Sheridan fireman, policeman receive Life Saving Award

Photo provided

Deputy Chief Eric Gifford (left) with the Sheridan Fire Department and Officer Michael Foote (right) of the Sheridan Police Department were presented the Indiana Volunteer Fire Association (IVFA) Life Saving Award this week for their quick response and courage in saving a woman who was trapped in her burning car. Danielle Johns was headed east bound on State Road 38 when a vehicle traveling the opposite direction crossed the center line, and the vehicles collided head-on. Danielle Johns' car caught fire while she was trapped inside. Eric Gifford and Michael Foote took swift action, along with State Police Superintendent Doug Carter and Sheridan resident Rick Hogge, to remove Danielle Johns from her vehicle just before the car was engulfed in flames. Sheridan Fire Department Chief Merriman stated the teamwork was exemplary, and he couldn't be more pleased with the heroic efforts in saving Ms. Johns' life.

Fishers man spearheads ban on holding phone while driving

By DREW BLAIR
WISH-TV | wishtv.com

An effort has launched to change how drivers are allowed to use cell phones while behind the wheel.

Hands Free Indiana, a group spearheaded by Joe Locke of Fishers, is approaching lawmakers to consider banning hand-held phone use.

The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety has listed 16 states and Washington D.C. as already passing a law on talking on a hand-held phone while driving. Most of the laws exist on the West and East coasts. Illinois is the only state with the ban in the Midwest.

"We're getting to a very dangerous activity and a habit and it's just got to change," Locke said. "It's a public safety issue. It's not infringing on a personal right or anything of that nature. We're trying to keep people safe."

Locke has used a hands-on approach to prove his point about hands-free driving.

On several occasions during the month of July, he stationed along streets in Fishers with two tally counters. With one, he took record of the number of vehicles passing, the second counted the drivers who were visibly using a mobile device.

Locke did the math and determined that while on Brooks School Road for 30 minutes, he counted one distracted driver every 50 seconds.

The following day, Locke spent 30 minutes on 126th Street in Fishers counting one distracted driver every 15 seconds.

"It was pretty disturbing," Locke said. "It's putting everyone at risk ... I see someone on the side of the road whether it's a jogger, even a family walking on a sidewalk that's close to the road ... just think about a motorcycle or anyone in the car."

Hands Free Indiana planned to launch a website on Aug. 1 detailing the proposal the group would like to see sponsored by the legislature as well as ways the community can get involved in the campaign.

Charlie Hoover named interim principal at HSE

By LARRY LANNAN
LarryInFishers.com

Matt Kegley, long-time principal at Hamilton Southeastern High School, has moved to a position at the school district's central office. Charlie Hoover has been named as the interim principal. The announcement was made late last week to teachers and staff.

School Superintendent Allen Bourff said at the last school board meeting he would be looking at all options in filling the open principal's job, and apparently has decided to name an interim principal for the time being.

HSE School District spokesperson Emily Abbots says administrators will begin the search for a permanent principal soon, but local school officials are not sure when that search will officially begin.

Noblesville Police assist with child pornography arrest

The REPORTER

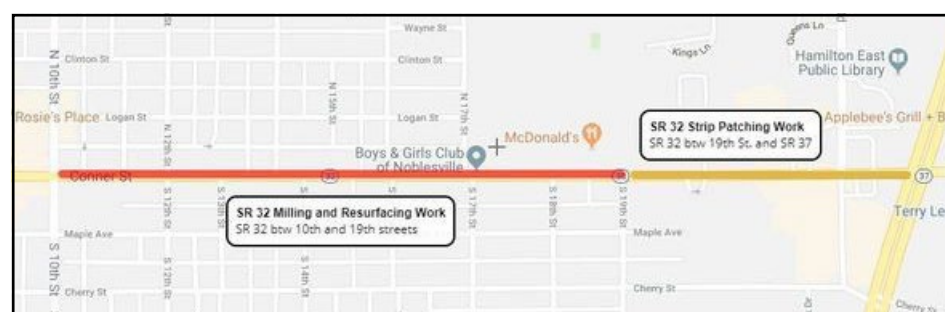

A 41-year-old man was arrested for possession of child pornography on Wednesday.

The arrest stemmed from a three month investigation by the Indiana Crimes Against Children Task Force, with the assistance of the Noblesville Police Department and the Franklin Police Department. The findings of the investigation led detectives to file for and receive a search warrant for a residence in Franklin. During that search evidence was uncovered and a subsequent arrest was made.

Gary Dismore, Franklin, Ind., was arrested and booked into the Johnson County Jail. Since an arrest has been made in this case and further inquiries shall be directed to the Johnson County Prosecutor's Office.

Anyone with information or tips about suspected child pornography or other child crimes can submit an anonymous tip at missingkids.com or by calling 1-800-843-5678.

State Road 32 restricted in Noblesville

The REPORTER

The Indiana Department of Transportation (INDOT) is announcing maintenance activities on State Road 32 between 10th Street and State Road 37 in Noblesville. Local roads will be closed to accessing SR 32 during the duration of the project, except for 17th Street.

Crews have begun working on SR 32 eastbound between 10th and 19th streets to remove four inches of pavement and resurface the road. Traffic will be slow during this section of the project. INDOT maintenance anticipate completing this section by this weekend, weather permitting.

Beginning the week of July 30, crews will resume work on the SR 32 westbound for asphalt work. Westbound traffic will be diverted to the center lanes during this portion of construction. Crews anticipate having SR 32 westbound completed by the end of next week.

Arcadia's Michelle Roehrich elected to national ASTSA office

The REPORTER

Michelle Roehrich, Arcadia, a member of the Class of 2018 at Ivy Tech Community College Kokomo, is one of four students nationally elected to serve as student representative to the Association of Surgical Technologists Student Association. Also elected were Kathryn Santiago, a recent Surgical Technology graduate of Ivy Tech's Indianapolis Campus; Bailey Galan of Tennessee College of Applied Technology in Crossville, Tenn.; and Joshua Lumpkin of Miller-Motte Technical College in Chattanooga, Tenn. They represent more than 7,300 student members across the country.

tunities for career development, networking, and getting to know surgical technology students from around the country,” Roehrich said. “For me, being a member of my professional organization is important because it gives me a voice as a student. I can offer my opinion and be heard. I can also learn from the thousands of other certified surgical technologists who have been doing this for years.”

Organizing and running the ASTSA Forum the following year is the primary responsibility of the representatives, who will meet regularly throughout the year to plan the event which will be part of the 50th annual AST national convention set for June 2019 in Maryland. Their registration, travel and hotel costs for the conference are covered by the AST to ensure they can attend.

“Being a representative is a great career-building experience for students,” said Wanda Folsom, AST staff liaison. “They are our profession’s future leaders!”

In May, Roehrich served as student speaker, representing Ivy Tech’s Kokomo Service Area Class of 2018 at the annual commencement ceremony.

ny. She will officially earn her Associate of Applied Science in Surgical Technology degree with honors (cum laude) at the end of July when she completes the final clinical rotation in the program.

Roehrich is cited as an example of perseverance and achievement. Over the last 10 years, she had a couple of false starts in higher education, but she found the right program for her future at Ivy Tech. Her academic accomplishments have been recognized with membership in Phi Theta Kappa, the international academic honor society for community college students, and she was named the Dean’s Award winner as the outstanding 2018 graduate in the Surgical Technology program. She has served as president of the Surgical Technology Club on campus.

Also a wife and mother of five children ranging in age from 3 to 16, Roehrich said her husband, Michael Roehrich, is her biggest supporter and “keeps the house running while I’m studying, at school, doing clinicals.” Her children serve as inspirations for her perseverance, she said, including the eldest daughter, a high school sophomore looking forward to her own future. “I want her to know things can change, plans can change. Life may not go the way you thought it would ... but you can still finish,” Roehrich said.

Finishing her associate degree represents the jump of just the first hurdle toward an ambitious life goal. Roehrich has just been hired as a surgical technologist at two centers – fulltime at the IU Saxony Surgery Center in Fishers and part-time at The Gillian Institute, a plastic surgery center in Indianapolis – which will both provide experience and help fund her full-time work on a bachelor’s degree at Indiana University Kokomo that begins in August.

And when that’s done, Roehrich says, the next goal will be to attend Indiana University School of Medicine in Indianapolis. Her ultimate achievement: To become the skilled surgeon in the operating room, leading the team in improving the health of her patients.

For information about Ivy Tech Kokomo’s Surgical Technology program, contact program chair Jia Hardimon-Edgington at jhardimon@ivytech.edu or call her at 765-252-5575.

Auditions Sunday, Monday for The Belfry's 'Our Town'

The REPORTER

Auditions for The Belfry Theatre's "Our Town" will be at 6 p.m. Sunday, July 29, and 7 p.m. Monday, July 30, at The Belfry Theatre, 10690 Greenfield Ave., Noblesville.

The play will open The Belfry Theatre's 54th season in celebration of the 80th year of the American classic Pulitzer Prize-winning play, "Our Town," by Thornton Wilder.

Those auditioning should prepare a short (one-minute) monologue. There will be readings from the script. Auditionees may be asked to pantomime a simple action.

Director Nancy Lafferty is seeking a diverse cast.

"Our Town" tells the story of a fictional small town in America during the early 1900s, through the everyday lives of its citizens. On a bare stage, with the use of heavy pantomime, the story of life, love and death unfolds before us with delicacy and tenderness. With humor, wit and exceptionally powerful storytelling, "Our Town" offers universal truths about what it means to be human – in any town, at any time.

Production dates are 8 p.m. on Sept. 14, 15, 21, 22, 28, 29, and Sunday matinees at 2 p.m. on Sept. 23 and 30.

The play, in three acts, is being directed by Nancy Lafferty.

For more information on auditions or for a downloadable audition packet, visit thebelfrytheatre.com.

Lafferty's assistant director is Sam Brown. Producer is Betsy Reason.

Produced by special arrangement with Samuel French, Inc.

Strip patching operation

INDOT plans additional work on SR 32 for strip patching. Strip patching allows crews to remove and replace small sections of damaged roadway.

Work is expected to begin between 19th Street and SR 37 on or around Aug. 2. This section of strip patching is anticipated to be completed by the end of next week, weather permitting.

Flaggers will be on site during this strip patching operation to maintain traffic. INDOT urges the public to please continue to exercise caution for personal safety and the safety of INDOT workers in and around the work zones.

Playing quarters with the Alcohol Code Revision Commission

JACK RUSSELL
Chief Operating Officer,
OneZone Chamber

On July 18, the Alcohol Code Revision Commission had their first of five meetings. If you are looking for the words “cold beer,” they are not in this, nor in the minutes of the meeting. What is the purpose of this group? If you go to the website, it says they have three primary functions:

- To protect the economic welfare, health, peace and morals of the people of this state;
- To regulate and limit the manufacture, sale, possession, and use of alcohol and alcoholic beverages;
- To provide for the raising of revenue.

The “what we do” is probably not why you are reading this; you want to know what happened.

We gained some interesting factoids. Did you know there are 272 types of alcohol permits? The good news is some on this commission do believe that we need to “make the code more understandable and less complex.” Best part of the discussion? Mr. Buskirk’s response to finding out about this information, “I can’t believe we have over 200 permits currently.”

We can’t either Mr. Buskirk.

The most interesting discussing was around escrow permits. A permit that goes into escrow is for a variety of reasons: “Death of the owner, transfer of business plan or owner, etc.” So, what do you do with all these permits sitting in escrow? According to Representative Smaltz, “... the permits belong to the state.”

The Deputy Mayor of Fishers, Leah McGrath, spoke at the meeting. One of the most important takeaways from her remarks: “The quota system for us doesn’t work. Maybe we should remove the boundaries for the system. We need to help those who have made investments already.”

So, no, cold beer was not a part of the discussion, but there are some items from this meeting that play an important role in how our communities in Hamilton County continue to grow their business community.

Since we are talking about alcohol, some of you might have heard of the game “quarters.” If not, the way it works is simple. Each player takes turns bouncing a quarter off the table and into the glass. If the attempt is successful, the player gets to give the person of their choice a drink. If you make three attempts in a row, you get to make a rule.

This commission is currently playing quarters. We need to make sure that with only four more meetings left, the rules they create support businesses in Hamilton County.

Brooks School Road now open

The REPORTER

The Indiana Department of Transportation announced on Friday the opening of Brooks School Road in Fishers between 126th and 136th streets.

Milestone closed down the road to add a sidewalk to the east side of the bridge over Interstate 69. INDOT and the city of Fishers have been in close coordination to add the sidewalk to the bridge.

The city of Fishers is working through a plan to tie in new sidewalks connecting to the bridge. Until the sidewalks are built on each side, INDOT will be blocking the sidewalk, prohibiting pedestrian traffic over the bridge.

County Economic Development reorganizes to focus on attracting highly-skilled workforce

The REPORTER

The Board of Directors of the Hamilton County Economic Development Corporation (HCEDC) voted earlier this month to shift the organization's focus from traditional economic development initiatives – such as lead generation and business attraction – to attracting and retaining skilled workers for new and growing companies.

HCEDC was formed in 1992 to attract new business and promote entrepreneurship across the county. Since then, it has made significant contributions to the county's economic development both directly and in partnership with cities and towns throughout the county.

However, as they have grown, the cities of Westfield, Noblesville, Carmel and Fishers have added experienced economic development professionals and implemented their own strategies to attract new business investment and jobs in their respective communities. Rather than duplicating these efforts, HCEDC will now shift its focus to attracting and retaining a talented workforce with the right skills to fill these new jobs, something business and civic leaders regard as key to building sustainable communities.

"As competition for new businesses increased, the [HCEDC] board recognized that the county's low unemployment rate would be a challenge, especially in high-demand industries including innovation-based manufacturing, technology and hospitality," said Tom Dickey, HCEDC board chairman. "Rather than duplicating efforts, HCEDC's new focus on attracting and retaining a talented and skilled workforce will complement city economic development efforts and help position Hamilton County for continued economic success."

A newly created job description for a Director of Marketing, Economic Development will be posted later this summer. This position will be responsible for developing integrated marketing, web content and promotional strategies to position Hamilton County as a great place to work, learn, live and invest.

There's already a lot to promote in the area. Not only is Hamilton County consistently included as a best place to live and raise a family, its communities have some of the highest high school graduation rates in the state. More than 56 percent of the population hold a bachelor's degree or higher. For teens who choose not to pursue a four-year college degree, local businesses and school districts have begun piloting programs for workforce training and apprenticeship opportunities in a variety of technology, manufacturing and skills-focused careers.

The HCEDC is funded through private contributions and county plat fees. To leverage this limited budget, the board of directors selected Hamilton County Tourism as its new management contract partner to oversee the new HCEDC employee. The board will continue to oversee this new direction.

"We are excited to join forces with an organization dedicated to promoting Hamilton County's ongoing investment in education, business investments and talent attraction," said Brenda Myers, Hamilton County Tourism president/CEO. "We already support our communities by focusing on visitor attraction in key markets. Combining our team's skills with a dedicated resource to help promote investment, learning opportunities and talent attraction will go one step further in realizing a successful future for the county."

As part of its contract, Hamilton County Tourism will provide office space and equipment pro bono and handle payroll and benefits on behalf of the HCEDC. Its marketing and communications team will work closely with the newly hired staff member to create content, marketing, and communications programs to raise awareness of workforce development efforts and quality of life in the county. The two organizations already share a brand family.

Back-to-school checklist for families with asthma

StatePoint

For the more than 6 million children in the U.S. living with asthma, gearing up for another school year involves much more than picking out a new pencil case and backpack. Accounting for nearly 14 million lost school days each year, asthma is one of the main illness-related reasons that students miss school.

With better asthma management, children are able to feel healthy, safe and ready to learn! For a full toolkit and free resources from the American Lung Association, visit Lung.org/asthma-in-schools.

To get ready for a successful school year, the American Lung Association recommends this back-to-school checklist for families with asthma:

1. Schedule a check-up with your child's physician. Use your yearly check-up to create or revise your Asthma Action Plan, check the effectiveness of asthma medication and dosage, get prescriptions for back-up medications for your school nurse and coaches, as well as ensure your child knows how to use his or her asthma medicines.

2. Assess your child's readiness to self-carry medication. All 50 states have laws that allow children to self-carry and use their asthma inhalers at school. Use the American Lung Association's Self-Carry Assessment Tool to see if your child is ready to carry and self-administer asthma medication. The assessment tool will help parents create a plan for children not yet ready to self-administer medication, as well as help children learn the necessary skills throughout the school year.

(c) Baona - iStock

3. Set up an appointment with your school nurse. Remember to bring in your updated Asthma Action Plan and back-up medications. Take this time to sign all required medical forms, discuss whether your child can self-carry their own quick-relief inhaler, as well as deliver any special instructions when it comes to physical activities and asthma emergencies that may happen during the school year.

4. How's the air in there? Take a moment to talk to your child's teacher about asthma, what triggers might bring on an attack and what to do in an emergency – whether that be to head directly to the school nurse or use his or her quick-relief inhaler. This may also be a great time to talk about the air quality in the classroom. Mold, fragrances and idling buses can all be asthma triggers for your child.

5. Introduce yourself to the PE teacher and any coaches. Kids with asthma shouldn't have to miss out on playing outside or participating in gym class. You can quickly put teachers' and coaches' minds at ease by talking about exercise-induced asthma, ways to manage symptoms and what to do in an emergency.

6. Have fun! While it may take some proactive organizing at the start of the school year, you are helping to ensure that your child is safe and active throughout the school year. Take a deep breath and enjoy a healthy 2018-2019 school year.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

No man also seweth a piece of new cloth on an old garment: else the new piece that filled it up taketh away from the old, and the rent is made worse. And no man putteth new wine into old bottles: else the new wine doth burst the bottles, and the wine is spilled, and the bottles will be marred: but new wine must be put into new bottles.

Colts Training Camp...

Coach Reich likes what he sees after two days

By MEGHAN McKEOWN
WISH-TV
With two days down at Colts training camp at Grand Park, head coach Frank Reich says he likes what he sees out of the team so far.

"You know, understanding that every little details matters, we talk about a phrase we use every now and then: 'Every detail matters.' Every little detail, every little meeting, so I feel like we are focused and on point," said Reich, who is in his first year as coach.

Also on point is Andrew Luck's return to the field. The quarterback continues to get back into the swing of it, and his coach has taken notice.

"I just think he's gotten more crisp. You know, that's a word we use every now and then. You got to have a snap and crispness to it because you got to play fast," said Reich. "So, I think when you are rehabbing through an injury, there is a little bit where there's not quite as crisp. We've seen that as we've talked. We've seen that get better and better."

A lot of that crispness came to fruition during the time between mini-camp and training camp. Andrew Luck went to California to continue to prepare for training camp this season, even receiving a visitor in the form of one of his wide receivers.

"Well initially, I told you I went out there for a contract to sign with the Warriors, and he just so happened to hit me up. It fell through, you know, they got their players. Yeah, they took Boogie," said wide receiver Chester Rogers.

Rogers enters his third year in the league as one of the veterans in the receiving group, making that extra work with his quarterback out west all the more valuable for the upcoming fall.

"He just started throwing to a moving target, so just to get the chemistry back. I played one year with him, but just to get back on the same page and get back throwing. We still got a lot to work on, but I feel like we do have chemistry," said Rogers. Hopefully that chemistry will continue to develop throughout camp with a healthy Luck.

Age Group State

Eight Carmel swimmers get wins on first day

The Indiana Swimming Age Group State meet is underway at the IU Natatorium, and guess what? Carmel Swim Club is already winning many events.

Already, eight different Carmel swimmers won individual championships, this after action on Friday, the first day of the three-day meet. Carter Hadley leads the list with three first-place finishes. Hadley has won the Boys 10&U 100 freestyle, 50 butterfly and 200 individual medley races.

Carter Lancaster (Boys 11-12 200 backstroke and 400 free) and Devon Kitchel (Girls 13-14 200 butterfly and 100 breaststroke) were double winners on Friday. Other top finishers for Carmel were Lexie Ward (Girls 11-12 400 free), Cory Han (Boys 10&U 50 breaststroke), Lynsey Bowen (Girls 10&U 200 IM), Gretchen Lueking (Girls 13-14 100 free) and Brandon Malicki (Boys 11-12 100 breaststroke). Kitchel and Lueking also swam on Carmel's victorious Girls 13-14 400 medley relay team, along with MacKenna Lieske and Parker Kurzawa.

Kyle Ponsler of the Fishers Area Swimming Tigers won two events on Friday, triumphing in the Boys 13-14 400 IM and
