Train museum hopeful Fairtrain can still run

By FRED SWIFT

Will the popular Fairtrain be running to the State Fair this year? That remains an open question following Monday night's meeting of the Hoosier Heritage Port Authority, owner of the Nickel Plate Railroad. The Transportation Museum of Noblesville is hopeful, but not certain after federal railroad authorities threw a "new wrinkle" into the whole matter of use of the railroad, says Jeff Kehler, president of the museum.

The port authority is willing to give its approval for Fairtrain and other excursion trains if museum officials meet conditions of a new "policy of use" adopted recently. Kehler says his organization can meet those conditions and will submit required documentation shortly. The port authority has a consultant who will essentially give approval when satisfied that all conditions are met.

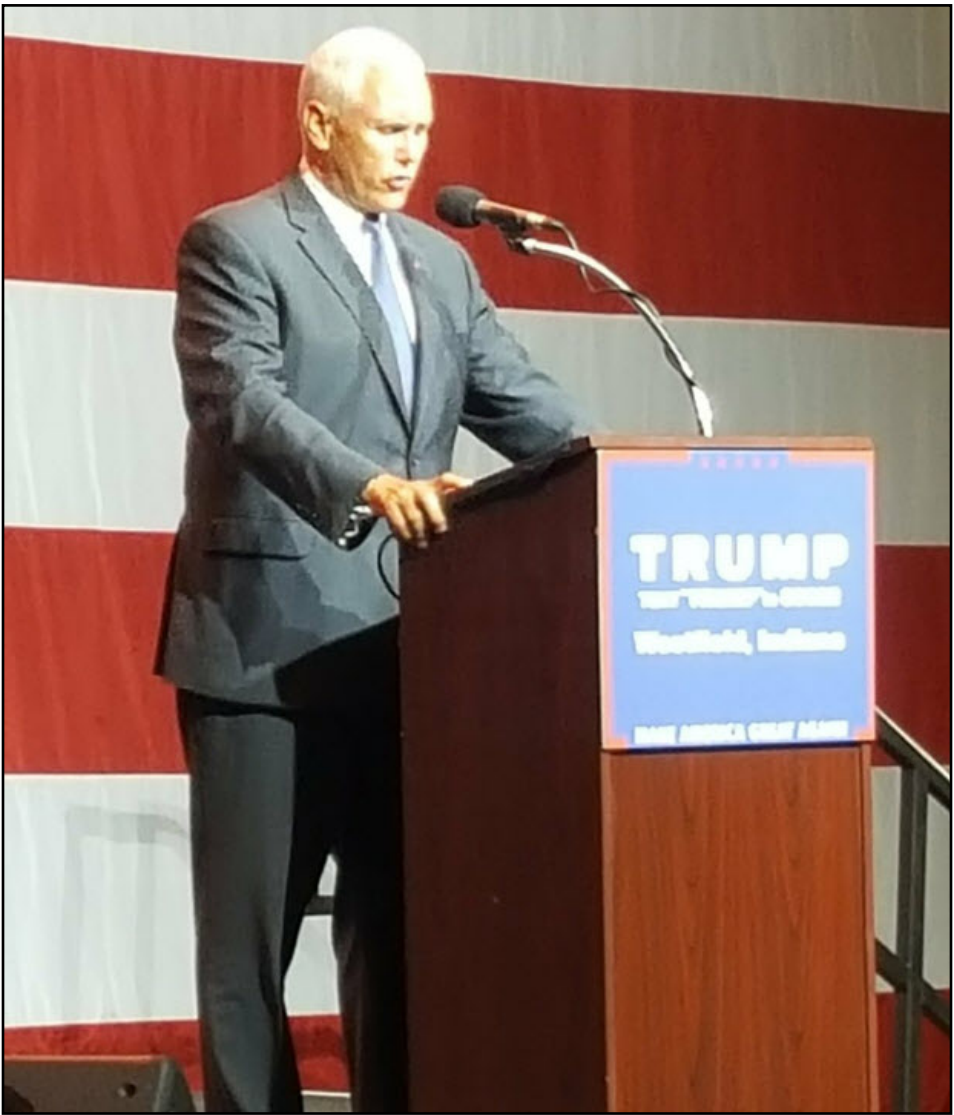

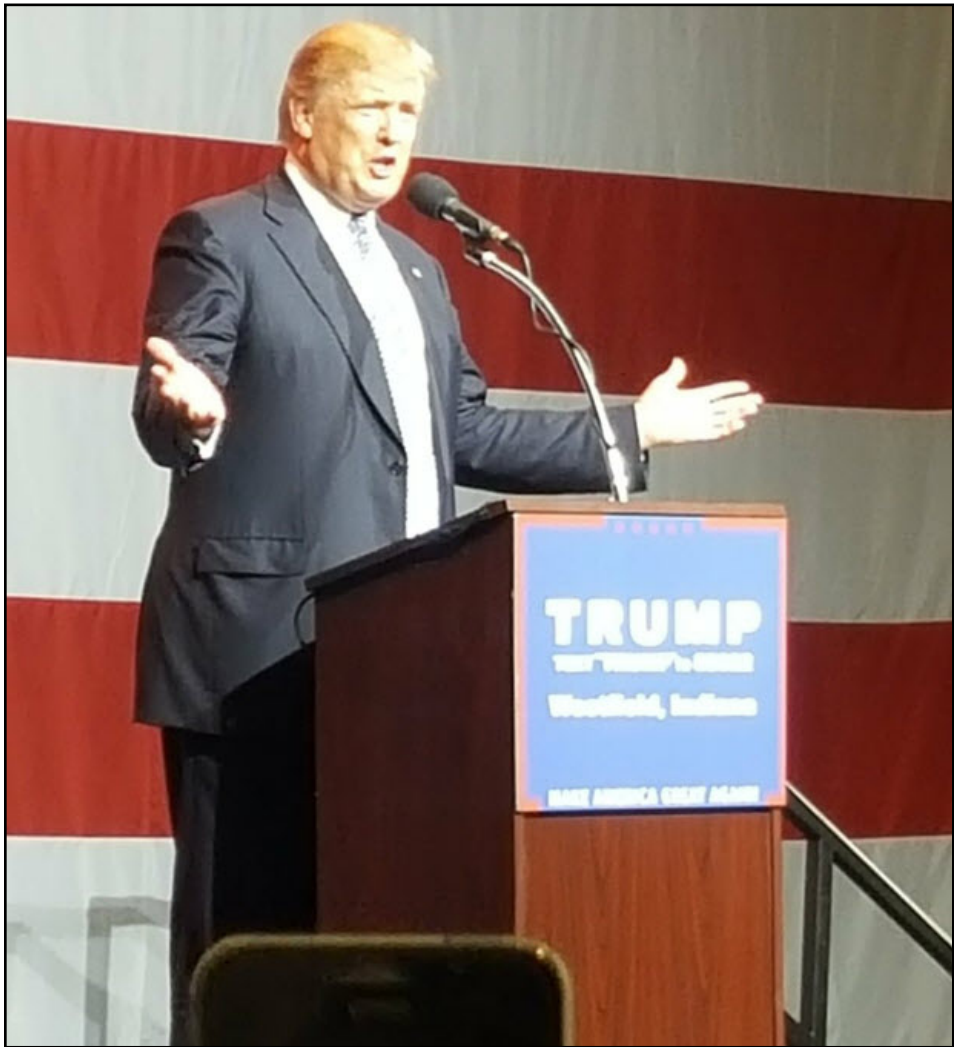

But, in the meantime the Federal Railway Administration is considering changing the museum's classification from a tourist operator to a "short haul passenger service." This could result in delays that would very possibly keep Fairtrain from running August 5 when the State Fair opens.

The whole problem began in March when complaints about safety issues and business practices from former museum volunteers caused the port authority to stop the Letter to the Editor...

Voters answered questions on May 3

I was surprised to read Steve Dillinger's 7/12 column titled "Should cities have to pay more?", given his historical stance of wanting the County to be in the driver's seat and understanding the differences in funding government entities.

Also, it seems Steve has no intention of improving the working relationship with the County Council and Commissioners that has been strained and the June 23 joint meeting must be a distant memory for him.

Twice he asks readers their view of the County Council's philosophy of funding projects, not those required by statute, but those that are OPTIONAL!

The readers/voters answered his questions on May 3. He had his chance to replace Brad Beaver and myself but failed.

Just because we do not share his "spread the savings" philosophy doesn't mean we are misers; instead, we see major County projects to be funded that no other entity is lining up to contribute to and we want to minimize the increase in taxes by using County cash reserves.

Instead of recycling defeated proposals and complaining about only getting 99% approval of his projects, I suggest he be more positive and grateful.

Honey works better than vinegar.

Trump speaks in Westfield

Presumptive Republican presidential nominee Donald Trump made his way to Westfield Tuesday evening, where he spoke to a packed house at the new Grand Park Events Center for about an hour.

Trump spoke for about an hour. He addressed many of his core issues, including trade and immigration. He specifically mentioned Carrier's decision to move 2100 jobs from Indianapolis to Mexico.

Trump was introduced by Indiana Governor Mike Pence, about whom there has been much speculation over the past week. Pence is reportedly on the short list for Trump's vice-presidential candidates; some were seeing this as an audition of sorts for the VP job. Some were expecting an announcement at this rally due to the timing and the location, but it turns out a decision on the vice presidential nominee will come by Friday. Others considered on the short list include New Jersey Governor Chris Christie and former Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich.

Pence came out forcefully for Trump in his speech., a transcript of which is published elsewhere on this page.

Grand Park was the second of two stops for Trump during his Tuesday evening trip to Central Indiana. He first attended a fundraiser at the Columbia Club in downtown Indianapolis.

Transcript of Gov. Pence's speech at Donald Trump rally

My fellow Hoosiers, we are 119 days away from a great victory in the United States of America when Indiana becomes the first state on the board to make Donald Trump the 45th President of the United States of America. Here in Indiana we know that strong Republican leadership works. Different from our neighbors in Illinois, we have balanced budgets. We've cut taxes. We've made record investments in education and roads, and today there are more Hoosiers going to work than ever before in the 200-year history of the Great State of Indiana. That's what Republican leadership gets you, and that's exactly the kind of no-nonsense leadership that Donald Trump is going to bring to the White House this November.

After seven and one-half years of the failed policies of Barack Obama that have weakened America's place in the world and stifled our nation's economy, we are ready for a change in this state. We are ready to put a fighter, a builder, and a patriot in the Oval Office of the United States of America, and we are ready for Donald Trump to be our next president.

Donald Trump understands the frustrations and the hopes of the American people like no other American leader in my lifetime since Ronald Reagan. The American people are tired. We're tired of being told. We're tired of being told this is as good as it gets. We're tired of hearing politicians in both political parties tell us "we'll get to it tomorrow" while we pile a mountain range of debt on our children and grandchildren, and as Ronald Reagan said so eloquently so many years ago, we're tired of being told that a little intellectual elite in a far distant capitol can plan our lives better for us than we can plan them for ourselves. Donald Trump gets it.

Donald Trump hears the voice of the American people. He's been successful on Wall Street, but he's never turned his back on Main Street. He's never forgotten or forsaken the people who work with their hands, who grow the food, build our roads and bridges, tend to our sick, teach our kids, and protect our lives and our property. Donald Trump knows that the boundless potential of the American people awaits, and we can make America great again.

So we must come together and elect this good man as our next president, but we must elect this strong leader for one more reason; because Hillary Clinton must never become President of the United States of America.

I heard Bernie Sanders endorse Hillary Clinton today. I actually served in Congress with Bernie Sanders. Let me tell you, he's the nicest Socialist I ever served with in Washington D.C. Hillary and her party have been sliding so far to Bernie's leftist agenda it's hard to keep track of it. I just have to tell you from my heart, after looking at the direction that their party has gone, farther and farther to the left, to paraphrase the Director of the FBI, I think it would be "extremely careless" to elect Hillary Clinton as the next President of the United States.

We don't need a president who sees Obamacare as just a good start. We don't need a president who promises to put coal miners out of work and raise the utility rates of hard working Americans. And as the proud father of a United States Marine, let me say from my heart, we don't need a president who took 13 hours to send help to Americans under fire after four great Americans perished, and who said, "what difference at this point does it make". Anyone who said that, anyone who did that should be disqualified from ever being Commander in Chief of the Armed Forces of the United States of America.

So, let me say, for the sake of our troops who deserve a Commander in Chief who will have their back, for the sake of hard working Americans and businesses who deserve a president who will get Washington D.C. off their back, and for the sake of a Supreme Court that will never turn its back on the God-given liberties of the American people, let us resolve here and now that from this day forward we will unite. We will stand together. We will not rest. We will not relent until we make this good man our next president. My fellow Hoosiers, I give you the next President of the United States of America, Donald J. Trump.

railroad's only user from operating their trains on the rail line which runs for 37 miles from Indianapolis to Tipton through Fishers, Noblesville, Cicero, Arcadia and Atlanta.

The port authority board said it wants to be satisfied the train museum will operate safely when running the Fairtrain and other excursion trains this year. The complaints of safety violations and poor business practices were leveled by seven men who volunteered at the museum but have since been discharged from service.

The complaints went to the Federal Railway Administration early this year. On June 13 the train museum president, Jeff Kehler, issued an open letter to interested parties in which he announced that the federal authorities found no problems with the operation.

The museum, operating from Forest Park facilities, has been restoring and operating historic rail stock for nearly 50 years. The operation is considered a major tourist attraction for Hamilton County with several excursion outings each year.

The Nickel Plate line was built in 1851 and originally was the economic life blood of central Hamilton County. Noblesville and the other communities served by the railroad expanded along the tracks in the second half of the 19th century. With modern highways the railroad declined by the 1960s and was due to be abandoned by the 1990s when Noblesville, Fishers and county government stepped in to form the port authority and preserve the line.

Enchanted Forest Swim Meet...

Experienced swimmers pick up wins

Hamilton County's "older" swimmers had a good day Saturday at the Noblesville Swim Club's Enchanted Forest Swim Meet, which took place at the Forest Park Aquatic Center.

Some of those swimmers, such as Maggie Jahns of the Fishers Area Swimming Tigers, are getting a few last meets in before heading off to college. Jahns scored several high places on Saturday, led by a victory in the Girls Open 200 freestyle race. Jahns won that race by over four seconds, clocking in at 2:10.43.

Another FAST Fishers swimmer, Glen Brown, was a double winner in the Boys Open 100 butterfly and 50 freestyle. His FAST teammate Luke Ingram took first in the Boys Open 200 breaststroke. Winners in the younger divisions were Lydia Reade, Kyle Ponsler, Meghan Christman and Reed Beaumont.

Host Noblesville picked up a few victories as well, led by Alex Wolfred in the Boys Open 200 free. Cameron Kramer, Caitlin Marshall and Sophie Resner were younger winners.

Southeastern Swim Club had the following Saturday winners in the 11-12 and 13-14 divisions: Kayleigh Witt, Bri Saple, DJ Rogers and Kennedy Fisher. Westfield-based Viper Aquatics had one first-place swimmer: Mary Katherine Cline in the Girls 13-14 50 backstroke.

Here are Saturday results from the meet. More results will appear in Thursday's Reporter.
