The County Line

Mass transit financing plan needs change to gain approval

By FRED SWIFT

Advocates of a taxpayer-supported public transportation system are still hard at work, now trying to get Marion County voters to approve a relatively small tax increase to help pay for the first phase of a battery powered bus service. It's proposed to run on what's called the Red Line from Broad Ripple on the north to the University of Indianapolis on the south.

Plans to run the Red Line into Hamilton County will have to wait until 2018 after local officials decided against asking voters in this county to approve a 25 percent increase in the County Income Tax. There is some evidence that local advocates of the mass transportation plan pulled the plug themselves on original hopes of submitting the question to Clay and Washington township voters on this fall's election ballot.

It appears the future of regional mass transit now rests on the outcome of the vote in Marion County. Chambers of Commerce, many local politicians and some in the media have been pushing for approval. But, Mayor Joe Hogsett of Indianapolis recently stopped short of a flat endorsement, apparently cautious about supporting a tax increase in his first year in office.

It's this writer's opinion that those who will benefit the most must participate to a greater extent in the financing of mass public transit if it is to gain wide support. While anyone could, of course, ride the planned bus line, supporters see a major benefit for employees who live in Marion County and their employers who want to hire folks who will work for relatively low wages and cannot provide their own transportation to work.

There are not large numbers of Hamilton County residents willing to work for the wages paid at many of the local restaurants, hotels, groceries and convenience stores. Corporate owners of these businesses stand to benefit from public transit, so they should be willing to pay for this benefit.

Better public transportation would be good. Some, but by no means all, county taxpayers would sometimes use it. However, those pushing so hard for it should offer a creative method of getting employers and potential employers to pay more of the cost. Then it may fly.

A sticky reminder

By JANET HART LEONARD

While getting my hair cut on Friday my hairdresser, Deb Alvey and I were discussing how we organize our thoughts and remember things as we have gotten older. She said that a doctor told her that as we age our mind becomes filled with sticky notes. As we try to remember things, our brain tries to find the right sticky note with the information we need.

Oh my! I have trouble keeping up with the post it notes on my desk, in my purse, in my car, and on my computer and on my mirror. I can't imagine trying to remember everything without my post its. Even my calendar has post its to remind me of appointments.

My granddaughter, Alecks, uses a spread sheet to keep track of the colleges that she is looking to attend. I've never used a spread sheet I told her. She smiled and said "it's ok Gma, whatever works for you.

Everyone has their own system to remember things. I've even begun taking g pictures of where I park at the airport. I might think I will remember D 29 but I also have to remember shelter 18 and zone 4 as the bus pick up. A picture is worth a thousand forgets!

If my mind is sorting through all these sticky notes I may be in trouble as I think as I am getting older my storage is reaching capacity. Too bad I can't increase my brain's data plan.

It would be nice to be able to delete a few unnecessary bits of information in

The Noblesville Fire Department quickly put out a fire at the Hare Truck Center, 3477 Conner St., Saturday afternoon. Shortly after 5 p.m., NFD firefighters were dispatched to the truck center for a possible commercial structure fire. Crews reported heavy smoke coming from a rear garage door on arrival. Crews made a rapid entry into the building, extinguishing the fire within 20 minutes and containing it to the main shop area. No injuries were reported. The fire is currently under investigation by NFD. Noblesville Fire crews were assisted on-scene by the Noblesville Police Department, the Hamilton County Sheriff Department and the Fishers Fire Department.

Federal Hill Commons expands downtown Noblesville

By STEVE COOKE

Editor's note: Steve Cooke is the Deputy Mayor of Noblesville.

What a difference a year makes. Last September, officials from the City of Noblesville broke ground on Federal Hill Commons at the juncture of Logan Street, SR-32 and SR-19. Now that we've reached the one-year mark since its groundbreaking, and much progress has been made on its construction, what can we expect of Noblesville's newest park when it officially opens in 2017?

At a cost of $6 million, the 6.4 acres of Federal Hill Commons will serve many functions for many people. Green space. Playground. Concert venue. Theatre stage. Artistic showcase. Farmers market. Festival grounds. Walking paths. Economic catalyst.

Thanks to the vision of Mayor John Ditslear, the passion of Parks Director Brandon Bennett, the foresight of the Common Council and the support of numerous residents, Noblesville’s fifth park will soon rise up out of an underdeveloped flood plain to become a cultural and community amenity unlike anything in Hamilton County.

As a driver of economic development, the Commons will serve as an attractive gateway to our wonderful and historic downtown. In fact, the park effectively extends the downtown area west of the White River. The City anticipates the Commons will lead to greater private development in the area while current properties surrounding the park should see a 12-to-15 percent increase in property value.

Before any ribbons are cut to open the Commons, exciting redevelopment is already happening. The expansion of Riverview Health and the new headquarters of BlueSky Technology Partners only add to the ensured success of Federal Hill. Even Wendy’s got a much needed facelift.

Are you still asking the question – What is it?

For music and theatre lovers, the First Merchants Pavilion amphitheater will showcase live music and stage productions, and serve as a new home for Shakespeare in the Park. Imagine all the potential concerts, plays and festivals we can attract to the Commons – and with ample parking – at least 1,100 spaces total within a five minute walk, including 181 spaces onsite.

If you’d rather join in on the fun, visitors are invited on stage to take part. Musical instruments will be built into the back wall that anyone can play thanks to a generous donation by the Noblesville Park Foundation.

The Rotary Club provided another generous donation to help fund the Noblesville Rotary Club Shelter.

Noblesville Main Street will relocate its Farmers Market from the Riverview Health lot to the Market Plaza on the west side of the Commons. This new home for the oldest market in Hamilton County will offer space for its 80 local vendors and a permanent building for restrooms.

In the City’s initial design, a splash pad was planned – but was removed as a cost-saving measure. The park’s underground infrastructure could allow the addition of a splash pad in the future, but in the meantime, residents can enjoy the splash pads at Forest Park Aquatic Center and at Dillon Park.

Construction is expected to be completed this fall, but the park’s grassy areas will need time to grow for a grand opening in April 2017. The City’s plans also allow for a future ice skating rink that could be assembled and operated at the Commons during the winter months beginning in November 2017. This temporary amenity would help create additional opportunities for year-round activation.

As a community gathering space for all generations to be enjoyed for generations to come, the Commons will enable the kind of culture-building that reflects Noblesville’s own identity. None of this would be possible without the vision of Mayor Ditslear, the hard work of City employees and the commitment of dedicated community partners.

Until next time, see you on the (expanding) square.

places. Susie Stewart was ninth; Tess Woods 13th; Jenny Kehm 23rd and Stephanie Gray 24th.

1986-87

*Noblesville built a nine-shot lead at the end of nine holes and was never tested on the back nine as the Lady Millers captured the 14th annual IHSAA State Golf Meet. Coached by Sally Crow, Noblesville finished with a team total of 334 to win by 5 strokes over second-place Marion. Kristin Ryan paced the Millers with a 42-38—80 in her fourth consecutive appearance in the State Finals. Other team members were Kari Swogger, Ashley Brown, Courtney Cox and Anne Childress. Ryan was named recipient of the Mental Attitude Award.

*Carmel continued to dominate cross country by winning again. Coach Chuck Koeppen’s team set a team record with 31 points. Susie Stewart finished seventh; Tess Woods eighth, Stephanie Gray 11th and Amy Tomlinson 18th.

*Carmel became the first school to win four state football championships with a dramatic 20-17 come-from-behind win over Fort Wayne Snider in the battle of two unbeaten teams in Class 5A. The game was played at the Hoosier Dome.

A 50-yard pass to tight end Geoff Lord by quarterback Bill Padgett with only 30 seconds left in the fourth quarter and a point-after kick by John Dillon deadlocked the game at 14-14.

After Snider went up 17-14 after the first possession of the overtime, Padgett passed 10 yards to Jason Brocke, whose second reception of the season gave Coach Jim Belden’s Greyhounds the win.

*Heidi Hafner of Carmel set a national record of :56.66 in the 100 backstroke and Carmel captured the team title at the State Swim Meet. The Greyhounds, coached by Ray Lawrence, defeated second-place Columbus North by nearly 100 points.

*Noblesville became the seventh unbeaten team to capture the IHSAA Girls Basketball State Tourney, held at Market Square Arena.

The Lady Millers turned in a stellar performance to defeat Anderson Highland, 47-38. Sophomore Courtney Cox led the way with 17 points. Krissi Davis contributed another 12. Noblesville shot 51 percent from the field and enjoyed a 33-22 rebounding advantage.

The IHSAA state championships continued to pour in during the most recent school year. It started when the Lady Millers won their second straight girls golf crown.

It continued as Carmel, for the second time, won both the boys and girls state cross country titles. Sheridan won its third Class A football crown. The Greyhounds returned the state boys tennis title to Carmel. The Lady Greyhounds made it two straight in swimming.

At Logan Street Sanctuary...

Busy September features reviews, concerts, second annual NICE

Here are some of the events taking place at Logan Street Sanctuary, 1274 Logan St., Noblesville.

WHEELCHAIR RAMP RENOVATION

LSS is raising funds for preservation and renovations, like replacing the decrepit and dangerous wheelchair ramp that was originally on the building.

The building is an historic renovated church that started life as a World War I Army barracks in Ohio. It was donated to a church in Noblesville after the war, and it was disassembled and transported it to Noblesville. It was dedicated here in April of 1938, and the Sanctuary's president bought it 75 years later, in April 2013, and started renovations. In November 2015, LSS became a 501(c)(3) not-for-profit organization, and is raising funds to continue preserving and renovating this unique performance space.

Logan Street Sanctuary needs help with taking care of this special building and with replacing the unsafe broken-down wheelchair ramp that came with the building. For the replacement wheelchair ramp, the Sanctuary is raising funds for materials only. A donation will help Logan Street Sanctuary build the ramp and therefore be accessible to everyone.

POLK STREET REVIEW

Local favorite The Polk Street Review anthology is now a Logan Street Sanctuary annual Signature Publication.

The Polk Street Review is an annual literary review comprised of stories, poems, and essays either about Noblesville (submitted by anyone, anywhere) or by Noblesville writers. Submissions can come from professional and non-professional writers. The Polk Street Review was founded by Noblesville authors, Kurt A. Meyer and Bill Kenley, who continue to be involved in the publication as consultants.

The popular book launch is also now one of LSS' annual Signature Events, and a first official Polk Street Review book launch celebration is scheduled for February 2017.

As a relatively new not-for-profit organization, the Sanctuary's funds are small, but the costs associated with publishing a book are not. Your donation will help us publish the upcoming 2017 edition.

For donations over $25, the Sanctuary will happily send you a complimentary book.

News: Noblesville Community Fund, virtually inactive since formation of the Hamilton County United Fund in 1959, voted itself out of existence last week. The nine-member board of directors agreed on a formula for distributing approximately $7,000 remaining in the Fund’s treasury and voted to dissolve the corporation as soon as the distribution is completed.

Sports: Carmel opened its cross country season with a bang, but it was a different situation for Hamilton Heights and Hamilton Southeastern. The Greyhounds showed they’ll be a threat in this year’s Hamilton County cross country meet by bombing Hamilton Heights, 17-44 behind a strong one-two-three punch of Benny Jackson, Billy Shepherd and Randy Miller. Ad: R.S Weil, Resistol Hats, $13.95-16.95!

Royals go 1-1 at Zionsville Invite

Three Hamilton County girls soccer teams were in action at the Zionsville Invitational on Saturday.

Hamilton Southeastern, the No. 7 team in Class 2A, played two out-of-state but nationally ranked teams.

First was Notre Dame Academy, the No. 1 team from Kentucky. The Royals played Notre Dame to a 1-1 tie. Kara Sanders scored HSE's goal, assisted by Ava Keaffaber.

Southeastern then took on Brunswick (Ohio), and won 3-0. The Royals scored two goals in the first half, and added another in the second half. Claire Eichorst scored twice, and Carly Count scored once.

"The Royals won their bracket and brought home some hardware," said HSE coach Greg Davidson. "MVP gold honors goes to Kara Sanders, MVP Silver goes to McKenzie Smith, and MVP Bronze to Natalie Wilkinson in Goal."

In other scores, Noblesville, ranked No. 15 in 2A, came back from a 2-0 halftime deficit to tie Harrison 3-3. Complete stats were unavailable. Meanwhile, Carmel, the No. 2 team in 2A, fell to Sacred Heart Academy from Kentucky 1-0.
