The County Line

After election, county officials ready to make big decisions

By FRED SWIFT

With the election finally over, county officials are preparing to make some big decisions on long-discussed public building projects. County commissioners have set a work session for 9 a.m. Monday to "prioritize capital projects," according to a meeting notice released earlier this week.

The list will go to the County Council which will consider funding the big ticket construction plans. The council has already committed to allocate $16 million as the county's local share of the Ind. 37 upgrade. This reconstruction of grade level intersections will be largely funded with a state grant of $100 million, but the county along with Noblesville and Fishers must contribute to make it a reality.

Another project that will likely make the priority list is development of a Public Safety Training Center. This plan went to the Council last year, but was rejected. Commissioners will likely try again with a slightly different Council membership.

Expansion of the County Government and Judicial Center will also make the list. Commissioners say the building, now 24 years old, needs more room for additional courtrooms, office space and storage. Plans call for a major addition on the west side of the structure.

With the expansion will come a greater need for more parking. A yet to be determined parking facility may be added to the priority list. Specific plans have not been determined.

More jail space is also a rapidly approaching need. An addition to the present facility is a possibility. Other options include completing the unfinished third floor of the Community Corrections work release center as a short term fix or the updating of the former jail building located next door to the current jail and sheriff's office building.

A new White River bridge at Pleasant Street is also seen as a need which requires cooperation with the Noblesville city administration. The bridge would be built by the county as mandated by state law, but improvements to Pleasant Street and a connection to River Road to the west of the river would likely be a city responsibility.

The County Parks Department is also hoping to be included in overall capital improvements. Developing of already purchased ground and/or acquisition of additional park land is seen as a need for a growing population.

The county has major financial resources as well as bonding authority to pay for the improvements that will likely be found on the commissioners' list. But, the Council with the power of the purse, will have to be convinced to appropriate funds for all public improvements. And, the Council has been cautious in approving some projects, thus a major sales job awaits.

Steve D: an uncontested winner

By DON JELLISON
Reporter Editor
"Did Steve D win?"

Jellison

"I thought he was running again."
"Did he retire?"
Those were questions I've heard on the street concerning the most decorated Noblesville City and Hamilton County politician in history of local government.

Steve Dillinger.

No yard signs during the recent primary election. Not even an election advertisement in The Hamilton County Reporter. Although, I am proud to tell you that Dillinger has agreed to become a columnist in The Reporter, giving you readers more of an idea of what is happening today in Hamilton County government. Coming up soon, Steve has promised.

But, without a campaign, how in the heck did this guy get elected on Tuesday?

Simple. He had no opponent. By all honestly, folks have given up spending large sums of money to beat out Steve Dillinger.

He had first served on the city council and then the county council before beating out Doug McDonald and Jere Roudsbush in the 1980 election for Hamilton County Commissioner.

Since that time, nobody has come close to beating Steve D.

"I think (current county councilman) Brad Beaver came the closest, coming within 1,800 votes," Dillinger said.

In the last four elections that Dillinger had an opponent, Steve's winning margins were between 60-70 percent.

If you're an old-timer, like me, it is not hard to figure Steve's success, hav-

Noblesville Farmers Market opens this weekend

The annual Noblesville Farmers Market, organized by Noblesville Main Street, opens this Saturday from 8 a.m. until noon for the first of 24 consecutive weeks ending on Oct. 15, 2016. The 2016 market will take place in the Riverview Health overflow parking lot, located on Conner Street at the intersection of SR 32 and SR 19.

"We're excited to once again host the Noblesville Farmers Market on the lot just east of our main hospital campus," said Seth Warren, president and CEO of Riverview Health. "The market's farm-to-table approach fits nicely with our mission to help people in our community improve their overall health and well-being. We're happy to support any initiative that gives people convenient, cost-effective access to fresh fruits, vegetables and other food for better nutrition."

New to the market this year, the Main Street tent is the pickup location for orders placed through the following web site: NoblesvilleFarmersMarket.com. In addition to SNAP benefits and WIC benefits, market patrons who are eligible for those programs can also take part in Fresh Bucks, a local initiative to further combat food insecurity.

Fresh Bucks is a SNAP, formerly known as food stamps, double-up program, that allows customers who pay with their EBT card to double their dollars, up to $20 a day, spent on fruits and vegetables. The Fresh Bucks program is a project of the Indy Hunger Network, a local nonprofit whose goal is to ensure that anyone who is hungry can access the nutritious food that they need. IHN is a coalition of leading anti-hunger organizations within the Indianapolis area. Fresh Bucks is currently funded by the Indiana State Department of Health and works closely with other nutrition, hunger and agriculture organizations to further their mission.

"We are so excited to be expanding into the Noblesville Farmers Market this year. As the first market in Hamilton county to run the program, Fresh Bucks will continue to increase access of fresh produce to a whole new group of people," said Lauren Scharenbrock with the Indy Hunger Network.

"I'm happy with the growth, progress and expanded services that our market now provides our community," said Chris Owens, executive director of Noblesville Main Street. "Our partners at Riverview Health have been so gracious and accommodating over the last few years as our generous host and have helped our organization think critically about the role of the market in community wellness."

This market is the oldest and largest in Hamilton County with more than 80 vendors offering farm-fresh homegrown fruits, vegetables, meats, plants, herbs, flowers, honey, spices, wine, jams, jellies and salsas. Locally handmade items include baked goods, soaps, jewelry, artwork, quality crafts and pet products. The popular food court offers breakfast and lunch choices, as well as takeout items and snack food for those on the go. But if you want to move at a slower pace, tables are provided for patrons to sit and visit while listening to live performers.

Your City can take immense pride in Elizabeth's educational accomplishments and achievement of this milestone.

"On behalf of the IIMC Board of Directors, I am honored to endorse the conferring of CMC to Elizabeth A. Walden, CMC of Town of Sheridan, said Monica Martinez Simmons, MMC, President of the IIMC. SR 32 paving takes place today and Friday

INDOT maintenance crews plan to mill and pave sections of eastbound and west-bound State Road 32 near the intersections of Hague Road and Gunther Boulevard on Thursday and Friday of this week.

Drivers in these areas should expect temporary lane restrictions and flaggers directing traffic at intersections. Seek alternate routes to avoid potential delays.

GATHERING

ing watched him as a kid growing up in Noblesville.

When I think of Steve as Commissioner, I think of roads in Hamilton County. I lived through the times when Hamilton County, led by Dillinger, paved every gravel road in the county. Believe me, that was a lot of mileage. I know. I drove those gravel roads.

Leading up to Steve’s announcement that he would run for an 8th term, there were rumors that he might not run again.

“My health wasn’t good,” he explained. “When I started feeling better, I made my decision to run again. Mark Heirbrandt (who won a hot race for Hamilton County Commissioner this year) urged me to run one more time,” said Dillinger. “He said there was still business to finish and they wanted my help and experience.”

No question, if you know Dillinger, that his No. 1 priority in the next four years is the Highway 37 project and also getting intersections over what will be a new Highway 37, from 146th Street north.

“I also hope to see the bypass built around downtown Noblesville,” Dillinger said. “I think we’re getting closer.”

Another pet project of the Commissioner is building an emergency training center, a project recently struck down by the county council. Those elected to the council in the primary election seem to make it even stronger that such a training center is not in the near future.

“It will be tough getting it passed,” Dillinger agreed. “It will be a lot harder.”

After the center was voted down, it appeared there would be a big challenge to vote in new council members, a move led, perhaps, by the Fire Fighters Association. That didn’t happen. Not successfully, that is.

“There was a record turnout of voters in the election, but that was because of the presidential election,” Dillinger believes. “People don’t know a lot about local government. Maybe only 5-10 percent do know.”

Campaign runs May 6-30...

Click It or Ticket

The Hamilton County Traffic Safety Partnership, a consortium of law enforcement agencies in Hamilton County, including Carmel Police, Cicero Police, Fishers Police, Noblesville Police, Westfield Police, and Indiana State Police Departments along with the Sheriff’s Office, announced today its participation in the national and statewide 2016 Click It or Ticket enforcement mobilization occurring May 6-30, 2016. Officers will join more than 250 state and local law enforcement agencies, and thousands more across the country, to conduct high-visibility patrols encouraging drivers and passengers to buckle up.

“Whether driving or riding, staying safe on the road begins with wearing your seat-belt,” said Hamilton County Sheriff Mark Bowen. “Our participation in this campaign is a great way to increase that conversation with the public while driving home this message with enforcement. We will be out in full patrols and if we see you unbelted, we will pull you over.”

Click It or Ticket is an annual enforcement effort supported by federal funding allocated to Hamilton County Traffic Safety Partnership from the Traffic Safety division of the Indiana Criminal Justice Institute (ICJI). Officers and deputies from various agencies will work overtime to conduct seat belt patrols around the clock. According to ICJI, in 2015, there were 818 fatalities on Indiana roadways. Of those fatalities, 33 percent were unrestrained.

“The more we explain the importance of seat belt use, the more we see drivers and their passengers buckling up,” said ICJI Director Dave Murtaugh. “This campaign is about the importance of wearing your seat belt, and I am thankful for all those involved.”

Indiana law enforcement agencies have been actively involved in the Click It or Ticket campaign for over 20 years. In addition, for 2016, Indiana agencies will join those from across the Eastern half of the United States in a combined “Border to Border” mobilization. On May 23 from 6:00 p.m. – 10:00 p.m. this shared increased blitz will drive home the zero tolerance message, that no matter what state you’re in, driving or riding unbuckled will result in a ticket.

For more information regarding the Click It or Ticket enforcement mobilization campaign, please visit: <http://www.nhtsa.gov/nhtsa/ciot/index.html>.

Carmel’s Cynthia Yue selected as U.S. Presidential Scholar

Carmel's Cynthia Yue was one of two Indiana high school students to be named as a U.S. Presidential Scholar.

The award recognizes some of the United States' most distinguished graduating high school seniors. The Scholars are chosen after a lengthy process where SAT and ACT scores are used to select the top 20 boys and top 20 girls in each state. The general component subsection of the "How Are Scholars Selected" section on the Presidential Scholars Web site (<http://www2.ed.gov/programs/psp/select.html>) explains further:

"To be considered further, candidates must submit candidacy materials, including essays, self-assessments, secondary school reports, and transcripts. Candidates are evaluated on their academic achievement, personal characteristics, leadership and service activities, and an analysis of their essay."

An independent committee chooses 500 semi-finalists - about six to 20 from each state - in late March, and the Commission on Presidential Scholars selects the final 121 students in April. That consists of one boy and one girl from each state, Washington, D.C. and Puerto Rico. The committee also selects a number of at-large scholars, choosing up to 15.

Other Hamilton candidates were - from Carmel High School: Michael Cheng, Miles Dai, Kathryn Lin, Sarah Liu, Vikas Maturi, Maryanne O'Conner, Akshar Patel, Ellen Peng, Seung-ha Seo, Aaron Shi, Jarod Throckmorton and Gloria Xue. From University High School: Christina Duffield and Nicholas Hilgert. From Fishers High School: Howard Henderson and Matthew Ridge. From Hamilton Southeastern High School: Mason Swofford and Shahin Sabeti.

‘Hounds get late runs, beat LC

Carmel exploded for five runs in the top of the sixth inning, and that got the Greyhounds past Lawrence Central 6-3 in a Wednesday Metropolitan Conference game. Carmel started the scoring with a run in the third inning. The Bears got all of their runs in the bottom of the sixth inning, but the ‘Hounds held on in the seventh. Darby Roberts had two hits for the ‘Hounds, with Celene Funke getting a double and a stolen base. Kristyn Eckl pitched a complete game, with four strikeouts against just three hits.

With few reserved seats left, and many concert opportunities selling quickly, fans are encouraged to purchase Race Weekend experiences sooner rather than later.

"Our entire Race Weekend is shaping up to be an epic and unforgettable few days for everyone involved," said Indianapolis Motor Speedway President J. Douglas Boles. "We're thrilled to see tickets for all of our activities selling fast, and encourage fans to visit IMS.com and monitor our social media accounts to stay-up-to-date on the availability of Indy 500 grandstand seating, concert tickets and many other opportunities. We can't wait to see everyone at the Speedway in May!"

Here are some updates:

Indy 500 Reserved Seating: Reserved seats are still available for the Indy 500, but in increasingly small quantities. If fans want a seat at the race, they should visit ims.com or call the ticket office at 317-492-6700 as soon as possible. For the first time in many years, it is expected that reserved seating for the Indy 500 will sell out.

Indy 500 General Admission: GA tickets for the Indy 500 can be purchased at www.ims.com or by calling the Indy 500 ticket office. Fans are encouraged to purchase their Race Day General Admission tickets as early as possible to insure IMS can mail fans their tickets prior to Race Day. Print at home tickets are not available for Race Day this year.

Concerts VIP and Concerts GA: VIP sections for the Snake Pit on Race Day, Miller Lite Carb Day on Friday, May 27, and Legends Day presented by Firestone on Saturday, May 28, are sold out. This year, Snake Pit GA wristbands are expected to sell out prior to Race Weekend. Fans are encouraged to buy their tickets now to ensure they can participate in all concert experiences.

Indy 500 Weekend Camping: Due to high demand, all camping, including Lot 1C, is sold out. The Indy 500 ticketing page on IMS.com currently lists several alternative camping options for fans.

Parking: Parking within the Indianapolis Motor Speedway is sold out for Race Day. Race Day parking options are available in the surrounding Town of Speedway area on a first-come, first-served basis at several locations, including local Speedway schools. The Indy 500 ticketing page lists addresses for several of these locations. In addition, alternative transportation information can be found here.

For Carb Day, prepaid infield parking is sold out. First-come, first-served parking remains in Lot 7 (North 40). Entrance to this lot is off of 30th Street and fans should arrive by 10 a.m. on Carb Day to access this parking. Free parking is not available within the infield for Carb Day in 2016.

For Legends Day, prepaid parking is still available for $25 in the infield, or $15 in Lot 7 (North 40). Limited free parking is available in Lot 1B and 1C.

IMS Race Day App: Fans are encouraged to download the new IMS mobile application to ensure a hassle-free trip to IMS. It is available for both iPhone and android devices. Simply go to the app store and search for "Indianapolis Motor Speedway."

Flyovers bring "Fast Forward" theme full-circle in patriotic fashion

Pre-race festivities will take on a similar theme with two special flyovers. The first will feature historical World War II-era military planes while the second will feature state of the art F-18E Superhornets piloted by the U.S. Navy.

"The 30 minutes before the green flag drops are always my favorite time of the year," said IMS President J. Douglas Boles. "This year's flyovers will be thrilling, and represent the perfect blend of past and present we're celebrating at the 100th Running of the Indy 500."

The first flyover will include two planes that saw action during critical World War II missions: a Douglas SBD-5 and P-51 Mustang. It will be carried out in collaboration with the Commemorative Air Force, an organization founded to acquire, restore and preserve in flying condition a complete collection of combat aircraft which were flown by all military services of the United States.

The SBD was the only U.S. combat aircraft to fight from the beginning of World War II until the end. Considered the most destructive air weapon of the U.S. Navy, the SBD sank over 300,000 tons of enemy ships, a greater tonnage of Japanese shipping than any other Allied aircraft during the war. In the skies over Pearl Harbor, the SBD was the first American combat aircraft to shoot down a Japanese Zero fighter.

The P-51 Mustang is an American long-range, single-seat fighter that saw action during World War II and the Korean War. It was first commissioned in 1940 and has a top speed of 437 mph.

The second flyover will involve a single-pass in a four-plane formation at 300-350 mph. The F-18E is a single-seat variant that deploys on carriers and provides precision air to ground support, along with the ability to protect carriers from any airborne threats. The top speed of navy fighter pilots flying an F-18E is approximately Mach 1.8.

The squadrons carrying out the flyovers - VFA-81 and VAQ-139 - most recently wrapped up a 10-month deployment in the Persian Gulf assisting the fight against ISIS. It was the longest deployment for the two squadrons attached to CAG-17 since the Vietnam War. VFA-81 is based out of Naval Air Station Oceana in Virginia Beach, Virginia, while VAQ-139 comes from Naval Air Station Whidbey Island based in Washington State.
