"I have spoken with two men that walked out of an explosion and fire last night – miracles happen! I am so thankful for CFD and CPD who cared for those men and evacuated kids and others out of the building. Many heroes took good care of one another in a scary situation. Thank you."

Mike Snowden, Darin Riney both resign effective early 2019 . . .

County to conduct national search for new 9-1-1 leadership

The REPORTER

Hamilton County's 9-1-1 dispatch center has earned a variety of awards, both state and national, and set the standard for dispatcher training. In 2019, Hamilton County will be looking for new leadership to hopefully take the 9-1-1 call center to the next level.

Mike Snowden, Executive Director of Communications for Hamilton County, has tendered his resignation. He has accepted a job as City Administrator for the city of O'Fallon, Mo.

"I wish to convey my thanks to the County Commissioners for their faith in my abilities," Snowden said. "I would also like to thank the members of the 9-1-1 Executive Board, the Public Safety Board, as well as the Mayors for their support, guidance and rock solid support during my tenure."

Snowden came to Hamilton County in 2013 from St. Charles County, Mo., where he served in Training and Quality Assurance. In his current position, Snowden leads a state-of-the-art police, fire and EMS emergency communications center.

The City of O'Fallon is Snowden's hometown. There, he will lead a city of more than 700 employees and a total budget of more than $100 million.

"There is no other job I would consider leaving my current position for," Snowden said. "My family is thrilled to have the opportunity to go home."

Mark Heirbrandt, president of the Hamilton County Commissioners, said Snowden has been instrumental in his leadership position as Director of 9-1-1 Communications.

"His exceptional leadership qualities were demonstrated during the Noblesville West Middle School shooting," Heirbrandt said. "We wish him continued success in his future endeavors and thank him for his service."

Snowden's last day with Hamilton County will be Jan. 25, 2019. An interim Director will be announced soon. That person will supervise the communication center while the county conducts a national search for Snowden's replacement.

Doctor visits are never fun at any age

As I've mentioned before, there are many similarities between taking care of your elderly parent and raising your own children. One area that comes to mind lately is doctor appointments.

When your kids are under 18, you typically take them to the doctor at least once a year for check ups (and more often as newborns.) Sometimes these appointments involve the dreaded needle for vaccinations. In my case, this process consisted of me holding one of my young sons on my lap and looking away when the nurse stepped up with the dreaded sharp instrument.

I can't even look at someone with a needle on a TV program or movie, let alone in a real medical office. If I do, the staff would no longer be dealing with one patient, but two as they pick up my lifeless body from the floor due to a fainting spell.

Thankfully my sons are now 18 and 16 and they handle needles without flinching. I haven't had to even hold their hands in years and the days of getting ice cream afterwards to soothe them – and me – are long gone.

But just when I thought those painful days of seeing someone I love getting stuck one or more times were over, now I'm taking my mother to various doctor appointments. And lately they've involved those dreaded needles and other instruments of torture.

Poor Mom has had to deal with the effects of her tanning sessions from the 70s and 80s – she's had spots of basal cell carcinoma that had to be taken care of at the dermatologist's office. Thankfully this skin cancer grows slowly, rarely spreads to other parts of the body, and is easily removed. Well, comparatively speaking.

Over the last few months Mom's had to have spots of carcinoma removed either through cauterization or with (gulp!) an excision. The latter of course involves those dang sharp objects.

Mom has had two excisions. The first time I stared at my phone with intense concentration as Dr. Siebe and his nurse worked on a spot on her arm. But my imagination was still racing and I felt bad knowing they had to jab her with needles to numb her up first.

The second time, I accidentally glimpsed up as Dr. Siebe was numbing Mom's forehead. My stomach rolled. I felt weak and light-headed as I saw her forehead puff up. I wanted to scream, "Don't hurt my mama!" Once again, like with my children, it was so hard to see someone I love feel pain.

I'm relieved to say that Mom's done with needles for a while. And I'm glad that her facility takes care of flu and pneumonia shots each year!

If we ever do have to face those sharp objects again, I think this time I'll hold her hand – while staring intently at the wall, of course. And maybe we'll go get Dairy Queen afterwards to help make it all better.

Hospital prices go public in 2019

WISH-TV | wishtv.com

A new federal rule will require all hospitals to post a master list of prices online detailing the services they provide so people can review them.

Starting Jan. 1, every hospital nationwide will be required to post standard charges online for every item and every service they provide.

Think about everything from drugs and casts to organ transplants and anesthesia.

This requirement was originally introduced in the Affordable Care Act of 2010.

Seema Verma, head of the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, told the Associated Press the new requirement for online prices reflects the Trump administration's ongoing efforts to encourage patients to become better-educated decision makers in their own care.

"We are just beginning on price transparency," Verma said. "We know that hospitals have this information and we're asking them to post what they have online."

In years past, hospitals have been mum when it comes to price lists, claiming they contained proprietary information or would be too confusing for patients.

"Putting our price information on our website is not difficult, but it's only a small part of the information that patients need to estimate their out-of-pocket expenses. Since each insurance company and particular plan processes so differently, it's difficult to know the exact expense for each individual. Calculating a more accurate out-of-pocket cost involves an in-depth look at the patient's particular insurance plan, whether he or she has met the deductible, and the complexity of the test or procedure. We encourage patients to use our customer service department as a resource to assist them with navigating through this process."

- Riverview Health Chief Financial Officer Brenda Baker

Some hospitals, however, have published some information like a small number of prices online, or they've shared them with hospital associations so potential patients can get an idea of some basic procedures.

Other hospitals require patients who want price information to contact their

Guerin Catholic responds to video of students mocking, bullying classmate

WISH-TV | wishtv.com

Guerin Catholic High School has responded to a video posted to Twitter showing Guerin Catholic cheerleaders mocking and bullying a classmate.

In the video, the students, sitting in a vehicle, record themselves as they rap vulgar lyrics denigrating and demeaning another student while wearing Guerin Catholic cheerleading uniforms.

After the video was posted to the social media site, Guerin Catholic High School President Dr. John Atha responded with the following statement:

"We have recently been made aware of the fact that a group of our students created an inappropriate video that was posted on social media. As Christians, we strive to respect the dignity of each human person and clearly this incident goes against that ideal. As a Catholic high school, we will use this situation as a teaching moment grounded in our vision to Lead with Humility, Serve with Love, and Trust in Providence.

Our students' safety and well-being are paramount and this behavior will not be tolerated. Rest assured, administrators are providing support and are in contact with the families involved to work through the disciplinary process.

If you have questions or concerns that you would like to discuss, please reach out to me."

health care provider or talk to someone in the billing department.

According to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), the federal rule requires hospitals to post the information in a "machine-readable" format, allowing consumers to download it into a spreadsheet.

Hospitals must update these price lists at least once each year.

Some hospital officials are warning that the published prices are likely to bear no resemblance to the actual prices, which can vary depending on the rates the hospitals negotiate with insurance companies.

However, HHS says hospitals are free to offer more information to consumers to put prices in context and to let people know how much they are actually likely to pay.

Gas leak appears to have caused explosion

On Thursday, representatives from the Indiana Department of Homeland Security (IDHS) assisted fire officials in the investigation into Wednesday's Carmel High School explosion. An IDHS spokesperson said, "At this point, it appears there was no boiler malfunction. Two boilers were impacted. Workers were doing routine service and a natural gas leak occurred, leading to an explosion during the reigniting process."

Photos provided by Carmel Fire Department

Fire officials said they want people to understand the magnitude of the incident, and how fortunate it is that it wasn't worse.

Photos provided by Carmel Fire Department

Carmel Fire Department officials did report there were approximately 100 people inside the building at the time of the explosion.

Emergency personnel reported two people were injured in the incident, a school employee and a private contractor; however, names are not being released.

Warm weather keeps Koteewi Slopes closed ... but not for long

The REPORTER

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

And fear came on all that dwelt round about them: and all these sayings were noised abroad throughout all the hill country of Judaea. And all they that heard them laid them up in their hearts, saying, What manner of child shall this be! And the hand of the Lord was with him. And his father Zacharias was filled with the Holy Ghost, and prophesied, saying, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for he hath visited and redeemed his people, And hath raised up an horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David; As he spake by the mouth of his holy prophets, which have been since the world began: That we should be saved from our enemies, and from the hand of all that hate us; To perform the mercy promised to our fathers, and to remember his holy covenant; The oath which he swore to our father Abraham, That he would grant unto us, that we being delivered out of the hand of our enemies might serve him without fear; In holiness and righteousness before him, all the days of our life. And thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his way; To give knowledge of salvation unto his people by the remission of their sins, Through the tender mercy of our God; whereby the dayspring from on high hath visited us, To give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet into the way of peace. And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, and was in the deserts till the day of his shewing unto Israel.

Millers come back, beat Northridge in overtime

Noblesville's Eagan Keever-Hill scored six points and took a charge with 1.2 seconds left in the fourth quarter that sent the Millers' game with Northridge into overtime.

By RICHIE HALL

NOBLESVILLE - Northridge's offense may have been the story of the first half, but Noblesville's defense stepped up in the final chapter.

That was the plot of the Millers' game with the Raiders Thursday as the teams met in the first round of the Noblesville Holiday Tournament at The Mill. Northridge led for most of the game until the Millers came back and tied it up at the end of regulation. Noblesville then played a solid overtime to win 71-66 and advance to this morning's semi-finals, where it will take on Columbus North.

"It was a great team win, and really proud of our guys for beating a quality Northridge team, and then give ourselves a chance to play Columbus North," said Millers coach Brian McCauley.

The coach said there were two pivotal parts of the game. The first was late in the third quarter, when Noblesville trailed 48-43, but then went on a 9-0 run that stretched into the fourth quarter. Alex Hunt started the run with a free throw, then Zack Johnson nailed a 3-pointer to bring the Millers within 48-47 at the end of the third.

Xavier Hines started the fourth with a layin to put Noblesville in front 49-48, then Johnson hit another 3 to make the score 52-48. The Raiders' Sam Smith made his own 3 to end the run, but Johnson answered that with his third triple of the game, giving the Millers a 55-51 lead.

Eventually, the score settled was 59-59 with 13 seconds left. Northridge had the ball and was looking to score, but Noblesville's Eagan Keever-Hill drew a charge with 1.2 seconds left.

"That could've been the game," said McCauley. "Had he not gotten set and taken that, then they would have been shooting free throws and we didn't have any time left."

With that, the game went to overtime, the beginning of which McCauley said was also a pivotal part of the game. Johnson scored the first basket right away on a layin, then after a defensive stop, Hines sent a pass - "a great outlet pass," said McCauley - to Johnson, who put it in the basket.

Hines made a layin to get the Millers ahead 65-60, but a quick run by Northridge tied the game up at 65-65 with a minute to go in the OT. Johnson was fouled and made both free throws, after which Noblesville never trailed again. Johnson finished the game with 27 points.

Brendon Fisher hit two foul shots of his own to put the Millers up 69-66. The Raiders threw up a 3-point shot that missed, with Jordan Schmidt grabbing the rebound, drawing a foul, and making two more free throws to seal the game.

It was a nice win for Noblesville, who had to absorb some hot shooting by Northridge in the first half. Raiders senior Jared Ereksen did the most damage, as he poured in 24 points in that half, including five 3-pointers; he scored all 15 of Northridge's second-quarter points. Ereksen finished the game with 30 points.

"We just gave him too much space in the first half, and we just weren't quite on it,"

The Bulldogs outscored the Blackhawks in each of the four quarters, leading 15-4 after the first period and 25-9 at halftime.

"It's a hard time of the year for these kids to play and to focus," said Sheridan coach Jaidlin Delph. "We definitely struggled and we weren't here mentally at all for either game."

Heather Barker led the 'Hawks with seven points, while Olivia Raines collected four rebounds.

Sheridan is 7-6 and will play at home again tonight, hosting Tri in a 7:30 p.m. game.

said McCauley. "He made us pay. After the first two or three 3s, we should've known. You have to just make him dribble. He continued to get looks from deep."

The Millers made big baskets of their own to stay in the game. Fisher had one 3-pointer in each of the first two quarters.

"Brendon Fisher off the bench was phenomenal tonight," said McCauley. "Defensively he was solid. Offensively he was terrific."

Fisher's second 3 helped Noblesville finish the second quarter strong. The Millers trailed by nine twice in the period, but came back to get within 35-32 by halftime. Then in the early part of the third quarter, Jordan Schmidt drained two 3s, sandwiched in between a Hines putback. That gave Noblesville a 40-39 lead, the first time they were in front since the first quarter.

After Johnson's 27, Xavier Hines added 16 points. He also grabbed eight rebounds, with Johnson and Hunt each collecting five. The Millers also outscored the Raiders in the paint, 32-24.

"It's always the team that wins the paint that wins the game," said McCauley. Noblesville is now 5-4 for the season.
