Agencies, government should pool their development ideas

By FRED SWIFT

A plan to sell Seminary Park for homesites was dropped by city officials almost as soon as it was proposed earlier this week. Feedback from city councilors, park board members and others was not favorable to the idea.

There are many who want to see this green space near downtown kept as it is. Seminary Park was the site of Noblesville's first public school. For many years Second Ward School occupied the city block at 10th and Hannibal.

So, what happens next assuming there is a demand for new housing in the central city? Here's an idea: Various agencies and branches of local government should be able to pool their ideas for housing, trails and economic development.

The Hamilton County Area Neighborhood Development (HAND) has its eye on the site of the former Farm Bureau Co-op grain operation at 8th and Mulberry Streets. But, no luck so far. Financing has been the big problem.

At the same time city and some county officials want to convert the Nickel Plate Railroad into a walking trail similar to the popular Monon Trail. Other folks want to keep the railroad.

Does it all seem like an insurmountable problem or an opportunity?

Let's look at what Carmel has done in a somewhat similar situation. South 8th Street is not generally considered the most attractive street in town. Similarly, Carmel's Second Avenue along the Monon was not a particularly exciting place 15 years ago.

Now the street is developing into an upscale part of old town. There are new homes, apartments, restaurants and the renovated Monon depot along five blocks of the street bordering the trail. The difference from 8th Street is that Carmel lost the railroad and uses the right-of-way for the trail.

In Noblesville it would seem that a trail could be built alongside the railroad, and with cooperation between the city and HAND, the co-op site could be developed for housing which would be popular with those who want access to a trail.

It would take some vision, some cooperation and probably a public/private partnership. But, it could create a situation where everyone involved gets what they want: housing, a trail, the railroad, keeping Seminary Park and potential economic development where it is needed.

There is opportunity there for those bold enough to seize it.

HSE School Board moves forward on building projects

By LARRY LANNAN

LarryinFishers.com

The Hamilton Southeastern (HSE) School Board moved forward with hiring the CSO architectural firm to design the new, so far unnamed, elementary school to be constructed next to HSE Intermediate/Junior High School on Cyntheanne Road. CSO will be paid just under $1 million. The board will also be contracting with a firm named Brain-Spaces at an additional cost of $105,000 to provide professional services tied to making the building better suited for the HSE 21 program of immersive learning.

In addition to those expenses, the elementary school building construction is estimated to cost $18.4 million. The new elementary is projected to be ready for students by the start of the 2019-2020 school year.

The board vote to approve CSO and Brainspaces was five in favor, one opposed and one abstention. Amanda Shera voted no and Sylvia Shepler abstained.

In another building-related matter, the board voted unanimously to hire Meyer-Najem as construction manager for the planned renovation projects at Cumberland Road Elementary School and the HSE Schools Administration Building.

Noblesville Five Points roundabout utility construction begins

Duke Energy will begin utility relocation on the east side of the Greenfield Avenue, Christian Street and 10th Street intersection today. The work should cause minimal impact to the intersection, but flaggers will be onsite when necessary to assist with traffic. The work is anticipated to take one week.

Utility relocation is the first step in the construction of a roundabout at this intersection. Road work will begin in mid-April. Currently, the intersection has a stoplight that must cycle through three roads. The roundabout design provides a safe, effective intersection and creates a new southern gateway into the City of Noblesville. More details will be released closer to road construction.

Boys basketball regional at Logansport...

Another Carmel-McCutcheon showdown awaits

By RICHIE HALL

Reporter Sports Editor

It's become a familiar Class 4A boys basketball regional semi-final: Carmel vs. McCutcheon.

The two teams hadn't met in any game - regular or post-season - in recent memory until the 2015 Marion regional. Now the Greyhounds and the Mavericks will face off again in the semi-finals of the Logansport regional on Saturday.

This will be the second semi-final of a loaded regional at the Berry Bowl. The first game tips off at 10 a.m. and features Homestead taking on Fort Wayne North. The second game - Carmel-McCutcheon Chapter 3 - will not start until noon.

"We are playing our best basketball of the season and look forward to the challenge of what will be a tremendous regional at Logansport," said 'Hounds coach Scott Heady.

Last year's regional showdown between the two teams was unforgettable, but ended painfully for the Greyhounds. Carmel led almost the entire game, but the Mavericks came back by making a 3-pointer at the fourth-quarter buzzer to send the game into overtime. McCutcheon then made a basket with 10 seconds left in the extra period for the victory.

The Mavericks are 23-2 for the season. Their only two losses were to Twin Lakes, 52-50, and to North Central Conference opponent Logansport, 54-49. That game decided the NCC championship in favor of the Berries, who finished 9-0 in the conference.

But No. 3 Logansport was beaten in the sectional by Zionsville 66-57 in the semi-finals. McCutcheon, ranked No. 5, took care of Kokomo 78-56 in the other semi, then won the championship over the Eagles 61-47.

The Mavericks have four players averaging in double figures. The leader is junior and Division I college prospect Robert Phinisee, who pours in 21.4 points per game. He also leads McCutcheon in assists, dishing out 6.9 per contest.

After that are three seniors: Haden Deaton not only scores 18.6 per game, but also pulls 6.8 rebounds, making him the leader on the boards. (Phinisee averages 5.8 per game.) Eddy Collins scores at a 14.2 point per game clip, and Gavin Dunbar adds 10.5 points per game.

"They play a very good zone defense and offensively have several players that can score," said Heady of the Mavericks. "They have good perimeter shooters and one of the best point guards in the state. We understand that we'll have to be at our best."

Carmel's leading scorer is senior Sterling Brown, who averages 17.4 points per game. Senior PJ Baron is next in line with 10.7 points, and has been a huge factor on the boards with 8.3 rebounds per game. John Michael Mulloy has turned into a fine player; the 6-10 sophomore has an average of 9.4 points and 7.9 rebounds per game.

Youth Hockey Meet & Greet: The Fuel are also set to honor the next generation of stars on Hockey Night in Indy. Youth hockey players are encouraged to wear their team's jersey to the game, with local teams being recognized throughout the night. All players wearing jerseys will be invited to a post-game meet and greet with the Fuel captains in the Bier Brewery Lounge.

Moe's College Night: Students can start their weekend on the right note during another Fuel College Night presented by Moe's Southwest Grill. By visiting indyfuelhockey.com/college, anyone with a valid college ID can purchase a ticket, a $5 concessions voucher and $5 of Moe's Bucks for just $20.
