New Parkour playground opens at Hoosier Road Elementary

By LARRY LANNAN
www.LarryInFishers.com

The traditional playground still stands behind the Hoosier Road Elementary School building, but a new playground was unveiled nearby. Thursday marked the ribbon-cutting ceremony for the new Parkour playground equipment.

Parkour is designed for training discipline, a bit like a military obstacle course, aimed at elementary students.

Hoosier Road Principal Will Hurst says the decision to pursue this equipment came after a great deal of research, and the playground design is aligned with the HSE21 program of immersive learning.

"We feel the skills kids will practice in an informal, nontraditional manner here will translate to what we're doing in the classrooms," said Hurst.

Students have their choice of the traditional playground or the Parkour during recess time. Teachers will reserve the equipment to use during certain classroom time as it fits into the class curriculum.

The playground has a total sticker price of about $30,000. Hurst says a number of sources were used to make this project happen. The City's Department of Public Works handled excavation and demolition work at no cost to the school. Recreation Insights provided what Hurst described as a "substantial discount." The Hamilton Southeastern Schools Foundation provided "generous funding," according to Hurst. The remaining $6,500 was handled by the Hoosier Road Parent-Teacher Organization (PTO).

Emergency contact database bill heads to governor's desk

The REPORTER

State Rep. Tony Cook's (R-Cicero) bill that would allow law enforcement officers to more quickly notify family members in the event of a person's death or serious bodily injury, could soon be law.

Cook said this proposal would task the Bureau of Motor Vehicles with creating a database of emergency contacts that first responders could access in the event of serious accidents. Hoosiers with a driver's license or a state ID card would list one or two adults as their emergency contact. The BMV would then create this Emergency Contact Database accessible by law enforcement.

"A constituent contacted me about not being notified by law enforcement that her son was involved in a car accident, and wasn't called until approxi-

I-69 lane closures in Fishers next week

The REPORTER

Contractors for the Indiana Department of Transportation (INDOT) plan to temporarily close lanes on Interstate 69 during overnight hours next week to paint the westbound 106th Street bridge at the newly constructed Exit 204 roundabout interchange in Fishers.

The new roundabout interchange was opened to traffic in December 2016, and some remaining temperature-sensitive work such as bridge painting and landscaping will be completed this spring.

This work is dependent on favorable weather conditions and schedules are subject to change:

Matt and Ashlee Snyder attended the Prime Life gala fundraiser last year dressed for the event's Derby theme. This year the theme has an Italian flavor.

The organization, founded in 1977 as Hamilton County Senior Services, offers county seniors a variety of services including exercise programs, health screening, computer instruction, swimming in an indoor pool, art classes, card games and social events.

In addition, transportation is provided for seniors to the center and other destinations for doctor appointments, grocery shopping and the like.

Counseling is provided on such subjects as health insurance assistance, caregiver support, bereavement support, respite care, dementia and home bound needs.

Prime Life is funded mostly by donations and its own fundraising efforts and gets limited financial help from local units of government. The organization is always interested in enrolling volunteers.

Information on becoming involved is found by calling the office Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. and Fridays until 5:30 p.m.

Sheridan speaks out on referendum

Dear Editor:

There are many different things that define me as a person. I am a daughter, student, wife, mother, friend, and teacher. However, one of the very first things that defined me was that I was a student: a Blackhawk. I have lived in Sheridan my entire life. I am a proud 2001 graduate of Sheridan High School. There are a variety of reasons why Sheridan schools are such an important thing to me; one of the most important reasons is because without my time spent here as a Blackhawk, I would have never been able to achieve all that I have to be where I am and who I am today. I love where and who I am today. I love my town, our schools, and all that they have afforded me.

I am not the only Blackhawk in my family. My husband is a 1997 graduate of Sheridan High School, my mother was valedictorian of her class at Sheridan, and my grandfather was also a fellow Blackhawk. Red, white, and black also run deep on my husband's side with both his parents and grandparents being graduates of SHS. Nothing makes me prouder than knowing that my husband and I are raising 4th generation Blackhawks. When I look around our small town, I am filled with an overwhelming sense of pride. Being born and raised in Sheridan, going here for school, and being a Blackhawk is a part of me and my identity. The opportunities provided to me and the individual attention that I received as a Blackhawk- as an athlete and as a student- were monumental in developing me for my future. And I grateful that I get to pay that forward each and every day as I provide those same opportunities and individualized attention to my SCS students and prepare them for the world.

Could I selfishly sit here and ask you to vote yes on the referendum running on May 2nd for Sheridan Community Schools? Yes. SCS is where I am currently employed and where I am proud to teach. It is also where I want to continue to teach for years to come. Should I ask you to vote yes on May 2nd? Maybe not, but I am. My children attend SCS and it is where I want them to graduate from. It is my alma mater. Sheridan Community Schools is the staple, the pinnacle force within our community and I know I am not alone when I say that I don't know what my life would be like without red, black, and white and Friday Night lights. Please, if not for me, if not for you, but for our community's sake, keep Sheridan, Sheridan. Let our schools continue to provide and challenge our students and remain competitive. Our students are the future, our teachers their leaders, and our school system the pathway. I know where I will be on May 2nd and I will be voting yes for something much larger and more important than myself; I hope that you will do the same, please. Go Blackhawks!

Margaret McKinney

Dear Editor:

As we move towards the referendum this May 2, I want to clear up and answer all questions that may still exist. Over the past two months we have worked diligently to make sure the reasoning for continuation of our referendum have been made public. Several of the reasons include major loses in operating funds from student dollars, changes in assessment calculations, and other variables outside the control of myself, the board, or the district. Most people with which we have spoken have been surprised to learn that these losses will have a total of over $700,000. However, even during these loses we have continued to keep our promise from the last referendum that we would not ever increase our tax rate during that time, and, in fact, we have reduced our overall rate 15 cents since 2014. This is due to the continual monitoring of our all the various aspects of our finances.

It is important to note that this is NOT a new referendum, nor is it in addition to our current one. The election is to allow Sheridan Community Schools to continue its current referendum at a slightly increased rate, and still keeping our tax rate as low as possible. If the referendum passed on May 2, then the current rate ceases on Jan. 1 2018 and the new rate would begin - they DO NOT overlap.

This referendum is about the continued excellence of Sheridan Schools as our current referendum will be expiring very soon. We will be asking the community to vote YES for a continuation of this funding in so we can continue down a very positive path of success for our students and everyone in Sheridan. While the rate is a bit higher than the current referendum rate, it will still keep our rate lower than it was just three years ago. It is also important to note that these are not overlapping referendums. If the new referendum amount passes, then the old number ceases at the end of the fiscal year. Coinciding with the implementation of the new referendum rate.

Voting YES means you are helping to maintain a strong SCS school district and strong academic programs. You will also help us continue to increase our district academic and programing goals. The focus of the referendum funds will be continued excellence for the district as we look to maintain class sizes, enhance existing and needed programs, and continue the success we are seeing in graduation rates and student accomplishment.

Please help support Sheridan Community Schools with a YES vote on May 2. Please feel free to reach out to me if you have any further questions as dmundy@att.net or visit our website at sheridanyes.com.

Thanks you for all you do and as a district we great appreciate your support.

Dave Mundy
Sheridan Community Schools

Dear Editor:

As a member of the Sheridan Community Schools Board of Trustees, a retired administrator, teacher, and coach of 39 years with the Sheridan Community Schools, I feel I am very qualified to state reasons why citizens of the Sheridan Community should vote "yes" on the May 2 school referendum. The decision to run the referendum was made with much thought, study, and discussion.

Sheridan Community Schools has lost $430,000 under the new student state funding program. The referendum will only restore one third of the funds that have been lost over the last two years. SCS is projected to lose an additional $330,000 in three years due to the Farm Bill that decreases the assessed reduction value of farm land. Even with the tax increase from the referendum, the tax rate will be less than what it was two years ago. The Sheridan Community Schools prides itself on doing what is best for the students in the most economical way possible. The new referendum will not add to the existing referendum. It will begin when the prior referendum ends. Tax payers will not be paying on two referendums at the same time.

If the referendum fails, Sheridan Community Schools could go one more year without changes. However, after that year programs would have to be cut. This is not what we want to happen for the success of our students. Sheridan Community Schools is very proud of its student/teacher ratio. It is also proud of the fact that it offers thirteen advanced placement programs which has allowed some participating students to enter college as sophomores. To be able to keep our current curriculum and add new, innovative courses, we can't cut staff or programs. However, without passing the referendum, we will not have the resources to carry on all of our current programs, classes and activities or add new programs.

An educated community is one in which people thrive and prosper. Please vote "yes" on the Sheridan Community Schools referendum on Tuesday, May 2, and keep our school producing well-educated, qualified, informed students and community members.

Sincerely,
Randy Brimberry
Sheridan Community School
Board Member

Dear Editor:

The Northern Hamilton County Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors fully supports the Sheridan Community Schools and the Board of Trustees in their need for passing a referendum on May 2, 2017. Dr. Dave Mundy has issued a document that explains the reasons for this referendum, provides the tax rate history, and offers samples of the cost of the referendum based on home value. All of which, make a sound case for the support of this referendum. For reference, we are including that document with this letter of support and we further ask that you also support the referendum, the Sheridan Community Schools, and the children of Sheridan.

The Northern Hamilton County Chamber of Commerce believes that a strong school system creates a strong community. To keep the community of Sheridan strong, they must have the financial resources necessary to effectively educate the children of Sheridan. This investment in education will have long-term economic benefits for the community.

Having excellent public schools are key to recruiting and retaining talent within the Sheridan community, which is critical to business growth. Other benefits include maintained and increased property values, lower crime rates, more stable families, less demand for social programs, and a strong sense of community. These significant community benefits are worth this investment.

We share the Sheridan Community Schools' perspective on the referendum and affirm that by supporting the referendum it will be a good investment in our businesses, children, and community at large, enhancing the quality of life for many. As such, we ask that you support this referendum and vote to pass it.

As always, the Chamber serves as an advocate representing the best interest of our area businesses and community.

Sincerely
Ann M. Kuzee
President, Northern Hamilton
County Chamber of Commerce

Trees, power lines don't always mix

The REPORTER

Trees add beauty to any landscape, but they have some impressive practical benefits as well. They clean the air, reduce carbon dioxide and (when positioned correctly) provide protection from wind and sun, reducing heating and cooling costs. If a tree grows too close to a power line, however, it can cause power outages and become a life-threatening danger.

A growing problem

Trees can be a contributing factor to as many as 50 percent of power outages. Problems can occur suddenly, such as when a branch breaks during a wind or ice storm. Issues can also develop over time through natural growth patterns. Growing branches begin to crowd or rub against power lines.

Trees located near power lines represent a real threat to children who may be tempted to climb them, or to homeowners attempting to tackle a trimming job on their own. Tree limbs and branches that come into contact with power lines may themselves become energized.

Trimming back

To improve safety and reduce the risk of power outages, your power company maintains a vigilant program of tree and brush removal and trimming. Trimming is performed according to directional pruning techniques that meet the standards of the National Arborist Association, the American Association of Nurserymen and other groups.

Directional pruning guides new growth away from power lines. Limbs or portions of limbs growing near power lines are trimmed back to the main branch or trunk, where they would naturally shed if the limbs died from natural causes. This preserves the natural defense system of the tree and minimizes impact on the crown. In some situations, an entire tree is removed. This may be because the tree is leaning toward a power line or it has a structural defect that increases its risk of falling.

Right place, right tree

Adding trees to your landscape? Carefully consider different tree species and how they may affect power lines on your grounds. No tree should be planted near high-voltage transmission lines. Some species, however, normally grow to a mature height of 20 feet or less. These include:

- Crabapple
 - Flowering Dogwood
 - Hawthorne
 - Bristlecone Pine
 - Common Juniper
 - Trident, Amur, Paperback, and Tartarian Maples
 - Rose Acacia
- These species can typically provide an attractive addition to your landscape without interfering with distribution lines.

The following species, however, grow particularly tall and should be planted no closer than 60 feet from distribution lines:

- Oak
- Colorado Blue Spruce
- Silver and Norway Maples

• Most pine species
If you're planning a landscape project, overhead power lines are not your only concern. Call 811 before you dig. Knowing where utility lines are buried can help you avoid injury, service outages and costly repairs.

Celebrate Earth Day with sustainable living

The REPORTER

American households generate about 250 million tons of trash a year, according to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), an average of 4.4 pounds per person each day. Much of this waste ends up in landfills, where it leads to a host of environmental problems. What can you do to help? Start by finding ways to reduce waste in your own home. It will not only help the environment, but might save you money as well. The following are some practical steps to take.

Reduce. The best way to start reducing waste is to avoid collecting things you do not need or want in the first place. Ask yourself if you have the time for all of the newspapers, catalogs and magazines you subscribe to. Check out books from the local library instead of purchasing them. If you take a good look around your home and at your buying habits, you can probably find numerous things you can easily do without.

Reuse. Reusing items instead of throwing them away will substantially reduce your household waste. Old towels and clothing make great rags for cleaning and other chores. Wash and reuse glass and plastic jars, milk jugs and other containers. Look for other creative ways to make use of things that otherwise would end up in the trash.

Maintain and repair. Purchase quality furniture, clothing and appliances that will stand the test of time. Maintaining appliances and equipment according to the manufacturers' guidelines will help extend their life. Repair equipment and mend clothing, shoes, handbags and other household items whenever possible.

Minimize packaging. Buy items with little or no packaging, or with refillable containers. Purchase goods in bulk or in concentrated form—such as concentrated laundry detergent.

Recycle. When you have done all you can to reduce waste, recycle. Give old clothing and other household items in good condition to a local charitable organization. Recycle other items, such as newspapers or magazines, you cannot find a use for. If your community does not have a recycling program, consider starting one.

Buy recycled.

Close the loop by looking for products with recycled content, including glass, paper, metal and plastic. You can also find furniture, tools, automotive parts and building materials made from recycled products. Labels should indicate whether recycled content is pre-consumer or post-consumer. Pre-consumer is waste from a manufacturing process, whereas post-consumer waste is collected from community or business recycling programs.

Conserve energy. Energy is a precious resource that should not be wasted. Little things can make a big difference; turn off lights and electronics when they are not in use, adjust the thermostat at night or when you are not at home. Consider installing solar water heaters or geothermal heat pumps that use renewable energy from the sun and earth. Click here to get more tips: Save Energy & Money.

See Reduce, Reuse, Recycle from the EPA for more tips on how you can reduce waste at home, at work and in your community.

Osborn named Carmel boys basketball head coach

By RICHIE HALL

Reporter Sports Editor

For the past six years, Ryan Osborn has been the right-hand man to Carmel boys basketball coach Scott Heady, during a remarkable run of success for the Greyhounds.

On Friday, Osborn went from right-hand man to right man for the job. Carmel High School announced Osborn as the new head coach for the boys basketball team, moving him up to replace Heady, who is now the head men's basketball coach at Marian University.

"I'm extremely excited," said Osborn, a graduate of Logansport High School and IUPUI. Osborn is also a teacher at Carmel High School, and will continue in that role as well.

"Ryan is a first class competitor and leader," said CHS athletic director Jim Inskeep. "He is a tireless worker and possesses the critical abilities necessary to be an elite head coach. The student-athletes will continue to develop positively as young men and basketball players. His work ethic and dedication to continuing the standard of excellence for Carmel Basketball will be evident to the Carmel Community."

Osborn came to Carmel after spending two years at his college alma mater, where he was the director of basketball operations. After that, he moved to Avon High School, where he was a teacher and coach from 2006-2011. The next stop was Carmel.

"In the last six years, I think I've been done a little bit of everything," said Osborn.

During that time, Carmel has won just about everything as well. The 'Hounds have posted a record of 131-25 over the past six seasons, including five sectional championships, four Metropolitan Conference titles and two state championships in 2012 and 2013. Carmel has been ranked in the top 10 for six straight seasons, produced three Indiana All-Stars and two Trester Mental Attitude award winners.

Osborn said he met with the players Friday morning, and noted they were "really excited" to begin the road with Osborn as head coach.

"They've had great energy, we have a great group of kids," said Osborn. "It's hard to keep them out of the gym. I think that's a great thing."
