Noblesville Deputy Mayor's emails reveal pattern of disrespect for opposing views . . .

Stacking the deck, Mr. Cooke?

The REPORTER

A concerned citizen recently filed a request for information for "copies of public records (electronic or print) that relate to the City of Noblesville and its interactions regarding the Indiana Transportation Museum as well as the Nickel Plate Trail proposal" under the Indiana Access to Public Records Act. This information was then given to The Reporter. Some emails point to both Noblesville Deputy Mayor Steve Cooke attempting to fill a public forum with front-row supporters of his own view and a pattern of disrespect toward citizens who do not agree with his perspectives on city projects.

The Reporter contacted Deputy Mayor Cooke, Mayor John Ditslear and the Noblesville Common Council to ask for their views on some specific emails which were provided as part of the public records request.

The following are specific email excerpts, The Reporter's questions and Cooke's replies.

Email: "We are getting beat up pretty badly, although I'm hoping that our public meeting on 3/23 can start to turn more people to our side.'

Reporter: I thought this was a listening session? Wasn't it an opportunity for government, both county and city, to listen and not an opportunity to "turn" people to "our" side. Did the city listen? If so what did they hear?

Cooke: I used a poor choice of words in this e-mail from March 8 with another trail supporter, and for that, I'm sorry. As with any project, it's important for all the facts to be presented, and our efforts to "turn more people to our side" were to present the facts that we had collected about the benefits of a trail as well as the facts about the Nickel Plate Railroad. I'm proud of the fact that Mayor Ditslear made the decision to change the format of our March 23 public meeting to include comments from citizens. For me personally it was surprising to see the level of passion for the Nickel Plate Railroad displayed at the meeting, so it was a good learning experience. And listening to the public strengthened our resolve to keep the Nickel Plate Railroad as part of the city's vision for the northern section of the corridor running from our downtown – which we have not wavered from. But I apologize that my poor choice of words written in March did not reflect the leadership of this office.

Email: "Because this trail is far from a done deal.". "We need to show our City Council how much of Noblesville supports the idea of the trail so that they are not just hearing from the vocal minority who want to preserve the train. Seriously! If Council only sees the opponents, Noblesville will miss out on our only chance to get this Monon Trail like amenity in our own city. I've seen this play out already in Noblesville where good ideas die because only the old timers against everything speak up."

Reporter: Isn't it just the opposite, the vocal minority being the trail supporters? "Old Timers against everything . . .' Cooke: This content was written as an e-mail only to myself as a draft of a potential communication to members of my HCLA team that I revised. A full search of all my e-mails has verified this fact. I did, however, write an e-mail with different content that I sent to two HCLA team members who are trail supporters.

Statement from Noblesville Mayor members of our community on each

Deputy Mayor Steve Cooke and I have decided to turn his attention to other city projects and let the discussion about the Nickel Plate Trail continue under the leadership of other city officials. I believe Steve did not mean to come across in the light that he is being portrayed and will use this experience as a learning opportunity going forward.

The topic of the railway has passionate side. However, some of the social media comments I have seen directed at him have been unfair, defamatory and harassing. We are a team and Steve works diligently on my vision for the City of Noblesville and what we think is best for its future.

As I have previously stated, we want to keep the train rolling in Noblesville from Forest Park north to Tipton. I am hopeful this move allows the railway conversation to progress forward without being personal.

Noblesville Common Council responds

Noblesville Common Council President Megan Wiles: "I don't appreciate the tone of Steve's messages, whether they are internal or meant to be shared with our residents. Anytime we are embracing a project that impacts our community we need to gather the input of our community and gauge their level of interest."

Noblesville Common Council Vice President Chris Jensen: "I am always supportive of a professional, respectful debate about the future of my hometown. However, in regards to the recent emails that have surfaced, I am disappointed in their tone and would have, personally, handled the situation differently.

Noblesville Common Council Member Mary Sue Rowland: "Good government and honest government are one of the same and citizens should expect nothing less."

Deputy Mayor apologizes for tone

The REPORTER

Noblesville Deputy Mayor Steve Cooke sent the following statement to The Reporter about emails surrounding the Nickel Plate Rail/Trail

As the debate on the Nickel Plate Railroad continues, several of my e-mails that are in the public domain have been called into question. I can see where reading some of them without any context could create concerns about the city's plans for the Nickel Plate Railroad. These e-mails reflected early research and idea generation about the Nickel Plate, and do not necessarily reflect the city's current proposal for the railway.

While our actions speak louder than words, my communication needs to better reflect the leadership of this office. I'm sorry if the tone of my e-mails offended anyone in our community. The last thing that I want is to tarnish the reputation of this city that I am so passionately serving.

Typically, people who are against projects are the most vocal. However, my intent was for those in favor of the trail to also have a voice.

Email: "See the attached - this is just a rough draft, written late. The section on ITM would need a serious look. I've never actually been to the ITM And I'd want to be somewhat careful. But on the other hand, I've heard it's an eyesore. It's funny reading comments from people who love it.'

Reporter: Forest Park is one of Noblesville's most treasured assets. The ITM occupies a good portion of real estate in the park and the Deputy Mayor has never been there? I don't understand how a project (Trail/Rail) spearheaded by the Deputy Mayor could be presented without firsthand knowledge of a key component. ITM isn't hard to miss by just taking a drive through the park. If you have never been to ITM how could you find any humor in comments from people who love it?

Cooke: This email to another city employee is regarding a potential communication with a reference to the ITM that the city never used. I have driven by the ITM during my visits to Forest Park, and I've been briefed on the museum's conditions. However, the city's plan for the trail allows for the Nickel Plate Railroad to remain within the park because it is proposed outside the project scope. Like many citizens, I look forward to seeing improvements to this area when the trains begin running again.

Email: "This citizen still doesn't get it – but at least Jill Doyle from HCLA tried. And I've offered to meet with her

Reporter: Can you be specific about who the citizen is, and what it is that she doesn't "get."

Cooke: I won't share the citizen's name, but I can tell you the context behind the e-mail. A woman who was angry about the trail proposal posted Facebook messages tagging other community leaders that portrayed HCLA as the group behind the trail proposal. HCLA Executive Director Jill Doyle met with her to explain the difference and about the role of my HCLA team's project work – a study of rail and trail – as compared to my role with the city working to achieve the Mayor's vision for this corridor.

Email: "As for Anita - I'd rather not waste time on her. She's probably a typical anti-City person.'

Reporter: Who is Anita? Please define "anti-City person."

Cooke: This e-mail with another employee within the city was not part of any communication regarding the Nickel Plate, but was in response to a complaint that the mayor was not personally sponsoring a Noblesville Preservation Alliance event, which led to a criticism of our city government.

Email: Attached is the updated Project Tracker spreadsheet. You'll see that I've broken this into two worksheets: one for the priority projects and one for other. Let me know if you prefer it this way or on one sheet. This way, though, I can still track "other" project information that we may not want "out there" if you

Can you invite other pro trail people to the 3/23 listening session in Noblesville? We're going to need as many pro trail people filling the seats because the train people will probably be there in force.

Our Council members could later vote "no" on the Nickel Plate Trail later on if a vocal minority is loud enough. I've seen it happen already on other projects.

As you know the Noblesville session on 3/23 is 6:00 to 8:00 at City Hall - 16 S. 10th Street.

I'm asking trail fans to arrive and take a seat up front by 5:30 before the 6:00 presentation begins to ensure they get a spot. This could be standing room only.

I appreciate any help.

know what I mean. I could even create those as a separate spreadsheet altogether. I'm not quite sure how you plan to disseminate this with Council. It could be as simple as me printing out and putting hard copies in their mailbox. Just let

Reporter: Please comment on your statement "information we may not want out there if you know what I mean."

Cooke: Every city project goes through the appropriate public process for consideration and possible approval. While poorly worded, the point of this e-mail was to create a document to update our Common Council on various projects, with the distinction being made here to "other projects" that are tentative and not yet fully developed for public communication.

Email: Basically – We needed to revise where we say the Nickel Plate ends in Noblesville. The estimate before was up to SR32. But since we're turning the Nickel Plate onto the Midland Trace Trail at Pleasant Street – that's what we need to say where the NP ends. You'll see what I mean when you review my edits. However, we're not revising the budget estimate yet to account for this change. But geographically speaking, it's less confusing to say it stops at Pleasant (for now hopefully!).

We'll certainly be excited to pull up the tracks from 8th Street and over SR32/38 – but no need to confuse the public with this specificity.

In the FAQ, I also added paragraphs about Rail Tourism and Mass Transit. Feel free to revise accordingly or take out that question altogether. We could certainly put in talking points that could sway people away from both – but I think it's best to remain somewhat neutral to give some cover to our partners.

Reporter: You make the comment about adding talking points that could sway people away from Mass Transit and Rail Tourism. Why would you want to "sway" people? You also state "to give some cover to our partners." Please explain "cover" and identify "partners." Shouldn't city government present facts about a project without consideration of swaying people in one direction or another?

Cooke: I'm sorry that my language in this e-mail comes across as cavalier, but facts are what we've been presenting to the public as part of the education process on the benefits of trails as compared to rail tourism and mass transit given the city's vision for this corridor and its objectives of the Noblesville comprehensive master plan. Regarding the mention of "remain somewhat neutral to give cover to our partners," I was referring to not directly criticizing ITM during our trail announcement. Despite the troubled history of the ITM, which has been the city's partner for three decades, we didn't feel it was a good idea to criticize the organization in our announcement - hence, why we removed that section from the trail FAQ.

Reporter: Please comment on your statement "We'll certainly be excited to pull up the tracks from 8th Street and over SR32/38 – but no need to confuse the public with this specificity." Isn't being specific the best way to eliminate confusion?

Cooke: The changes I proposed for the February 28 news release were to simplify the description of where the tracks would be pulled up compared to where the trail would end at Pleasant Street, which was reflected in our final news release. The initial drafts made it sound like the trail would run all the way north to SR32/38, which is not the case.

Volunteers needed for third round of 2017 trail study along Monon Greenway in Carmel

The REPORTER

Carmel Clay Parks & Recreation (CCPR) is seeking volunteers to assist with a 2017 trail study that will occur from Aug. 7 to Aug. 13 along the Monon Greenway in Carmel. This is CCPR's third round of participation in the trail study this year. The survey will be conducted by the Eppley Institute through Indiana University. The survey's intention is to collect information regarding trail use, benefits and economic value and measure health factors as related to trail usage. This study follows up the nationally acclaimed 2001 Indiana Trails Study that provided valuable data to trail managers, trail advocates and the State of Indiana.

Volunteers are welcome to work along the trail individually or in pairs and will have a variety of two-hour shifts from which to choose. Weekday morning, midday and afternoon shifts are available. There will also be a short training session at a time and date to be determined. Registered volunteers will be notified when the training is scheduled.

"We're excited to learn about our trail users and how they use the trails we have here in Carmel," said Rachael Fleck, volunteer project coordinator. "Volunteers will help us a lot with the data collection in this groundbreaking study. It would be difficult to accomplish without them."

Those interested in volunteering for this project should register online at www. carmelclayparks.com/volunteer. There will be a total of four, seven-day data collection periods. The first two data collection periods occurred in April and June and one more collection period will take place later this year in October. Trail counters will also be utilized along the nine trails to capture head counts. Data from the trail counters will be used to compare user patterns statewide.

For questions regarding volunteering with CCPR, please contact Rachael Fleck at rfleck@carmelclayparks.com.

New Fishers police headquarters one step closer to completion

By LARRY LANNAN www.LarryInFishers.com

A $10.7 million new Fishers Police Headquarters building could be ready for occupancy a little over a year from now, following action by the Fishers Board of Public Works and Safety.

Board members approved a resolution allowing the city to enter into a public-private partnership agreement with the Hagerman Group during its regular Monday meeting.

The new parking garage, to be partially used by the police department, is already under construction. The new police headquarters structure will be 48,000 square feet, compared to the current headquarters building which contains 24,000 square feet of space.

Hagerman will construct the garage and new building. Fishers will then purchase the facilities from Hagerman under this agreement.

Happy, healthy birthday in Hamilton County

The REPORTER

The Hamilton County Health Department celebrated its 50th anniversary last Thursday at a public open house.

The event displayed historic vital records going back 135 years. The department was actually organized in 1966, but the following year was its first full year in business. HSE School Board takes steps moving forward on building projects

By LARRY LANNAN

The Hamilton Southeastern (HSE) School Board took legal steps to move forward with building projects at last Wednesday's evening meeting.

The board adopted a resolution giving approval to preliminary plans for the new elementary school building on Cyntheanne Road. This will pave the way for a public hearing at the next regular board session on the plans to finance the new, as-yet-unnamed school.

The board approved bids for the Central Office and Cumberland Road Elementary school construction projects. Hamilton County Harvest Food Bank (HCH) has sponsored its second year of "Meating" The Need, a partnership between 4-H Beef, Dairy and Swine projects and the Food Bank. Progress with Stage 4

I just returned from an eleven day trip to Vancouver and Alaska. Thus, I am trying to get back into the "flow". My biggest goal is to get the kids ready for "back to school" and to get myself into top shape. Fortunately, getting the kids back into the groove is not too difficult; however, getting myself back into top shape is a constant challenge.

Chemo drugs can be brutal on weight gain. They can make you feel like you need to eat five meals a day. For someone who is used to being in shape, this is one of the hardest parts of cancer; however, I am slowly starting to make a "dent". After my chemo treatments, I quickly gained 30 pounds. It is one thing to want to eat all of the time, but the real issue is not being healthy enough to counteract the desire for food with ample exercise.

However, things have improved and I started exercising right after Christmas. As I have stated in previous articles, I have a chunk of lung that has been removed and I have a metal rod in my right humerus. The cancer also spread from my lungs to a vertebrae in my back and into my right knee. I had a huge hole in the vertebrae. I had radiation a year ago and take a daily chemo pill. The miracle of modern medicine helped grow these two bones back into place — they regenerate. Of all the things that I have been through, this is the one thing that amazes me. When cancer gets into your bones, it is incredibly painful. However, at least in my case, it was fixable.

Once the bones were healthy enough to exercise, I decided the best way to get rid of the weight gain was to exercise. I joined Orange Theory which consists of running on a treadmill, rowing on a rower and lifting hand weights. When I first started, it was a real challenge to breathe. In fact it took me 5.5 months before I could run on the treadmill. Unfortunately, I also had two big falls on the treadmill. In both cases the person using the treadmill before me did not turn it off . . . I was tired and did not notice that it was still running and stepped on it and "face planted" both times. Fortunately, my brain somehow kicked in and managed to turn to my left side in mid-air so that I fell on my left arm and not my right arm that already has a rod

When I first started, I could only work out three times a week. I am now up to five times a week. Furthermore, I also could not lift any weight with my right arm nor do any push-ups due to the rod in my arm. I can now lift 10 pounds with my right arm and I am able to do "modified" push-ups.

The other big issue with Stage 4 cancer is that it can be very depressing. However, exercise does wonders for the mind. In the beginning they put me on an antidepressant which also contributed to weight gain. My whole goal was to get myself to a position in which I could exercise and thus, I could stop taking the pills. I am ecstatic that I have reached that goal.

Cancer is brutal but I am very happy to have an athletic background that in many ways has been very instrumental in helping me deal with setbacks and given me the mindset to go forward. This is a big battle and all I can do is take a "go forward attitude". I have also been very blessed with family and friends that provide unbelievable support. Stage 4 is a big opponent, but I have a ton of support and will continue to fight.

Getting sweet on Turkey Run, Sugar Creek

Sometimes Hoosiers we don't sufficientappreciate the great attractions we have here in Indiana. Last week with relatively cool and sunny weather, I spent a couple of days at Turkey Run State Park. There was no special reason, it was just to get away from home a little while.

I had never spent much time at Turkey Run even though I like the state parks and have often been to Spring Mill, Brown County, McCormick's Creek and the Dunes.

I knew our parks were among the best because a college friend of mine who headed parks in New York State told me ours stack up well or perhaps better than theirs. But, to visit one of ours served to remind just how Unfortunately, we have no state parks in Hamilton County. That's largely because the topography in the southern and western parts of the state offer better potential for park sites. Turkey Run is an example of this. Its 2,400 acres are almost entirely wooded with a largely hilly terrain.

Sugar Creek, although called a creek, is more like a small river and cuts across the park through a deep gorge. The creek is popular for canoeing. A pedestrian suspension bridge, not for the faint-hearted, is an attraction.

Hiking, horseback riding and swimming are also offered. And, history is not overlooked. There is an original covered bridge within the park as well as the early 19th century Salmon Lusk homestead with a two-story, federal style brick house that looks a lot like the William Conner home.

The Turkey Run Inn is an attractive but not lavish hotel. Its dining room offers reasonably priced meals. It's popular with our Illinois neighbors whose state parks, I am guessing, are more expensive and more

Turkey Run is not crowded. In fact, you wonder why more folks are not there at the height of the summer season. Might be because no liquor is served, but more likely because state park inns aren't particularly well

Anyway, as you can guess, I think it's a great place for a mini-vacation and highly recommend it.

Stretching the heartstrings

The heartstrings of a mother stretch to wherever her children go. Mine just stretched a bit farther than I ever expect-

It's Friday night about 11:00 and I just got a text from Emily. "We are just south of Nashville, Tennessee." By mid-morning on Saturday they should arrive in Tampa ... their new home.

Emily, Drew, Aiden and Leah headed out of the driveway about 5:00. The kids were told it would take about 16 hours to arrive where they would then call home. They have no idea how long 16 hours in a loaded down SUV can be. Neither can Emily and Drew. They have never taken a road trip. Not one.

Aiden is almost seven and Leah is 4 1/2. They really do not fully understand that they will be so far away from their friends and their Grandma Janet.

Aiden hugged his best friend, Cooper Culver's she realized she had forgotten her and said, "I'm sure going to miss you man" as they said their goodbyes a few days earlier. Let's just say Cooper and Aiden might have noticed their moms had leaking

I've had a few moments where I found it difficult to wrap my mind, as well as my heart, around not being able to call Emily and meet for coffee on a moment's notice. I call it the "empty hurt" when your heart just doesn't understand what it is feeling. It just feels lost and empty.

On Friday, a few hours before they left, Emily called and asked me to go to Target with her. We laughed as she told me I was getting old because I did not want to take the interstate. I handed her the keys and said, "You drive and one day you will be old and you won't want to take the interstate."

As we went through the drive thru at debit card. Of course, Mom to the rescue. I'm going to miss those rescues.

We got back to her house and I saw their SUV packed and ready to go. It honestly looked like a scene from the Chevy Chase "Vacation" movie. Suitcases, bags, car seats and their summer clothes were tucked into the SUV. A small trailer basket was attached with more bags and stuff. The moving van will come later when their house, in Fish-

Totes for Leah and Aiden were filled with things to occupy them for the LONG drive. Friends had supplied them well with

I got a text about 6:00 p.m. from Emily that they were just south of Greenwood and Aiden asked how many more hours they would be driving.

Like I said, it's going to be a long trip. I imagine Emily will hear a few "Are we there yet?"

If she looks in her rear view mirror she might notice a few strings also attached to the trailer. Those heartstrings will always follow her . . . wherever she goes.

Hamilton County recognized for e-government solutions

The REPORTER Hamilton County has been honored by the Center for Digital Government and the National Association of Counties for its efforts to streamline delivery of government services using technology.

The county placed eighth in its size category in the 15th annual Digital Counties Survey, which recognizes the best technology practices nationwide.

Digital counties are leveraging technology to improve the ways they conduct business and engage with citizens in increasingly innovative and exciting ways,"

Center for Digital Government Executive Director Todd Sander said in a news release announcing the honorees. "The Center for Digital Government congratulates this year's winners for their work to reduce costs, encourage citizen engagement, increase efficiencies and proactively address citizen expectations."

Ten winners were named in each of five population categories. Hamilton County competed in the third-largest group, against other counties with 250,000-499,999 residents. Douglas County, Col., placed first in the category. No other Indiana counties placed among the Top 10 in any category.

The 2017 winners were recognized July 22 at the National Association of Counties conference in Columbus, Ohio.

"As technology continues to grow in all facets of our lives, county governments are adapting and innovating," said association Executive Director Matthew Chase. "The Digital Counties Survey spotlights how counties deploy technology to enhance services and benefit residents while being responsible stewards of taxpayer resources.' Hamilton County government has long recognized the value of technology as a cost-effective way to enhance services. Over time, the county has been judiciously implementing e-government solutions.

It has been recognized with a Digital County Award in 14 out of the last 15 years. Hamilton County did not enter in 2016.

"This is not a quick or easy task, but we are committed to serving you in the most effective manner possible," said Chris Mertens, director of Information Technology for the county. "Please rest assured that we are moving in the right direction,

Blackhawks on good trajectory

Life

By RICHIE HALL

Reporter Sports Editor

The Sheridan football team was all over the place this summer.

The Blackhawks did their fair share of scrimmaging during the vacation months, taking on schools of different varieties and sizes. Sheridan is taking this week off, but will be back at it on Monday as the official practices begin.

Bud Wright, soon to begin his 52nd year of coaching the 'Hawks (53rd year overall) listed all of the opponents his Sheridan team scrimmaged over the summer, and it was a lengthy one. The Blackhawks went down to Indianapolis for a scrimmage with Arlington, but other than that stayed mostly in the north-central part of the state.

The Blackhawks had scrimmages against Southwood, Frankfort, North Miami, Tri-County, Traders Point, Kokomo, Eastbrook and Logansport.

"We tried to get a variety," said Wright. That enabled Sheridan to see different teams and different outlooks.

"I'm happy the progress we've made so far," said Wright. "We're coming along decently." The coach said that "things are beginning to fall into place" and that the 'Hawks have "accomplished a lot."

There is some good experience returning for Sheridan. Leading the way will be senior Joey Callahan, who rushed for 2041 yards last season, with an average of 5.7 yards per carry. Callahan scored 18 touchdowns.

Junior quarterback Drake Delph is also back. He threw the ball well last year, totaling nine touchdowns, and could also score on the run, with seven TDs. Delph had well over 1000 all-purpose yards, with 650 yards passing and 468 more on the ground.

Two more seniors, Gunner Williams and Brody Perry, will also figure into the offensive scheme, as will junior Rhett Williams. Gunner Williams had 18 catches last season, with Perry and Rhett Williams both scoring three receiving touchdowns.

Senior Tanner Swindle and juniors Karl Whaley and Jesse Kolb are also back; Kolb was a defensive standout, making 92 total tackles. Also returning are senior Hunter Pflugh, junior Nick Burnell and sophomore Chris Starks, all of whom had solid defensive seasons.

"We got several kids back on both sides of the ball," said Wright.

Sheridan's schedule is a little different this season, due to changes in the Hoosier Heartland Conference. The league was formerly 10 teams, split up into two five-team divisions, with the two leaders playing at the end of the season for a conference championship.

But this season, three schools (North White, Tri-County and Frontier) left the HHC, leaving seven schools in the league. So, the conference has gone back to a traditional schedule, with the teams all playing each other to determine the champion.

Sheridan's first two opponents are the same, old rivals Western Boone and Clinton Central (also an HHC opponent). The Sheridan's Joey Callahan rushed for over 2000 yards and 18 touchdowns in his junior season last year. Callahan is one of several good players coming back this year for the Blackhawks.

Blackhawks were already playing all but one conference team before this year. The missing team was Clinton Prairie; Sheridan picked up Prairie for its Week 5 contest.

Another new opponent is South Decatur, who the Blackhawks welcome for their Week 9 game. Tipton completes Sheridan's non-conference schedule with a Week 7 game.

Greyhounds look inside to improve

By RICHIE HALL

Reporter Sports Editor

Editor's Note: Carmel High School football coach John Hebert provided this article to the Hamilton County Reporter about who is returning for the defending Class 6A state champion Greyhounds, as well as some information about what the team has been up to this summer.

The Carmel Greyhounds had a productive summer of work on the field and in the weight room. A choice was made not to scrimmage with any outside opponents nor participate in 7-on-7 competitions. Instead, we focused on improving our internal practice methods and film study.

Offensively, Carmel has one returning starter, quarterback Jake McDonald who threw for 2400 yards, 31 touchdowns and nine interceptions. Jake has been a strong leader this summer and continues to develop. Atticus Clouse showed signs of being a great playmaker for Carmel as a slot receiver after a strong track season. He is very fast and catches the ball well. We expect him to have a great season. Our offensive line is the biggest surprise of the summer. Led by Zac Bowman, a senior with a few starts in 2016, the unit has shown great promise in both run and pass situations. Juniors, Caleb Shaffer, Matt Kleppinger, and Sloan Goldblatt have had a great summer, along with senior Jon Vanzetta, and junior, Dominic Cate. Sophomore Haakon Van Beynon has established himself as the frontrunner for the starting TE spot, but junior Sheridan transfer, Rhett Williams is also in the mix. At running back, senior Will Schmidt, junior Camari Hunt, and sophomore Dylan Downing are all great weapons with a variety of skillsets.

Defensively, the summer has been a great opportunity for developing depth at defensive line, linebacker and in the secondary. The defensive line looks to be another strength of the team. Beau Robbins is an outstanding defensive end who holds five Big Ten offers as a junior. Seniors Vance Roudebush and Jack Frey have done very well, as has Brebeuf Jesuit transfer, Cole Brevard, a sophomore that is 6-foot-3, 255 pounds. Joey Schmidt (second leading tackler in 2016 with a Bowling Green offer), Alex Brown, and Matt Boyer had strong summer sessions at linebacker. Ben Leary, Matthew Wolfe, and Nate Frey all return as starters in the Greyhound secondary and have performed very well. Leary is also getting reps at linebacker. Mark Allen, Andrew Colombo, Nick Leinbaugh, and Jake Nichols are all seniors that have made a big impact this summer in the secondary.

Carmel returns Conner Coghlan at placekicker after going 14-of-15 on field goals in 2016 including 3-of-3 in the Class 6A state championship game. Coghlan is also a very strong punter and will add depth there along with Zachary Bradley who returns from a great 2016 season. Bradley is also a starter at fullback.

We are very excited for the 2017 season. This season we have an opponent for the controlled scrimmage for the first time in several years. East Central visits Carmel Stadium on Aug. 12 before the Hounds travel to Louisville to play the Kentucky defending state champions, the Trinity Shamrocks, on Aug. 19.

Greyhound wins Indiana PGA Women's Open

The REPORTER

Anna Appert Lund, playing out of Carmel's Prairie View Golf Club, cruised through the second round and that sent her to the winner's circle at the Indiana PGA Women's Open.

Appert Lund finished last Wednesday's second round with a six-under par 66. Add that to her first round score of 70, and that gave her an eight-under par 136 for the event. Appert Lund made 13 birdies during the tournament, including eight on the second day.

Brittany Kelly, a former Hamilton Southeastern star playing out of Carmel's Woodland Country Club, tied for third place with a two-under par 144. Kelly divided up her six tournament birdies evenly, making three in each round.

Westfield's Cailyn Henderson, just days away from beginning her senior year as a Shamrock, finished tied for ninth with 149. Henderson had three birdies for the event.

Shamrocks seniors driven to win State

By RICHIE HALL

Reporter Sports Editor

The girls in the class that set new standards for the Westfield girls golf team are now seniors.

State qualifiers since they were freshmen, this year's Shamrock seniors have led their team to a runner-up finish at state over the past two seasons. Now they're ready to make one more run at the state championship.

"This season looks to be an extremely exciting one for us. We have four seniors on our roster that have put a lot of time and energy into making our program what it has become and they are a determined group. With their experience and the combination of the younger talent we have, it is our goal again this year that we put ourselves in a position to have a chance to win each event we play," said Westfield coach Trevor Neu.

The four seniors are Cailyn Henderson, Adrienne Montalone, Margaret Wentz and Emma Clary. Henderson is an All-State player three years running and tied for individual runner-up honors as a freshman, and since then has gone on to be one of the state's leading players. The other three seniors have all been varsity players since they were freshmen.

Seniors: Emma Clary, Cailyn Henderson, Adrienne Montalone, Margaret Wentz. Juniors: Megan Barker, Naomi McKenney, Jamilah Pelarios. Sophomores: Jocelyn

Bruch, Natalie Shupe, Grace Snyder.

Freshmen: Gabby Fekete, Cate Jensen, Alli McEvoy.

Also back is Jocelyn Bruch. Last year, she made an immediate impact on the Shamrocks team, and was named to the All-State team as well. Two more sophomores are on the roster: Natalie Shupe, who played a few varsity matches last season and Grace Snyder, who moves up from junior varsity.

As it has in the past, Westfield will hit the ground running once the season officially begins on Monday. The Shamrocks will play four tournaments in the first four days, starting with the Bloomington South Invitational. On Tuesday, Westfield travels to Stony Creek for the Hamilton Southeastern Invitational, where they will see fellow Hamilton County teams.

The Shamrocks will then head to the Golf Club of Indiana on Wednesday for the Zionsville Invitational, then go to Crooked Stick on Thursday for an invitational there.

"Last season was a fantastic year for us and we look to continue to build off of that success and the experience we gained," said Neu. "There are so many good teams in the state this year and within our own conference so each match and invitational will be a grind. It is our goal to use the challenge of the invitationals we play to help us put together another run in postseason and compete for a State Championship."

Green Huskies looking for leadership

By RICHIE HALL

Reporter Sports Editor

After graduating one of the state's top players last season, it's not surprising that the Hamilton Heights girls golf team will look a little different this season.

The Huskies will be "quite young and pretty inexperienced," in the words of their coach Kim Drake. There are no seniors on this year's team. But there will be some varsity experience, thanks to three returning letter winners and another golfer who is back after taking a year off.

The top returner is a junior, Kate Biggs, one of the letter winners who is back. The other two are sophomores: Alyx Harley and Ellie Arrowood. All of them played regularly on the varsity last season.

"Kate and Ellie have been involved with lessons since last season and I am confident there will be good improvement from both of them," said Drake.

Lexi Tucker

played for Heights in her freshman year, but didn't play last year. She returns this season, and Drake notes that Tucker brings athleticism to the team and has "shown a lot of improvement."

"I am sure she will factor in to our top five players," said Drake.

ence on the team. A key freshman could be Rebekah Steffen, who moved into the Heights district from Avon. Steffen played golf as a junior high student, and Drake said he's hopeful that she will play a role for the Huskies.

Heights will be moving ahead with a tough schedule this season, starting with a trip to the Plainfield Invitational on Monday. The Huskies then play at the Hamilton Southeastern Invitational on Tuesday, where they will see other Hamilton County teams - meaning some of the best teams in Drake said that many of this year's golfers watched Caitie Gehlhausen, one of the most successful golfers in Heights history. last season. Gehlhausen achieved her goal of playing in the state tournament last year and is now off to play Division I golf at High Point University in North Carolina.

With Gehlhausen graduating, this year's Huskies will be in a new position of taking on leadership responsibilities, said

"It will be interesting to see who begins to step up in those areas," said Drake.

Lady Greyhounds long on experience this season

By RICHIE HALL

Reporter Sports Editor

With a nice mix of experience and strong freshman, expect another solid season from the Carmel girls golf team in 2017.

The Greyhounds finished fifth at the state meet last year, and have the ingredients to make a return trip this year. Leading the way are three seniors, an All-State junior and seven freshmen ready to start their careers as Greyhounds.

"We look for our seniors and returning players to lead the team," said third-year Carmel coach Kelly Kluesner. "We have quite a few freshmen that will make a solid impact on the team this year. We are excited for tryouts (Friday and Saturday) and look to build upon the successful summer tournaments the players had."

A top returner is junior Nina Hecht, who finished tied for seventh at state last year and was named to the All-State team. Senior Erin Evans also played on the state team last year, as did junior Libby Mc-

The two other seniors are Lahiri Chitturi, who played junior varsity last year, and Alex Waples, who went back and forth between varsity and JV. Returning juniors include Lucy Frey, Calli Kohl and Ella Woods, all of whom move up from JV. Sophomore Elizabeth Hedrick played in a couple varsity matches, in addition to mostly JV meets last season. Marney Jones also has JV match experience.

The Greyhounds will play four invitationals in their first four days of the season, first traveling to the Bloomington South Invitational on Monday. Next up is the Hamilton Southeastern Invitational at Stony Creek on Tuesday, where Carmel will see several Hamilton County opponents.

After that, the 'Hounds head to the Golf Club of Indiana on Wednesday for the Zionsville Invitational, then play the Crooked Stick Invitational on Thursday.
