Five in House, two in Senate...

Seven county residents will be part of Indiana General Assembly

By FRED SWIFT

Again next year Hamilton County's delegation to the Indiana General Assembly will include some powerful leaders. The delegation will include five members of the House and two members of the Senate. All seven are county residents and Republicans in a heavily Republican legislature.

Kathy Richardson will again be Majority Caucus Leader, the third highest ranking officer in the House after the Speaker and Majority Floor Leader. The job includes presiding at caucus meetings and speaking for the Republican caucus.

She is a 20 year member of the House, a former Hamilton County Clerk and current elections administrator. She is known to be probably the most knowledgeable legislator in election law and administration. Richardson and her husband, Perry Williams, are Noblesville natives. Luke Kenley will continue to represent Noblesville in the Senate following easy re-election this fall. He is again chairman of the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee. Since most legislative action involves money, the head of Senate Appropriations is an extremely important Noblesville Mayor John Ditslear has announced that the December free parking initiative for the City Hall metered parking lot (Lot 2) has returned again this year. Offered since 2007, this initiative's goal has been to encourage downtown holiday shopping since the parking lot is located just one block away from the courthouse square. The City Hall public parking lot is located immediately east of City Hall and between Conner and Maple streets. Members of the Noblesville Street Department have already placed covers over all of the meters in this lot and they will remain until the end of 2016.

"Each holiday season, we've offered this program as a way to inspire people to explore the many shops, restaurants and arts venues that downtown Noblesville has to offer. I hope many people will take advantage of free parking in the City Hall lot and help support the local downtown businesses," Ditslear said.

Will showcase project at EurekaFest...

Carmel's InvenTeam awarded Lemelson-MIT grant

A group of young inventors from Carmel High School will take its invention to one of the premier science and technology colleges in the United States next summer.

"The Carmel High School InvenTeam has been awarded a $10,000 grant from Lemelson-MIT to help fund a wearable device that rapidly detects and treats seizures by injecting life-saving medicine to patients with seizure disorders such as Epilepsy," the Carmel Clay School corporation announced in a press release.

The Carmel team is one of 15 from across the country that were selected for the grant. All the teams will show off their projects at the MIT EurekaFest next June.

"The inspiration behind the invention was the team's interest in neuroscience and a close friend who suffers from a particularly dangerous form of epilepsy, status epilepticus, a condition that results in seizures lasting more than five minutes," the press release said. "The prolonged duration of seizures can lead to permanent damage and death, however, the recovery rate for individuals who receive treatment within 30 minutes of the start of their seizure is 80 percent."

"CHS InvenTeam's automatic seizure detection and injection invention will allow those with seizure disorders to receive immediate medical attention, rather than waiting for medical personnel or a family member to arrive and administer the life-saving medication. Furthermore, this invention aims to bring a new sense of independence and confidence among individuals with epilepsy, alleviating the need for constant supervision from the unpredictable nature of the disorder."

On I-69 in Hamilton County...

Drugs found in speeding driver’s car

A speeding driver on Interstate 69 in Hamilton County got in trouble for more than reckless driving Tuesday afternoon. While patrolling the southbound I-69 construction zone near exit 210, Master Trooper Troy Sunier stopped a vehicle for very excessive speed. Zachary Anderson, 21, of Muncie was allegedly driving 90 miles per hour in a posted 60 miles per hour work zone, with workers present in the immediate area of the offense. The vehicle also had expired license plates, expired since January of 2016. During the stop, Sunier detected what he believed to be the odor of marijuana coming from inside the vehicle. A subsequent search revealed nearly 70 grams of marijuana, as well as scales and other drug paraphernalia.

Anderson was arrested and transported to the Hamilton County Jail without incident. Official charges will be determined by the Hamilton County Prosecutor's Office, however he was arrested on probable cause of:
Reckless Driving in a Work Zone with Workers Present
Possession of Marijuana
Dealing Marijuana
Reckless Possession of Paraphernalia
Driving with Expired Plates
All suspects named in this release are presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty in court. The alleged drugs will be tested by the Indiana State Police lab to confirm it is in fact marijuana.

position.
A resident of Hamilton County most of his life, Kenley was once judge of Noblesville City Court and owner/operator of a popular local supermarket for many years. He and his wife, the former Sally Butler, reside in the North Harbour area. The county's other state senator is Mike Delph, an attorney, who represents the Carmel area. He has been in the Senate since 2005. Other county members of the House are: Tony Cook, Cicero; Todd Huston, Fishers, and Jerry Torr and Donna Schaibley, both of Carmel.

Observers of state legislative activity predict funding of highway improvements will be at the top of the list of issues to be considered in the coming legislature which opens in January. Hamilton County did very well this past year getting a state grant of $100 million for upgrade of State Road 37 and another $63 million for the various governmental entities in a special distribution of COIT funds. State action provided that 75 percent of that money must go to roads improvements.

Girls basketball

Fast start helps Royals to victory over NHS

By RICHIE HALL
Reporter Sports Editor

Hamilton Southeastern got off to a hot-shooting start Wednesday, and that carried the Royals to a Hoosier Crossroads Conference girls basketball victory.

The Royals, who are ranked No. 7 in Class 4A and No. 12 in the one-class poll, beat Noblesville 65-47 at The Mill. Southeastern quickly opened up a double-digit lead on the Millers in the first quarter, and were able to hold that margin for most of the game, except in the late stage of the third period when Noblesville made a run.

Southeastern is now 2-0 in the HCC and 8-2 overall, while the Millers dropped to 1-2 in the conference and 4-5 overall.

The Royals scored the first nine points of the game, all on 3-pointers. Tayah Irvin got the first long-range basket, then Bre Lloyd threw in two more downtown shots. Noblesville's Emily Kiser stopped the run with four points on a pair of free throws and a layin, but HSE ended the period on a 9-1 run.

"We shot the ball pretty well," said Royals coach Chris Huppenthal. "I guess I'm concerned about was we put them at the free throw line early and a lot, which wasn't something we wanted to do. We weathered the storm. Credit them, they forced us into some mistakes."

Southeastern extended its 18-5 first-quarter advantage to 35-15 midway through the second period. Lloyd scored 11 points in that quarter, including a span of seven in a row - two putbacks sandwiched another 3-pointer.

Noblesville did score eight unanswered points late in the period, and that helped the Millers comeback to within 36-23 at halftime. Kiser scored six points, including four free throws, while Maddie Knight helped out with a pair of foul shots.

Noblesville kept working away in the third quarter, and started to cut into the Royals lead by the end of the period. Knight's 3-pointer got the lead under double-digits, and Mallory Johnson's '3' had the Millers within 44-38, which is where the third quarter ended.

"I thought our defensive pressure picked up and that changed the whole game," said

Hamilton Southeastern's Bre Lloyd (10) scored 20 points, including three 3-pointers, for the Royals in their 65-47 win at Noblesville Wednesday. Also pictured is Amaya Hamilton (34), who scored six points and had two blocked shots.

Noblesville coach Donna Buckley. "We were able to get into some trapping stuff and turn them over. Got a couple easy layups that really, I thought changed the game. And we got it all the way down to six, then I thought we just ran out of gas."

But the Royals got two quick baskets by Malea Jackson and Sydney Parrish to push the lead back up to 48-38. Johnson and Knight each scored to get Noblesville within eight, but Jackson's 3-pointer got the lead back into double digits for good at 53-42. The Royals then made a 12-1 run to take control of the game.

Lloyd scored 20 points, including three 3-pointers. Jackson added 11 points, and Parrish's two '3s' were part of her 10 points. Jackson led the rebounding with six boards. Amaya Hamilton blocked two shots. Nine different players scored for HSE.

"We're comfortable with our kids and the kids coming off the bench," said Huppenthal.

Kiser scored 19 points for the Millers, and also pulled nine rebounds, made four steals and blocked two shots. Johnson hit a pair of 3-pointers on her way to 11 points.

Both teams will play road games at 1:30 p.m. Saturday against tough opponents. The Royals travel to Greenfield-Central for a contest against the Cougars, who are receiving votes in the 4A poll. Noblesville heads to North Central to take on the 4A No. 3 Panthers.

UHS boys get program’s first win

The University swim teams competed in a dual meet at Elwood Wednesday. The Trailblazers' boys team won 96-55, the first victory in program history. "As the first meet of the season (and for many members, their first meet ever), this meet provided a baseline for all members to build off of in upcoming meets," said UHS coach Syd Lindblom. The medley relay team of Charles Earle, Cole Reinholt, Brody Davison, and Max Ammerman kicked off the meet with a first-place finish. Reinholt and Davison would go on to win two more events each: The individual medley and breaststroke for Reinholt and the 100 butterfly and 500 freestyle for Davison. Ammerman teamed up with Kevin Shen, Agastya Das, and Cordell Wilson to win the 200 freestyle relay later in the meet. Senior Ian Weiker posted two new personal best times at Elwood: first in the 100 free (1:32.25) and then in the 100 backstroke (1:50.08).

The University girls lost 123-45. The team of six freshmen smashed five team records along the way. The first record of the night went to the 200 medley relay team of Macy Paton, Caitlin Clark, Regan Hooker, and Ella Eskenazi who finished with a time of 2:29.50. Eskenazi would go to break the school record in the next event: The 200 freestyle, which she completed with a time of 2:39.78. Later in the meet, she also broke the team's record in the 500 freestyle when she touched the wall at 7:13.77. Teammate Hooker demolished two records; first, she fought tooth and nail through her 200 IM, creating a new record of 2:41.23. Her second individual record and first victory of the season arrived in the shape of a 1:22.53 100 fly just a few events later. The Trailblazers' next meet will be on Saturday against Cathedral and Muncie Burris in the Lewellen Pool at Ball State.

Pacers routed by Trailblazers

By DANIEL MASSA
Courtesy nba.com/pacers

The Indiana Pacers began a five-game Western Conference road trip with a 131-109 loss to the Portland Trail Blazers at the Moda Center on Wednesday night.

Jeff Teague led the Pacers with 25 points, and also added eight assists and five rebounds. Myles Turner recorded his second consecutive double-double with 19 points and 10 rebounds, and Aaron Brooks chipped in a season-high 16 points. Glenn Robinson III (15) and Al Jefferson (13) rounded out the group of Pacers to score in double figures.

The Pacers (9-10) could not replicate the stellar defensive performance from their previous game, a 91-70 win over the Los Angeles Clippers. The high-powered Trail Blazers (10-10) offense scored 73 points in the first half alone, buoyed by a balanced attack that saw five Blazers score in double figures. Portland's 131 points are the most the Pacers have given up this season.

"We just couldn't run with them," Pacers head coach Nate McMillan said after the game. "They did a good job of running their sets and moving the ball from side to side. They had a 42 point quarter, 30 point first quarter, 42 point second quarter. Really, we never established ourselves defensively against this team, and we thought it took a toll on the offensive part of the floor."

Indiana allowed Portland to score its first 12 points in the paint, which opened the floor up for a Blazers 3-point barrage, especially in the second quarter. The Blazers finished the first half 8-of-12 from deep, and held a 73-58 lead at the break.

Portland's lead ballooned to as much as 28 during the third quarter, but the Pacers put together a 16-3 run to start the fourth capped by an Aaron Brooks 3-pointer to cut the Blazers' lead to just 13.

The majority of that run was made with an interesting lineup on the floor; Teague, Brooks, Stuckey, Turner, and Jefferson helped chip in to the Blazers lead. It was the first time all season that Turner and Jefferson appeared on the same five-man lineup.

However, that 13-point deficit is as close as Indiana would get the rest of the way, as Damian Lillard scored eight of his game-high 28 points in the fourth quarter after Portland missed its first nine shots of the frame.

"(The Trail Blazers) executed their offense," Aaron Brooks said. "Against them, you've got to be ready play and we just came out flat at the beginning of the game. If we don't want to keep teetering around .500, we're going to have to string something together."
