Cicero: Happy Birthday, America!

Photo provided by 4th Hawk Consulting

Jerrald Hawkins showed his American pride this 4th of July by mowing "USA" into his yard on Main Street in Cicero. Grassroots American support at its finest! The Reporter found it an appropriate image to capture when flying around before the fireworks at Lights Over Morse Lake. By the time the show began, this yard was filled with fireworks fans. Thousands of people on land and water turned out for the fireworks display. The Reporter wants to give special thanks to Cicero's fire and police departments and the Jackson Township's fire department for all their help arranging for us to take to the air in a safe way this 4th of July. Additionally, Chris and Rusty Miller are the best guides and points of contact we could hope for. See more photos on our Facebook page and online at ReadTheReporter.com.

Man threatens Fishers police, takes own life

The REPORTER

The Fishers Police Department (FDP) has released the name of the man who died in a police-involved shooting Monday morning in Fishers.

According to FDP, John Donadio, 51, pointed a weapon at officers, leading them to fire shots at him before he took his own life.

According to FDP, two officers responded to a welfare check on Donadio Monday morning at 10:15 a.m. after receiving a call from the man's former in-law, who was concerned Donadio was having an emotional crisis.

Officers arrived at Colbarn Drive and Sunblest Boulevard to find Donadio sitting in his parked car with a handgun. He made threatened the officers, leading them to fire shots at Donadio.

According to officials, Donadio then turned the gun on himself and took his own life just before 12 p.m.

Donadio died on the scene. The officers were unharmed.

Investigators with FPD have begun an investigation.

According to the Fishers Police Department, "Per our policy, both involved officers have been assigned to administrative duty pending the results of the investigation."

Traffic switch at Greenfield Ave. roundabout starts tomorrow

The REPORTER

The roundabout construction at Five Points intersection is scheduled for a traffic switch tomorrow or afterward. At that time, southbound 10th Street traffic will begin traveling on the west side of the roundabout circle. During this short next phase, the center portion of the roundabout and 10th Street splitter islands will be constructed.

HHSC grant from Duke Energy to fund Summer Jumpstart program

The REPORTER

Hamilton Heights School Corporation has received a $25,000 grant from Duke Energy to help fund a new program set to begin in July.

The program, entitled HHSC Summer Jumpstart, has been designed for Heights' most "at-risk" students who recently completed Kindergarten, first and second grades. A maximum of 60 students can participate in this interactive remedial reading program that will be conducted for four-and-a-half hours for 10 days prior to the start of the school year. Student selection is based on an in-depth identification process and need for the additional reading remediation.

According to program coordinator Denise Wisley, each student will have an individualized curricular component designed around deficiencies noted in STAR Reading and Aims Web Plus data testing at the end of the grade year just completed. "Through Ticket to Read, an online program, our goal is for students to set and meet individual reading goals and demonstrate improvement in deficient areas," she said. "The program will help students continue to learn more complex letter-sound relationships, develop their decoding and encoding skills and read stories where comprehension and fluency are emphasized throughout the program."

Upon completion of their participation in the HHSC Summer Jumpstart Programs, students should see an increase in phonemic awareness and phonics decoding skills, reading fluency, vocabulary, reading comprehension in fiction and informational text by reading strategically and reading more independently for information and/or pleasure — not to mention move into the next grade more prepared for success at the next level.

"This generous gift will be of great service to our students," said Dr. Derek Arrowood, Hamilton Heights School Corporation Superintendent, who credits staff at Sheridan Community Schools for their assistance in helping Heights with the funding application process. "Sheridan has a similar program that has been well-received and successful in their district. We are excited about the impact and long-term possibilities this type of program will have on our students."

Mark LaBarr, Community Relations Manager at Duke Energy, said, "Literacy

The Lights Over Morse Lake Festival ran from July 1 to July 4 and included a carnival, complete with 10 midway games and 12 rides. Paul Huesman, who runs the carnival, was enjoying the second year at the Lights festival. His carnival travels the state at 20 venues. Huesman called the Lights Over Morse Lake committee, "Great people to work with, and Greg Bowman is exceptionally good. They treat us like gold. They are happy to have us here and we are happy to be here." The festival's climax was, of course, the fireworks display Tuesday night. It drew a huge crowd both on land and water.

Five great ways to reduce stress

TRAFFIC SWITCH

StatePoint

The constant juggle of work, family and other responsibilities can cause anybody to feel stressed. And stress is not only unpleasant, it can have negative ramifications on your health, including stomach upset, fatigue, headache and even depression and drug abuse, according to the Mayo Clinic.

Luckily, a bit of self-care goes a long way. Here are five great ways to ease tension and reduce symptoms of stress.

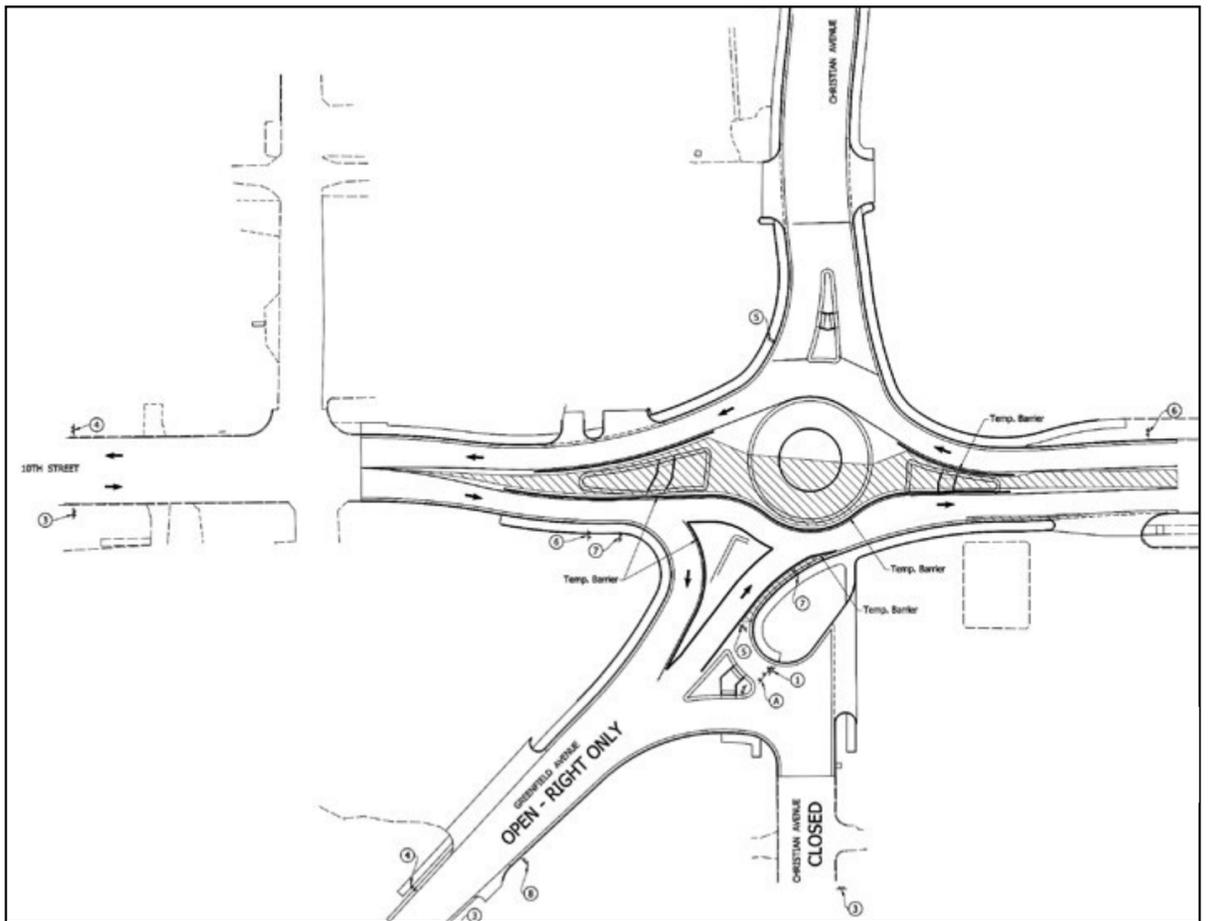

1. Have a spot of tea. Drinking black tea leads to lower post-stress cortisol levels, according to a University College London study. Brew yourself a cup and take a few minutes to relax.

2. Play piano. Playing piano can reduce stress, according to a study published in the International Journal of Music Education. And you can play whenever you need to take a minute to reduce stress, as keyboards come in all sizes these days. Check out Casio keyboards and music gear, which features models fit for any level of musical ability or physical space you have available to play.

3. Keep a journal. Spend a few minutes each day or when the mood strikes putting pen to paper. Writing in a journal can help you get things off your chest, and can have effects similar to meditation.

4. Get moving. Aerobic exercise has been shown to decrease overall levels of tension, elevate and stabilize mood, improve sleep and improve self-esteem. Even five minutes of aerobic exercise can stimulate anti-anxiety effects. So, put on some sneakers and get moving.

5. Get together with friends. Close friendships are a great outlet to express oneself, get positive feedback and laugh, which can ease stress and tension. Even when you're busy, be sure to carve out time for friends.

Starting tomorrow or in the days following, a traffic switch will occur at Five Points roundabout construction.

There will be no left turns within the intersection. Advance signage will direct motorists wishing to turn left to follow the already posted detour route which utilizes Pleasant Street and 16th Street.

For the safety of motorists and construction workers, the intersection will still remain all-way stop control.

The Five Points roundabout began construction in May and is scheduled to be completed later this month. The new design provides a safe, effective intersection without a stoplight and creates a new southern gateway into the City of Noblesville.

Mark LaBarr, Government & Community Relations Manager, Duke Energy, presents a commemorative check for $25,000 to members of the Hamilton Heights School Corporation at the corporation's year-end faculty and staff breakfast earlier this month. The grant will fund the new HHSC Summer Jumpstart program.

is a major part of student success, and it affects a student's education in all subjects. Developing young, successful readers can have an impact beyond the individual student and extend to the community."

The program is one of 20 that received Duke Energy Foundation grants for summer reading initiatives. This grant is part of an approximately $400,000 investment the Duke Energy Foundation is making in summer literacy programs.

This grant will provide the bulk of the funding for teacher salaries, supplies and transportation to and from school. HHSC has secured additional funding to provide students breakfast and lunch along with a well-earned celebration after the program.

With initial funding secured, our team of nine administrators, staff and teachers have been working diligently behind the scenes to ensure a successful and sustainable inaugural roll out next month," continued Dr. Arrowood. "We greatly appreciate Duke 'spreading the wealth' and making a difference at Heights."

Get tips, tricks on taking better photos

The REPORTER

On Tuesday, July 11, local photographer Sally Wolf will share tips and tricks of the trade at the next Friends of the Library's Tuesdays with Friends event. The program begins at 6:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the Hamilton North Public Library in Cicero. Photography enthusiasts, newbies and even the digitally challenged are invited to learn more about taking better photographs.

Stay Focused with Photography serves as a prelude to the annual Friends of the Library Photography Contest Picture a Better World. The Friends hope the event inspires others to photograph "acts of building a better world" and enter the resulting photos in the contest. Entries will be accepted between July 31 and Aug. 4 at the Cicero branch of Hamilton North Public Library.

As a portrait and field photographer, visual artist, and former art educator, Wolf draws from a wide range of experience to share techniques that photographers at all levels can understand and put to use immediately. What's more, a special camera is not required. Camera phones capture those special moments and offer editing modes to enhance the picture further. Wolf gives her insights into helping others take the photographs they "meant" to take, whatever form of camera is employed. In fact, she hosts workshops with fellow photographer Rad Drew on iPhone photography to help people get better pictures of family, landscapes and even furry friends.

This must-attend Tuesday with Friends begins at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, July 11 and is open to all those interested in taking better photos. Being a patron of the Hamilton North Public Library is not required.

To preview Photographer Wolf's artistry, please visit <http://sallywolfphotography.com> or find her on Facebook at <https://www.facebook.com/Sally-Wolf-Photography-243599080661>.

All Tuesdays with Friends programs are sponsored by HNPL's Friends of the Library, a group of volunteers who support and enhance library programming and participation through special events and fundraising. The Friends of the Library meetings alternate between the Cicero and Atlanta branches, on the third Wednesday of the month. More information is available at <http://www.hnpl.lib.in.us/friendsofthelibrary>.

More grandparents are raising grandkids: three things they need to know

StatePoint

From single parents to traditional and multigenerational households, modern families come in all shapes and sizes. But did you know there's an uptick in the number of grandparents raising grandkids? According to data from The Pew Charitable Trusts, 2.9 million grandparents were raising their grandchildren in 2015 compared with 2.5 million in 2005.

Oftentimes, grandparents become primary caregivers due to unforeseen circumstances. Here are three things those taking on this responsibility should consider.

Protect their Financial Future

A recent study found 30 percent of all households don't have life insurance, according to LIMRA, a life insurance research organization. Grandparents should be sure this coverage is up to date.

They might also consider purchasing term insurance — life insurance issued for a limited period of time. More affordable than a whole life policy, it provides financial security for the golden years, helps supplement retirement income and can assist with final expenses. A term life insurance policy can even help pay off a mortgage — so grandparents have peace of mind knowing that dependents have a roof over their heads — and can also be used for other child-rearing expenses, such as college tuition.

Keep Them Safe

Accidental injury is the leading cause of death for children up to 14 years old, and more than a third of accident-related deaths happen in the home, reports Kid'sHealth.

To create a safe living environment for younger children, secure large furniture to walls, purchase safety gates for staircases, and install outlet covers, corner protectors, security locks and appliance latches. It might also be a good time to update in-home safety features for grandparents, too. Handrails provide better grip on staircases, and anti-slip mats and grab bars in the bathroom can add extra stability.

Promote Smarter Driving

As teens get behind the wheel, encourage them to drive safely. A 2015 statistic from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention says six teens die every day in car crashes in the US, and this is the number one killer of teens. Distracted driving is the cause of 58 percent of teen-involved traffic crashes, according to the National Organization for Youth Safety. Remind grandkids about the dangers of texting, using apps and changing the radio station while driving.

Also, reevaluate your auto insurance policy. Talk to an agent about whether it makes more sense to add grandchildren to an existing policy or take one out for them specifically. Grandparents may be able to add grandkids as secondary drivers on a policy, but should be prepared to pay higher rates since teens may be considered high-risk. Look for a cost-effective solution, such as the Youthful Driver Discount offered by Erie Insurance. Eligible licensed drivers 20 and under can save up to 20 percent on their car insurance. Plus, drivers under age 21 who complete an accredited driver's education course may also be eligible for discounts.

Caring for grandkids can be overwhelming. However, preparation can help ensure your family's safety and security.

Westfield's Andrew Lewis nearly pulls off 'Classic' win

By RICHIE HALL
 Reporter Sports Editor

The Polo Golf Junior Classic is one of those events where it's an honor to be invited.

Westfield's Andrew Lewis was invited to play in the Classic, which has been an important stop on the American Junior Golf Association's calendar since 1978. Lewis was not only honored to play in the event — he came close to winning.

Lewis, who just finished his junior year as a Shamrock, finished fourth at the Polo Classic. Lewis' four-day score was a two-under par 286.

"I played some really solid golf," said Lewis. "I had one bad round the third day that hurt my chances at winning, but it was overall a very solid tournament."

Lewis started the tournament with a first-round score of 70, two under par, with four birdies. On the second day, Lewis fired seven birdies on his way to a four-under score of 68, putting him six under for the tournament.

Lewis shot 77 in the third round, but got it together for a one-under 71 in the fourth round. That included an eagle on hole No. 7.

The event winner was Karl Vilips, an Australian playing out of Wesley Chapel, Fla., Vilips carded a 280 - eight under par - to win the event.

The Polo Golf Junior Classic featured the top 70 boys golfers and top 58 girls golfers in the country.

"I found out in early April that I would be playing in the event," said Lewis. "I got selected to play in this event because of my national junior ranking." The week of the tournament, Lewis' junior ranking was No. 40.

This year's Polo Golf Junior Classic was historic for two reasons. First, the tournament expanded to four rounds for the first time. Prior to this year, the Polo Classic had been two rounds since it began in 1978.

Also, the event took place at The Ridge at Back Brook in Ringoes, N.J., a small town that dates back to the pre-Revolutionary War days, and sits about 35 miles northeast of Philadelphia. This is the first time the Polo Classic was not held in a southern state.

Lewis was one of four boys from Indiana to compete. Fishers' Austin Vukovits played, but missed the top 36 cut after a three-day score of 230. Greenwood's Noah Gillard tied for 22nd with a 295 and West Lafayette's Cole Bradley tied for 30th with a 299.

Westfield's Andrew Lewis finished tied for fourth at the American Junior Golf Association's Polo Golf Junior Classic, which took place last week at The Ridge at Back Brook in Ringoes, N.J.

In the girls' event, Carmel's Haylin Harris tied for 19th with a 300. Harris was one of 58 girls in the Classic, and the only one from Indiana.

The list of former champions at the Polo Classic is impressive. The 1991 boys winner was none other than a 15-year-old Tiger Woods, winning one of his first major national titles on the way to a legendary career that includes 14 major championships. Other Polo Classic winners that have gone on to win major titles are Trevor Immelman and Stewart Cink on the men's side, and Morgan Pressel and Paula Creamer on the women's side.

"The list of past winners is incredible, and it shows just how important and big this event is," said Lewis. "I feel very honored to play in the event and not just play in it but to have a chance to win."
