Cicero's 27th annual car show was a Labor Day hot spot

The 27th annual Red Bridge Park Car Show was a big success for car enthusiasts and fundraisers Monday. The event was originally started by Charlie Cambre, but the Cicero Friends of the Park have been organizing it for the last several years. All the money raised Monday will go to support parks projects. There were 155 vehicles registered, and you can see more photos on Page 3 and online at ReadTheReporter.com.

Noblesville Schools to thank heroes

The REPORTER

Noblesville Schools announced Tuesday that it will host a "Hero Night" to honor the many community organizations, individuals and businesses who supported Noblesville Schools during the May 25 shooting at Noblesville West Middle School.

The Hero Night event will be held at 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 25 in conjunction with the Noblesville East/West football game at Beaver Materials Field.

Hero honorees can expect free game admission, tailgate refreshments and a recognition program. The general community is encouraged to attend the game and celebrate the honorees.

"We're so thankful for the support we received and want to give back to the many heroes in our community," said Rick Fields, athletic director for Noblesville East and West Middle Schools. "On May 25, we had first responders, medical personnel, counselors, businesses, churches and others from all over central Indiana responding generously to our needs. We hope they can all attend this event so we can express our appreciation.

Heights Middle School to receive Ryan White historical marker

The REPORTER

The Indiana Historical Bureau (IHB) has approved Hamilton Heights School Corporation's 2018-19 application for a state historical marker to commemorate the impact and contributions of Ryan White. The organization administers the Indiana Historical Marker Program to recognize significant people, places, events and organizations in Indiana's history.

Heights' application was among 34 submitted and 28 approved by the IHB this year. This cast aluminum marker, when complete, will be placed near the entrance of the Hamilton Heights Middle School in Arcadia. A special community dedication and unveiling is being planned to celebrate the county's most recent historical marker.

'Ryan's legacy in Hamilton County began here at the current site of Hamilton Heights Middle School (formerly the high school) August 31, 1987," explained Dan Smith, with more than a 30-year tenure at Heights and current Co-Chair of the Committee for Ryan's Marker. "It was the collaborative effort of current and former Heights personnel and members of the community that helped bring this important recognition to reality."

"Heights leadership at the time - including State Representative Tony Cook, then the high school principal, student body, faculty and staff - and a community that came together to give the White family a warm welcome and a place to be accepted deserves the bulk of the credit," continued Smith, speaking on White's transition to Cicero and Hamilton Heights. "White lived, attended school and worked in the community. No one could have foreseen the impact and historical significance this young man would ultimately have locally, throughout the state, nation and beyond."

White's marker, the seventh in Hamilton County, will be among the more than 650 that have been commemorated by an official Indiana state historical marker since the organization began issuing signs in 1946. The IHB provides publications, programs and other opportunities for Indiana citizens of all ages to learn and teach about the history of their communities, the state of Indiana and their relationships to the nation and the world.

"We are really excited about this particular marker and the opportunity to continue to share Ryan White's story with the public," shared Casey Pfeiffer, IHB's Marker Program Manager. In fact, IHB recently posted the following on the organization's Facebook page:

'Yee-haw for Youth' barn party set for next Saturday in Noblesville

The REPORTER

Noblesville Youth Assistance is kicking off a new annual event to raise money for the critical resources that serve local children. The western-themed, adults-only Yee-haw for Youth barn party will take place from 7 to 10 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 15 at Stonycreek Farm, 11366 State Road 38 East, Noblesville.

"Thanks to the generosity of our title sponsor, Gaylor Electric, we can serve up a great time for an even greater cause helping local youth," said Matt Nelis, president of the local chapter's board of directors. "It's important to us that Yeehaw for Youth will be a one-of-a-kind fundraiser that is uniquely Noblesville. We want people to look forward to coming out for the barn party each and every year because it's fun and it offers a chance to give back to our community."

Attendees are encouraged to dress for the occasion; jeans and other casual western attire are recommended. Activities include dinner and drinks, live music, bonfires, games such as horseshoes, cornhole toss and pedal cars that look like adult-sized tricycles to race

Bob Kravitz to speak about mental health tonight at HSE

By LARRY LANNAN LarryInFishers.com

Bob Kravitz will be the first to tell you he has the dream job of any sports fan. He has been a newspaper sports columnist most of his career, and he now writes for WTHR's website and appears on the TV station's newscasts talking about sports.

He will also tell you he is blessed with a wonderful wife and two outstanding daughters. To look at him, you would think Bob Kravitz has the idyllic suburban life

However, earlier this year, Kravitz went public in a sports commentary about his struggles with depression and panic attacks. The man with the seemingly perfect life had a hidden mental health issue no one would have imagined.

Kravitz was able to get treatment and is doing well now. He will tell his story of overcoming his medical challenges in an event at 6 p.m. this evening at the Little Theater at Hamilton Southeastern

High School. Kravitz and HSE Schools Superintendent Allen Bourff will talk about the importance of mental health and how Kravitz overcame his dark moments and recovered.

HSE addresses alleged student-involved blackface in social media post

WISH-TV | wishtv.com

Hamilton Southeastern Schools on Saturday said the administration was looking into a racially-charged social media post, reportedly showing a student in blackface.

Two girls reportedly involved in the incident are current high school students in Hamilton Southeastern Schools, a spokesperson confirmed Saturday.

The administration has reached out to both families and is actively addressing the situation, the spokesperson said.

The spokesperson said the investigation would continue on Tuesday.

No additional information about the post could immediately be confirmed. Below is the full statement from Hamilton

Southeastern Schools:

"We are aware of the recent social media activities involving students. At this time, we do not know all of the facts of this incident, but we take all reports of harassment and discrimination very seriously. We do not condone such behavior by any member of our school community. The use of racially-offensive language or behavior in our schools by anyone does not reflect our values as a district and will not be tolerated."

Reader from the Philippines supports Straw for Sheriff

Dear Editor

I am writing to support USAF Captain Jason Lee Straw (ret.) in his run for Hamilton County Sheriff, and to clear up some misconceptions.

Jason is a combat veteran with management experience while he served in Afghanistan. He and his team saved the lives of veterans blown up on the battle-field. Over 600, he told me. Jason doesn't need more training about emergencies and terrorism as the current sheriff is asking Jason's opponent to get. Jason has served as an instructor.

Jason knows how to set priorities and his captain level rank in the U.S. Air Force was earned while serving on the front lines of the War on Terror, cleaning up the aftermath of terrorists attacking Americans there.

Other police departments across the nation actively recruit experienced veterans like Jason, but Hamilton County is fortunate that Jason is ready to serve and protect some more, and he lives in Hamilton County.

Jason's opponent has said Jason does not have law enforcement experience, but that's not true. In addition to serving in the 82nd Airborne as a paratrooper and in the U.S. Air Force, Jason also served in the Indiana National Guard, which is a law enforcement agency. His opponent has only ever served a sheriff, while Jason's chains of command were the Indiana governor or the president of the United States.

When you look at the backgrounds, Jason's rank as a U.S. Air Force captain and his heroic deeds saving veterans' lives outranks a middle manager at the sheriff's office whom the sheriff thinks "needs more emergency training."

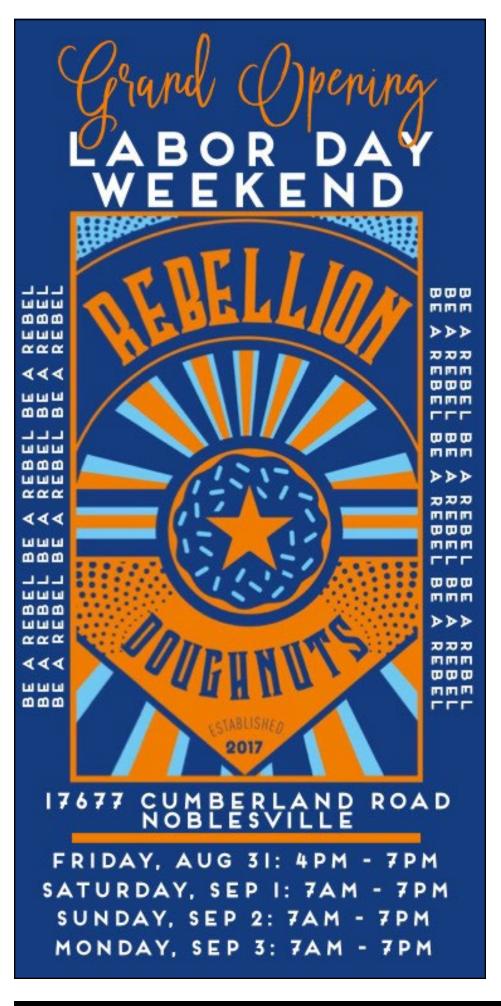

Jason's opponent may think he has an entitlement to the office of sheriff because he worked there a long time. But this is an election, not a political appointment, and the candidate with the superior level of service should be the next sheriff.

All I can say is: Jason Straw for Sheriff.

'Wasping': Teens using wasp killer to get high

WISH-TV | wishtv.com A potentially deadly drug trend called "wasping" is spreading nation-

Wasping first originated in Ohio, where an inspector with the Summit County Sheriff's Office said people were using the wasp killer to get high.

"It is used by crystallizing wasp killer and combining it with meth," Summit County Sheriff's Inspector Bill Holland told WHBC-AM, Canton, Ohio. Three people have been hospitalized after ingesting the deadly combo, authorities said.

Addiction experts say mixing chemicals and drugs is common, especially with younger users. But why? Officials say users get a more intense high, plus it's also relatively inexpensive. For less than $6, you can buy wasp killer at many stores, and there are no age restrictions.

Officials are reminding everyone that wasp killer is intended for killing insects

Side effects of ingesting the insect killer include seizures, possible paralysis and in extreme cases, can lead to death. After ingestion, users become "flushed and agitated with an elevated heart rate and profuse sweating."

The users will also have no memory of what hap-

Brooks, Merritt, Young unveil state's 5G proposal

The REPORTER

FCC Commissioner Brendan Carr announced the next 5G order on the Senate floor of the Indiana Statehouse Tuesday morning. Joined by Indiana elected leaders, including State Sen. Jim Merritt – one of the authors of the state's small cell bill - U.S. Sen. Todd Young, and U.S. Rep. Susan Brooks, Carr unveiled a proposal to cut costs and streamline approval periods for small cells – the physical building blocks of 5G.

"5G will create jobs, improve education, and promote public safety. But to upgrade our networks, we must upgrade our regulations," said Carr. "Policymakers can't claim success if 5G is only deployed in big cities like New York and San Francisco. Those 'must serve' cities will get next-gen mobile broadband almost regardless of what we do. Success means every community getting a fair shot at 5G. To achieve that success, we need to update our rules to match this revolutionary new technology."

"As the co-founder and co-chair of the Congressional 5G Caucus, I understand the significant impact 5G is going to have on our communities," said Congresswoman Brooks. "5G has the potential to unleash the power of emerging technologies such as telemedicine, save lives with enhanced critical public safety communications, transform existing industries and so much more. Indiana was one of the first states to pass legislation streamlining the deployment of small cells – the wireless infrastructure needed to make 5G possible. Because of our state's leadership and our friendly regulatory environment, it is not surprising that Indiana has quickly become a model state and overall leader in the country for 5G deployment. I am proud to be here today in Indianapolis for this announcement and I look forward to our state's continued leadership so all Hoosiers can experience the benefits of the next generation of wireless connectivity."

study, Carr's plan will save $2 billion in unnecessary fees, stimulate $2.5 billion in additional small cell deployments and create more than 27,000 jobs. The action will also help close the digital divide, providing new connections to those who need them most. The economic analysis shows that Carr's plan will see two million more homes served by small cells – 97 percent of them in rural and suburban communities.

Carr's plan, set to be voted on at the FCC's Open Meeting on Sept. 25, is modeled on the small cell bills enacted in 20 states across the country. The bills aim to reform laws that were typically designed years ago for macro-cells - the 200-foot towers that were built to cover large areas with legacy wireless service. Small cells, most of which are the size of small backpacks, are most often attached to existing structures, such as light poles or buildings. The recently-enacted state small cell bills limit the fees that localities can charge to process construction and permitting applications for small cells, and they require localities to approve or disapprove small cell deployment within a certain time frame.

Indiana enacted forward-thinking small cell legislation in 2017, which paved the way for small cell deployment, especially in rights of way. Since passing its bill, Indiana has seen outsized investment from wireless providers. Two of the largest wireless providers have announced that 5G-capable service will go live in Indianapolis this year, making the city home to the most intensive 5G investment in America. In total, providers have built more than 1,000 small cells in 30 communities across the Hoosier state.

"High-speed connectivity drives jobs, economic growth, education and improved healthcare outcome," said Senator Young. "Behind forward-thinking

"Here in Indiana, we believe in minimizing burdensome regulations in order to pave the way for investments of all kinds in our local communities and across the state," said State Sen. Jim Merritt, an author of Indiana's small-cell reform legislation. "We made common-sense changes in our state law to encourage wireless investment, and those efforts are paying off in a tremendous way. This new technology is going to change our world significantly, and I believe Commissioner Carr's proposals will have that same positive effect on the rest of the nation.'

"At the federal level, we have learned from the forward-looking legislation that local leaders have enacted in 20 states and counting," concluded Carr. "We have been encouraged by their leadership, resulting investment, and new mobile broadband in their communities. My plan builds on those grassroots, commonsense reforms and extends regulatory relief throughout the country so that no community will be left behind."

Carr's plan has four main components:

1. Implements long-standing federal law that bars municipal rules that have the effect of prohibiting deployment of wireless service

2. Allows municipalities to charge fees for reviewing small cell deployments when such fees are limited to recovering the municipalities' costs, and provides guidance on specific fee levels that would comply with this standard

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

And he called unto him the twelve, and began to send them forth by two and two; and gave them power over unclean spirits; And commanded them that they should take nothing for their journey, save a staff only; no scrip, no bread, no money in their purse: But be shod with sandals; and not put on two coats. And he said unto them, In what place soever ye enter into an house, there abide till ye depart from that place. And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear you, when ye depart thence, shake off the dust under your feet for a testimony against them. Verily I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for that city.

Kelsie James and Abby Dickerson both made two assists, with Mann, Aalivah Thompson, Tamara Smith and Emily Roper all handing out one. Erin Baker made two

"Finally some shots began to find their way into the net," said Carmel coach Frank Dixon. "The coaches felt that if we could play with more width while switching the ball quicker the result would be more goals. Tonight almost every assist came from a wide player plus our center backs and defensive midfielders did a great job with switching. If we can continue to improve on these two areas, we may have solved our scoring woes."

The 'Hounds are undefeated in the MIC at 3-0 and are 6-1-1 overall. Carmel hosts Lawrence Central at 7 p.m. tonight.

Huskies beat Frankton in thrilling dual meet

The Hamilton Heights boys tennis team won a thrilling 3-2 dual meet over Frankton on Tuesday.

The Huskies needed to come back to get all three of their wins. No. 3 singles Ben Wolfgang trailed in the first set, but then cruised to a 6-3, 6-0 victory by winning 11 straight games. No. 2 doubles Liam Huss and Jake Martin were down 4-1 in the first set, then took five straight games to win the set 6-4. Huss and Martin rode the momentum in the second 3-0.

At No. 1 doubles, Nic Rice and Josh Russell won the first set 6-1, lost the second set early due to rain. 6-4, then were down 5-2 in the third set before winning five straight games to clinch the match, 7-5 in the third.

"Tonight was all-around very competitive and an entertaining night of tennis," said No. 1 doubles: Timmy Dixon and Garrett Lloyd def. Michael Aikman and Simon Heights coach Justin Davis. "The teams were matched up well and if the rain stays away, Paris 6-1, 6-1 we will see Frankton again on Saturday in our Husky Invitational. Should be another fun No. 2 doubles: Uday Lomada and Jonesy McNamar def. Zander Klekovkin and day of tennis! A lot of credit to Ben, Nic and Josh, and Liam and Jake. They all were down Jack Reitz 6-0, 6-0 during their match and fought to come back and win the set."

The Heights junior varsity team won 4-1. Ethan Hall and Eli VanHaaren won singles matches, and the doubles teams of Drew Pennington/Colin Weber and Kal Colter/Grant Cavanaugh were also victorious.

In a Tuesday all-county boys meet, top-ranked Carmel beat No. 18 Guerin Catholic

The Greyhounds won No. 1 singles and both doubles matches before the match ended
