energy was found to clean up the puke.

Emily called me a few days ago and said that when Leah woke up from her nap she heard her on the baby monitor crying and saying "my blanky, my pretty dress, my blanky, my pretty dress."

Emily said that when she opened the bedroom door there was poor little Leah with her blanky and her pretty dress as well as all her covers covered with the evidence that the stomach flu had arrived during naptime. Emily picked up Leah and took her to the bathtub and for the next several hours Emily did laundry to make sure Leah had a clean blanky and that her pretty dress was again pretty.

Mothers are survivors. We always find the time and energy...and then some. We just show up and do what needs to be done. Our reward? A hug. A simple "thanks Mom!" A bouquet of dandelions. It's the simple gestures that make our hearts smile.

No one told me. No one told Emily. No one told my Mom. And if they had? Hand us the pen. We would sign up again even knowing what it would mean.

I'm sending my 89 year old mother a special Mother's Day tribute. Her example of strength and faith have made me the mother I am today. And yes, she has stories as well. However, I don't think any of them involved carpet.

Help Mom with her retirement income strategy

By COREY SYLVESTER

Mother’s Day is here. This occasion may have special significance for you if you’ve been fortunate enough to have your mother around for your adult life. So naturally, you’ll want to bring Mom some flowers or another gift. But if she’s planning to retire soon, you may want to think about a longer-term way to improve her life — namely, by initiating a conversation about her retirement income strategy.

Of course, she may already have matters well in hand. But a great many people on the verge of retirement have not planned for those years, so you may be able to provide some valuable suggestions. Here are a few ideas:

Boost contributions to retirement plans. If Mom is still working, urge her to contribute as much as she can afford to her IRA and her employer-sponsored retirement plan, such as a 401(k). The chances are pretty good that she will be spending many years in retirement — in fact, the average life expectancy for a 65-year-old woman is 20.5 more years, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. So she’ll want to accumulate as much as possible before she bids “adieu” to the working world.

Discuss appropriate withdrawal rates. Encourage your mother to meet with a financial professional to determine an appropriate rate of withdrawal from her investments. To help ensure that she doesn’t outlive her resources, she needs to avoid taking out too much during her early years of retirement.

Take care of legal arrangements. If you haven’t already done so, ask your mother if she has drawn up the important legal documents related to her estate plans. Does she have a will? Has she created a durable power of attorney, which allows her to name someone to make financial and health care decisions on her behalf if she becomes incapacitated? As you know, this is a sensitive topic, so you’ll want to approach it with care.

Evaluate Social Security options. Your mother is probably well aware that she can start taking Social Security as early as age 62, but will get much bigger monthly payments if she waits until her full retirement age, which will likely be 66 or 67. But she may not know that she might be able to benefit from a Social Security “spousal strategy” that could result in her receiving more income than she could get by just taking her own benefits. For example, if her spouse is the higher wage earner and can afford to delay taking benefits, your mother could eventually receive higher survivor benefits. Or, your mother and her spouse could employ a “file and suspend” strategy. Under this strategy, her spouse, upon reaching full retirement age, files for retirement benefits and then immediately requests to have those benefits suspended. As a result, your mother can file for spousal benefits, which would be larger than what she would receive at her full retirement age. To make sure they are making any Social Security-related moves correctly, though, your mother and her spouse will want to consult with a tax advisor who is thoroughly familiar with Social Security rules.

You want your mother to enjoy a long, happy and active retirement. So, talk to her about the moves she can make to help turn that aspiration into reality.

He is a comfort for the brokenhearted mother

By LEANN WILSON

“Behold, children are a heritage from the LORD, The fruit of the womb is a reward” Psalms 127:3 (NKJV). Children of all ages are a blessing to their mothers and while there is no greater joy than that of bringing a human life into the world for many moms the maternal heart breaks and the soul sinks as the sun rises on Mother’s day. The pain from the loss of a child to the world, to death, to separation of whatever sort can easily eclipse any joy that occupied the heart. I can’t even begin to fathom how Eve, the mother of humanity’s first child born to man and woman, must have felt. Cain, her first born, doomed to wander as a fugitive and a vagabond on the earth, a sentence imposed by God for the murder of his brother, and Eve’s second child, Abel (Gen 4:1-14). Sin was in the world and the natural order put in place by God had given away to the un-natural. And the natural love of a mother’s heart is shattered. One child’s blood crying out from the ground, the other banished to the world. On if she ever saw Cain again, the bible is silent. Eve had other children; according to scripture she and Adam begot Seth and many sons and daughters (Gen 5:4). But the womb could be filled a hundred fold and not a one of these precious infants would be able to replace the one that has been lost. Each child is a unique masterpiece, “fearfully and wonderfully made”, knit together in the mother’s womb (Psalms 139:13-14). Cain fathered a city (Gen 4:17) but did Eve ever see her wandering son again, how about the grandchildren, “the crown of the aged” (Prov 17:6 ESV), how she must have longed, dare I say ached, to hold them. Eve lost children both to death and to the world.

There seems to be a growing trend of adult children abandoning their mothers, cutting off all contact without explanation for whatever perceived wrong making no explanation at the charge leveled against the perceived offence. It is not the natural order of things for a child to abandon all relationship with his or her parents. “Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife” (Gen 2:24), and a daughter will leave and become one with her husband. However there was meant to be a balance between leaving and cleaving and honoring your parents. There is a story, a parable, of a rebellious son – a son gone wild with the ways of the world. A son abandoning his family and the family home with a callous request for his inheritance, taking what he could get to follow his own course to whatever end would come - the prodigal son (Luke 15:11-32). The story never makes mention of Mother Prodigal but I take license with the theme of the story and ponder; oh how her heart must of broke. Her spirit rent with questions of why and how did it come to this? If hearts were searched there would most likely be a hint as to an explanation, a speculation as to why but no real answers. With an ache beyond comprehension she is forced to accept the fact that no answer would come, not that any answer would disperse the pain of the afflicted mother’s crippled heart and spirit. I am convinced that just as the father watched eagerly for the sons return, Mother Prodigal was right there with him wringing her hands and in constant prayer to The Father for her child – the blessing that was the fruit of her womb. How she must have grieved for the one who counts her as dead. Yes there was a second son. Just as loved as the other, but one with a differing countenance. The comfort of another child’s presence to the mother of a prodigal leads me to wonder, do we take for granted the loyal ones whom we love so dearly with a love no less precious and no less in measure then that of the love for the estranged or capricious one. The love we have for our children is overpowering! In pain and suffering may we never overlook the love that is right in front of us! There was a happy ending to this parable with the restoration of the lost child back into the family. Burdened with shame the son returns to find and learn of the unconditional love and forgiveness of a parent – an example of God’s grace for the repentant sinner! And in God’s grace he is never far from us in our pain. Weak and unable to change the circumstances thrust upon us we can rely on His unfailing love. We can call on Him, “The righteous cry out, and the LORD hears” (Psalms 34:17), He “is near to those who have a broken heart” (Psalms 34:18). He that numbers the stars and calls them by name; He heals the brokenhearted and binds up their wounds (Psalms 147:3-4). His word says the Lord is at hand and if we go to Him in prayer, with thanksgiving, the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard our hearts and minds through Jesus (Phil 4:5-7). And when you don’t know what to pray anymore, when the words won’t come and when there are no more words left to describe the pain nor the supplication, rest assured the Spirit indwelt within you will make intercession for you before the throne of God (Rom 8:26). Are you a burdened and afflicted mother, then praise Him. “Those who seek Him will praise the LORD. Let your heart live forever” Psalms 22:26 (NKJV)! As He is raised high so is the spirit that is bound with Him through the sacrifice that was made by Jesus who came to heal the broken hearted! When He is lifted up in praise the Spirit of God pours down and inhabits the praises of His people. Declare His name, praise Him, glorify Him all you afflicted and He will be with you – that’s a promise that we can lean and trust on (Psalms 22). We who have the Holy Spirit in us can feel his comforting arms around us when we pray and when we praise the creator. His Holy Spirit can raise the soul within you to a place where the heartbeat of God himself is nigh as he wraps a blanket of comfort, of love, of joy and peace around your shattered spirit; it has an inner effect, an inner peace that surpasses all understanding.

“Think not thou canst sigh a sigh,
And thy Maker is not by:
Think not thou canst weep a tear,
And thy Maker is not near.
O He gives to us His joy,
That our grief He may destroy:
Till our grief is fled and gone
He doth sit by us and moan.
Can I see another's woe,
And not be in sorrow too?
Can I see another's grief,
And not seek for kind relief?” (Blake vv8-9)

For all the afflicted mothers on this day – Rejoice. Seek Him with shattered heart in tow and you will find Him. It was once said with a seething sarcasm that we of faith cling to our Bibles and our guns, I do this thankfully – His word is my weapon, my strength, my salvation! Cling to His promises and He will raise your heart (Psalms 119:31-32). “Finally, brethren, whatever things are true, whatever things are noble, whatever things are just, whatever things are pure, whatever things are lovely, whatever things are of good report, if there is any virtue and if there is anything praiseworthy--meditate on these things. The things which you learned and received and heard and saw in me, these do, and the God of peace will be with you” Phil 4:8-9 (NKJV)

Millers get sweep of Royals

Tilley

Heck of a way to sweep an opponent. Heck of a way to be swept.

After Hamilton Southeastern scored a run in the top of the seventh to take a 3-2 lead in a Hoosier Crossroads Conference game with host Noblesville Saturday afternoon at The Dunk, the Millers came back with two runs in the bottom of the frame to pull out a 4-3 victory and sweep the Royals in a three-game series.

Travis Gillian, Connor Christman, LJ Tilley and Alec Parker all collected two hits, while Austin Shirley hit a double and batted in two runs. Clayton Marowski pitched a complete game, striking out five.

Southeastern collected eight hits, including two each from Carter Poiry and Jonathan McGee. Matt Gorski hit a home for the Royals, his third homer in the series.

Another way to win ...

Westfield sweeps Avon

Pepiot

Conference leading Westfield Saturday at The Rock completed a three-game sweep of Avon by pounding out a 10-2 Hoosier Crossroads Conference victory over the Orioles.

"I think our team learned a little about itself this series," said Westfield coach Ryan Bunnell. "We swept a very hot ball club and we won each game differently. That's significant because to go deep in the tournament a team often has to win games in different ways. We showed we have that capability this series."

Ryan Pepiot provided the power on the mound. He went five innings and allowed just one run on four hits. He fanned five batters.

"Ryan had a great outing for us today," said Bunnell. "He was efficient and executed some big pitchers when he needed them.

"Harrison Freed and Pepiot had big days at the plate and Milo Beam was really disruptive on the base paths," Bunnell added.

Pepiot went 3-for-4 and drove home two runs and Freed was 2-for-3, scored two runs and drove home four.

Freed, Chris Ayers and Pepiot each doubled at the plate.

Beam, who twice reached base after being hit by the pitcher, stole four of the six bases the Shamrocks stole.

Westfield scored a run in the second and then all but put away Avon with five runs in the third.

Cunningham allows 2 hits, fans 12....

Greyhounds edge Fishers, 4-0

Carmel coach Dan Roman got a sensational pitching outing from senior Conner Cunningham and the Greyhounds turned five hits into four runs as Carmel defeated Fishers 4-0, Saturday afternoon in a baseball battle between two local sectional Class 4A teams at Carmel’s Hartman Field.

The Greyhounds scored two runs in the third, all the offense Cunningham would need.

Cunningham allowed just two hits; didn’t walk a batter, and fanned 12 Tigers.

Four of Carmel’s hits were for extra bases. Matthew Chernoff hit a triple and Cunningham, Jack Van Remortel and Trevor Kinnard each belted a double.

Fishers got just two singles off Cunningham, one each from Brendan Tougate and Jacob Totman.

Fishers coach Matthew Cherry also got good pitching as Cameron Boyd worked six innings and allowed just five hits. He struck out nine batters.

Leading 65 of 82 laps...

Power dominates for Grand Prix victory

By RICHIE HALL
Reporter Sports Editor

From a crazy start to a smooth finish, Will Power had everything under control Saturday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Power won the Angie's List Grand Prix of Indianapolis, negotiating his No. 1 Verizon Team Penske Chevrolet around the 14-turn, 2.439-mile IMS road course effortlessly to win the second staging of the Grand Prix. The Australian led 65 of 82 laps and won by 1.5023 seconds over Graham Rahal, who raced in the No. 15 Steak 'n Shake Honda of Rahal Letterman Lanigan Racing. Juan Pablo Montoya, the 2000 Indianapolis 500 champion who made a solid return to the Speedway last year, finished third.

The race started off somewhat dicey, as five cars came into contact with each other right in Turn 1. Helio Castroneves and James Hinchliffe were able to keep going, while Scott Dixon, Jack Hawksworth and Josef Newgarden received assistance but were able to get back on the track.

But nothing perturbed Power, as he sailed along at an average speed of 116.842 mph. At one point he led runner-up Rahal by four seconds. During the last 14 laps of the race, Power's lead fluctuated from anywhere between 1.4 and 2.4 seconds. Everything went right for the Australian, who regained the lead from Charlie Kimball on Lap 63 and held it to the finish.

"We did everything we needed to do to win," said Power.

The race-opening caution lasted two laps, and that was the only yellow flag of the day.

Power led wire-to-wire, and everyone else in the top five moved up. Rahal started 17th, while Montoya began the race fourth. Sebastian Bourdais finished fourth, up from a seventh-place start, while Charlie Kimball went from 14th at the green flag to fifth at the checkered flag.

Rahal was encouraged by his strong finish. He led nine laps of the race.

"A podium's a podium," said Rahal. "It feels good." He was especially happy with his racing team - his "tiny" team that is going up against the big boys (read: Penske).

Montoya was also pleased with his finish, especially how he held off Bourdais to get on the podium. Montoya said he was "pretty happy with where we stand right now."

The Speedway is taking today off, but practice begins in earnest Monday for the 99th running of the Indianapolis 500. Two Noblesville drivers, Bryan Clauson and Conor Daly will each attempt to qualify. Both have competed in the race before: Clauson qualified in 2012 and Daly in 2013.

HSE 3rd at HCC tennis; Fishers' Kokjohn/Wolfmeyer win No. 1 doubles

Hamilton Southeastern had the county's best finish at the Hoosier Crossroads Conference girls tennis tournament, which took place Saturday at Avon.

The host Orioles won the meet with 35 points, followed by Brownsburg with 32 and the Royals with 31. Fishers finished fourth with 29 points, followed by Westfield 24, Zionsville 16 and Noblesville 13.

Southeastern had four players make the All-Conference team. Tory Ochs placed second at No. 2 singles, the No. 1 doubles team of Kelsey Cahlamer and Maria del Mar Davila was runner-up in that division, and Ashley Spirrison placed third at No. 1 singles.

The Tigers had the county's lone win: Krissy Kokjohn and Korinne Wolfmeyer won at No. 1 doubles, also guaranteeing them All-Conference honors.

Westfield's Laura Moore was the No. 1 singles runner-up, which placed her on the All-Conference team.

RailRiders edge Indians to take Game 2 of series

The Indianapolis Indians found themselves in another one-run contest on Saturday afternoon, but unfortunately the Tribe fell short of the Scranton/Wilkes-Barre RailRiders, 2-1. Indianapolis tied the game at one in the fourth, but a lead-off walk came around to score for the RailRiders in the sixth for the decisive run.

The sixth started when Slade Heathcott drew a lead-off walk for the RailRiders (15-15), and he advanced to third on a single by Ramon Flores, and then scored when Tyler Austin grounded into a double play.

The lone run for the Tribe (17-13) scored in the fourth when Deibinson Romero singled home Jose Tabata. At the time it tied the game, but the Indians did not see a lead in the contest.

Of the 30 games played for the Indians (17-13), 16 have been one-run affairs. They now own a 9-7 record in one-run games. Casey Sadler (2-2) took the loss despite tossing seven quality innings.
