In the wake of Chattanooga shooting...

Safety is important at Marine Recruiting Center

By RICHIE HALL

The tragic shooting that took place July 16 at an Armed Forces Career Center in Chattanooga, Tenn. brought about swift reactions regarding security at military installations around the United States.

Indiana Governor Mike Pence was one of three governors from around the country to authorize National Guardsmen to be armed at military facilities, including recruiting centers. While tUS Marine Corps recruiting centers such as the one in Noblesville fall under different rules than the Indiana National Guard, the public affairs manager for the Marines' Indianapolis Recruiting Station took some time to discuss protecting its facilities, including the one in Noblesville.

"As of right now, we haven't had a policy change in regards to recruiters being armed," said Sgt. Tyler Mitchell, USMC. Sgt. Mitchell said that there have been reviews of all the necessary adjustments with regards to force protection, which Sgt. Mitchell said is a way of measuring "what's going on right now."

"So our force protection condition at all recruiting sites are different based off of whatever we feel like a threat level would be," said Sgt. Mitchell. "And right now, each unique place is different."

Sgt. Mitchell noted that some recruiting stations are within federal buildings, while others are in strip malls. Noblesville's Marine recruiting center is located at a strip mall at the intersection of state roads 32 and 38.

Sgt. Mitchell said that because of operational security, "it's not really appropriate" to discuss any specific measures or changes.

"But safety of marines is everybody's top concern, always, and especially at a time like now," he said.

Public open house at Indiana Temple

By MARY SUE ROWLAND

One of only 148 Temples world wide of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and the first Mormon temple in Indiana is having an open house starting Friday, July 17th through August 8, 2015 every day except Sundays.

Free reservations for the open house can be made by visiting WWW.templeopenhouse.lids.org or by calling 1-855-537-2000.

The temple is located in the city of Carmel on the southwest corner of the intersection of W 116th Street and Spring Mill Road. Tours will start at the adjacent Latter-day Saint chapel and will last 40 minutes. The temple is 34,000 square feet, 106 feet tall sitting on 18.11 acres and made of the finest limestone with architectural details of the historically significant building in downtown Indianapolis. The building is crowned with a 7 foot gilded angel Moroni statue. Interior and exterior stained glass was provided by the Kokomo Opalescent Glass Company in Indiana. The floral design incorporated in the motif is the blossom of the tulip poplar, the Indiana state tree. The glass and interior principal design motif includes a Celtic knot pattern of ribbons interlaced with floral elements.

There is a granite fountain quarried in Brazil and northern China sitting in a sea of plants, flowers and trees native to Indiana including the tulip tree. The inside features biblical original art and murals showing landscapes of Indiana at the beginning of time.

Today, there are 30,000 members of the church in Indiana from all walks of life that share a rich heritage of community and public service. Church members are active in youth sports leagues, community events, Boy Scouts and especially their church and heritage. Missionaries for the church

Pink fire trucks in Fishers today

Pink fire trucks from the Pink Heals Tour (www.pinkfiretrucks.org) will be coming to Fishers today.

At 10 a.m., the trucks are scheduled to arrive at Hamilton Southeastern softball fields on Olio Rd (14181 E. 126th St.) for an appearance at the Girls National Softball Tournament. From there, they will visit cancer families in the area and then to the Nickel Plate Amphitheater to visit with Eddie Money concert goers at 6 p.m.

Pink Heals is an international organization is here to inspire others to work for those in our community to not only beat cancer, but to support those in the battle. It's not only about money but about community helping their own. Firefighters from across the country volunteer their time to drive these trucks from city to city to embrace a moment with those whose moments are precious and to remind everyone that they matter.

This year, they are bringing a very special truck named "Gunner" that was created just for the kids who show great strength in their battle with cancer. Those who are fighting the fight or have won their battles are encouraged to come out and sign the fire trucks with their names.

Dillinger looking for $1.6 million to:

Buy a youth football facility

By DON JELLISON
Reporter Editor

Steve Dillinger for $1.6 million would like to purchase a baseball facility and use it for a youth football facility.

Before I send the Hamilton County Council, along with Steve's Hamilton County Commissions buddies streaking to their doctors to see if the hearts are still beating, let me explain.

Dillinger isn't trying to raise bucks from the county. He is president of the executive board of the Noblesville Elementary Football League, but he isn't talking as a spokesperson of that group.

He's speaking only as good old boy Steve Dillinger who has been a part of NEFL since its birth.

Dillinger would like to see the NEFL be able to purchase Trinity (baseball) Ball Park, a facility located on 161st Street in southwest Noblesville. Once one of the best baseball facilities in the area with seven or eight diamonds and an indoor area, Trinity now is closed and is on the chopping block at what Dillinger says is $1.6 million.

"It would be a great facility for outdoor NEFL games and then the indoor facility

What's happening at NEFL?

Registration is still open for the 2015 season. The basic cost if $85 per child. There will be a $10 late fee for registrations received after June 28.

The first week of practice will be held at Dillon Park with Noblesville varsity coach Lance Scheib and his staff.

Fifth and sixth graders and first and second graders will practice on Sunday, July 26 and Tuesday, July 28 from 6 to 8 p.m.

Third and fourth graders will practice on Monday, July 27 and Wednesday, July 29 from 6 to 8 p.m.

The first week of practice will be as a group.

The first week of practice will be as a group. Players will meet their coaches and teammates at Meet & Greet sessions on Saturday, Aug. 1 at the Noblesville High School cafeteria. The sessions will be as follows: 8:30 to 9:45 a.m., fifth and sixth grade tackle; 10 to 11:15 a.m. third and fourth grade tackle; 11:30 am. to 12:15 p.m., first and second grade tackle; 12:30 to 1:30 p.m., flag.

Players who do not have equipment can pick it up at the final equipment handout session on Saturday, July 25 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Dillon Park equipment room, near the skate park.

could be used in the winter months for teaching and practice," Dillinger said.

"What would really be good is if the NEFL could partner with Noblesville Youth Baseball in buying and using Trinity.

"We're running out of space for our program at Dillon Park and I hear Noblesville Youth Baseball also needs more space.

They could play baseball there in the summer; we could play football in the fall, and then the two groups could share the indoor facilities in the winter."

Where would the $1.6 million come? If you have an idea, or a few bucks, give Dillinger a call.

arrived in Indiana in 1831 and church President Joseph Smith visited Greenville for about a month in 1832. It was Joseph who organized the church in 1830 in New York followed by Brigham Young as the leader. Membership is worldwide and stands at 13.5 million members.

Some interesting facts about the new Temple in Carmel:

Temples are sacred buildings in which Latter-day Saints receive instruction about the purpose of life and their relationship to God. They take part in ceremonies that reach beyond mortality on behalf of themselves and on behalf of their deceased ancestors. Eternal marriage and vicarious baptisms for the dead are done only in temples. The Church ordinances make it possible for individuals to return to the presence of God and for families to be united eternally. The inside of the Temple is not a giant cathedral but is made up of a number of rooms designed to accommodate certain function such as marriages, baptisms and religious instructional session. Inside the Temple, Church members change into simple, modest, white clothing before taking part in temple ceremonies. The white temple clothing symbolizes purity and reverence.

The difference between temples and a meetinghouse is the meetinghouses are open to all and everyone is welcome to attend Sunday worship services and other activities. After temples are dedicated, only faithful Latter-day Saints may enter them. Meetinghouses are open and busy all day on Sunday, while temples are generally closed that day. Meetinghouses can be used for a variety of activities such as a special dinner, youth activity or even a community blood drive. Temples are used only for sacred ordinances that bless individuals and bind families together for eternity.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is inviting the public to view its Mormon temple at 116th Street and Spring Mill Road in Carmel. An open house is taking place now through Aug. 8, every day except Sundays.

The Faithful Church Members observe principles of honesty, integrity, obedience to law, chastity outside of marriage and fidelity within marriage. The Church opposes abortion, pornography, gambling and legal recognition of same-sex unions. The Church cautions against using tobacco, alcoholic beverages, tea and coffee and emphasizes the positive benefits of wise eating habits and physical and spiritual fitness. Members fast for two meals one day per month and donate the money they would have spent on those meals to fund and help the needy in addition to contributing one-tenth of their income.

The offerings of the members enable the Church to finance the worldwide construction, education, welfare, missionary, curriculum, humanitarian and other programs that benefit members and others.

A Temple for the faithful has been constructed in our Hamilton County and will stand forever. However, there is only one opportunity to see and hear the story of the Church of the Later-Day Saints. It is an opportunity not to be missed and all of Indiana should embrace with thankfulness that the members have opened their Temple doors to all if only for a short time. If you can, plan to attend the Open House. The beautiful grounds of the Temple are open to all at any time to enjoy and reflect.

Letters to the Editor

People of God should always be a praying people

In response to the Rev. Robert E. Loudon's letter to the editor of July 23, 2015, I would like to say that I am in full agreement that in times of crisis or distress, the people of God should pray. However, I would like to add a few points. First, the people of God need to be a praying people at all times, not just during crisis or distress. In the Bible, when people were going through times of judgment, many times the food supply was the first thing to be struck. Yes, the corn looks bad in many areas due to all the heavy rains. But we need to ask ourselves, could this be God's judgment on a nation that seems to be swirling down a deep, dark cesspool of "anything goes" and has our eyes, ears, and hearts hardened against his voice? God is love--yes--but some churches seem to portray him as a kindly old grandfather who gives out candy to even the most rebellious grandchild. This is not the God of the Bible. Every day I read the newspaper and hear of more and more murders, Planned Parenthood selling baby's body parts--not to mention the over 54 million babies aborted since Roe v Wade, the same sex marriage issue, and the list goes on. We are ripe for the judgment. If it begins with the harvest and goes on into the price paid at the pump and the grocery store, then maybe we need to not only pray, but actually repent as a nation, and quit kicking God out of everything from the schools to the public square. Do we actually deserve his favor?

There is room for two arts organizations in Noblesville

I read with interest Fred Swift's recent article and the questions posed: Does Noblesville need two Cultural Arts organizations? And, if not, does one bring about the demise of the other? I feel compelled to weigh in on those questions as it relates to my nearly thirty years of experience in non-profit organization management. While completing my certification in the Program in Nonprofit Management offered by Duke University in Durham, NC, I had the opportunity to serve as the executive director of the Nash County Arts Council located in Nashville, NC. That particular organization organized, promoted and presented a wide variety of programs for the surrounding area including dramas, musicals, classes, concerts, and art exhibits, among others. While other venues existed around Nash County, our Cultural Center was considered the "hub" of cultural activity. This particular venue and its programs were not in any way subsidized by the municipality or the County. Is the "umbrella" option the best choice for Noblesville? Not so sure about that. In my opinion, with the growth of Noblesville in general and the growing number of talented individuals we are blessed to have among us, there is room for two organizations if both can operate in the black through fundraising efforts, revenue raised through ticket sales and grant funding. I believe that Noblesville residents can and will support arts initiatives. Mr. Swift's remarks clearly set forth the questions which local art patrons must ponder, discuss, and decide as we nurture this most important quality of life issue.

Carmel softball player now a pro athlete...

“Unbelievable opportunity” for Jones

By RICHIE HALL
Reporter Sports Editor
Kelsi Jones probably never expected to be a professional athlete.

Jones has been a great softball player all throughout high school and college, but it turns out there would be more in store for the Carmel High School graduate. Jones is now playing for the Chicago Bandits, one of five teams in the National Pro Fastpitch league. The recent University of Louisville graduate is making the most of a remarkable opportunity and also had her eyes opened to a new sense of purpose not just for softball, but for women's sports in general.

The events that led Jones to the Chicago Bandits happened rather quickly. She had just finished her senior season with the University of Louisville, and soon heard about an open tryout for the Bandits.

Kelsi's father sent her the news about the tryout. "Hey, this is something that you should be interested in," he said.

"I was kind of doubting myself that I would be able to do it, and he really was the one that pushed me to do it," said Jones. "He didn't think I was quite ready to be done, and it turns out I wasn't."

Jones was one of 40 women at the tryout, and then was one of eight who were selected to play in an exhibition game that night. Jones participated in that game, and was asked if she could stay for another day. "Sure," she said.

So Jones stayed another day, played in another exhibition game, and after that was offered a full-time spot on the Bandits roster. She moved to Chicago the next day.

"It was pretty quick," said Jones. "I had packed up in Louisville, so my car was still packed. I was living out of boxes and suitcases."

It didn't take long for Jones to make her first impact for the Bandits. In the team's third game of the season (May 31 at the Pennsylvania Rebellion), Jones collected her first hit. She singled in the sixth inning, and later went on to score a run.

Through the games of July 16, Jones has had two hits, batted in two runs and scored twice. She doesn't get in every game, but understands that's not uncommon for rookies.

Kelsi Jones, a star softball player for Carmel High School, is spending the summer playing professionally. After graduating from the University of Louisville, Jones joined the Chicago Bandits, a National Pro Fastpitch League team. Jones has had two hits, two RBIs and scored twice during the season.

"I'm just lucky to have a spot on the team," said Jones. "I just try and help them any way that I can, whether it's pinch hitting, keeping charts."

Indeed, Jones said just being part of the Bandits has been an "unbelievable opportunity" for her.

"One I didn't think I would have," she said. "My time will come. But for now, I'm totally okay with being a role player."

The experience has been a great one for Jones, and definitely an eye-opener. Jones admitted that she didn't know very much about pro softball, but once she did, she called the competition "incredible" between the teams and the players.

"The best players in the world playing against each other every single night," said Jones. "I guess I underestimated maybe just how competitive it really was between the teams."

There are five teams in the National Pro Fastpitch League - the Chicago Bandits, the Akron Racers, the Dallas Charge, the Pennsylvania Rebellion and the USSSA Florida Pride. The league itself is a reconstitution of the Women's Pro Softball League, which ran from 1997-2001, then was revived as NPF in 2004. Of the teams, only Akron has been in the league since the re-start of NPF. The Bandits joined in 2005.

"Different teams have come and gone," said Jones. "Cities have been successful and other cities haven't."

Jones said in the past couple years, the sport has "really grown a lot more" and is getting national attention. National Pro Fastpitch games are shown on the CBS Sports Network, and Jones herself has gotten some TV time here and there when Bandits games are shown.

"It just gets it on TV and people can see that this does exist. Little girls have something to shoot for," said Jones, who noted that softball players don't have to finish their careers once they graduate from college.

In playing for the Bandits, Jones discovered a passion for helping grow the NPF, which leads to a passion for helping to grow women's sports in general.

"Our goal as a team obviously is to win," said Jones. "Secondary to that is just trying to grow the league."

Jones said that she thinks "we're all passionate" about growing the league, since the players taking to the field for the Bandits have had an opportunity to play, and they want it to continue to get bigger.

National Pro Fastpitch seasons only last three months, "so you have to have a real job as well," said Jones. In fact, Kelsi's plans after the NPF season is over involve heading to graduate school, where she will pursue a degree in sports administration.

Of course, National Pro Fastpitch players get paid - but just in the summer. Meanwhile, Major League Baseball players are getting paid the entire year.

"That's all they do year round," said Jones. She said that the more the league grows, the more possible it could be to make softball a true profession.

"It's really opened up my eyes to the disparity between men's and women's professional sports," said Jones.

As for Jones' future in NPF? "It's hard to say," she said. She does have future plans, and while it would be nice to commit to a long-term pro softball career, there are other things on the horizon. There are other things she is interested in, such as possibly working administratively in sports.

But no matter what, Jones can always say she was a professional athlete.

"I feel like this one summer I've been blessed with this opportunity," said Jones.

Central Indiana Young Marines host golf outing Aug. 8

Central Indiana Young Marines is hosting its second annual golf outing on Saturday, Aug. 8, at the Winding Ridge Golf Club in Indianapolis. The proceeds raised from this event will go toward the purchase of uniforms, cover tuition for leadership schools and pay for the group's annual unit encampment at Bradford Woods.

The tournament is a Florida scramble. Registration begins at 12 p.m. with a 1 p.m. tee time.

"Given that this tournament is taking place in August, this will be a 'Par is your friend' event," says David Heffner, former Central Indiana Young Marines unit commander. "What that means is, once you hit par, your team can move on to the next hole."

The cost for this event is $80 per person or $320 per team. The price includes a dinner following the tournament.

Golfers and foursomes can register up to the start of the tournament. However, advanced registration is preferred. If your business would like to sponsor a hole, the deadline to register for hole sponsorship is July 31. Go to <http://ciym.ezregister.com/> to register.

"We invite people to come out and support Central Indiana Young Marines," says Heffner. "Central Indiana Young Marines is a great youth development program for boys and girls from the ages of eight through the completion of high school. It teaches them leadership, teamwork and self-discipline while promoting a healthy, drug-free lifestyle."

For more information about the golf tournament, contact David Heffner at 317-248-9668 or via email at david@HeffnerPlumbing.net.

Sanchez's 8 topped by Scranton's 9 in 2-1 loss

Greg Bird drew a two-out walk in the top of the ninth inning and scored on a single from Gary Sanchez to send the Scranton/Wilkes-Barre RailRiders to a 2-1, come-from-behind win and series split with the Indianapolis Indians Thursday night at Victory Field.

Bird finished the four-game series at 5-for-13 with three runs scored and three RBIs. He helped Scranton rally from consecutive defeats to win each of the last two games and prevent the Tribe's third series win at Victory Field in the last four meetings.

Indians starter Angel Sanchez took a no-decision despite eight dominant innings of one run and just four hits. The Triple-A rookie is 12-2 on the season between Double-A Altoona and Indianapolis and currently ranks tied for the most wins in Minor League Baseball.

Sanchez gave up his lone run on a double-play ball that allowed Tyler Austin to score in the top of the eighth.
