Sheriff's Deputy Kevin Crask receives Performance Award

Try a little kindness

The REPORTER

The Hamilton County Traffic Safety Partnership (HCTSP) was recently recognized by the Indiana Criminal Justice Institute (ICJI) and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) for HCTSP's work keeping the streets of the county safer.

Monica Greer, Director of the Council on Alcohol and Other Drugs, accepted the award on behalf of HCTSP, which consists of Carmel, Cicero, Fishers, Noblesville and Westfield police departments along with the Hamilton County Sheriff's Office.

HCTSP is funded through grants that allow officers to work overtime to curb aggressive and impaired driving around the county. The group works to reduce the number of people killed and injured on county streets by striving to educate the public and to deter hazardous driving practices that may lead to serious crashes.

HCTSP also conducts sobriety checkpoints and aggressive driving patrols through the funds provided by ICJI. Hamilton County residents and roadways are safer due to the work of those involved with the Partnership.

Also recognized for his work was Deputy Kevin Crask who received a Performance Award for arresting impaired drivers. Crask has led the county in impaired driving arrests for several years and had more than 100 impaired driving arrests in 2018.

Hamilton County Sheriff's Deputy Kevin Crask was awarded for arresting more than 100 impaired drivers in 2018.

I watched as she scurried from the kitchen to a table, table to cash register, grabbing the coffee carafe to refill cups. She smiled as she spoke to customers yet her eyes told me she was worried that her customers wanted more than she was able to give at that time. That could affect her tip.

I watched as some gave her "the look." We all know the look that says ... you are not taking care of me the way I want you to take care of me.

She worried that her best was not enough. I looked at her eyes. They told me what she was thinking.

As she approached our table. I said, "There is only one of you. I see that you are doing your best. I see that you are overwhelmed. Take a deep breath. I appreciate how hard you are working to take good care of us."

I saw her sigh. She simply said, "Thank you." At that moment she needed a little kindness.

I watched the young mother in the waiting room of the doctor's office. Her toddler was running round exerting the energy of well, a toddler. Her baby was obviously fussy and not feeling well. She looked tired.

People would look up from their magazines with "the look." It told her she was not measuring up ... so she thought. She tried to calm both her toddler and her baby

Going teal in April with Prevail

"Make It Personal" by helping with Fishers donation drive

The REPORTER

April is Sexual Assault Awareness Month.

"This month is an important time for all of us to recognize that our neighbors and friends have been affected by sexual assault," Prevail, Inc. Executive Director Susan Ferguson told The Reporter. "Did you know that as many as 1 in 5 women in the United States have experienced rape or attempted rape in their lifetime? Sexual Assault Awareness Month is a campaign to raise public awareness about sexual violence and educate communities on how to prevent it. The 2019 campaign theme, 'I Ask,' champions the message that asking for consent is a healthy, normal and necessary part of everyday interactions."

Because the color teal and the teal ribbon have been adopted as symbols of sexual assault awareness and prevention, The Reporter is turning our front page teal in each April print edition in support of our partnership with Prevail Inc.

The Clothesline Project

The REPORTER

Prevail is offering the opportunity to men, women and youth who have been affected by violence to share their testimony. In 1990, The Clothesline Project was started to do just that.

Anyone who has been affected by violence is invited to express their emotions by decorating a T-shirt. Then, they can hang the shirt on a clothesline to be viewed by others as a testimony to the problem of violence.

Shirts are color-coded to indicate the form of abuse and whether the victim survived:

- White represents a person who died because of violence.

- Yellow and beige represent survivors of domestic or family violence.

- Red, pink and orange represent survivors of rape or sexual assault.

- Blue and green represent survivors of incest of child sexual abuse.

- Purple represents those attacked because of their sexual orientation.

The local Fall Creek and Delaware Township Trustees are charged with providing relief to the poor, and the Fishers Government Academy Association will start a drive in April to help with personal care items for those in need.

Collection boxes will start popping up around Fishers on April 1 and you will see them through April 12. The theme of this year's drive is "Making It Personal" because the focus will be on personal use items.

Some suggested items you can contribute include: Soap, cleaners, hygiene products, household supplies, bath supplies, toilet paper, paper towels, dish soap, laundry detergent, incontinence protection for adults, diapers, etc. The Association notes that sensitive skin and hypoallergenic product donations are also appreciated.

Here are the locations for the donation boxes:

while she waited. Someone needed to calm her.

I smiled and voiced my thoughts, "This motherhood thing isn't easy. I remember it all too well. It always seemed I was juggling babies and schedules. I dealt with moods and emotions, both theirs and mine."

I saw her smile. She knew someone recognized and affirmed her feelings. She was tired and overwhelmed. She needed to be shown a little kindness.

I have become more aware of people who just need a helping hand as well as those who need words of comfort. Life is hard. If we take the time to recognize when others are struggling, we can make a difference.

It's just simple acts of kindness. It does not take much effort or many words.

Recently I watched as my grandson, Matthew, walked over to an older gentleman getting out of his car. I recognized this man as someone who often eats at Ginger's Café on Fridays when we are there. I know he suffers from arthritis and struggles to walk with a cane.

It was one of those icy mornings. Matthew asked if he could walk with him. The parking lot was a bit treacherous. Matthew had him take ahold of his arm as they slowly walked inside. It was snowy and windy and icy. Matthew could have easily dashed from his car to the door. But he didn't.

I was so proud of Matthew. The man smiled and thanked him. He told Matthew he was a fine young man.

I told Matthew I was proud of him. He says, "Grandma, I just try to do the right thing."

That day I was reminded of the importance of just trying.

Actions do speak louder than words, yet words do matter. Perhaps we need to do both. Perhaps we all need to do more of trying to do the right thing.

I do know I have a grandson who will remind me ... both with his actions and his words.

Thanks for reading The Reporter!

I was born and raised right here in Noblesville. I grew up in a home without domestic violence or assault - it wasn't something I saw, or even heard about. But when I was introduced to Prevail of Central Indiana, I was shocked by the number of individuals who are affected by domestic violence. In 2018 alone, Prevail helped more than 4,000 clients in Hamilton County. (Nearly 80 percent of clients are women and children.) Prevail is strictly confidential, and since their core values include integrity and respect, they provide their services at no charge. Domestic violence and abuse are hard topics to discuss, so you don't often hear about them. But at Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville, we're breaking the taboo and raising awareness for Prevail, an organization that helps families in Hamilton County. - Mike Bragg, GM of Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville

To help Hamilton County families affected by domestic violence and sexual abuse, you can donate the following items:

- Art supplies (for children to journal and express their emotions)
- Bottled water (8 oz. bottles, preferably)
- Individually packaged snacks
- Gas cards (many women have no access to funds after fleeing their abuser)

You can drop off items at Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville, located at 14701 Tom Wood Way. You can also donate directly to Prevail of Central Indiana by visiting Prevailinc.org.

Janus to celebrate Autism Awareness on Tuesday

The REPORTER

What is it like to have autism? This is a question that professionals who provide services to people with autism get asked a lot.

A person with autism might have difficulty:

- Making friends
- Speaking and understanding the meaning of words
- Coping with changes
- Dealing with busy places, loud noises and bright lights

Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD) is a developmental disorder characterized by social and communication impairments combined with limited interests and repetitive behaviors. Rates of ASD continue to rise with the U.S. Center for Disease Control (CDC) increasing its estimated national autism prevalence rate to 1 in 59 children as of 2018. Just 10 years ago, the autism prevalence rate was 1 in 125 children, and has continued to increase significantly.

Chances are that you know someone with autism. The following tips may help as you try to effectively communicate with individuals with autism:

- Always use their name at the beginning so that they know you are talking to them
- Make sure that they are paying attention before you ask a question or give an instruction
- Use their special interest, or the activity they are currently doing, to engage them

World Autism Awareness Day on April 2 aims to put a spotlight on the obstacles that people with autism face every day. It is also a day for everyone to come together to learn more about ASD and to celebrate the unique talents of people living with autism.

On April 2, everyone is encouraged to wear blue and join in showing their support for those with au-

Rep. Schaibley visits Options–Noblesville

The REPORTER

On the last day of classes before the start of Spring Break, Options Schools hosted Indiana State Representative Donna Schaibley on Friday morning at its Noblesville campus.

A member of the Indiana House of Representatives since 2014, Rep. Schaibley has served the people of District 24 (portions of Boone and Hamilton counties) as their State Representative since 2015.

Having lived in Carmel for the past 25 years, Rep. Schaibley plays an important role in Hamilton County as her current legislative priorities include wanting to continue to strengthen and secure its schools and also develop and educate its workforce so people have the necessary skills for today's jobs.

During her visit, Rep. Schaibley toured the Options–Noblesville campus, met with students and sat down with President/CEO Mike Gustin and Chief Operating Officer Michelle Walden to discuss how Options and legislators can work together to benefit students.

“We are very grateful that Rep. Schaibley took time out of her busy schedule to visit Options and learn more about our mission,” said Gustin. “I believe she saw evidence of the high-quality services we provide students.”

For more information on Options, visit Options-Schools.org.

Local lawmakers honor fallen Boone County Deputy Pickett

The REPORTER

State Reps. Donna Schaibley (R-Carmel), Jeff Thompson (R-Lizton) and Tim Brown (R-Crawfordsville) honored the life of fallen Boone County Sheriff Deputy Jacob Pickett on Monday at the Statehouse.

Pickett lost his life in March 2018 after succumbing to a gunshot wound while on duty.

“Dedicated and selfless, Deputy Pickett embodies the definition of hero,” Schaibley said. “Our community lost a tremendous public servant, but his family lost a devoted son, husband and father. His compassion for others will continue on in the lives he touched.”

During a ceremony, a House resolution honoring Pickett’s legacy was presented to Boone County Sheriff Mike Nielsen and the Boone County K-9 team.

“Deputy Pickett was taken from us far too soon,”

Thompson said. “I hope his family cherishes the memories they have, and please know we honor him and his selfless service to our community and state.” Pickett joined the Boone County Sheriff’s Office in 2015 where he earned recognition as a Taser instructor, K-9 handler and team leader. He was also a member of the Fraternal Order of Police.

“We are a little over a year past the event now. It’s been a really, really tough year for many of us so this is kind of one of those milestones that we have been wanting to hit, that one year, to try to get through,” Nielsen said. “We will never be able to fill his shoes, but we are going to do everything we can to carry on Jake’s legacy, and that truly is being a leader, a warrior, and we should all learn from the example he continues to set.”

Student questions essential nature of asking questions

Editor's Note: The Sheridan Student Column is brought to readers by Sheridan High School's 10th grade English class, taught by Abby Williams.

ETHAN TAYLOR
Sheridan High School Student

For my column, I was pondering over topics I could write about. I was considering maybe track or psychology during my study hall. While I was thinking of topics I could use to write about, I was simultaneously going through my fellow students' columns to gather a sense of how to format it.

Then I stumbled upon my teacher's column, in which she was talking about why we as people can never understand what someone's going through. It led me to question why we have to understand and what the purpose is of us feeling the need to know; and to a broader question, why we have to ask questions and why we need the answers for them.

My curiosity in neurotransmitters, as well as the brain itself, helped lead me to research it in a deeper manner. It helped me in my search of understanding my neurodevelopmental disorder, as well as overall helping my curiosity toward understanding the brain. So the question about questions stuck with me, and with the many studies as to why we ask questions, it is a promising thing to write about. Usually, we ask questions to solve something or to better increase the current amount of information we have to help us understand something. Naturally, our curiosity tends to lead us into searching to find the answers to the questions we have.

Many neuroscientists, like Marieke Jepma, have done experiments in search of understanding curiosity in humans. According to Psychology Today, Marieke has done experiments that have "used functional magnetic resonance imaging (fMRI) to examine the neural underpinnings of curiosity - which parts of the brain are activated when perceptual or epistemic curiosity are induced and relieved."

In this experiment the researchers found that "the anterior insula and the anterior cingulate cortex" were parts of the brain that gave an "itch"-like feeling when more information was required in order to understand, which in response helped the person obtain more motivation toward getting the answer. But in another experiment, done by researchers Min Jeong Kang and Colin Camerer, along with their collaborators, they reviewed another type of curiosity. For their experiment, they used trivia questions to stimulate different parts of the brain, by asking the subject a series of questions.

For instance, they asked the participants, "What instrument sounds most like a human?" as well as "What galaxy is Earth located in?" Psychology Today explains what they did: They "generated epistemic curiosity by asking their subjects trivia questions." Through this experiment the information that Kang and his colleagues took from their data concluded that the experiment "involved epistemic curiosity, on the other hand, the brain areas that were significantly energized (the left caudate and the lateral prefrontal cortex) were those known to be associated with anticipation of reward."

The anticipation of reward can somewhat be explained by dopamine, a neurotransmitter that is known as the reward neurotransmitter. It can give us the motivation to want to learn and understand more, and in doing so get us to ask more questions. With the positive feeling people get after finding the answer to their question, it's no surprise it helps motivate us to ask more questions.

Overall it may be that we get an "itch" and feel the need to know the answer, or we need the information to help us. It could be dopamine, the neurotransmitter which helps us gain the motivation to find the answer. Regardless of the answer, to ask a question is to seek the answers, and we're constantly trying for one to receive the other.

Whether you look at the amazing neuroscientists that did these experiments, or the everyday questions we all have, it's certain that asking questions is part of our nature.

Experts to talk about senior mental health CICOA Envision Lecture

The REPORTER

As we age, people often talk about physical symptoms associated with getting older, but just as important - if not more important - is mental health. Mental health can have a profound impact on seniors, their caregivers, loved ones and the community.

Three senior care experts will talk about the trends, the challenges and the impacts of mental health and aging during a special panel discussion from 9 to 10:30 a.m., on Thursday, April 25 at CICOA, 8440 Woodfield Crossing Blvd., Indianapolis.

The discussion, "Mental Health and the Aging Brain," is open to the public and is the second in a four-part Envision Lecture Series CICOA is sponsoring in 2019. The cost to attend is $10 and students are free. To register, go to cicoa.org/events/envision.

The panel will include Dr. Andrew Class, a psychiatrist and director of Older Adult Services at St. Vincent Stress Center, who will talk about medical marijuana, CBD oil, esketamine and the opiate crisis as well as the impact on people suffering from chronic pain and treatment resistant depression.

Cynthia Reynolds, a licensed social worker at Sandra Eskenazi Center for Brain Care Innovation, will

Noblesville author invites public to her book signing

Dear Editor:

Do you remember what made America great?

So often as we are enjoying our lives in today's world, we often forget our past. A few years ago as I began writing a book, I took a look back into that past, only to find, in my amazement, that much of what made this country great actually did happen.

I was so captivated by what I was learning I couldn't quit writing ... and so now I present you my book, He Called Himself a Barnstormer, an historical novel based on a true story.

From 1:30 to 3 p.m. on Saturday, April 6, I will be signing my book at the Barnes and Noble Book Store in Noblesville. I'd love to meet you there.

Letter to the Editor

Chinthala endorses Aasen for Carmel City Council

Dear Editor:

I'm writing to let your readers know about a terrific candidate for Carmel City Council's southeast district. Adam Aasen has been a leader in our community for many years and he'd be an excellent representative of the people.

I got to know Adam several years ago through his work at Current in Carmel newspaper. He was a dedicated reporter who always did his research. I have no doubt that Adam understands the issues and could immediately contribute positively to this city.

I also know that Adam would keep businesses thriving in Carmel. For more than a decade I've worked closely with several elected officials, including mayors and governors to help attract businesses to our state. Currently, there are more than 120 corporate headquarters located in Carmel and those businesses add to our tax base which helps keep residential property taxes low.

It's very important that we elect city councilors who understand what it takes to keep our local economy strong. Adam is a successful small business owner, having started Donatello's Italian Restaurant in downtown Carmel.

Finally, I am certain that Adam would listen to his constituents. He's a hard worker that really cares about people.

From his energy, to his commitment to the residents of Carmel, I ask that you please vote for Adam Aasen on May 7.

Sincerely,

What year did Prohibition take effect in Indiana?

The REPORTER

This coming week in Indiana's history...

1880 – The dome of the Wabash County Courthouse was fitted with large arc lights by the Brush Electric Company. With the throw of a switch, the city of Wabash became the "first electrically lighted city in the world." Newspapers reported that the brilliant illumination could be seen nearly a mile away.

1896 – Jeannette Covert Nolan was born in Evansville. Starting out as a newspaper reporter, she became a popular author of children's books about American history. She was on the staff at Indiana University and is honored in the IU Writers' Conference Hall of Fame.

1918 – The Prohibition Law went into effect in Indiana. Over 3,500 bars and taverns were closed in the Hoosier State, including over 500 in the capital city. Prohi-bitution was declared nationwide in 1920 and remained in effect until December of 1933.

1923 – Silent movie star Rudolph Valentino was in Indianapolis at Tomlinson Hall to judge a contest to find "the most beautiful girl" in the city. The winner, 25-year-old Gypsie Williams, was given a free trip to New York City and an appearance in the movie "Rudolph Valentino and his 88 American Beauties."

1924 – Gil Hodges was born in Princeton, Ind. When he was 7, his family moved about 24 miles north to Petersburg. Gil earned fame as a baseball player in the 1950s and 1960s, spending most of his career with the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers. He later managed the Washington Senators and the New York Mets.

1968 – Robert F. Kennedy, in Indianapolis on a campaign tour, announced the death of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. to a crowd at 17th and Broadway. His impassioned plea for peace on that night is considered one of the greatest addresses of the 20th Century. The Library of Congress recently added the recording of the speech to the National Registry.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

Then answered one of the lawyers, and said unto him, Master; thus saying thou reproachest us also. And he said, Woe unto you also, ye lawyers! for ye lade men with burdens grievous to be borne, and ye yourselves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers. Woe unto you! for ye build the sepulchres of the prophets, and your fathers killed them. Truly ye bear witness that ye allow the deeds of your fathers: for they indeed killed them, and ye build their sepulchres. Therefore also said the wisdom of God, I will send them prophets and apostles, and some of them they shall slay and persecute: That the blood of all the prophets, which was shed from the foundation of the world, may be required of this generation; From the blood of Abel unto the blood of Zacharias which perished between the altar and the temple: verily I say unto you, It shall be required of this generation. Woe unto you, lawyers! for ye have taken away the key of knowledge: ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in ye hindered. And as he said these things unto them, the scribes and the Pharisees began to urge him vehemently, and to provoke him to speak of many things: Laying wait for him, and seeking to catch something out of his mouth, that they might accuse him.

Wilma Pearl Vaught

December 1, 1925 – March 28, 2019

Wilma Pearl Vaught, 93, Westfield, died at 4:30 a.m. on Thursday, March 28, 2019 at Wellbrooke of Westfield. She was also a resident of Carmel for 32 years, Indianapolis for 13 years, and Crawfordsville for 48 years.

Wilma was born on December 1, 1925 in New Maysville, Ind., to Orville O. and Nancy Jane (McCloud) Elliott. She married the love of her life, Donald C. Vaught, on July 7, 1943. He preceded her in death on July 21, 2008. They enjoyed a wonderful 65 years of marriage.

Wilma's main focus was her family. She and Don raised five children together. She was known for being pragmatic and was always accepting of everyone. Her wit and wisdom was lost on no one. Her family got such enjoyment from her many sayings such as, "Use it up, wear it out, make it do, or do without." She shared this saying that was passed down to her from her father.

She did, however, have an amazing career as a Certified Fitter for Hook's Convalescence Aids. She worked for Hook's Drugstore and was approached to attend a specialized training school in Chicago. She had to pass many tests and did all of this in mid-life! Her husband, children and grandchildren were very proud of her and her career as a certified fitter! Wilma retired from Hook's Convalescence Aids in 1988. Upon retiring Wilma became a voracious reader. She had no favorite genre, she just loved to read! Wilma was also a member of Trinity Methodist Church in Crawfordsville.

She is survived by four children, Donna S. Williams and husband Bob, Tipton, J. Michael Vaught and wife Jackie, Crawfordsville, Donald M. Vaught and wife Susan, Jamestown, Gerald K. Vaught and wife Dawn, Indianapolis. One daughter, Pamela S. Bennett, Carmel, passed away in 2001.

Wilma was one of nine children. Only one brother remains, Earl F. Elliott and wife Ruby of Crawfordsville. Preceding her in death were seven siblings, Raymond G. "Jack" Elliott, Ruby Vaught, Vivian Stewart, Harry C. Elliott, Bonnie Shea, Doris Brier, and Lois Rizzo.

Wilma had 12 grandchildren, 22 great-grandchildren, and three great-great-grandchildren. One grandson, Gabriel Keith Logan Vaught also preceded her in death. She loved seeing all the grandchildren and was proud of each and every one!

She will be buried with her loving husband, Donald, at Hamilton Memorial Park in Westfield. Per her wishes there will be a graveside service at 1 p.m. on Thursday, April 4 with Chaplain Mac Burberry presiding. Young-Nichols Funeral Home in Tipton is entrusted with the arrangements.

The family would like to thank Wellbrooke of Westfield and Transitions for their love and support during her final year on earth.

Fourth-quarter run sends Orlando past Pacers

By WHEAT HOTCHKISS

Courtesy nba.com/pacers

After a last-second loss on Friday night in Boston dropped the Pacers to fifth place in the Eastern Conference, they had a chance to move back into fourth place (and back into position to secure home-court advantage in the first round of the playoffs) on Saturday night.

The Celtics fell in Brooklyn earlier on Saturday, opening the door for Indiana to reclaim the four seed with a win at home against Orlando. But the Magic opened the fourth quarter with a 17-6 surge to build a nine-point lead, then held on down the stretch to knock off Indiana (45-32) at Bankers Life Fieldhouse, 121-116.

Aaron Gordon had 23 points, 10 rebounds, and seven assists in the win for Orlando (38-39), which continued its late-season push to make the playoffs.

On the other hand, the Pacers remain tied with Boston with five regular season games remaining. The Celtics own the head-to-head tiebreaker and the two teams have a looming showdown coming on Friday night at The Fieldhouse.

"It was a big loss and a pretty disappointing game for us," Pacers forward Bojan Bogdanovic said. "We showed completely two different faces (between) last night and tonight.

"Playing at home and letting (Orlando) score 120 points, it's impossible to win that way."

The Magic started Saturday's game hot, converting seven of their first nine shots. The visitors never trailed in the opening frame, leading by as many as seven points and taking a 32-28 lead into the second quarter.

The Pacers' second unit put together a strong start to the second quarter, opening the period with a 10-2 run to move the Blue & Gold in front for the first time.

The two teams traded the lead a few times over the remainder of the frame. Indiana used a 13-2 run to open up a six-point lead, but Orlando closed the half with five unanswered points to trim their deficit to 57-56 at the break.

The Pacers and Magic continued to go back-and-forth early in the third quarter. Bogdanovic scored eight of Indiana's first 10 points to keep the Blue & Gold close.

The hosts seized control midway through the frame as point guard Darren Collison triggered a 12-2 run, scoring six points and dishing out three assists over a 2:32 stretch to give the Pacers a nine-point advantage.

Orlando responded once again, this time reeling off 10 unanswered points to briefly retake the lead. Collison righted the ship, however, scoring five more points in the final minute of the third quarter to give Indiana a 92-90 lead heading into the fourth.

The teams exchanged the lead five times in the first minute and a half of the final frame before Gordon and Terrence Ross combined for eight unanswered points to help the Magic open up a nine-point advantage with 6:50 to play.

Collison's layup trimmed the deficit to 111-106 with 3:15 remaining. After Nikola Vucevic hit one of two foul shots, Collison drew a foul on the other end, but missed both free throws.

Wesley Matthews corralled an offensive rebound after the second miss, but Bogdanovic threw the ball away and Gordon drilled a 3-pointer on the other end to push the lead back to nine with just 1:53 to play, effectively sealing the victory for Orlando.

"It's unacceptable," Collison said after the game. "We can't lose a game like that, especially at home. Especially when everything is going our way most of the game. It's a tough loss for us but it was inexcusable on our part."

Collison led Indiana with 24 points on 10-of-15 shooting and nine assists. Bogdanovic added 22 points, while Myles Turner recorded a double-double in the loss with 16 points and 12 rebounds.

Matthews scored 13 points, while Thaddeus Young, Domantas Sabonis, and Doug McDermott added 10 points apiece.

Vucevic had 19 points for Orlando, while Ross scored 16 and went 4-for-11 from 3-point range. Former Pacers guard D.J. Augustin recorded a double-double, finishing with 11 points and 10 assists.

The Pacers have a home-and-home with rival Detroit next on the schedule. They will host the Pistons on Monday and then visit Detroit on Wednesday before returning to The Fieldhouse for Friday's crucial clash with the Celtics.

"We need to mentally (and) physically get some rest and regroup here," Pacers coach Nate McMillan said. "The second half tonight they got red hot again. We gave up 65 points and were just not able to stop anyone defensively."
