The County Line

Could new classification halt train?

By FRED SWIFT

Have we seen the last train from Nob City? Let's hope not. But, that seems like a possibility thanks to several disgruntled former volunteers and a federal bureaucracy that are combining to make it difficult for the Indiana Museum of Transportation to continue their long history of providing the railroad experience for Hamilton County residents.

Complaints from the ex-volunteers resulted in the Heritage Port Authority suspending the Transportation Museum's permission to use the former Nickel Plate line, now owned by the port authority. It now appears the museum folks can document that their rail engines and cars are safe, and the suspension should be lifted.

But, just when you thought it was safe to go back on the tracks, the Federal Railway Administration announced it is considering re-classifying the museum from a tourist operation to a "short haul passenger service." This is potentially a big problem because meeting the regulations involved in the new classification might be tough and a lengthy process.

This is unnecessary federal intrusion into a local tourist industry, so typical of Washington's over extending reach, and should not happen. If necessary our U.S. representatives should get the railway administration off the backs of the transportation museum, an organization that has successfully run excursion trains through Hamilton County for nearly 40 years.

The revenue generated by the trains and the enjoyment for youngsters and others who rarely see a passenger train should not be threatened. And, consider that No-

Kindness matters

By JANET HART LEONARD

She had an agenda. She just wanted to get the kids home from pre-school, fix dinner and relax. She was tired.

She slowed down as she came upon the round-about then she felt a bump to her back bumper. She stopped her car, checked on the kids in the back seat and opened her door to check on her bumper. No damage.

A young man about seventeen walked towards her from the car that had bumped her. He was visibly frazzled. She reached for his arm and told him to just breathe. In a calming voice she reassured him that accidents happen and that everyone was okay. She saw his eyes go from panic to calm. Kindness was not what he expected. But it's what he got.

It was an interruption to her day. Annoyance would be easy but at that moment...kindness mattered.

Two days later, she was stopped at the light near Hamilton Southeastern High School. She had the same agenda as before. She felt a slight bump to her rear bumper. She looked in her rear view mirror and saw a young woman walking towards her car. The look on her face told the story of a woman who could not catch a break. The woman expected anger but she was met with kindness. The kind lady told the woman to just breathe. She reassured her that accidents happen and that everyone was okay. The woman asked her for a hug. The young woman kept saying "thank you."

The kids were fine. The car wasn't hurt. Two people just needed kindness, understanding and grace. She explained all of this to five year old Aiden

For some schools...

The end of the line

Editor's Note: In keeping with the Bicentennial spirit flooding the state this summer, the Hamilton County Reporter is publishing the following article on the history of Hamilton County schools, which was written by reporter Anne Auwaerter in the Noblesville Daily Ledger's Sept. 29, 1988 100th anniversary edition.

End of Series

In the fall of 1955, Noblesville's second high school was completed on Harrison Street. An addition costing $500,000 was added in 1962 and another addition was dedicated in 1974. A year later, Noblesville High graduated 249 seniors.

On July 20, 1959, the 91st Indiana General Assembly called for the reorganization of Indiana school districts with the Indiana Schools Reorganization Act, which ultimately decommissioned 114 high schools in the state. Hamilton Count Judge Charles Ardery was ordered to name a schools reorganization committee of eight members from the private and public sectors.

Two new health care facilities coming to Noblesville

By DON JELLISON
Reporter Editor
Lots of things are happening in Noblesville. That's not unusual. Although plans still are sketchy, a little, the Hamilton County Reporter has learned there are two new health care facilities on the way. Building permits are waiting for a "micro hospital" to be built at 9410 E. 146th Street on a 2.3 acre site. The building will include 16,870 square feet. The trauma facility will service patients who aren't in need of immediate care and treatment and patients who need immediate care before being transferred to other similar-type hospitals in the area. A second facility appears to be on the way a quarter-mile east of Little Chicago Road on State Road 32, on the northwest corner. That 16,642 square foot building will sit on 2.2 acres. The group which will build the two facilities is scheduled to go before the Plan Commission on Monday for approval of the State Road 32 facility, and, if approved, will move on for approval from the Hamilton County Commissioners. On a completely different project, the City of Noblesville has started work on extending 17th Street to the Ivy Tech campus, connecting with 17th Street on the north side of the campus. 17th Street comes off Conner where old Conner School once stood and a new Boys & Girls Club facility is in the works.

This street, leading to Ivy Tech, once have taken out some, maybe all, of the was considered to be on the east side of popular outdoor basketball courts. what was old Conner School. That would

Friends of Hamilton County Parks presents FLORATOPIA Aug. 5

On Friday, August 5, Friends of Hamilton County Parks is hosting a very special fundraising event that will transform the entire interior of Ritz Charles in Carmel into a lushly designed floralscape, in which guests will casually enjoy garden party-style activities. The evening gala, entitled FLORATOPIA, will also include dinner, drinks, musical entertainment, dancing, raffle and both a silent and live auction. Respected morning news anchor, Scott Sander, will emcee the program. Every Hamilton County park will be represented by staff on site, as well. The unique event, title sponsored by Clay Township Trustees Office and Board, will serve as the inaugural effort by the "Friends" foundation to raise funds for this worthwhile undertaking. FLORATOPIA, will allow party-goers to join with family, friends and associates in support of creating a world-class conservatory, to be located on the stately grounds of Coxhall Gardens at 116th Street, between Towne Road and Hoover Road. Plans for the conservatory, which will be formally unveiled at the event, call for the facility to not only stand as a gleaming architectural landmark on the manicured grounds of Coxhall Gardens, but also function as an educational, interpretive, and event resource for Hamilton County and Central Indiana. For complete details, or to register for this extraordinary fundraising gala, visit friendsofhamiltoncountyparks.org or wedoauctions.net/floratoriapi or call 317.590.2290.

SCHOOLS

Their task was to reorganize the schools from a county-wide operation, under which existed a number of smaller schools with enrollments of less than 100 students, into a handful of districts. The deadline was Oct. 12, 1960. After numerous meetings, the committee outlined the boundaries of the proposed new districts and put together a list of seven schools to present to the state reorganization committee: Marion Township, Adams Township and the township of Boone County, Jackson and White River townships; Wayne, Fall Creek and Delaware townships; Noblesville; Clay, and Washington Township School Corporations. Within two weeks, Marion and Adams (Sheridan) were combined and Boone Township was returned to Boone County; Jackson and White River Townships were combined and became Hamilton Heights; and the townships of Wayne, Fall Creek and Delaware also were combined and became Hamilton Southeastern. Since they were already reorganized, the boundaries of Noblesville and Clay Township (Carmel) remained the same. At first, Washington (Westfield-Washington) was not approved by the state because the school did not conform to daily attendance requirement of 1,000 pupils per school day. It was not until county officials presented the projected population figures for Westfield that approval was granted. Any revisions of this tentative plan were possible until Jan. 15, 1964, with a referendum scheduled for the May primary.

In the midst of all the flurry, the Opportunity School, an educational facility for handicapped youngsters that had been in business since 1956, was placed in grave jeopardy. None of the existing schools were in approval of the idea of taking over the school, but in order for the Opportunity School to survive, somebody would have to. The controversy raged for months as the school faced being ousted from its home at Federal Hill Grade School, where had begun in 1956. At that time, Federal Hill had not yet become the home for the Noblesville School Corporation. Finally, Noblesville agreed to incorporate the beleaguered school in June of 1964, rather than have it face extinction, nearly one month to the day that the county referendum was passed by voters. Tri-County Opportunity School, as it is known today, is located next door to Hinkle Creek Elementary School in South Harbour. Editor's Note: A story written by Chuck Godby on how the Boys Club was formed in Noblesville, next week only in the Sunday Hamilton County Reporter.

COUNTY LINE

Noblesville is trying to create a Nickel Plate Arts District along the railroad. What would that be like with no trains able to travel the rails? As rail lines across the country were being abandoned in the 1990s, our county and city officials made the effort that not many communities did when they created a port authority to take ownership of the former Nickel Plate thus saving the rail line. The museum is the railroad's only customer. It would be a tragedy to lose it.

With HopeLine grant for Domestic Violence Network...

Verizon opens its first Smart Store in Central Indiana

Verizon Wireless opened its first Smart Store in Central Indiana Friday bringing with it an innovative and immersive shopping experience. The Smart Store, located at 1950 Greyhound Pass, provides customers exciting and interactive ways to experience the latest smartphones, tablets, accessories and connected devices in four distinct lifestyle zones throughout its 4,095 square feet of retail space.

The consumer-focused lifestyle zones include Get Fit zone, which provides health and fitness products and solutions; Amplify It zone, featuring mobile music and entertainment devices; Home And On The Go zone, for home automation and monitoring with products such as the Nest and Hum; and Power On zone, for portable power and charging solutions.

"Our Smart Store located in Hamilton County, one of the fastest growing counties in Indiana, showcases content, applications and connected devices that all deliver a cohesive, complete mobile lifestyle for consumers," said Pat Lewis, director of retail sales for Verizon Wireless. "And this new store will have more space for interaction, as it's more than doubled in size from our prior location."

As part of today's celebration, Lewis also announced a $20,000 HopeLine grant dedicated to expanding healthy teen dating programs for the Domestic Violence Network, a local nonprofit that serves 18 high schools in Central Indiana.

"Teen dating abuse is a pervasive and devastating issue," said Lewis. "The more we can do to raise awareness at an earlier age, the better. Customers and visitors to the new store can donate their no-longer-used wireless devices and accessories for HopeLine, which then generates grants for non-profit organizations."

Kelly McBride, executive director of DVN, said the organization plans to educate 100 staff in Central Indiana youth organizations and hopes to reach as many as 4,000 students in the 2016-2017 school year. "Young people are learning to navigate through relationships and may not know the warning signs of a controlling relationship," McBride said. "With this grant, we'll be able to engage students and empower them to share information in their schools and in their community."

The Rest of the Story

By MARY SUE ROWLAND

The year was 1836, when the first newspaper was published in Hamilton County by L. H. Emmons. Mr. Emmons was a practical printer from the east according to the "History of Hamilton County" and on January 12th, the first issue was printed. The history book recalls it was a fine specimen of typographical art for those early days but from lack of patronage, it gave up the ghost in March 22, 1838.

In 1873, W. H. Boswell started the "Noblesville Democrat", which sold many times to people interested in the newspaper business. The politics of the paper was changed to Republican and named the "Enterprise". Subsequently, the plant was purchased by E. F. and C. S. Neal and several months later was merged into the "Ledger". About 1914, the "Ledger" was operated by Ralph Neal and later by his sons James and John. James (Jim) made a reputation with his editorials.

The "Times" (also "Hamilton County Times" and "The Morning Times") made its debut on April 14, 1904 by W. H. Roney, a banker in Cicero. That was the Democratic paper and eventually became "The Noblesville Times" also previous to 1904 the paper had been issued in Atlanta, IN.

Almost fifty newspapers have been started in Noblesville and Hamilton County. Many of them had so little success, their names have been forgotten. Other Hamilton County newspapers of the early years include the "Sheridan Argus", 1882. Sheridan had a population of about 500 people that year. Kirklin, Indiana produced a paper call the "Air Line News" which was later moved to the "Sheridan Enterprise". Carmel had the "Carmel Signal" in 1889 and was discontinued Aug. 10, 1893. Arcadia had "The Arcadian" in the year 1887. There was the Cicero "Gazette", "Herald" and the "New Era and Cicero Tribune".

Daily M. Hudler acquired the "Times" in the fall of 1917 which soon became the "Morning Times". Newspapers in the early days truly provoked the doctrine of the parties they represented. The print did not necessarily need facts and the front paper often reflected the editors opinion based on the strength of each editor. Often, reading between the lines was the art of the newspaper business and the readers. During the 30's, 40's, and 50's the newspaper business began to change. Always a difficult time and income source, the newspaper business began to settle into years of leadership, not months as in the 1800's.

The family tradition of "The Noblesville Times" was carried on by L. Reid Hudler, 1910-1973 as the paper passed on from his father, the paper was an important part of Hamilton County for half a century. A well respected Democrat, L. Reid Hudler kept the presses rolling for 82 years as the tradition continued with Martha Hudler, Reid's wife. With only four remaining members of the paper in 1999, the paper was sold to Joe Ferraro. The four "horseman" all had more than 30 years in the business and one member had 50 years at the paper. A year later, a former high school employee, along with other high school boys, would work all night to get the paper out each week. That young man returned to Hudler Press after four years in the Navy and was hooked on printing. Some 40 years later, that former employee bought the "Noblesville Times" to keep some 96 years of tradition of the newspaper in print. Reid Hudler would have been sad to see his long newspaper tradition changing but surly proud of the young man he remember back in the 50's who stepped up to keep the vision going for Noblesville and the Hudler Family. Ted Rowland became editor and published the paper on a weekly basis until 2004 when it sold once again.

The newspaper business has always been competitive and meeting the deadlines will turn the hair white. There is something special about a newspaper, as well. Getting the word out and striking up community conversation has a great deal of merit today as more and more people only look down at their cell phones and seldom look up to debate the issues.

For those who know, Ted Rowland had the locker next to mine at NHS in Noblesville. Little did I dream he would become an editor of the very paper he helped to produce in the 50's. Little did I dream that I would write an article about the history of newspapers in Hamilton County for my editor Don Jellison, also an NHS grad. This is history and tradition, If you do not know, the "Hamilton County Reporter" comes in print and email. The publisher is Jeff Jellison, Don's son and so it goes. Go to hamiltonconorthreporter@hotmail.com, you might be surprised just how good a local paper can be.

Become involved and part of the solution for your community and read the local newspapers. It really is enjoyable and the paper can be used for a multitude of tasks. Wrapping paper, draw liners, something to put your shoes on and most of all keep you thinking about the issues and seeing what is important in the community in which you live.

2 coaches story developing...

It’s time for football

By DON JELLISON
Reporter Editor

Are you ready for some football. Hamilton County high school style football. If not, you don’t have much time to get ready.

Official practice, following a full summer of football, is Monday, Aug. 1. First games will be played on Friday, Aug. 19.

There will be schedule changes for all but two, Fishers and Westfield, of Hamilton County’s eight high schools. The Shamrocks will face the same nine regular season opponents as last season, starting with a season opener at West Lafayette Harrison. Fishers will open at North Central. And then again will face a back-to-back MIC Conference foe by hosting Pike.

Sheridan could have a schedule change. The Blackhawks last year faced Clinton Prairie the ninth week of the season at a Hoosier Heartland Conference Position Week game. Hamilton Heights will be a similar situation on Week 9 in a Hoosier Conference Position Week game.

Perhaps the most anticipated “new” game will come the second week of the season when what once was a long-time rivalry between Noblesville and Carmel will resume, this season at Noblesville’s Hare Chevrolet Stadium.

Hamilton Heights, which last year filled the second date on Noblesville’s schedule, has been moved to the sixth week when the Millers will no longer play Chatard. Carmel has replaced Cincinnati LaSalle with Noblesville.

Hamilton Southeastern has replaced Wauabonsie Valley from Illinois with Columbus Hartley from Ohio.

Hamilton Heights will play Kokomo instead of Noblesville.

Guerin Catholic has two schedule changes, replacing Marmion Academy out of Illinois with Heritage Christian and Bowman Academy with Roncalli.

Two coaches stories are developing.

Jason Simmons, an assistant at Noblesville last season, will become the Millers’ new head coach. Simmons returns as a Hamilton County head coach after leading Hamilton Heights to a 21-4 combined record in 2009 and 2010. The Huskies went 12-1 in 2010, losing to Chatard in the regional.

Bud Wright will begin his 51st year at Sheridan, 52nd overall, looking for a 400 career victory. Already Indiana’s all-time leader in coaching wins, Bud will enter the season needing just five more wins to reach 400.

Carmel and Noblesville played a memorable sectional football game last season. Now, the Greyhounds and the Millers will renew their regular-season rivalry this year. Noblesville hosts Carmel in the second week of the 2016 football season.

Scott May will begin his 10th season, 12th overall, at Hamilton Southeastern with a 77-24 record.

At Fishers, Rick Wimmer will begin season No. 11 with a 77-39 record. Overall, in this his 34th year, Wimmer is 241-122.

Mitch Street will start his 6th year at Hamilton Heights. He has a 46-15 record.

This will be Tom Dilley’s third year at Guerin Catholic, where he is 17-7. Overall, in this his 17th year of coaching, Dilley is 97-84, so he’ll be shooting for win No 100, and more.

K-Town Elite’s Tionna Brown qualifies for National Junior Olympics

For the third-straight year K-Town Elite Track Club's Tionna Brown has qualified to the USATF National Junior Olympics Champions later this month.

Recently at the USATF Region 7 Championship, at Ball State University, Brown won four individual events. She won the 100 (12.20), 200 (25.41), 400 (59.68) meter dashes as well as the long jump (16'113/4).

The 14-year-old will now compete in the Nationals, July 25-31 at Sacramento State University in Sacramento, CA.

"She and I have been training and planning to win four events all winter and it was a pleasure to watch her execute our plan to perfection," said Elite Caoach K.O. Jackson. "The next step is to accept the challenge and duplicate it at the Nationals. Tionna is a very special lady and athlete. She will be up for the challenge. "

Although they didn't qualify to Nationals, Jackson said the Club still had elite season-ending performances. In the girls 11-12 group, Samera Henson placed 13th in the 100 (14.61), 8th in the 200 (29.85) and 7th in the 400 (1:11.60). Chase Hayes placed 15th in the 100 (15.23).

In the 13-14 group, Anissa Washington placed 12th in the 400 (65.22) and 7th in the 800 (2:32.21).

In the 15-15 group, Markaela Pugh placed 13th in the 200 (27.28) and 10th in the 100 (13.41). Johannah Hetzer placed 12th in the 100 (14.53).

Body in Training athletes win medals, qualify for Junior Olympics

The Olympics may still be a few weeks away, but local youth athletes from Body in Training Track Club have already been out on the track and in the field this summer setting records of their own.

From June 28 – July 3, Body in Training had 16 athletes compete in USA Track & Field’s Hershey Youth National Championships in Millersville, Pennsylvania. Competing against top youth athletes from throughout the country, they won 20 medals and 5 individual national titles. In the 8 & under boys division, Kai Lesnet won the 800m run in a time of 2:46 and the 1500m run in 5:33. Kiana Siefert (11-12 girls) had a busy week winning the pentathlon and the long jump, also medaling in the high jump and the 80m hurdles. Her long jump victory with a jump of 15’6.75” was her third consecutive national long jump title at this meet. Rounding out the winners was Peyton Forbes with a title in the 13-14 boys long jump with a leap of 19’6”.

Just a week later Body in Training was back in action at the USA Track & Field Junior Olympic Regional Championships at Ball State University where they had 45 athletes vying to qualify for the Junior Olympic Nationals in Sacramento, California later this month. By finishing in the top 5 in their events, Body in Training had 27 individuals qualify in a total of 41 events. Leading the charge were Forbes in the 13-14 boys long jump (19’0”) and high jump (5’8.75”); Alec Moor in the 9-10 boys 800m (2:36) and 1500m (5:16); Lesnet in the 8 & under boys 800m (2:46) and 1500m (5:35); Paige Perry in the 11-12 girls discus (53’6”); and Malina Miller in the 11-12 girls pentathlon (1978 points,) each with first place finishes in their events.

Body in Training is in its 5th year as a competitive Christian club in Noblesville for ages 5-18 whose primary goal is to mentor young athletes to glorify God through the sports of track and field and cross country. For more information visit www.bodyintrainingtrack.com. Registration is now open for fall cross country.
