Questions about Noblesville’s arts organizations will be answered

By FRED SWIFT
Does Noblesville need two Cultural Arts organizations? And, if not, does one bring about the demise of the other? These are questions that are hard to answer, but we’re going to learn the answers in coming months.
The Noblesville Cultural Arts Commission was established and sanctioned by city government in 1992. It’s the organization that has brought the community such annual events as Shakespeare in the Park, Art on the Square, Law Day, Concerts in the Park and Marching Band Competition.

Last month Mayor John Ditslear released what is called a Noblesville Arts Council Blueprint for the city. He says work has been underway for two years with numerous volunteers and organizations to create an arts organization that will "nurture and celebrate the talents of our artists, thespians and musicians."
The mayor's blueprint implies the new arts council is an umbrella organization designed to bring in The Cultural Arts Commission, Belfry Theatre, Nickel Plate Arts, the Artists Association, Noblesville Main Street and city government under one coordinating group. It can also be seen as having the potential for an eventual takeover of some or all these groups.
The new council will get public funds, initially from the Indiana Arts Commission. And, money is likely the key to any long-term success of the groups under the umbrella. City government can also make funds available if it chooses to do so, and the blueprint proposes annual city contributions.

Meanwhile, the long-standing Cultural Arts Commission is far from flush. It called off its annual fundraising gala this year due to poor ticket sales. Without help, the commission could go under. Other arts commission programs will presumably continue, but without public assistance in the near future.
Of course, the theory here is that one large organization backed by government can produce better results than several smaller groups, each with its own agenda and constituency. The danger in these kinds of things is that interest can wane and control can grow.
Our best hope is that everyone involved goes in with their eyes wide open and works to maintain the great products that each organization has brought to the community over the years.

Westfield Fire debuts digital media screens

Westfield is the first fire department in the country to use digital signage screens running the Public Safety Information Network (PSIN) for internal communications.
“The digital screens display all internal and external communications in one accessible location at each fire station,” says Joe Lyons, Westfield Fire Chief. “This portal of information will arm firefighters with need-to-know information, so that they become more effective servants of public safety.”
The screens will display information ranging from apparatus maintenance schedules, shift vacancies, weather radar, department notes, social media feeds and daily activities. The monitors are also connected with Active 911 and display dispatch information in real-time, including a map of the location, and the route from the station. As part of its service, PSIN displays recent alarms on a map at every Westfield fire station.
PSIN is designed by Wondersign a cloud-based digital media distribution company focused on delivering digital information to screens and tablets.
“PSIN provides useful information at a glance to these men and women serving the public,” says Wondersign CEO Andy Reinhard. “We are very excited about this successful first implementation of PSIN.”

CloudOne relocating to Fishers

Another business is relocating to Fishers.
CloudOne, a technology company that specializes in helping companies get the most out of cloud computing, announced on Wednesday that it will move its global headquarters to the Nickel Plate District. A press release on the City of Fishers' Web site said that CloudOne will now be based at The Switch, located at 8626 E. 116th St., Suite 300.
“I couldn’t be more excited to welcome CloudOne to the Fishers community,” said Mayor Scott Fadness in the press release. “Recently named one of IBJ’s 2015 fastest growing companies, CloudOne truly embodies the high-growth, entrepreneurial tech culture that exists here in Fishers. Their commitment to our community elevates us all.”
CloudOne, which is currently headquartered on North Meridian Street, just south of the Hamilton County line, plans to create "approximately 64 new full-time positions for Indiana resident employees by 2019" with the move. The company will move its current employees to the Fishers location, which will span 11,518 square feet, this fall.

CloudOne, which is described in the press release as “a leader in delivering enterprise applications to the cloud and Internet of Things (IoT) services and solutions platform, is already growing fast. The company said in a press release on its own Web site that its second quarter growth "is on track for 100 percent growth in revenue year over year for the fifth year in a row." CloudOne also said it has grown its "employment base" by over 50 percent last year, and is projected to double its team next year.
In addition to the Indianapolis area, CloudOne also has domestic offices in Chicago and McKinney, Texas (about 30 miles north of Dallas), and international locations in Bristol, UK; Nantes, France; and Erlangen, Germany.
CloudOne’s announcement comes on the heels of Jarden Home Brands opening its new facility in Fishers last Friday, located at 9999 E. 121st St.

Casino Night will take place from 7 to 11 p.m. at the FORUM Conference Center, 11313 USA Parkway. Among the activities there will be food, music, casino games, a silent auction and other surprises. It is an adult-only event, one must be at least 21 years old to attend. All donations are tax-deductible.

Fishers' favorite local restaurants including Peterson's, J. Gumbo's, Moe's, Rockstone, Sahm's, Gigi's Cupcakes, City Barbeque, Pure Eatery, Bubba's 33, Handel's, Another Broken Egg, Jack's Donuts and Wings, etc. have all agreed to donate bite-size samples of their most pop-

Fishers Fire Department offers...

Citizens Fire Academy

Fishers Department of Fire and Emergency Services is excited to announce its next Citizens Fire Academy. This eight-week course will meet every Monday evening starting Sept. 14, and graduating on Nov. 2.

This course will give the participant a "behind the scenes" look at how the department operates, the reasons why firefighters do things a certain way, and why it takes so many firefighters to respond. Due to the dangerous high-risk nature firefighters can be exposed to when working with fire, students will not actually have the opportunity to perform hands-on in most cases. However, they will be exposed to many demonstrations for that "up-close" interaction.

To attend the Citizens Fire Academy, you must be at least 16 years of age, and a citizen of Fishers. To participate is free but due to the large response to this class, we ask only those that can commit to the 8 weeks apply. The class is shared between class room, training grounds and field trips and is a rain or shine event.

Class size is limited to 20 people.

Deadline for this year's class is August 16.

To apply go to <http://www.fishers.in.us/index.aspx?nid=154>

'Celebration of Diversity' will feature India Association Saturday at Carmel Farmers Market

A splash of added diversity will once again be part of the Carmel Farmers Market on Saturday, July 25, as visitors are encouraged to visit a special booth at the market - hosted by the India Association of Indianapolis. The booth is part of the Celebration of Diversity at the Carmel Farmers Market and will be located on the western edge of the Center Green.

In the spirit of education and community building, the India Association will be displaying their culture's costumes, education, music and sports while at the Market. The effort was initiated by the Mayor's Advisory Commission on Human Relations.

This is the inaugural year for showcasing the many diverse cultural and ethnic groups that reside in our community. In June, groups from Pakistan American Friendship Association and the Russian School of Indiana were featured. The Celebration of Diversity is a great way to appreciate the contributions of our citizens of all races, cultures and ancestries.

The Mayor's Advisory Commission on Human Relations was established in November 2009 to advise the Mayor and recommend ways to better recognize the contributions of all Carmel residents to our great quality of life and identify any obstacles that may prevent full citizen participation in all of our city's civic and other activities.

Carmel students named Mr., Miss Science

Governor Mike Pence today announced the winners of the 2015 Mr. and Miss Math and Science awards. The Mr. and Miss Math and Science awards aim to recognize students who have exemplary performance in science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM) classes and extracurricular activities. The winners receive a $1,000 college scholarship through Indiana's CollegeChoice 529 Direct Savings Plan.

"I'm proud today to recognize these stellar, outstanding individuals and the achievements they have accomplished while in high school," said Governor Pence. "These Mr. and Miss Math and Science award winners represent the bright future of this state, and I look forward to their continued accomplishments in their collegiate careers and beyond."

Evansville's Adam Lonnberg and Indianapolis' Margaret Christy are named 2015 Mr. and Miss Math, and Carmel's Adit Chandra and Helena Ma are named 2015 Mr. and Miss Science.

Adit Chandra, 2015 Mr. Science, recently graduated from Carmel High School in Carmel, where he was named an AP Scholar, Indiana Academic All-Star, US National Chemistry Olympiad National Finalist, and Intel ISEF International Finalist. Chandra was selected to the Carmel Education Foundation Board, served as the President of the Science Olympiad, and co-founded and captained the Science Bowl club at Carmel High School. He won a state championship in cross country and played saxophone for the junior all-state band. He also conducted research with professors at the Indiana University School of Medicine. Chandra plans to attend Harvard University in the fall.

Helena Ma, 2015 Miss Science, recently graduated from Carmel High School in Carmel, where she was a National AP Scholar, National Merit Scholarship Finalist, and Presidential Scholar Semifinalist. There, she participated in the Science Bowl, Math Club, Physics Bowl, Chemistry Olympiad, and Science Olympiad. Ma was also a member of the National Honor Society, Student Government House of Representatives, Principal's Advisory Council, and served as editor-in-chief of her school's newspaper. She also conducted research with a professor at Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis and volunteered regularly at St. Vincent's Hospital Pediatric Intensive Care Unit. She plans to attend Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the fall.

Indiana's top math and science students were nominated earlier this year, and a panel of STEM professionals, teachers, and university selected the winners based on academic performance, work in research, leadership, community service, and extracurricular involvement. Nominations for the 2016 Mr. and Miss Math and Science awards will open next spring.

Attracting the best and brightest teachers

Recent news reports have raised concerns about a decline in the number of new teachers who have obtained teaching licenses in Indiana over the past four years. These concerns are valid and are worthy of action.

My career in education spanned 40 years, including roles as a teacher, principal and superintendent. With this background, I have a deep understanding of how important it is to attract the best and brightest individuals to provide a high quality education for every Hoosier student.

Fortunately, some action has already been taken to address the issue of teacher shortages. As a member of the Education Committee, I worked on legislation this year to attract more STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Mathematics) teachers. I voted to establish a program to permit individuals with a STEM major and an education minor to obtain a teaching license.

Although the 2015 legislative session is complete, interim study committees continue to meet throughout the summer and fall to discuss proposals for potential legislation that may be introduced during the 2016 session. I was recently appointed to serve on the Education Study Committee, which will allow me the opportunity to continue working on similar issues that I studied during session.

I am committed to working with my colleagues to address the issue of teacher shortages so that the next generation of Hoosier children can receive a high quality education. If you have any education related questions, please contact my office by email at H32@iga.in.gov or by phone at 317-232-9815.

A call to prayer for the harvest

In times of crisis or distress, the people of God go to prayer. From the drought in California to the floods across the mid-section of the country, the outlook for the 2015 harvest is not good. Many farmers in my area are saying that they have never seen the corn looking this bad. One farmer described it as a slow-moving disaster.

A nation-wide poor harvest is not just a concern for the farmers. It is a concern for all of us. Whether we work directly in the agribusiness industry or not, we feel the impact. Every time we go to the grocery store or pump ethanol enhanced gasoline into our vehicles, we feel the impact of a bad harvest in the prices we must pay to supply our needs.

In times of crisis or distress, the people of God go to prayer. We are facing a crisis, so this is a call to prayer. I call all who believe in the God who answers prayer to set aside Saturday, August 1, 2015 from 9:00 a.m. to 10:00 a.m. as a time of prayer. I call on God's people to stop at that time and take a few moments or even the entire hour to pray for the harvest. Pray that God will provide a harvest that will be sufficient to provide for the needs of our nation.

Some will say, "It is too late, the damage is already done." In the Bible we read several stories of God raising human beings from the dead, including our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Can we not have faith that the God who raised Jesus from the dead can also raise up a harvest that will supply the needs of our nation?

Join me on August 1, 2015 from 9:00 a.m. to 10:00 a.m. wherever you are to pray for the harvest. "Now to him who is able to do immeasurably more than all we ask or imagine, according to his power that is at work within us, to him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus throughout all generations, for ever and ever! Amen." (Ephesians 3:21; NIV)

Summer football...

New and familiar faces for Golden Eagles

By RICHIE HALL
Reporter Sports Editor

Guerin Catholic football coach Tom Dilley said this about his team as the summer winds down, something that many football coaches understand as they prepare for a new season:

"Some new faces in some new places," said the coach, who is entering his second year as the head of the Golden Eagles' program.

But there are also some familiar faces who will be on the GC sidelines. They will give the team some continuity from last year's Guerin squad that finished 9-4 and won a sectional championship.

The returners include seniors such as tight end Isaac Fettig, right tackle Matthew Hook, safety Brennan Thieneman and wide receiver Arion Shinaver, all of whom are co-captains. Shinaver will be making a return to the team after injuring his ACL during the last week of the regular season. Dilley said the Golden Eagles "missed him throughout the playoffs," but reported that Shinaver "is back and looks good as new."

Other seniors returning include tight end Dax Schanse and corner Dawson McMahon. Senior Jack Sahm was a starter on the defensive line; Dilley said that Sahm is "a little banged up right now," but hopefully will be able to play.

One big role to fill will be that of quarterback. Matt Labus was a star for Guerin Catholic for years, but is now graduated and at DePauw University. Dilley said that a junior, Elliott Charlebois, will be the starting quarterback for this season.

"We have some juniors that are returning starters as well," said Dilley. That includes Carter McGinnis, who played tailback for the Golden Eagles last year. Will Bates started at guard, while Joe Boise was one of the starting offensive linemen.

Also returning are senior Jack Freudenthal, who Dilley said would probably start as one of the wide receivers, senior Josh Broadbent as a safety, junior Ed Poynter at linebacker, junior Graham Keller on the offensive line and senior Vinny Ferrucci as a tight end and offensive lineman.

Dilley said the team went to a Bishop/Dullaghan team camp over the summer, and scrimmaged opponents such as Munster, Merrillville, Warsaw, Lebanon and Delta. The coach is pleased with how things are progressing over the summer.

"I think we've gotten a pretty good amount of work done," said Dilley. "The execution's getting a little better. People are getting comfortable with what we're doing. We're just kind of not wholesale changes or anything, but just kind of building on things we did last year."

As the summer wraps up and the season begins, the Golden Eagles will get a week off, "just to kind of charge their batteries back up," said Dilley.

Guerin Catholic will have two new opponents this season. Marmion Academy from Aurora, Ill. replaces Terre Haute South in the third week of the season, while Bowman Academy from Gary replaces Culver Academy as the regular-season finale. Both games will be played at the Eagles' Nest.

Indiana Members Credit Union and Foundation is proud to announce their Backpack Stuffing Event in Indianapolis.

Indiana Members Credit Union employees and volunteers from the community will be preparing 5,000 new backpacks filled with school supplies to deliver to students attending 13 IPS Schools and 10 organizations that serve youth in the communities served by Indiana Members Credit Union.

The delivery of the stuffed backpacks will take place on July 29 and July 30, 2015, and will be given directly to the benefitting schools and organizations.

The Hamilton County organizations receiving the stuffed backpacks include Hamilton County BPA, Carmel Clay Assessors and the Westfield Open Doors Project.

Many families face the new school year with anxiety stemming from the burden of stretching the family budget to purchase required school supplies. Children in Central Indiana are not able to begin the school year with the proper materials.

To help address these concerns, Indiana Members Credit Union established the Indiana Members Foundation to be a positive influence in the community specifically providing school children in the Indianapolis area with the necessities essential for learning and succeeding in their education.

The objective is to celebrate the start of school by providing students with new backpacks and school supplies.

This is the 11th year for IMCU's Backpack Stuffing Event and will make over 26,500 backpacks filled with over 675,000 supplies that the Indiana Members Foundation has provided to children in Central Indiana through generous donations from vendors, members and employees.

"IMCU was founded on the campus of IUPUI over 58 years ago, and is passionate about supporting the education system and helping children succeed in school," said Mandy Emery, vice president of community involvement for IMCU. "One way we can do this is by putting the tools necessary to succeed into their hands. We are extremely grateful for all of the support received from employees, members, vendors and community volunteers who donate their time and effort to give back to those in need."

Tribe falters under 15-hit barrage

Greg Bird doubled, homered and drove in three runs to help lead the Scranton/Wilkes-Barre RailRiders to a 10-5 win over the Indianapolis Indians Wednesday afternoon at Victory Field.

Eight of nine RailRiders batters hit safely and six turned in multi-hit games. The lineup chased Tribe starter Adrian Sampson (8-8) with two outs in the sixth, tagging the right-hander for six runs and his sixth home loss of the season.

Gustavo Nunez collected a game high-tying three hits for the Indians and both Steve Lombardozzi and Willy Garcia went 2-for-5.

Alen Hanson stole his 26th base to eclipse last season's total in just the 98th game of this year.
