The County Line

$65 million COIT trust is big windfall to county

By FRED SWIFT
Where do you spend $65-million when it unexpectedly comes to you? That's the question our local officials can think over during the next couple of months until state checks arrive at treasurers' offices of Hamilton County's taxing districts.

The $65 million is the already-collected, but until now not disbursed, local option income tax collections now being released by the state legislature. Road conditions statewide became a major issue in the legislative session this year, so officials decided to pay out the $500 million COIT trust fund.

This one-time windfall must go mainly to street and road improvement. But, 25 percent of it can go to any local project or need. Local public officials have not yet decided on specific plans or projects.

Hamilton County overall gets the greatest piece of the pie at $65 million. The city of Noblesville will get about $8.5 million. And the cash-strapped city will be very happy to get it. The money could go a long way toward paying the city share of the long-proposed bypass of the downtown area if that is a chosen project.

As far as the 25 percent that does not have to be spent of roads, the city could decide to reinstate free trash pick-up for residents, but don't hold your breath on that. There is also a need of money for park and trail development and likely other things city officials will consider.

Carmel which gets about $15 million will also have no problem finding places to spend the money. One likely project would be a major intersection improvement at 96th Street and Keystone. Mayor Jim Brainard has been looking for money to eliminate the major bottleneck at that location.

The Hamilton County administration which will get a check for about $18 million, is already in good financial shape, but can always use more road funds. The new money could speed the completion of a dual lane 146th Street west to the Boone County line.

For the money not dedicated to roads, county spending could be considered for additional park development or perhaps parking facilities for the soon-to-be expanded Government and Judicial Center.

Among the other communities, Fishers gets the largest amount of money, about $9 million, followed by Westfield at around $4.5 million and lesser amounts for Sheridan, Cicero, Arcadia and Atlanta. The townships and library districts and even the County Solid Waste District also share in the bonanza.

The unexpected disbursement of the COIT trust is huge for Hamilton County and has not gotten the publicity that such an amount warrants. The county can be thankful that there is nothing like an election year to loosen the purse strings.

A life redeemed...

By JANET HART LEONARD
A few years ago I was asked to tell "my story" during the worship services at my church...my big church, with several thousand people listening. Here is how that came about.

In 2001, after my divorce, I changed churches.

It was a huge leap of faith for me. I had been at the same church for over forty years. I had directed Vacation Bible School, was the church organist, sang in a gospel trio and taught a young married Sunday School Class.

Exhausted, was how I described myself physically, mentally, emotionally and spiritually. I resigned from all my positions. Honestly, I wanted to hide amongst a large crowd and heal. I had a lot of healing to do.

My life looked nothing...NOTHING like had a planned.

I began attending a Bible Study with a Wednesday morning women's group. The book that they were studying, "Lord Heal my Hurts."

Over several months and several tears, I began to heal. I began to share my story amongst the women in this group. They listened. They prayed. They encouraged. They came alongside me. Gradually, the healing began. I knew I would always be broken, but I would be okay.

As I read in the book we studied and in the scriptures, God uses broken people.

WINDY SATURDAY

The wayward wind was creating havoc all across Indiana Saturday, and Hamilton County had its fair share of breeze-related headaches. Pictured here is the intersection of State Road 32 and Hazel Dell Road/Little Chicago Road, where the traffic signals on all sides were being blown about by the strong winds that prompted a Wind Advisory for most of Indiana all day.

More serious damage took place in the southern part of the county, with roof materials observed peeled back on the roof of Saint Elizabeth Seton Church at 106th Street and Haverstick Road in Carmel. A large tree fell down on Hague Road between 106th and 116th streets in Fishers, blocking both lanes. In the northern part of the county, a mature pine tree was reported down on Quarter Path Road near the Cicero Fire Department. Later that evening, a trained spotter reported large tree limbs blown down near 226th Street and U.S. 31. Wooded areas such as Anthony Road in Westfield and Leonard Road near Atlanta also had scattered tree limbs on the roadway as well.

There is progress in the making on Noblesville’s trails

By MARY SUE ROWLAND
This good question and answer should be shared with the readers of the Hamilton Reporter.
Trails continue to be the future for Noblesville even though many other communities in Hamilton County have been on track for several years. The "Riverwalk" has taken more than 20 years to start and the Midland Trace almost as long. There is progress in the making.

Hello,
I saw this article today. Exciting progress mostly. I have one item I'd like more information on, the Midland Railway Trail.
As our city continues to grow, are there any plans to develop the trail east of 37? It kills me to watch the development adjacent to the old rail line with no visible preservation for future trail development. I used to walk it in high school. It was lovely. Shouldn't the rail line be secured now and developed later? Wouldn't it be more affordable (and therefore fiscally responsible) to do this now instead of after everything is developed? I'm sure a concern is how to deal with 37, but the east and west portions of the trail wouldn't necessarily have to meet. And furthermore, could determining a way for the trail to cross 37 be a solution to the dangerous pedestrian situation for people crossing 37? Expanding the Midland Trail could actually make our city safer and more walkable/livable.

Just my thoughts - I'm always thinking towards a better future. Thanks.
Emily Compton

Ms. Compton;
I was forwarded a copy of your correspondence, and I think I can address your concerns or provide you some information.
Crossings for the Midland Trace on S.R. 37 have been a part of the discussion between City Council and the Administration and were discussed during the development the of projects discussed in the recent article. The Midland was specific element of focus in those meetings. Pedestrian crossings over S.R. 37, the development of the Midland Trace through town, as well as the Riverwalk have been ongoing for some time now. The Midland Trace is presently being developed as a project from Gray Road into town. Parts of the Midland Trace were also constructed as part of the Union Chapel Road project back in 2011. There is some type of active planning, acquisition, coordination, and design active along the corridor. In addition to the Riverwalk, which will eventually connect to the Midland and on which the final phase of construction will begin next year, we plan on paving some of the trail between Hazel Dell and Gray Road as soon as next year, when we anticipate land acquisition to be completed in that area.

We are presently working with any proposed development through the corridor to re-secure clear title for any portion of the trail that is affected by development anywhere along the corridor. Thanks to the presence of our Alternative Transportation, Thoroughfare Plan, and UDO,

JANET

I had been a good girl. I had obeyed the Commandments. I could name almost every hymn in the hymnal in three notes. But goodness doesn't protect you from bad things happening.
And what do you do when that happens? I turned to the only thing that I knew would get me through the confusion, the hurt, the anger...my Faith. I prayed from my heart. I questioned how God would allow such bad things to happen when I had tried to be so good. I prayed some pretty ugly prayers. I was honest with God. My anger wasn't just at those who had hurt me BUT at God for allowing me to be hurt.

And the healing continued. And it still continues. That is just the way life is. Our goodness does not exclude us from divorce, cancer, job loss or other tragedies. We must decide what to do with the hurts and the anger. But I will tell you...God does not leave you alone.
My life still doesn't look like I planned. Actually, it's better than I could have planned. It took a long time to get here. God and I had a lot of long talks. I have a well-worn Bible. I have friends that have been amazing characters in my story.

My story reached the pastors of the church. They asked me to share it with the congregation.
I have a story of Redemption. My brokenness led me to a church where my healing began. My faith gave me the courage to walk into a car dealership and ask for a job selling cars. I met my husband in the waiting room of the dealership. I truly believe that God had a plan. It wasn't a lions den. It wasn't a pit. It wasn't a fiery furnace. The giant that I faced wasn't named Goliath. I just believed what I had been taught from the time I was a little girl. You just need the faith of a mustard seed.

So as I spoke in front of those few thousand people I simply told my story. A beautiful story of Redemption. I pray it can make a difference.

Now that spring has officially sprung, you might look around your home and decide it’s time for some sprucing up. But you don’t have to confine your efforts to your house and yard – you can also engage in a little “spring cleaning” in your investment portfolio.

Here are a few suggestions for doing just that:

- “Dust off” your investment strategy. Dusting is a big part of spring cleaning. Light fixtures, shelves, windowsills – they can all acquire layers of dust and grime that need to be whisked away. And if you’ve left your investment strategy unexamined for a long period, it too may need to be “dusted off” and re-evaluated. Over time, your financial goals, family situation and even risk tolerance can change, so it’s a good idea to review your overall strategy to make sure it’s still appropriate for your needs.

- Get rid of “clutter.” Once you start tidying up your house, you might be surprised at all the “duplicates” you find – a broom in a bedroom, another broom in the laundry room, a third in the garage, and so on. Just as you probably don’t need multiple brooms, so you may find that you have many versions of the same type of investment in your portfolio. If you own too many of the same investment, and a market downturn affects that particular asset, your portfolio could take a big hit. You may be better off by selling some of the too-similar investments and using the proceeds to diversify your holdings. (However, while diversification can reduce the impact of volatility on your portfolio, it can’t guarantee profits or protect against loss.)

- Remove “stains” on your portfolio. As you clean your carpets and furniture, you might notice some stains that should be removed. And when you look through your portfolio, you might find some “stains” in the form of chronically underperforming investments. Instead of holding on to these vehicles with the hope that they will eventually turn around, you might consider selling them and using the proceeds to purchase new investments, which can help fill any gaps you may have in your holdings.
- Consolidate your accounts. Have you ever discovered a stapler in one drawer, a roll of tape in the linen closet and a bunch of marking pens on your desk? All these items may be useful, but for the sake of efficiency (and to cut down on frustrating searches), you might want to consolidate them in one place. And you could do something similar with your investments. Specifically, if you have some stocks here, a couple of certificates of deposits there, and some IRAs at still another place, you might consider consolidating them with one financial services provider. With all your investments in one place, you could possibly reduce the fees and paperwork associated with maintaining your accounts. And when you eventually start taking withdrawals from your IRA and 401(k), you may find it easier to calculate these required distributions if they’re coming from just one place. But just as importantly, when you consolidate your investments with one provider, you may find it easier to follow a single, unified investment strategy.

So, there you have them – some spring-cleaning ideas to help you update and energize your investment portfolio. And you won’t even need a dustpan.

Starbucks requests permission for added logo, directional letterset

Starbucks is requesting permission to add an additional logo and drive thru directional letterset to the south portion of its building at 16987 Clover Rd. Petitioners said the additional signage will allow for better recognition of the location by drivers traveling northbound on State Road 37. Starbucks is requesting three sign waivers. This ordinance was introduced to the Noblesville Common Council Tuesday and will eligible for adoption at the April 12 council meeting.

any new development must at least donate the land back as part of our development ordinance. Any development adjacent to the Midland Trace is required consider future expansion.

Unfortunately, due to funding restrictions, progress has been slower than what many of us prefer or have hoped.

However, the Administration has identified a crossing as an issue and will continue to work on addressing it in the future. If the Pleasant Street and S.R. 37 interchange project progresses, elements of the Midland Trace will be most certainly be incorporated into that project, as well as any other project east or west of that intersection.

Conway again outstanding

Noblesville finished its spring break trip into Tennessee was another outstanding hurling job by Cory Conway. The senior ace fired a two-hitter and fanned nine batters in the Millers’ 5-3 victory over McCracken County.

Coach Justin Keever’s club got just six hits, but four of those were for extra bases. Jackson Thurman blasted a home run; Harris Camp tripled, and Michael Carmosino and Connor Christman slugged doubles.

Noblesville scored three times in the first; pushed across what would be the winning run in the second and then added an insurance run in the sixth.

The Millers, now 3-1, Tuesday will return to Don Dunker Field in Noblesville to face Frankfort.

Royals open the season 3-0...

HSE sweeps HCC Avon

Hamilton Southeastern's Carter Poiry pitched four innings of the Royals' 8-7 win over Avon Saturday, tossing seven strikeouts. That win clinched a Hoosier Crossroads Conference sweep of the Orioles.

Hamilton Southeastern on Saturday at home completed a three-game sweep of Hoosier Crossroads Conference foe Avon by defeating the Orioles 11-0 and then 8-7 in a nightcap thriller.

In the opener, Southeastern led 4-0 when blowing the contest wide-open with seven runs in the fourth.

Carter Lohman got the pitching victory for Coach Scott Henson's Royals, going four innings and allowing just four hits. Sam Bachman mopped up in relief.

Southeastern unloaded eight hits, including a home run by Matt Gorski and doubles by Gorski and Cole Jacobs.

Gorski drove home three runs.

The nightcap was a 1-1 deadlock before the Royals scored five runs in the sixth and two in the seventh. Southeastern had to stop a four-run rally by Avon in the bottom of the seventh.

Southeastern collected nine hits, including two by Trenton Schneider, who hit a double.

Carter Poiry went four innings on the mound, allowing just one run and three hits. He fanned seven. Owen Callaghan picked up the victory in relief.

Southeastern now will make a swing into Ohio, playing at Lakota West on Thursday and at Moeller on Friday before returning home on Saturday to face Lake Central.

Pacers rally to beat 76ers

By KYLE GRAND
Courtesy nba.com/pacers

Desperate for a win, the Indiana Pacers got what they needed after knocking off the Philadelphia 76ers, 115-102. It certainly wasn't easy though, as the Pacers coughed up an 18-point lead in the third quarter and had to rally in the fourth for the victory.

The home team jumped out to a 14-6 lead behind the play of center Carl Landry. The Purdue product was red-hot, scoring 12 in the early going, including two 3-pointers.

The Pacers would respond though, led by George. PG scored nine in the opening quarter and Indiana finished the period with a 5-0 spurt to tie things at 28 heading into the second.

In the second period, the second unit dominated play and opened the game up for the Pacers. The Blue & Gold outscored the 76ers 21-7 to begin the quarter and, at the 5:53 mark, Indiana led 49-35.

From there, the teams essentially traded buckets, and the visitors took a double-digit lead into the locker room.

The Pacers' 12-point halftime lead grew to 18 in the early stages of the third quarter, but Philly didn't go down without a fight. The 76ers responded with a quick 8-0 run and with 6:24 left in the third, Indiana led 71-61.

After a Pacers timeout, the 76ers' onslaught continued and they eventually took the lead with under two minutes to play in the third. In total, it was a 24-3 run by the home team, capped off by a Nik Stauskas dunk over Myles Turner. At the end of the period, the Pacers trailed, 77-74.

The final quarter was a back-and-forth affair for most of the period, but C.J. Miles provided the spark Indiana needed. Down three, Miles tied the game with his fourth 3-pointer. A few possession later, Miles' fifth triple gave Indiana a 101-98 lead.

On Indiana's next offense possession, George Hill converted a three-point play to open up a six-point advantage with 3:17 remaining. This time, Indiana wouldn't relinquish its lead. Paul George drained a pair of 3-pointers to close the door on Philadelphia's comeback hopes.

Miles was huge for Indiana, finishing with 25 points on 9-of-14 shooting. His second unit running mate Rodney Stuckey added 17 points and George had another nice game, contributing 20 points, eight rebounds and six assists.

For Philadelphia, Isaiah Canaan led the way with 24 points. Jeremi Grant added 20 and Landry finished with 19. The 76ers made 16 of their 36 attempts from beyond the arc.
