‘Indiana at 200’: Andrea Neal’s book tells what shaped the state

By FRED SWIFT

Leading up to next year's state Bicentennial the Indiana Policy Review Foundation has arranged for a series of 100 stories of significant historic events to be prepared for Hoosiers. These essays will allow folks to learn more of what has shaped the state's personality.

The series, named 'Indiana at 200', is written by Andrea Neal, longtime journalist and Hamilton County native. Formerly a columnist for the Indianapolis Star, she is now a teacher at St. Richard's Episcopal School.

Ms. Neal is the daughter of Jim and Georgianne Neal and a fourth generation journalist with local roots.

She graduated from Brown University, then was a reporter and writer for UPI news service before going to the Star where she was a columnist and served on the editorial board. More recently she served on the State Board of Education.

You can expect Andrea's stories to be fascinating. For example, one deals with the beginning of the famous Lewis and Clark Expedition which Andrea points out actually started when Lewis met Clark in the Clark family cabin along the Ohio River in Indiana.

The Indiana Bicentennial Commission will compile Andrea's series along with photos and other material in a pocket guide travel book to be released at the first of 2016 when the state begins its celebration of 200 years of statehood.

The author says she just finished her work about the first of July after a hectic spring of writing. Her series has been released to the press and can be found online for those who are on Facebook. At least one installment in the series has to do with a major Hamilton County event.

The trial and conviction of D.C. Stephenson, grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, made national news in 1925 when he was tried for the second degree murder of a female friend. The case was venued to Noblesville from Indianapolis where the victim, Madge Oberholtzer, died.

The Hamilton County jury's verdict brought about the downfall of the Klan which had come close to ruling the state under Stephenson's leadership. At the height of his power in early 1925 Stephenson once boasted that "I am the law in Indiana."

Community-wide initiative to improve soft skills...

Noblesville Works

On Friday morning, community leaders and officials announced the implementation of Noblesville Works, a community-wide initiative that will impact our citizens and workforce.

“What we do today will impact a lot of people’s tomorrows,” Noblesville Mayor John Ditslear said, adding that Noblesville Works has a large target audience: families, elementary through college students, businesses and perspective and current employees.

The Noblesville Works initiative is a product of the Workforce Development Council which is comprised of Noblesville Schools’ administrators and counselors, the Noblesville Chamber of Commerce, Ivy Tech and Work One, the Noblesville Economic Development Department, non-profit organizations and several local businesses. The council started in the fall of 2012 to provide strategies and a collaborative approach to improve workforce preparedness and training for individuals. One of the areas identified as critical to ensure a work-ready employee was soft skills enhancement.

“Soft skills are important because they are human element skills. Soft skills, like how you communicate or your ethics, might be the element that sets you aside from your competitor. Technical skills may get you a job interview, but soft skills will get you the job and help you retain it! We want to increase awareness of these soft skills so that we are growing a marketable workforce for the ever-changing and modern business environment,” Noblesville Mayor John Ditslear said.

Noblesville Works, which is partially funded by Duke Energy, also is the first time in the State of Indiana that a community has created this type of emphasis on soft skills enhancement and development.

“The Noblesville Works initiative is a grassroots effort from the community saying soft skills matter to us and we, collectively, are going to make them a priority. It is not one industry, grade level or a government program – it is truly a collaboration of the City of Noblesville,” Communications Manager Robert Herrington said.

The Workforce Development Council has an extensive catalog of skills needed for meaningful employment and has established criteria for each of those skills. The Noblesville Works initiative will focus on enhancing communication skills, work ethic, teamwork, personal ethics, critical thinking and high level soft skills.

“What really makes the Noblesville Works initiative so powerful is that these efforts we have been focused on within the schools will now be

Main Street set to unveil new piece of public art at Farmers Market

A long-standing weekly tradition in Noblesville is getting a new addition in a piece of public art thanks to residents Steve and Lori Schwartz and the creativity of some local Noblesville art students.

Earlier this year, Steve & Lori Schwartz approached Main Street Executive Director Chris Owens about the possibility of incorporating local art into the market. Schwartz owns a 1959 Ford F-100 pickup he willingly donated as the canvas. Owens then contacted Noblesville High School art teacher Kayti Hahn about the opportunity and the project was born.

“We felt that this vintage farm truck would bring more attention and pizzazz to a rapidly growing Noblesville Farmers Market,” said Steve Schwartz. “Our hopes are that this contribution will help boost the image and make the farmers market an even larger destination.”

The project took a little over a week for students Katie Flor, a sophomore, Kenzie Day a junior, and seniors Paul Williams and Nick Green to complete the project with the help of Hahn who collectively transformed the truck into a mural featuring many fruits and vegetables available at the market.

“This piece of art is a great example of collaboration when different groups look at sharing their resources and talent to provide something new to their community,” said Owens. “The students did a great job with the truck and I’m hopeful that the many market patrons and members of our community will enjoy this work.”

The Reporter continues to publish 4-H results today.

You can find them on Pages 10-14.

The art will be unveiled at 8 a.m. this morning in the overflow lot next to Riverview Health.

What people are saying about Noblesville Works

“Soft skills are vital to career readiness and success. With the creation of this program, Noblesville will develop a pipeline of talented, workforce-ready individuals to support the needs of our and neighboring business communities. What we do today will improve a lot of people’s tomorrows.” – Noblesville Mayor John Ditslear

“Soft skills are a critical part of what we teach at the Boys & Girls Club. Having integrity, being responsible and being a good member as a part of a team are all positive outcomes that are programs promote. They impact the future success of our youth which is our mission; to ensure ‘Great Futures Start Here.’” – Becky Terry, Boys & Girls Club of Noblesville executive director

“In our schools, education isn’t about just sitting and memorizing all day anymore. We’re challenging our students to be active learners and focusing our teaching efforts on real-world projects that encourage the development of collaboration, communication, creativity and critical thinking skills, among others.” Dr. Beth Niedermeyer, Noblesville Schools Superintendent

“Skilled trades are needing employees and the demand is growing rapidly in many areas for qualified individuals. Our industry is facing a severe shortage and we need folks that have the soft skills/the know how to be a great employee. We are the masters of training our technical field. We need the student to have the soft skills when they get here.” Chuck Goodrich, Gaylor Electric Inc. President

“Soft skills are real world work ethic skills: personal responsibility, doing ones best, respect for others and working together are applicable in every classroom and every workplace.” – Daniel Clark, Ivy Tech Noblesville Campus President “Workforce preparedness is critical to the success of businesses – employers large and small. It is critical to the economic health of our community. And most importantly it is critical to an individual’s success in life. There are many facets to readying one for success in the 21st century workforce. It requires the specific task-related skill set needed for job, or hard skills. But increasingly more important are the soft skills needed and that’s why we are here today.” Bob DuBois, Noblesville Chamber of Commerce President

“In my position as internship coordinator I constantly hear the most important skills the business are looking for are not the ‘hard skills,’ but they want employees who have a work ethic, a positive attitude, strong communication skills, ability to work on a team and well-developed problem-solving skills. Workers with the above skills will excel as a positive role model, a team builder and leader.

In a presentation to our students, Dale Miller of Miller Consulting said what I believe many business leaders feel. ‘Hire for attitude, teach the skill.’

Noblesville Works is a great example of a whole community behind an initiative to create a career-ready culture in Noblesville. When you have the mayor, city workers and officials, businesses, non-profits, schools, and community members joining together, it’s bound to impact our community. It is very exciting!” Susan Wiersema, Noblesville High School Internship Coordinator aligned with the community at large. There’s a strong synergy that comes from focusing on the same thing at the same time as a community, and this synergy will further student capabilities in this critical area,” said Noblesville Schools Superintendent Dr. Beth Niedermeyer.

The campaign features a specific soft skill, one per month, for the academic year. The community can get participate in this initiative by following the monthly schedule for each soft skill and incorporating them as part of your daily life and vocabulary with colleagues, children, family and friends.

Noblesville Works also provides tools for success in the workplace.

“We are laying a foundation that each individual or organization can customize and tailor to their needs. Noblesville Works provides a starting point and the freedom to incorporate the skills into their organization’s culture. We want businesses to use this base tool as they see fit in their companies, whether that is through charity events, employee appreciation, watercooler talks or other venues,” said Sarah Reed, Noblesville economic development specialist and project leader of the workforce development council. “The goal of Noblesville Works is to better our workforce and to make current employees feel more engaged and valued because their employer is reaching out and doing something for them.”

Noblesville Works also has a large technology piece to it to engage and educate more people and create excitement and interest in soft skills. The overall message will incorporate hashtag Noblesville Works and each skill has its own icon, color-coded graphics and weekly social media message.

“Skilled trades are needing employees and the demand is growing rapidly in many areas for qualified individuals. Our industry is facing a severe shortage and we need folks that have the soft skills/the know how to be a great employee. We are the masters of training our technical field. We need the student to have the soft skills when they get here,” said Gaylor Electric President Chuck Goodrich.

Noblesville Works is an integral part of the city’s business retention and expansion initiative through Stay Here Grow Here.

“Workforce Development is important to economic development because it enhances the local economic stability by focusing on people. The further development of soft skills, skill more social than technical, is critical to the cultivation of a dynamic workforce. Whether you are a student, job seeker, or currently in the workforce, it is your soft skills that make your hard work shine.” Noblesville Economic Development Director Judi Johnson said.

Residents should see Noblesville Works throughout our community starting today.

Movement is key to staying independent

By SHARON MCMAHON

"People are like bicycles. They can keep their balance only as long as they keep moving." –

Albert Einstein in a letter to his son Eduard, Feb. 5, 1930.

Movement! Haven't we all heard this at one time or another... "Don't lie down if you can sit, don't sit if you can stand, don't stand if you can walk." Whatever! I know that I often just want to kick back with my feet up – literally. However, we must admit that A.E. did get that whole theory of relativity thing right so maybe we should pay attention to his remark about balance! (Although I do not agree with his minimal sleep habits – but that is another article!)

The importance of balance and movement cannot be overemphasized for us as we move into the 50+ range. Along with changes in our muscle strength and flexibility we also incur issues with balance in our everyday movement. Increasing that movement can enhance our ability to maintain balance. How many times did you fall down as a child? Bet you sprang up without a problem; your strong bones, muscle tone, and flexibility enabled you to brush yourself off and keep on going with barely a notice! According to the BMJ (British Medical Journal, 29 October 2013) French researchers analyzed the results of 17 trials that tested the effect of fall-prevention exercises on seniors' risk of falls and fall-related injuries. Overall, exercise programs reduced falls that caused injuries by 37%, falls leading to serious injuries by 43%, and broken bones by 61%.

Independence is something we all value – children are eager to become independent, and mature adults are eager to stay independent! Broken bones from falls which can be prevented limit mobility and lead to a host of other health issues as well as lack of confidence and fear of falling. What is to be done? Movement! As a fitness instructor, I find it both amusing and rather sad that many people look upon stretching as a not-very-challenging workout and therefore not to be highly regarded. Ask any Olympian what type of workout offers the most benefits. In addition to increasing balance and flexibility, stretching transports oxygen and removes toxins from muscles, improving athletic performance.

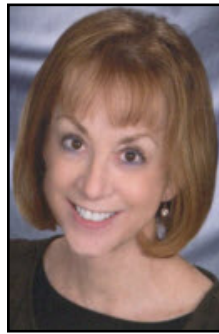

Fitness classes aimed at improving balance are increasingly common, I am pleased to say. In addition to promoting better balance, participants can experience improved muscle tone, stronger bones as well as coordination and a sense of well-being. When is it a good time to start? How about now? Taking control of our balance and movement – along with better nutrition – can make a world of difference to the quality of life we cherish. Self-care is not only a gift we give to ourselves, but a precious gift we offer to those who love us. It truly is the "gift that goes on giving" to coin a phrase!

Including All-State player McAree...

Three state seniors return for Royals golf

By RICHIE HALL
Reporter Sports Editor
The Hamilton Southeastern girls golf team has built a strong tradition over the past decade.

The Royals have qualified for state in each of the last 10 years, and every year but one since 2002. Southeastern, a four-time state champion, wants to keep that streak going and has the firepower to do just that.

Royals coach Steve Guenin noted that his team "graduated many experienced players," but there are three back who played on HSE's third-place state team last season.

"This year we have a solid foundation of upperclassmen with many underclassmen excited to gain varsity playing time," said Guenin.

Leading the way is senior Ciara McAree, who earned All-State honors last year. She is joined by fellow seniors Phoebe Cha and Esther Bahn, who each played at state as well.

The Royals also have players returning with varsity experience: Rachel Eaton, Jen Dixon, Sally Johnson, Kaitlyn Johnston and Hope Vigren. In addition, Guenin said his team has "a solid group of underclassmen who will be competing for the top spots."

"The girls have been working hard all summer and are ready for high school golf," said Guenin. I anticipate an exciting season and look forward to seeing what we can accomplish."

Southeastern opens its season Tuesday with its own invitational at Stoney Creek Golf Course, then has two other big meets to open the week: Wednesday at the Zionsville Invitational, and Saturday's State Preview meet at Prairie View Golf Course, the home of the IHSAA state finals.

Wide range of activities on tap for Red Bull Indianapolis GP weekend

From high-flying Red Bull skydivers to a bustling marketplace to the fastest two-wheeled athletes in the world, the eighth Red Bull Indianapolis GP on Aug. 7-9 is shaping up to be the best yet.

The stars of MotoGP will practice, qualify and race over the three-day weekend, with Sunday's races sure to thrill on the 16-turn, 2.591-mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway road course. MotoGP, Moto2 and Moto3 classes will compete, and in the premier class Marc Marquez will try for his third consecutive win at Indianapolis and fifth consecutive overall (counting a pair of Moto2 wins in 2011-12).

MotoAmerica, the premier U.S.-based motorcycle road racing series, will also race at IMS in the penultimate event of its first season. Multiple classes will compete including the flagship Superbike class, featuring a rules package based on a combination of AMA Superbike chassis and 2015 World Superbike Championship engine specifications. An autograph session for fans will be held from 12:35-1:15 p.m., featuring stars such as four-time AMA Superbike champion Josh Hayes, former Daytona SportBike champ Cameron Beaubier and former AMA 600 Supersport champion and Owensboro, Kentucky, native Roger Hayden.

And those won't be the only two-wheel stars on the property, as three Red Bull riders will also be performing demos in the infield three times daily throughout the weekend. They are:

Aaron Colton (Street freestyle Demo), in a discipline that involves manipulating a motorcycle through an array of acrobatic maneuvers. One of the most decorated street freestyle riders in the world, Colton became the youngest XDL National Stunt Riding champion at age 15. He went on to win multiple national championships and compete in AMA Pro Road and Flat Track Racing as well as supermoto and motocross.

Geoff Aaron (Trials Demo), in a discipline that's low-speed but all about balance and control. Aaron is a 10-time AMA National Trials champion and has twice been named AMA Sports Athlete of the Year.

Terry Adams (Flatland BMX Demo), in a riding style that's on smooth, flat surfaces and all about balance and concentration. Adams is a pioneer of the sport with two X Games gold medals and two NORA Cup (Number One Rider Award) titles. Adams has appeared on the TV show "Glee" and introduced new audiences to Flatland BMX in a 50-stop U.S. college tour. For a full schedule of when each will perform, click here.

While those Red Bull riders thrill on the ground, members of the Red Bull Air Force will do the same in the air after jumping from a plane 5,000 feet above the Earth. Mike Swanson, Jon DeVore and Amy Chmelecki are part of a team assembled from the most accomplished and experienced skydivers, B.A.S.E. jumpers and paragliders on the planet. They are scheduled to perform early Sunday afternoon before the MotoGP race.

On Saturday evening after on-track activity, fans can walk the Pit Lane for an intimate and up-close view of the exotic, 1000cc prototype motorcycles that will compete in the MotoGP class during the weekend.

Also open in Gasoline Alley garages all weekend is the Vendor Marketplace presented by Westfield Powersports, a popular display area for aftermarket products. Motorcycle enthusiasts can view and purchase gear from top motorcycle equipment and accessory companies.

Kids will have plenty to do at the IMS Kids Zone in the Moto Midway. Bounce houses, prizes and music will entertain children of all ages. Also in the Moto Midway is the American Supercamp, providing demo rides to children on 50cc and 90cc motorcycles (riders under 32 inches in height may not ride unaccompanied by a parent/legal guardian).

Hamilton County Men’s Amateur Championship set for Sept. 19-20

The 12th annual Hamilton County Men’s Amateur Championship hosting male amateur and senior amateur golfers who reside, or play at a golf club, in Hamilton County is set for September 19-20, 2015. The 36-hole championship draws players from every course and corner of Hamilton County.

For the first time in the championship’s history one day of play will be held at Bear Slide Golf Club. Also new for 2015, the minimum age to participate will be 18 (previous minimum age was 21).

Play opens Saturday, September 19 at Bear Slide Golf Club, Cicero and finishes Sunday, September 20 at Prairie Purgatory Golf Club, Noblesville. The field is limited to 72 players—48 amateurs and 24 senior amateurs.

“Bobby Jones was correct in saying ‘There is golf and then there is tournament golf.’ For those who enjoy the collegial competition of a county golf contest and have the courage to post their scores public, this is fun event at two great golf courses,” said Alan Hinds, past championship chairman.

Register by August 15 and Save 10% - pay only $135. After August 15 the entry fee is $150. Last day to register is September 11, 2015. The entry fee covers green fee and cart both days, championship prizes and favors. Register easily online at www.hamamgolf.eventbrite.com.

Players in the Amateur division must be 18 years old and have a current IGA/USGA handicap index of 9.9 or less. The Senior Amateur division starts at age 55 and requires a current IGA/USGA handicap index of 14.0 or less. Players must be residents of Hamilton County, Indiana OR be a playing member at a Hamilton County golf club.

While a handicap limit is required for entry, this is a no-net tournament and only gross scores are used in the event. The championship and various second day flights are determined by first day scores. Merchandise certificates are awarded in each flight.

Between the two divisions Purgatory, Pebble Brook, Crooked Stick, Harbor Trees and Fox Prairie have all been home clubs to a championship winner, Wolf Run is home club to 5 winners and Prairie View is home club to 8 winners.

Volstad vaults Tribe to third straight victory

Keon Broxton drove in two runs for the Indianapolis Indians (61-46) while the duo of Chris Volstad and Jeff Inman limited the Charlotte Knights (59-49) to five hits as the Tribe rolled to a 5-1 win Friday night at Victory Field. A sellout, season-high crowd of 15,249 witnessed the Indians stretch their winning streak to three games.

Volstad (8-4) needed just 86 pitches for his seven solid innings. He struck out seven and extended his scoreless streak to 16 innings before allowing his lone run on the night. Inman struck out two in the scoreless eighth and ninth frames.

Broxton doubled to extend his on-base streak to 24 consecutive games. It's the longest active streak in the International League.
