New protective bike lane features in Carmel vandalized

WISH-TV | wishtv.com

Less than two weeks after their installation, several steel planter boxes along Range Line Road's new "cycle track" bike lane have been hit by vandals.

As of Monday morning, five of the features had white stripes spray painted on the southern facing sides of the planters.

The city of Carmel had just unveiled the protective bike lane earlier in the month.

Kimball

City councilor Bruce Kimball has been outspoken in support of bicycle use and infrastructure in Carmel. He posted a picture of the vandalism on Facebook on Sunday.

"I'm reflecting on what sadness must be in someone's life to vandalize public property. What was even sadder were the few citizens on Facebook rationalizing this behavior," Kimball wrote in the caption.

Carmel's government spent more than $140,000 on 40 steel planters that were purchased to dot the two and a half miles of cycle track planned for completion in the summer of 2019.

Mayor Jim Brainard said the purpose of the planters is to provide a barrier between vehicle traffic and bicyclists using the lane.

Carmel planning to enforce zoning on Lucas estate

WISH-TV | wishtv.com

A hearing Monday night on the zoning for the Lucas estate "party barn" is off the table, and the city of Carmel said they plan to enforce zoning to the fullest extent of the law.

The Lucas estate and their attorneys have argued that having private events at the home is not a violation of Carmel zoning laws. City officials sided with many neighbors and said hosting events at the mansion is a violation of the residential zoning in the area.

The Lucases and the city have gone through mediation to try to reach an agreement. The issue, which had been pushed back a month at July's Carmel Board of Zoning Appeals meeting, was set to be heard Monday.

GiGi's Playhouse sets fundraising goal of $60,000 . . .

'3.21 Run' for Down syndrome in Noblesville

The REPORTER

GiGi's Playhouse Indianapolis, a local Down syndrome achievement center, will host its fourth annual 3.21 Mile Run on Saturday, Sept. 8 at Forest Park in Noblesville. The event supports the continued growth of GiGi's Indianapolis location and the 400 Down syndrome participants and families that benefit from its free therapeutic, educational, wellness and career programs.

This year's fundraising goal is $60,000, money that is vital to helping GiGi's achieve its mission. "Down syndrome is not a disease and there is no cure," Executive Director Denisse Jensen says. "It's not going away. It's the largest chromosomal disability in our country and yet, it's the least funded. This run is critical in helping us expand our programs and help more children with Down syndrome no matter their skill level or their family's ability to pay."

The 3.21 Run is also designed to educate and inspire Central Indiana residents to embrace children and adults with Down syndrome - kids like seven-year-old Jaida from Indianapolis, who was the very first child to enter GiGi's Playhouse Indianapolis when it first opened its doors in 2015.

"GiGi's is an amazing, phenomenal place," Jaida's mom Deidra said. "We often feel alone and it's nice to go to a place where you can be yourself and just exhale. It's like an extended family. Plus, it doesn't cost a dime!"

The 3.21 Run kicks off with open registration at 2 p.m., along with live music,

ALDEN NEWBY: 2018 Youth Honoree

Alden Newby is a journeyer. Born in Georgia, this 16-year-old has lived in six states. The son of a newly-retired Army officer, Alden's family just settled in Noblesville.

"We heard about GiGi's Playhouse when we were stationed in El Paso, Texas," Alden's mom Kiersten recalled. "Of course, there wasn't a playhouse near us, but we heard about the one in Indianapolis. Having grown up in the area ourselves, we knew we wanted to retire in Indy. We contacted GiGi's the minute we arrived!"

A sophomore at Noblesville High School, Alden loves the performing arts. He is in non-impaired classes for theater, 3D art and the school's all-male show choir. Alden is also involved with ballroom dancing and theater at GiGi's Playhouse as well as the Page and Stage Theatre Troop in Noblesville.

"He's always loved movies and music," Kiersten says. "His dad and I are musicians and his older sisters used to make him play dress up. We also did a lot of his speech therapy with puppets. But the best is watching him do impersonations with his dad!"

Having previously lived in a community with little support for kids with Down syndrome, Kiersten and her husband Joe helped establish a Down Syndrome Association chapter in El Paso. They understand first-hand the importance of a safe place like GiGi's.

"Without this kind of community, these kids can't live complete lives," Kiersten said. "They want to date. They want to have friends they can hang out with. They want all the same things other kids sometimes take for granted."

The community GiGi's creates is also invaluable for the caregivers. "It's life saving for some," Kiersten admits. "Parents with young children don't know the journey they will be taking. GiGi's gives them such a nice head start learning from parents who have paved the way, breaking down barriers and making it easier for families who follow."

The rules are simple and the game is easy for beginners to learn, but can develop into a quick, fast-paced, competitive game for experienced players. Pickleball combines many elements of tennis, badminton and ping-pong. It is played indoors on a badminton-sized court with a slightly modified tennis net.

Pickleball participants should park on the east side of the building off of Harrison Street by Beaver Materials Field and enter through Gate 18. The cost for a drop-in player is $5, or a Punch Pass is available for $50 for 12 visits. LUCAS ESTATE

Last November, the Carmel director of community services said in a letter that the Lucas estate was not allowed to operate as an event venue and could only host four events a year.

This month, he wrote another letter to the attorneys for the estate saying he was withdrawing the previous letter, and the BZA's order "remains in effect and can be enforced to the fullest extent of the law."

A representative for the city of Carmel provided the following statement:

"We consider this a matter of litigation because the BZA Order is valid and enforceable against the Lucas Estate. Neighbors to the estate still have a grave concern about noise, traffic and what they believe is business use of a residential property. Any action to enforce that BZA Order by the City will potentially result in litigation. Despite this, both parties continue to discuss a potential resolution. To guarantee the integrity of these discussions, the City has no further comment at this time."

The City of Carmel says it plans to enforce the current zoning regulations concerning what kinds of usage of Lucas Estate is permitted.

I-Team 8 a statement from Forrest Lucas that reads, in part:

"Last November, the City of Carmel issued a "Director's Determination" that sought to place restrictions on the Lucas Estate that did not apply to anyone else. The Determination was essentially the City of Carmel's opinion about how our property should be used. In our view, many of these restrictions were unreasonable and deprived us of the full use and enjoyment of our property without due process. We had no choice but to appeal."

"Following the mediation, the City of Carmel withdrew its Director's Determination that ended the need for an appeal.

"We are not looking for special treatment. We have repeatedly said that we are willing to abide by the same rules as everybody else. We have committed to work with the City of Carmel to ensure that we are in compliance with the zoning and noise ordinances. We want to continue to use our property to be charitable to people who need it."

Get festive with Sheridan's bean supper fundraiser

The REPORTER

The Sheridan Historical Society is getting festive this fall and will have a special fundraising event serving beans and cornbread from 5 to 8 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 15 in Sheridan Veterans Park near Boxley Cabin.

The outdoor meal will be $8 per person, which includes cornbread, and CrossRoads Youth has teamed up to assist in serving a variety of soft drinks. Desserts will be available at extra charge. Both the society and Crossroads are not-for-profit 501(c)(3) organizations.

Chair Laura Stapleton-Robbins has invited bluegrass jammers to bring their instruments to Pioneer Hill for the evening to enjoy the historic setting. George Boxley's pioneer cabin was built in 1828 by the Virginia abolitionist who escaped jail and operated the surrounding grounds as a farm with country schoolhouse. The log cabin is on the National Register of Historic Places, and Pioneer Hill is one of Hamilton County's highest elevations.

new museum, now being remodeled at 315 N. Main St., and much of the work is being done by members and volunteers, per Ron Stone, society president.

"The building has served as a vintage motorcycle shop and a dime store/license branch, but originally the structure was constructed in 1917 to serve as the site of the Hippodrome movie theater," shared Stone. "The cabin is a great place for this first-time event because the society preserved it as a landmark restored in 2008."

The Sheridan Historical Society was incorporated in 1969 and features genealogy, a collection including a 1909 Black motor buggy, Civil War memorabilia with a restored American flag carried in Tennessee battles by then local Lewis Kercheval, and other features highlighting pioneer years.

Funds raised will be dedicated to the museum relocation and expansion and Crossroads Youth, a private youth initiative, will share in some of the proceeds donated.

Participants should bring lawn chairs, flashlights and insect repellent. In case of rain, the event will be staged at the nearby Sheridan Public Library.

Pritchett announces run for HSE school board

The REPORTER

Janet Pritchett, local businesswoman, 10-year classroom and community volunteer, and mother of four, has announced her run for the vacant Hamilton Southeastern District 2 School Board seat.

According to Pritchett, she has a long history of servant leadership specifically focused on public education. Her service spanned individual classrooms, five different parent teacher organizations (PTO), the Superintendent's Advisory Council and leadership of the district-wide PTO Forum. She has aided in building playgrounds, advancing STEM education, celebrating educators, and growing both volunteer and financial support of local schools.

Pritchett is running on a student- and teacher-focused platform. Among her top priorities are to:

- Explore alternative testing methods beyond standardized testing. "Student learning and growth is dynamic and anything but standard," said Pritchett.

- Establish Hamilton Southeastern as an employer of choice by focusing on teacher retention. "Student success is built upon world-class teachers. Retaining and investing in top talent, especially in the face of a state and national teaching shortage, must be a top priority," said Pritchett.

- Create transparency in decision-making and time-sensitive communication. "21st century communication is complex with multiple channels and delivery methods. While providing just-in-time communication to a district of 22,000 can be tricky, by listening to our core audience we can find areas for process improvement," said Pritchett.

Pritchett elaborates, "Hamilton Southeastern is an incredible school district that benefits from strong parent and community engagement. School board members should set a strategic vision to maintain that excellence. That includes providing educators with critical resources to build forward-thinking, global learning environments. While that can be a challenge in the current economic environment, I am committed to asking tough questions, working collaboratively, thinking creatively and listening to all stakeholders."

Visit pritchett4hse-schools.com to learn more about Janet, her platform, or to schedule a visit. School board elections will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 6.

Noblesville and Disney: Thriving in a modern world

Dear Editor:

Change is hard. Growing up, I can't even begin to count how many times my parents fed me the whole, "back when I was a kid..." line, to which I begrudgingly rolled my eyes. And yet now, as an adult, I catch myself doing the very same thing to our children as we try to navigate this new world that they live in.

There are so many aspects of my childhood that I think were better, safer, or easier than the way things are today. But as frustrating and hard as change can be, this generational trend of missing the "good ole days" isn't something that is going to go away. The world is constantly changing, adapting and evolving, and naturally, our children will adhere to and adjust to the changes much more fluidly than we do.

With that said, is all change really "bad?" Back to my parents (whom I am sure will read this and thank me for throwing them under the bus), they are about as stubborn as they come in terms of change. Both have stayed far away from any and all social media. Both struggle with evolving fashion trends, home decorating trends, and anything that involves multiple remotes or a touch screen. The phone in their kitchen still has a cord attached to it and they still make their own ice in ice cube trays. My mom regularly complains about everything being automated when using the phone, and my dad hates having to schedule flights, vacations, or purchase tickets using the "world wide web." It is also extremely painful to watch either of my parents navigate their laptop computer. Like I stated earlier, life was "way easier" back when they were kids.

But another interesting fact about my parents is that they LOVE Disney World. They went to Disney World for their honeymoon, took us to Disney multiple times growing up, and have continued visiting the parks as empty nesters and with grandchildren in tow. And while there has been some initial pushback each time Disney rolls out some fancy new idea (think Fast Passes and online reservations six months in advance, just to name a few), I haven't noticed the same grumbling and nostalgia for the past with Disney that we tend to get from the two of them about other places and things. In fact, my dad will be the first to praise how well Disney has adapted and changed with the times.

And this is where my analogy officially sets in.

You see, Disney has changed. A lot. It's bigger, fancier and more automated than it was 20 to 30 years ago. It has more parks, more rides, more hotels, more restaurants and more tech-ridden gadgets than maybe Walt Disney ever even intended. But somehow, Disney has managed to maintain its "happiest place on earth" reputation.

Does Disney look different than it did 30 years ago? Absolutely! But, is Cinderella Castle still intact and still a major identifier to Disney's world renowned image? For sure. Are there significantly bigger, faster and more technology-driven rides at Disney than there were 30 years ago? Yep. But you can still find "It's a Small World," "Jungle Cruise," "Pirates of the Caribbean," "The Tiki Room" and many other gems amidst the shiny, new rides.

That is how Disney has thrived. It has kept its charm and its identity while evolving and staying competitive with the times. And through thoughtful planning and collaboration, Disney has managed to keep "the old" while enhancing itself with "the new."

That is my hope for Noblesville - that through thoughtful planning and collaboration, we can find ways to honor and respect the past while also seeing the necessity for growth and change. Adding infrastructures to Noblesville isn't bad. Making Noblesville bigger and better isn't bad. Bringing more people to Noblesville isn't bad. Making sure Noblesville is keeping up with the times and staying competitive with neighboring communities isn't bad. It just needs to be done the right way. And in my opinion, that involves a lot of collaboration, compromise, idea sharing, listening, leadership, and a community willing to take risks and embrace change.

If Disney had just stayed the same, like the "good ole days," it would no longer exist. It wouldn't have made enough money to thrive, wouldn't have attracted enough people to visit it or employ and it would have turned into a run-down, abandoned memory. I grew up near an amusement park called Geauga Lake in Aurora, Ohio. As a family, we had season tickets and spent many fun-filled evenings there. I recently googled it and found an article titled "15 Photos of Abandoned Geauga Lake Amusement Park." Talk about a downer.

I get it, change is hard. But I'd rather Noblesville's change resemble that of Disney World's than Geauga Lake's. Try as we might to avoid it, we live in a modern age and the world can't stand still. Let's work together to find ways to honor our past, hold on to what works, let go of what doesn't and be open-minded to new growth and ideas.

IU Health to allow tattoos, nose studs in modified dress code

WISH-TV | wishtv.com

Indiana University Health modified its dress code policy this past spring in an effort to modernize the workplace environment.

IU Health said that the changes are made to help "create an environment where our team members are personally valued, professionally invested and inspired by the work, our patients and colleagues."

Some of the notable changes include:

- "Non-traditional" hair colors
- Earrings, ear gauges and nose studs are allowed but not to be larger than 10 millimeters
- Tattoos are now permitted. If tattoos are deemed to be offensive, they must be covered

The Chief Human Resources Officer at IU

Health released a statement on the changes:

"We've updated traditional workplace policies in the past year to give nurses and other employees greater flexibility on the job and in their career paths. Our caregivers have embraced the new dress code. And, overwhelmingly, patients are supportive of the changes and comfortable with them."

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

And when Jesus was passed over again by ship unto the other side, much people gathered unto him: and he was nigh unto the sea. And, behold, there cometh one of the rulers of the synagogue, Jairus by name; and when he saw him, he fell at his feet, And besought him greatly, saying, My little daughter lieth at the point of death: I pray thee, come and lay thy hands on her; that she may be healed; and she shall live. And Jesus went with him; and much people followed him, and thronged him.

Hamilton County cross country meet

Carmel sweeps team trophies, GC's Gallagher, Greyhounds' Bates are individual champions

Everyone was preparing for a hot time at the Hamilton County cross country meet Tuesday at the Chanquapin Ridge course in Noblesville.

The race was pushed back 45 minutes so the runners could race after the heat of the afternoon. Once everything was finished, Carmel had defended both of its team championships and an individual title.

The Greyhounds won the girls race easily, with a score of 32 points. The host Millers edged out Hamilton Southeastern for third place, 71 to 76, with Fishers placing fourth.

Carmel's Phoebe Bates was the individual girls champion for the second year in a row. Bates cruised to victory in a time of 18 minutes, 12.09 seconds, over 47 seconds ahead of second place.

"I ended up feeling really good and I was very pleased with my time," said Bates. She was also happy the Greyhounds won again in the team standings.

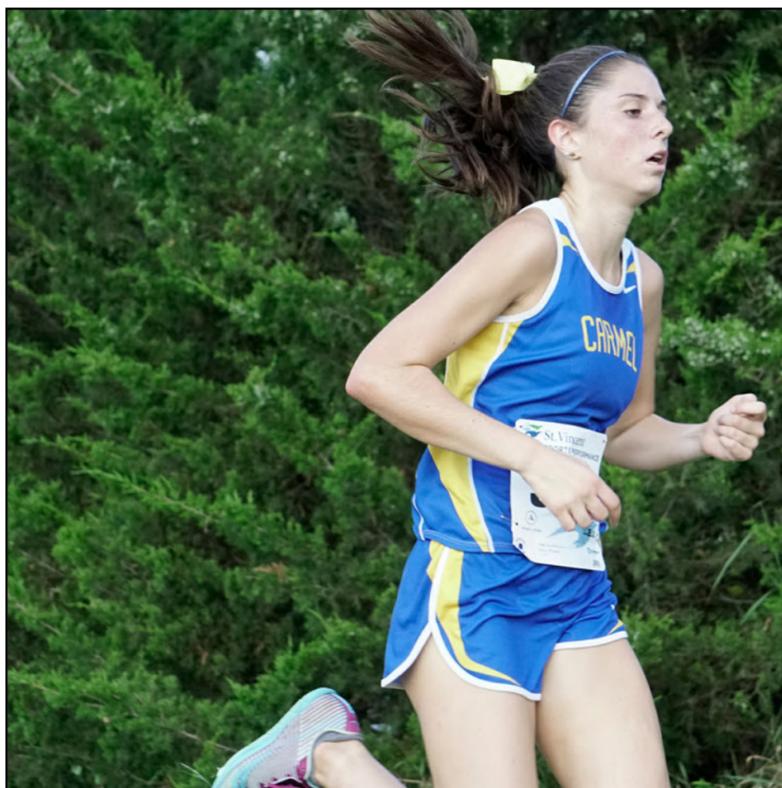

"I think we're looking a lot stronger this year," said Bates. "We got a lot of younger girls, so that's a plus. I think they'll be a big part of our team this year."

Four other Carmel girls landed in the top 10. Abby Parker finished sixth, Lindsey Roper was seventh, Jamie Klavon eighth and Roni Ledzema 10th.

"I was real pleased with how they raced tonight," said Greyhounds coach Andy Dalton. "It's going to be hot and humid, but it's August. It's Indiana. You're going to get races and the girls, they did exactly what they were supposed to do. I was interested to see how we would match up against some of these really strong teams in the county, and we looked real strong today."

The Millers also looked strong, with five girls finishing in the top 20. Bella Sharples-Gordon led the way by taking fifth place, while Sophie Reichard finished in 12th.

Meanwhile, Lulu Black had an outstanding race for the Royals, taking second place in a time of 18:59.97. Ellie Pedersen finished in 11th place, with Lilly Cummins placing 14th.

Carmel's Phoebe Bates won the girls race at the Hamilton County cross country meet on Tuesday at Noblesville's Chinquapin Ridge course. Bates ran the race in 18:12.09 to defend her individual championship.

Fishers scored 95 points to take fourth as a team. Miya Wai landed in ninth place, with Abby Carter taking 15th.

Guerin Catholic was fifth and Hamilton Heights sixth, but both teams had a runner place in the top four. The Huskies' Maria Mitchell finished in third place, with the Golden Eagles' Ellie Schroeder taking fourth.

Carmel's boys team held off Fishers to win that division, scoring 36 points to the Tigers' 49.

The Greyhounds had two runners in the top four - Patrick Campbell was third (16:17.96) and Grant Moon fourth (16:24.10) - and two more reach the top 10. Calvin Bates placed eighth and Thomas Gastineau took 10th.

Despite the heat, Carmel coach Colin Altevogt pointed out that his top two runners ran their best times of their career.

"I think that set the tone for us," said Altevogt. "The rest of our guys were obviously quite a bit off their best time ever, but I think a really good start to the season."

Ethan Meyer led the Tigers by placing second overall in a time of 16:17.76. Will Clark placed sixth and Dylan Arive finished 12th.

Hamilton Southeastern finished third as a team with 88 points and had two top 10 runners: Grant Wilson took seventh and Eric Swinson was ninth.

Noblesville placed fourth in the team standings by scoring 112 points. Travis Hickner had a solid race for the Millers, taking fifth place.

Westfield finished in fifth as a team; Mahamet Djour led the Shamrocks by taking 20th place.

The overall winner was Guerin Catholic's Quinn Gallagher, who ran the race in 16:05.79. Gallagher finished as the runner-up last year. The Golden Eagles were sixth as a team.

"All I was trying to do was put in a hard K on the fourth K," said Gallagher. "We didn't really care about the time, it was just go on effort."

GIRLS RACE

Team scores: Carmel 32, Noblesville 71, Hamilton Southeastern 76, Fishers 95, Guerin Catholic 126, Hamilton Heights 163, Westfield 185, University 254.

"There were a lot of momentum swings, a lot of positivity and energy, and a lot of kids simply having fun. Our team especially was able to learn from today. Everyone fought hard. It was exciting to see our 1 doubles team, Nic and Josh, hold on to win that second set after losing momentum early. It was also exciting to see such a big come-from-behind win out of our 2 doubles team, Liam and Jake. All the way around we are showing some great improvements on both the mental and physical sides of the game."
