Lively discussion at Fishers town hall

By LARRY LANNAN
LarryInFishers.com

Four local members of the Indiana General Assembly held a town hall meeting Saturday morning in Fishers, and there were plenty of issues raised by members of the audience. The seats in the Fishers City Hall Council Chambers were roughly 75 percent full of constituents, many with questions for their state lawmakers. The back and forth became so heated at one point a lady in the audience walked out in frustration over what she viewed as the lack of response to questions posed to the legislators. The first question centered on a recent State Board of Education vote to create new standards for high school graduation. Teachers in the audience were clearly concerned about the lack of the state board's consideration of educators, who largely testified against the new testing standards. Senator Victoria Spartz showed a crowd a very thick book of regulations governing schools in the state. Senator Jim Merritt said he is ready for a discussion about the board's decision, but emphasized this comes as a response to employers in the state, who claim high school graduates lack basic skills after graduation.

If all goes well Hamilton County youngsters will begin using the latest Koteewi Park attraction on Saturday. It's a 'tubing hill' designed for snow sledding, but with inner tubes instead of sleds. County park department employees, using a snow-making machine, are preparing a heavy base of snow on the hill for season long winter use at the county's largest park west of Strawtown.  Darren Murphy was sworn in as a court magistrate on Monday afternoon at the Government and Judicial Center. He takes the position formerly held by David Najjar who became judge of Hamilton Superior Court 5 last month. A reception hosted by Murphy's former law firm followed the swearing-in administered by Superior Court 6 Judge Gail Bardach.  The Carmel School Board held its last meeting of the year Monday without making any decision on the future of school superintendent Nick Wahl. He was placed on administrative leave in October pending a performance review according to school board spokesmen. No date has been announced for a decision on Wahl who continues to draw his salary while on leave. Roger McMichael and Amy Dudley are acting superintendents.  The Hamilton County Republican Party is moving its headquarters from Fishers to Westfield. The new offices will open in January at the new Edge

By FRED SWIFT

The first step toward a new bridge over White River at Pleasant Street was accomplished Monday by Hamilton County Commissioners. Following several years of discussion with the city of Noblesville, commissioners entered into an engineering agreement with USI Engineering for preliminary engineering services for the bridge. It will be the fourth span over the river in Noblesville and is key to a bypass of the city's downtown area. Estimated cost figures have not been announced. But, the county has a Major Bridge Fund with several million dollars. County government is responsible for building and maintaining major bridges throughout the county whether they are located inside or outside a city.

Hamilton County has safest cities in Indiana

The REPORTER

SafeHome, a home security system ranking and review website, recently released its assessment of the safest cities in Indiana with populations of at least 32,000, and three Hamilton County communities ranked highest on the list. In the top spot is Carmel with a safety score of 88.4, which places it in the top 10th percentile in the United States. It's no secret that Carmel has been one of the fastest-growing cities in the country for several years – its population has grown from about 37,000 in 2000 to more than 88,000 today. The median income per household is $101,494, and that high standard of living means less violent crime and property crime. Furthermore, for every one police officer in Carmel there are 655 residents. Fishers placed No. 2 with a safety score of 87.31, meaning it's in the top 25th percentile in the country. Its population is similar to Carmel's, with over 88,000 residents. Violent crime and property crime is low as well, with 791 residents per police officer in the city. Coming in as third-safest city in the state is Westfield with a safety score of 86.58. Significantly smaller than either Carmel or Fishers, Westfield has over 36,000 residents. Unlike Carmel and Fishers, though, Westfield boasts decreasing rates of both violent crime and property crime. There are 833 residents per police officer in the city. According to SafeHome, Hamilton County is clearly one of the safest places to live not only in Indiana, but in the United States as a whole. Kenley to run again as Noblesville Trustee

Dear Editor:

It has been a pleasure serve all the residents of Noblesville Township over the past three years as your Trustee. I am announcing my intention to run again for the office of Trustee in the 2018 election.

We have accomplished a great deal during my first term and I will continue to serve the township to the best of my ability if elected for a second term.

With the help of the Noblesville Township Board I have lowered your general property taxes during my time in office and plan to do so again in 2018. I cannot promise further tax cuts, but pledge to keep rates as low as possible for our residents.

In addition to a lower township tax rate we have expanded services to the community in many ways.

My belief is that our office should relevant to the community as a whole. When the budget allows, we provide community service grants to partner charitable and cultural organizations.

We have increased financial assistance to our residents who are in serious need of a hand up and have done the best we can to help the homeless in our county without a bona fide shelter in operation.

We strive to work closely with the City of Noblesville, the Noblesville Police and Fire Departments and with the Hamilton County Sheriff's Department.

Our friendly staff always responds politely to the many questions we receive from our citizens daily and, if we are unable to assist you through our office, we will always direct you to the proper government agency.

I inherited a solid Trustee Office from my predecessor and I believe that I have made it even better. I am thankful for that, my board, and all of our outstanding employees.

If re-elected I promise to put forth the same effort I did during my first term.

I look forward to serving our community for another term.

Tom Kenley

The issue of doing away with gun permits in the state was raised by one audience member. Merritt, with a part of his district in Marion County, said he is very concerned about the violence in the City of Indianapolis and cannot see himself supporting the proposal to do away with gun permits, and Representative Todd Huston agreed. Gun permits are often required once one crosses state lines.

The issues of voting, absentee ballots and mail-in voting were discussed at length. Spartz claims there is fraud in mail-in voting systems. Merritt says it's taken him 27 years, but he is beginning to change his mind on voting laws due to low voter turnout numbers in recent elections.

The Save the Train organization was at the event with several members pushing to keep the Nickel Plate line, from Tipton to the north down south to 22nd Street in Indianapolis, a rail line. The cities of Noblesville and Fishers are moving forward with plans to convert that rail line to a trail from downtown Noblesville south to 96th Street. The state lawmakers said this is a local decision that should be handled by local officials.

Solar energy was raised as many in the audience opposed the measure passed in the 2017 session to lower the solar energy incentive when selling excess power back to a public utility. Merritt chairs a key senate committee on utilities, and argued the law was a way to "level the playing field." Merritt says he has always been focused on how state law impacts rate payers. Senator John Ruckelshaus said he voted against that bill.

Hamilton County Commissioner Mark Heirbrandt says all Indiana counties are experiencing issues with overcrowding in their jails, saying some of that prisoner population is now mandated by state law. Merritt agreed with the county commissioner, but admitted he had no answers. Huston believes the state needs to look at sentencing standards and community corrections as answers.

It should surprise no one that the subject of Sunday alcohol sales came up. Merritt says he favors Sunday sales but wants the package liquor stores to continue their monopoly on selling cold beer. Huston generally agreed that Sunday sales can be worked out.

Several audience members expressed support of a hate crimes law in Indiana. Ruckelshaus said he sponsored the last proposal that did not become law and will work hard to enact a hate crime statute in the upcoming session. Merritt is concerned about the impact on law enforcement from any such law but plans to pay close attention to the issue during the 2018 session.

Merritt, a member of the Senate Republican leadership, says he expects the short session, which starts in early January, will end by March 14.

BRIDGE

Noblesville city officials have already begun plans for improving Pleasant Street between 10th Street and White River along with a connection to River Road to the west of the river. Ultimately, plans call for a bypass-type thoroughfare linking State Road 37 with State Road 32 where Hague Road currently meets SR 32.

The idea of the partial bypass is to relieve traffic congestion in the downtown business district. Currently all SR 32 traffic moves through Noblesville over the Conner Street bridge. There is a second downtown bridge at Logan Street, and a third at Field Drive on the north side of the city.

In a flurry of year-end highway improvement measures, commissioners also signed an engineering agreement with the firm of Beam, Longest and Neff for designing a "curve correction" on Strawtown Avenue at Prairie Baptist Road, entered into an interlocal agreement with Carmel for assisting in construction of an interchange at Keystone Parkway and 96th Street, and another interlocal with Fishers for a bridge over the Shoemaker Ditch on Allisonville Road.

And finally, the board signed an agreement with the Lochmueller Group for construction inspection of the planned Lowes Way Extension, also known as a flyover connection to allow 146th Street traffic to access southbound Keystone Parkway. Construction on the project is expected to begin early in 2018.

In other action, commissioners announced the contractual employment of Tammy Sander as the county's new public relations representative. She will start in her part time job immediately, spending the next three weeks acquainting herself with county government, local officials and various upcoming projects, according to County Commissioner Steve Dillinger.

State Road 37 design changes, budget issues

By LARRY LANNAN
LarryInFishers.com

Hamilton County residents received an update on the State Road 37 project Monday night, and officials had a lot to talk about. The intersection designs for 141st and 146th streets have both changed dramatically, the sequence of when intersections will be constructed is now up in the air, and officials are working to keep the project within budget.

First, the two major design changes:

141st Street was originally designed to be a two-lane roundabout. The new design calls for a single lane roundabout.

The 146th Street interchange with State Road 37 was originally planned to be a two-lane roundabout, but engineers are now drawing-up a traffic signal interchange, much like the one at Allisonville Road and Interstate 465 in Marion County.

The design changes come as a result of studying traffic projections for both 141st and 146th streets along State Road 37.

The engineering team drawing up the construction plans is now saying the sequence of bridge construction, or which interchanges will be constructed in which order, is now unknown. At one point, the team said it planned to construct the roundabouts over SR 37 at 131st and 141st streets first and at the same time. That is no longer the plan. During construction of the bridges, east-west travel at SR 37 would be blocked along those streets.

Construction of the bridges should begin in 2019. Work is now projected to be completed sometime in 2021.

One reason the 141st

Street roundabout has been reduced from two lanes to one lane is part of an effort to keep the project within budget. Fishers City Engineering Department Director Jeff Hill says those designing the plan are doing everything in their power to keep the construction project within the approved spending. The project is budgeted for $124 million, with the state providing $100 million. Hamilton County and the City of Fishers are chipping in $12 million each.

There was an extensive discussion of drainage. Expect more drainage work along SR 37 in 2018, with some lane closures needed.

Speakers at the update session included Troy Woodruff of RQAW Corporation, Jeff Hill with the City of Fishers and Eric Farny of American Structurepoint Inc.

Buzzer-beaters finally get Millers past Anderson

It took two buzzer-beaters, but the Noblesville girls basketball team was able to hold off Anderson Tuesday night at The Mill.

First up, Madison Whetro made a short floater with time running out in regulation to get the Millers tied with the Indians at 58-all. Then after Noblesville trailed for the majority of overtime, Emily Kiser made a layin at the buzzer to give the Millers a 63-62 win.

"We really did not execute very well on the defensive end at all tonight," said Noblesville coach Donna Buckley. "But we hung around, made some plays. Right at the end of regulation, Madison hit a shot to send it to overtime. We had to make some really big plays to win the game."

The Millers got off to a fast start in the first quarter before Anderson came back to within 15-13 by the end of the period. Noblesville led 34-27 at halftime, but the Indians tied the game by the end of the third quarter.

Kiser had another incredible game, with 26 points and 21 rebounds. She also had four steals. Mallory Johnson scored 14 points, and Maddie Knight pulled six rebounds.

As a team, the Millers handed out 23 assists. Abby Haley had six, with Johnson and Kiser each dishing out five and Knight handing out four.

Noblesville is now 6-6 for the season and plays a Hoosier Crossroads Conference game at Westfield Saturday afternoon.

Royals win back and forth dual with Millers

In a close dual meet, how a wrestler wins can make a big difference.

Hamilton Southeastern beat Noblesville 35-24 in an exciting Tuesday meet at the Royals gym. The Millers were making a run of five consecutive match wins and were within 29-24 going into the last bout. But a pin by HSE 160-pounder Ronan Hiner sealed the team victory.

Royals coach Kyle Poyer said that falls were the difference in the meet. Southeastern had three pins during the meet, while Noblesville had two. The Royals won eight total matches, including a streak of six straight bout victories to go ahead 29-6 before the Millers made their run.

The meet started with Southeastern 170-pounder winning by decision. Noblesville's Anthony Georgiou then took the 182-pound match by fall, then the Royals took off after that. Andrew Irick (at 195) and Crae Kunkelman (at 220) both got pins, while Nathan Shuey (at 285), Sam Crousore (at 113) and Jake Lemieux (at 120) all won by decision; in between, Jake Simone took the 106-pound bout on a 20-5 technical fall.

"We're riding some momentum off of a nice win at North Montgomery," said Poyer. He appreciated the effort from his young team, saying that "anytime they can come away and find a way to win, it helps them grow with their confidence that they can pull a match out."

The Millers got themselves into contention when Dalton Huffman (at 126) and Justin Johnson-Sparks (at 132) picked up decision victories. Gary Kitko won the 138-pound match by fall, then Sebastian Dillon (at 145) and Zack Perkins (at 152) each won by decision.

Noblesville coach Michael Weimer credited his team with fighting hard, and said his team is "starting to understand" how to compete in a dual meet as a team.

"We gave a little too many of the bonus points away, and we didn't get enough, and that's the deciding factor," said Weimer. "They understand it, now we got to execute it out in a match."

Next up for both teams is the Hamilton County meet, which takes place Saturday at Guerin Catholic.
