Fishers road builder honored

The City of Fishers Assistant Engineer Tami Houston was recognized by the Board of Public Works and Director of Engineering, Jeff Hill, for achieving the status of Certified Road Builder, a certification held by only 154 people in the State of Indiana.

City plans three more roundabouts by 2019

Noblesville is rapidly joining other cities in adopting the roundabout method of handling traffic at increasingly busy intersections. Three more roundabouts are planned in the city during the next two years.

But, this year traffic circles opened on 10th Street, to the north at Cumberland Road and on the south at Greenfield Avenue. Technically, the one at Cumberland is a county, not a city, project.

Roundabouts were once controversial, but in recent years the driving public has appeared to become acclimated to the relatively new concept in traffic control.

To the northwest, a roundabout is now found at Carrigan and Hague roads. Now the city plans another at 19th and Pleasant streets for next year. Then, in 2019 two more will be under construction at Field Drive and Cumberland and at Greenfield Avenue and Howe Road. These projects for 2018-19 are being paid 80 percent with Metropolitan Planning (MPO) funds and 20 percent

No fewer than ten roundabouts have been built in the rapidly growing commercial and residential areas east of State Road 37, but until recently there were almost none in the so-called old city.

The REPORTER

Residents in Westfield will have a chance to learn about valuable safety practices this weekend when the Westfield Fire Department hosts the 2017 Westfield Safety Festival.

The event takes place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 9, at Village Park Plaza. There is no cost for admission.

local funds.

Of course, other communities in Hamilton County have been rapidly building the now-common traffic circles since about 2000. Carmel claims to be the national leader in roundabouts with more than 100 and more are underway. Westfield and

Fishers also have numerous roundabouts at major intersections.

Noblesville city officials have received generally favorable reviews on the recently opened roundabout at what was called the 'five-points' intersection of South 10th, Greenfield Avenue and Christian Avenue.

By 2020, motorists can expect to find elevated interchanges, a type of hybrid roundabout, on State Road 37 south to I-69. This huge project, financed largely with state funds, is designed to better move traffic on the extremely busy highway.

Noblesville ideas going national

The REPORTER

Judi Johnson, economic development director for the City of Noblesville, will be speaking at the CEOs for Cities National Meeting this year in Phoenix, Ariz. At 9:30 a.m. on Nov. 1, Johnson will speak as part of the "How Will We Live & Thrive?" on the Housing, Education and The Arts Panel.

Johnson

The City of Noblesville lives and thrives by saying "Why not?" to ideas from its strategic partners. Most recently Noblesville has prioritized ideas that have maximized efforts in education and the arts. The process used most successfully to sustain those ideas has been one of collaboration – to identify and incubate opportunity.

In 2012, the Noblesville Economic Development Department and local businesses were challenged by workforce needs at the same time local high school administration was pondering how to create a more effective, real-life career path for their students. Three years later, the intersection of those needs resulted in an alliance between government, education and business called NoblesvilleWORKS.

A collaborative strategy also exists with the arts. A partnership between Hamilton County Tourism, Nickel Plate Arts, Noblesville Main Street and the Noblesville Arts Council identified a shared vision for the City.

The execution of that vision resulted in the brand "Hipstoric," which positions downtown Noblesville and acts as an umbrella for all arts activities. The synergy has attracted additional artists, events and small businesses to downtown and the State of Indiana recognized that effort by designating Noblesville as a Cultural Arts District.

Carmel breaks ground on Monon expansion

The REPORTER

The City of Carmel broke ground Thursday on a major widening and expansion of the popular Monon Greenway through the heart of Midtown and the Arts & Design District. The new Monon Boulevard project will transform the current 12-foot wide path into a multi-faceted 140-foot wide right-of-way section that will include new dedicated lanes for cycling, buffer zones, sidewalks, green spaces, one-way streets with additional parking on either side of the trail and a new Midtown Plaza at 4th Street SW near the Allied Solutions corporate headquarters and the new Sun King Distillery, both of which are already under construction.

“This City project is the culmination of years of planning and responding to the needs expressed by our residents who have wanted a vibrant, walkable downtown with many different options for buying a home, renting an apartment, working within a short walk or bike ride to their office, shopping at unique stores and dining at local restaurants,” said Carmel Mayor Jim Brainard. “This expansion of the Monon Greenway will become Carmel’s version of beach-front property and is already producing a great deal of interest from the business community and local developers.”

The expanded trail will serve the rapidly growing Midtown redevelopment area where the city is partnering with private developers to create a new corridor connecting the City Center and Arts & Design redevelopment districts, which will include a mix of offices, restaurants, retail and residential units in what was once the city’s primary industrial area.

The project is also eagerly anticipated by trail users who have voiced their concerns about congestion in this area. An average of 300,000-plus run, walk or bike on this stretch of the Monon Greenway from Main Street south to the Palladium each year, making it one of the most congested stretches of the trail in Carmel. The new project will separate those who are on the trail for leisure and those who are seeking rigorous physical activity.

In addition, the plans call for neighborhood green spaces, additional trees, arts plazas, community benches, kiosks, spray plaza, bocce ball court, connections to popular destinations and the Midtown Plaza that will feature bicycle parking, public art, outdoor café spaces and other features.

Work will begin immediately and is expected to take about 18 months to complete. The estimated cost of the Monon

Boulevard and Midtown Plaza projects ranges from $20 million to $23 million, which will come from a variety of sources including bonds and developer commitments. The Monon Greenway will remain open during construction.

'You might as well like yourself'

"You might as well like yourself. Just think about all the time you're going to have to spend with you. And if you don't think too much of yourself, how do you expect others to?"

— Jerry Lewis as Prof. Kelp, "The Nutty Professor" 1963

I can't say that I have always been a huge Jerry Lewis fan, but noted several insightful moments in the above named movie that really hit home. Although the movie was marketed as a comedy (and granted there are some funny moments!) it says so much more about both self-acceptance and society's expectations of individuals.

I could also definitely go off on a political reverie here however will spare my readers that! Essentially what I wish to convey in this article is how many of us tie our self-perception to the perceptions and ideals of others — be that friends, family, or celebrity. Both men and women are prone to doing this but my experience is that women are more likely to have these issues of non-acceptance as it appears to their physical attributes or fitness levels.

In working with clients as a fitness instructor and nutrition/wellness consultant I have learned that most women seem to have an "ideal" that they have formulated over the years and often feel "less than" if they have not achieved that. And, frankly, I see this played out as I observe my friends, family, and random strangers I see in the grocery store. It can happen at every age level but more so as we enter our middle years and beyond that we "give up" and don't feel it is helpful or important to work on our fitness level, our healthy eating plan (not a DIET!) and our mode of dress. When we give up on self-improvement the results are apparent to others, yes, but most importantly to ourselves and as the quote above indicates — think of all the time you get to spend with you! How we present ourselves in public reflects our own view of how we see ourselves. And how we think is likely to be reflected in how we feel, how we look, and most importantly our emotional and physical health. Age is not a factor; self-improvement is not just for the young!

Using myself as an example, as a teenager and young adult I was very active and within my prescribed weight for my height. Moving forward, maintenance becomes important! Flexibility for coordination and balance, weight training for toned muscles and aerobic conditioning for heart and lungs are all needed on a regular basis, particularly as we age. While I have always been a vegetarian, as a young person I was not careful about balancing my eating for nutritional purposes and have always enjoyed dairy products and sweets. Although I do still sometimes enjoy those latter items, I do so only in moderation and work to make sure I am balancing with protein and complex carbohydrates as well as vitamin supplementation. Now — the last point of the top three issues, i.e., fitness, eating plan and mode of dress, please hear me out. Men and women PLEASE do not wear your pajamas in public! Sigh. Most often the way we present ourselves by our chosen mode of apparel sends a message to others and most importantly to us regarding the way we perceive ourselves. There are ways to present ourselves — dressed — which fit whatever our style may be: casual, professional, trendy, etc. that do not include sleepwear as streetwear. Clean, fitted, stylish and appropriate attire does not mean expensive wear. There are options for any budget. I can guarantee that if you truly want to be the best YOU, to feel good, be healthy and look great, just move your body finding some activity that you enjoy that will also give you the rewards you deserve. Enjoy your occasional treats but provide your body with the energy and nutrition it deserves. And, finally, leave the loungewear at home and present yourself looking your best. You won't regret it!

Carmel reaches out to help Texas pets

The REPORTER

The Barrington of Carmel is lending a helping hand to some of the most vulnerable Texas residents affected by Hurricane Harvey: pets. The senior living community is holding a pet supply drive to benefit the SPCA of Texas, which has taken in hundreds of evacuated animals from Corpus Christi, Houston and Beaumont, Texas.

From Sept. 1 until Sept. 30, the public is invited to drop off donations at The Barrington of Carmel art studio, located at 1355 S. Guilford Road. Donations needed for both dogs and cats include dry pet food, canned food, cat litter, toys, leashes and gift cards to pet stores. The community understands that organizations like the SPCA of Texas run on donations from the public and they want to give back during this difficult time.

"It is heartbreaking to see all the rescued animals that families had to leave behind," said Jesse Sias, executive director. "Pets are great companions for people of all ages, and we want to make sure they are well taken care of during this time of transition. Our community has a connection to Texas. Not only is our corporate office headquartered in Texas, we also have five sister communities throughout the state. When we were thinking about how to help, animals came to mind almost immediately. I know the city of Carmel and surrounding areas will step up and help us send hundreds of donations to the South. We hope to make this a successful fundraiser and show the Gulf Coast they are not alone during this disaster."

Hurricanes and tropical storms can be traumatic events for everyone involved, including pets. During this disaster, the SPCA of Texas put every available resource behind assisting pets and people who have evacuated the Gulf Coast.

"The SPCA of Texas is a wonderful organization that provides disaster relief to pets affected by this storm," said Nikki Meeker, senior living coordinator. "These volunteers have hearts of gold, and we hope to make their jobs a little easier by collecting items and having them sent to Texas. When you adopt you not only rescue that animal, but you make room in the shelter to give other animals a second chance at life. That's exactly what this organization is doing for the animals they have rescued during Hurricane Harvey."

The Barrington of Carmel will also be donating clothes from residents to associates and their families at The Buckingham, their sister community in Houston.

Fishers makes Mudsock comeback

By RICHIE HALL
Reporter Sports Editor

Thursday's Mudsock volleyball match between Fishers and Hamilton Southeastern may go down in history as the most dramatic ever.

The Tigers were down two sets to none, but came back to stun the Royals in five sets. The final score was 22-25, 16-25, 25-15, 25-23, 15-5. Fishers not only won itself the Mudsock trophy, but it also helped the school out: The Tigers now lead 4-3 in the overall Mudsock standings, with football to be played tonight.

"The scoreboard reflected our play," said Fishers coach Steven Peek. "We did not put forth enough effort in certain areas, came right back out in the third and started doing it, and I think that then that spurred us on forward."

Southeastern won a hard-fought first set, then had it a little easier in the second set. A key play was Meredith Phillips and Lark Jones teaming up for consecutive blocks to give HSE a 15-8 lead. The Royals won the last four points of the set, with Bria King hitting a kill and Grace Kane serving an ace that got Southeastern to set point.

The Tigers began to regroup in the third set. Fishers set the tone right away, with Elizabeth Weeks and Camryn Haworth making two blocks in a row for the first two points.

The Tigers built their lead progressively: A 5-1 advantage became 9-4, then 15-8, then 22-11. Mallory Hernandez helped out with timely kills, and Haley Soper hit the spike that got Fishers ahead 22-11. Rose Duffy tipped the ball over on set point to get the Tigers their first set.

The fourth set was a battle. The Royals led 4-1 after Taylor Shelton put down consecutive kills, and led by as much as 13-9.

But Fishers roared back to an 18-14 lead, taking nine of the next 10 points. Camryn

The Fishers volleyball team came from behind to win the Mudsock trophy over Hamilton Southeastern Thursday, dropping the first two sets before winning the next three for a five-set victory. The Tigers are shown here with Jeanne and Robert "Dub" Clark, whose family sponsors the Mudsock competitions.

Haworth started the run with a kill, Audrey Haworth helped out with an ace, and Weeks provided a tip kill along the way.

Southeastern came back to tie at 18-18, aided by a Shelton ace. The Tigers responded by winning three straight points - two Hernandez kills and a Duffy/Soper block. Fishers never trailed again, although the Royals fought off two set points before the Tigers finally grabbed the set.

"The fourth was tight, and I think that's just because HSE's a really good team," said Peek.

After that, Fishers zoomed through the fifth set. Hernandez pounded down three kills while helping the Tigers take a 10-2 lead. Emma Rosenberg served an ace along the way. On match point, Soper made a net tip that secured the victory.

"Everyone was just so happy and getting excited after every point, so that's kind of how we won," said Hernandez.

Hernandez wound up with 27 of Fishers' 61 kills.

"It was just really awesome having a great student section and a lot of people cheering," said Hernandez.

Audrey Haworth served three aces. Weeks totaled three blocks, with Camryn Haworth making 2.5 blocks.

"Camryn Haworth has a great serving run at least twice every match," said Peek. "And she absolutely was a big reason why we won the fifth set by such a margin."

Rosenberg made 21 digs, with Duffy getting 16 digs, putting her over 100 in that category for the season. Duffy also handed out 50 assists.

Shelton hit 21 kills for the Royals, with King putting down 10. Kane scooped up 24 digs, with Olivia Phillips handing out 41 assists.

"Obviously was a heartbreaking finish," said Southeastern coach Jason Young. "Three weeks ago we saw them, they beat us pretty handily in two. So we've made some improvements over the last few weeks."

"We had our chances, obviously, in set four. But we're young and we're learning how to win. It's a process. It's a process that's going to take time."

The Tigers are now 11-1 and travel to Yorktown on Tuesday. Southeastern is 7-7 and hosts its own Showcase event Saturday morning.

The Blackhawks won their home opener 1-0 over Tri-Central in an important Hoosier Heartland Conference game. Sophomore Will Zachery scored Sheridan's goal at the 28:12 mark of the first half. After that, it was a defensive battle and the 'Hawks held on for the win.

Carmel played to a tie with Lawrence Central 2-2 in a Thursday Metropolitan Conference game.

Jack Muller scored both goals for the 3A No. 18 Greyhounds, who are 4-4-1 for the season. Ben Godden and Babacar Diatta both made one assist.

"I couldn't be more proud of how the team stuck to the task and were able to overcome several obstacles," said Carmel coach Shane Schmidt. "Game by game, our spacing and positioning is improving. We will continue to work hard and prepare for our next game."
