Dollard files lawsuit after drug raid arrest

By FRED SWIFT

Andrew Dollard, local attorney and Sheridan native, along with seven other individuals has filed a federal lawsuit seeking damages they claim to have suffered from arrests in a 2014 drug raid on a Carmel addiction recovery clinic. The criminal case against the claimants fell apart in court when a judge threw out the charges.

The lawsuit, filed June 29 in federal district court at Indianapolis, alleges false arrest. Dollard says his Noblesville law practice was ruined. As a result he moved to Florida last year to work in a firm there, but has recently returned to Hamilton County.

The suit seeks unspecified damages, but asks for "all relief allowable by law, including compensatory and punitive damages, costs and attorney fees." The court action stems from a raid on the DORN clinic in downtown Carmel. A drug task force involved in the raid called the clinic a "pill mill," but it was advertised as a facility to assist addicts to recover from drug addiction.

Dr. Larry Ley operated the clinic where the lawsuit says "physicians required patients to comply with a signed treatment contract by actively participating in counseling, seeking employment and submitting to random urinary drug screens" in order to be certain they were staying off addictive drugs and using medically prescribed Suboxone which is a drug specifically designed to end dependency.

Joining Dollard in the lawsuit are Cassy Bratcher, Felicia Reid, Derek Tislow, Yvonne Morgan, Joseph Mackey, Jessica Callahan, and Eric Ley. Bratcher and Reid are Hamilton County residents. They were all employed or in some manner associated with the clinic. Charges against all have been dismissed.

Named as defendants in the suit are the City of Carmel, City of Kokomo, Howard County, Hendricks County, Johnson County and the Town of Cumberland. All the jurisdictions had authorities involved in either the Carmel raid, or simultaneous raids in other locations.

Featuring the nation’s best AAU boys basketball teams...

Adidas Invitational is under way

By RICHIE HALL
Reporter Sports Editor

The state that is world famous for basketball is hosting some of the best young players in the United States this week.

The 2016 adidas Invitational is taking place at various sites in Indianapolis and Hamilton County. A total of 290 teams in seven divisions and four age groups are participating. County sites for the invitational are the Noblesville Boys & Girls Club, Noblesville West Middle School, Best Choice Fieldhouse in Fishers, Carmel High School and Carmel Clay Middle School. (Warren Central, North Central and Northview Middle School are the Indianapolis sites.)

Games began Wednesday evening at three of the above-mentioned locations, including Carmel High School and the Fieldhouse. The games featured the two oldest age groups, 11th Grade (17U) and 10th Grade (16U). Carmel High is providing four courts for the games, and Greyhounds coach Scott Heady, the site director at CHS, was on hand to help out.

"We're a host site, so our responsibility is just to have the facility ready and set up, and then just be here to kind of help out the people that actually are running the tournament, which is Indiana Elite," said Heady. "It's an adidas-sponsored Indiana Elite tournament."

The Invitational will be busy starting this morning, as games begin at all eight sites. The Noblesville Boys & Girls Club will host games that involve the 9th Grade (15U) teams, in addition to the 10th and 11th Grade squads. NWMS will be exclusively hosting the 8th Grade (14U teams). The Fieldhouse will again be the site of all 11th Grade games, with the two Carmel schools hosting the 10th Grade games.

Be sure to read The Reporter this week for coverage of the Invitational.

Noblesville KinderCare Center awarded prestigious national accreditation

KinderCare Learning Center in Noblesville has been awarded accreditation by the National Association for the Education of Young Children, a leading professional organization for the early childhood education industry.

Accreditation is an intensive process, granted by an independent, third-party organization validating that KinderCare’s teachers provide meaningful and engaging daily learning experiences for every child. Research shows that children who attend exceptional early childhood programs demonstrate higher math, language, and socialization skills.

Unlike licensing, which only ensures a basic threshold level of a center’s ability to provide care, accreditation is the gold standard in designating high-quality early learning programs. With less than 10 percent of early childhood education programs in the nation receiving accreditation, KinderCare is the only private provider dedicated to achieving 100 percent accreditation in their centers across the country.

“The journey of quality starts every time a child walks through the door,” said Dr. Elanna Yalow, CEO of KinderCare Early Learning Programs. “Accreditation is a reflection of what Noblesville KinderCare does every day on behalf of the children in their care.”

Noblesville KinderCare serves families throughout the area, accepting children as young as six weeks to 12 years old.

Boys summer basketball....

Different summer for coach

By DON JELLISON
Reporter Editor

His second summer, the coach agrees, has been different than his first summer as Westfield boys basketball coach a year ago.

“Last year was a situation of getting my feet wet,” said Shane Sumpter, who a year ago moved as the school’s head girls basketball coach to the school’s head boys basketball coach.

“Being in the athletic program, last year I knew the kids when becoming the boys coach. But, I didn’t know them as their boys coach. It was a situation of getting to know each other,” Sumpter said while in the process of wrapping up the summer season.

Westfield began the summer by hosting a 16-team tourney. Then, the Shamrocks played in the Charlie Hughes Tourney at Carmel and then also played in the Best Choice Fieldhouse tourney in Fishers.

“We’ve played at a high level,” said Sumpter.

The coach didn’t want to name names, while looking at the summer play.

“We’ve tried to build experience and leadership,” he said.

Sumpter is very excited about the number of Shamrocks who have competed this summer.

“We’ve had 40-plus kids out,” he said. “We’re moving in the right direction. We still have several young kids who need varsity experience.”

The leading scorer is gone. Charlie Warner led Sumpter’s first Westfield team with a 16.4 scoring average. He pulled 4.6 rebounds a game.

Two other Shamrocks who graduated last spring were Kyle Nicole and Robbie Lynch. Nicole averaged 2.7 points a game and Lynch scored at a 5.3 clip.

The top scorer returning is senior-to-be Ian Kristensen, the second leading scorer last season with a 9.9 mark and the top rebounder with 4.7 grabs a game. Next in scoring and returning is senior-to-be Jonah Welch at 7.1 points a game.

Sumpter’s first Westfield team finished with an 11-12 record and the Shamrocks were 3-3 in the Hoosier Crossroads Conference.

“We have lots of young players. We’re excited with the numbers,” concluded Sumpter.

Jonah Welch scored 7.1 points per game for Westfield last year in his junior season.
