$25M private development to locate in downtown Westfield

The REPORTER

On Tuesday, leaders from the City of Westfield joined Old Town Companies in announcing a new residential and commercial development in downtown Westfield. The $25 million private development, Union Square at Grand Junction, will be located in the city block between State Road 32 and the Plaza.

Through its collaborative community-focused approach, Old Town Companies plans to develop retail shops, restaurants, market rate apartments and for-sale condos. The phased development will begin in 2020 and will continue over the next three to five years.

"This is an exciting time to be a part of Westfield and I am appreciative of Old Town's partnership with Westfield and its desire to engage the community," said Westfield Mayor Andy Cook. "Our Council recently invested in the Plaza with the intention that this could show a return on investment and the private sector is already responding. I am hopeful to see where this

Indy councilwoman comments on Brainard, Pauley allegations

The REPORTER

Indianapolis city-county councilwoman Christine Scales has come forward to describe Carmel Mayor Jim Brainard's actions towards Clerk Treasurer Christine Pauley at the 2016 Republican National Convention held in Cleveland, Ohio.

Scales

Scales prefaced her statement by saying, "I wanted to make it clear that I volunteered to come forward on Christine Pauley's behalf. At the time of the convention I had never previously met Christine. I was already acquainted with Mayor Brainard due to our children's' friendships. I tended to pay attention to his actions whenever he was nearby."

Scales continued: "Mayor Brainard's behavior toward Christine could not go unnoticed, whether

Editor's note: The following is a statement from Carmel Mayor Jim Brainard's campaign.

Brainard

The latest allegations from Ms. Pauley and friends continue a long history of unsubstantiated claims that are nothing more than political maneuvering to conceal the fact that that mayor's opponent (who she supports) does not have any plan or direction for the future of our city.

While the Mayor is focused on continuing his work to steadily improve development of downtown Carmel and its surroundings, the campaign believes now is the time to correct the record about Ms. Pauley's claims and detail some of her past actions.

In the past few months, Ms. Pauley has:

• Fired her top financial staff member because that staff member shared a letter from the IRS regarding an audit with the Mayor, who is the chief executive of the city. Ms. Pauley was required to publicly apologize and hire that staff member back because it was clear that was the only way to complete the audit and get her office back in order.

• Shared rumors and other information with Indianapolis City County Council member Christine Scales, who is now a Democrat, while Carmel was being sued by the City of Indianapolis over the 96th and Keystone intersection project. She violated Indiana Public Access laws by by-

...and Jim Brainard knows it.

Mayor Brainard has held the line on taxes, proposed conservative budgets and fought for job growth, economic development and a quality of life second to none.

Strong Fiscal Leadership

Jim Brainard has a proven track record of holding down taxes. Today most Carmel residents are paying less in property taxes than they were twenty years ago. Carmel has the lowest tax rate of any Indiana city its size or larger.

Job Creation and Economic Development

As Mayor, Jim Brainard has fought tirelessly to promote job creation, economic development and redevelopment of our downtown which continues to diversify our tax base, keeping our tax burden on homeowners low.

Balanced Budgets

Jim Brainard is a fiscal conservative that has streamlined government and protected our tax dollars. The City of Carmel had a cash balance of over $56 million dollars in the bank at the end of 2018, well more than almost all other cities in Indiana.

150th Anniversary

The district has partnered with multiple community organizations to plan and execute the effort, including forming an executive committee with representatives from the City of Noblesville, Noblesville Chamber of Commerce, Conner Prairie, Hamilton East Public Library, Nickel Plate Arts, Noblesville Main Street, NHS Alumni Association, Noblesville Education Foundation, and the Hamilton County Historical Society.

"A lot has changed about Noblesville Schools over the last 150 years, but our pursuit of academic excellence and our love for our students have been constants," said Marnie Cooke, director of marketing and communications for Noblesville Schools. "We hope Noblesville residents of all ages will find this once-in-a-generation milestone an opportunity to reminisce about school days gone by and to make new memories with us. We're excited and appreciative to have the support of so many community organizations to make this celebration as widespread, fun, and meaningful as possible."

"The lawyers and staff of Church Church Hittle + Antrim are proud and excited to support the 150th anniversary of the establishment of Noblesville Schools," said Doug Church, senior partner for CCHA. "Many of us are graduates and proud Millers, along with our children and grandchildren! The educational excellence of Noblesville Schools is something we all cherish. For more than 60 years, CCHA has been honored to serve as general counsel. We look forward to the events celebrating this major milestone and marking the impact of Noblesville Schools."

While individual school houses have existed in Noblesville as far back as 1820, the district of Noblesville Schools was born in 1869 with the formation of a school board and the hiring of the first superintendent. The community's goal at the time was building the first high school and "inaugurating a system of graded schools" in Noblesville.

Noblesville Schools' board archives date back to 1870, the same year that construction began on Seminary School (later known as Second Ward.) The first Noblesville High School class, comprised of only three students, graduated in 1876.

The anniversary year will officially kick off at the annual Back to School BASH, a Noblesville Schools/Noblesville Parks collaboration held at Federal Hill Commons on July 26, 2019.

For more information regarding the anniversary celebration, residents are encouraged to visit noblesvilleschools.org/150, where content will be updated throughout the year.

project will go and how it can benefit Westfield."

"Our goal for Union Square is to create a small village architecturally with buildings that look as if they've been there for 100 years," said Justin Moffett, a partner with Old Town. "Our interest in this site was initially generated by the proposed plans Grand Junction Plaza. It's an outstanding location and with the development of Grand Junction Plaza, we're excited to get started on being a part of the area's transformation."

Last month, the Westfield City Council approved a $35 million funding plan for the Grand Junction Plaza. The project, in development for more than 10 years, has already been a catalyst for economic growth in the city's downtown. The unique six-acre park will feature greenspace, trails, an amphitheater and an ice-skating rink. Construction will begin this summer. The city's role, particularly related to parking, in the public-private partnership will be determined as the private sector plans develop.

"When we voted to support the Plaza funding, we knew our finances were strong and our vision was sound," said Jim Ake, At-Large City Council member. "The commitment to build Union Square at Grand Junction is validation of our strategy. I am proud to see where we are going and to be a part of it and am thrilled to partner with Old Town Companies with its track record of success."

The announcement kicks off an input-gathering process. Old Town is working with business owners and the Westfield Lions Club to find suitable relocation options within the project or to new locations. In addition to working with the Downtown Westfield Association, Grand Junction Task Group and community stakeholders, Old Town plans to host a series of community workshops in July to encourage public comment on development plans.

In 2018, the City of Westfield and the Indiana Department of Transportation (INDOT) announced a $15 million road reconstruction project for State Road 32. The project will address congestion and capacity concerns along the SR 32 corridor and will improve accessibility and safety. The reconstruction sets the stage for Grand Junction District, which will be considered Westfield's new "heart of the City."

About Grand Junction Plaza

at breakfast or during a cocktail hour in a hotel lobby, Mayor Brainard sat as close to her as possible without occupying her seat. It was obvious the Mayor was desperately trying to gain her attention, while Christine sat stiffly, for the most part didn't turn her head toward him as he spoke. I recall thinking, maintain some dignity Mr. Mayor, she is just not that into you."

Scales admitted approximately a year later she did have the opportunity to become better acquainted with Pauley while seeking guidance from the Clerk Treasurer's Office when needing help finding some documents.

Scales stated she and Pauley discussed the Mayor while having lunch.

"Christine mentioned the challenges of having to work with Mayor Brainard. I then shared with her what I had witnessed regarding Mayor Brainard's attention towards her while at the convention and told her how shocked I was."

During her statement, Scales also described conflict that she encountered with Brainard over a 96th Street roundabout: "This man won't stop until he gets what he wants."

Scales denied coming forward with her observations of Brainard in Cleveland was in retaliation with the roundabout issue.

"If I wanted to personally come after him in some way, I would have done that already," said Scales. "As a politician I have had many opportunities to engage in acts of retribution and I have tried to turn the other cheek when someone has really done me wrong."

At the conclusion of Tuesday's statement, Scales said she encouraged Pauley to come forward with her allegations and offered to help if she was worried about losing her job.

passing the required action steps for requests for information (Scales vehemently opposed the 96th Street Roundabouts project which prompted the lawsuit).

• Worked with the Mayor's opponent during the current election cycle in the hopes of securing a job because, as a second class city, Carmel will no longer have an elected Clerk Treasurer after Dec. 31, 2019.

• Lied to City Council President Jeff Worrell in a public meeting about her staff attending Audit Committee meetings, when that staff member has not attended a single Audit Committee meeting.

• Publicly admitted to picking through the trash at City Hall to find any information that might help sabotage the mayor's campaign.

• Erred last Friday in not paying part-time city employees through direct deposit last due to an error.

This shows a pattern of unethical behavior designed to discredit Mayor Brainard and the positive future direction of this city.

Additionally, with respect to allegations about the 2016 GOP National Convention, there are people who have a different impression of the mayor's behavior.

Susana Suarez, then Zionsville Town Council President and an alternate convention delegate issued a statement that reads: "I spent quite some time with Mayor Brainard and Ms. Pauley at the GOP convention in Cleveland and did not see any indication that anyone was uncomfortable."

Mayor Brainard also states that on the first day of the convention, Ms. Pauley picked up the mayor in her car and drove them to the Indiana Delegation reception, where they met a family member of Ms. Pauley, who accompanied them that night at the event. Likewise, on the second day of the convention, Ms. Pauley and the Mayor were joined at that evening's reception by her family members.

Third graders grill candidates

On Tuesday, Noble Crossing Elementary third graders hosted Noblesville mayoral candidates Mike Corbett, Chris Jensen and Julia Church Kozicki, quizzing them on topics students researched as part of their government study unit.

The candidates fielded 90 minutes of questions on a variety of subjects including their views regarding Noblesville's history, parks, animal habitats, public safety, environmental initiatives and how they plan to listen to the opinion of kids and work to spread community kindness. The panel discussion allowed the third graders to drive their own learning and created an engaging, real-world application for their classroom study.

Students will analyze their findings from the panel, conduct further research and study before taking their own mock vote for mayor on Election Day. Many students took care to dress up for the special occasion and as the session ended asked candidates for their autographs.

"I am fully in support of Board Member Chambers' amendment to the HSE discrimination policy. As I have noted before, the new state bias crime bill would have been even stronger if it had specified key at-risk groups and I plan to fight for those designations in the future. HSE has the opportunity now to protect vulnerable members of the community and should act in a forward-thinking, positive and inclusive manner."

Letter to the Editor

Reader: Rowland helped me understand

Dear Editor,

I appreciate the very honest and informing letter from an experienced former elected official. Mary Sue Rowland has stated how it was and how it should be for taxpayers of our fair city.

The current administration has forgot who brought them to the dance. They are playing all hug and kisses with the BIG money developers. Mrs. Rowland pointed out two of the candidates for the mayor's position without naming names.

I have seen this city grow from a town to a Second Class city. Now in the last few years we have seen this beautiful city being destroyed by the current administration. Like Mrs. Rowland stated, they tried to sell the historic Seminary Park in town. We have been saddled with a trash fee that was included in our property taxes.

We are now going to be forced to pay for the "Pleasant Street Parkway." Will the city have a developer pay for the two bridges, one across Cicero Creek and a big one across the white river? No, the taxpayers will have to bear this cost.

Getting back to the mayoral candidates … The former school board member served 12 years and we have been presented with two referendums totaling 150 MILLION dollars – "so we can give the teachers a raise." Well, they have not received the raise and the taxpayers will pay the piper for the next seven years. All this with a large increase to our property taxes.

Another candidate is mailing out flyers and fancy post cards detailing what he will do. He stated that he will "enhance our downtown by preserving our city charm adding more amenities and improve our housing." Now let's back away from the political garbage and see the real FACTS. This candidate received money from a developer in June 2018 and a couple of months later voted for the approval of this developer's project.

Does the term INTEGRITY come to mind?

His improved housing is the five-story apartment complex to be built right across the street from a major fire station.

He is preserving our city by taking away the train and just leaving the tracks.

He wants to "invest in our infrastructure and improve public safety." Whose money is he going to use? The developer with tax abatements or the taxpayer's money.

How can the taxpayers pay for two new bridges for the parkway, the extension of Pleasant Street and the purchase of the necessary properties, the removal of six miles of railroad track and replacing with a walking path?

The current administration is causing my neighbors to leave the Noblesville area. The cause – HIGH TAXES. They just can't take any more of the taxpayer carrying the burden for the BIG money developers.

In my neighborhood, a 1,500 square-foot house with a quarter-acre lot is assessed at $149,000 and the property tax is $3,788 per year. And the trash and sewer bill is over $50 per month.

Enough is enough.

Carmel voter cites debt, length of time in office as reasons to vote for Brainard

Dear Editor:

Jim Brainard has run for mayor of Carmel six times. I voted for him three times and against him three times. Each election contained different issues and different candidates. It appears to me that this time around there are two main issues.

First is the debt issue. Carmel through government and its utilities has accumulated over a billion dollars in debt. Thomas Jefferson tried to teach us debt is bad. He was wrong. Alexander Hamilton was right. Debt helps to establish credit worthiness. The question isn't the size of the debt but the relationship of debt to our ability to pay for it.

How many of us would own a house today if we had not borrowed three to four times the amount of money we earned a year? Banks and other lenders base their decisions on lending based on this. The great depression of the 1930s was prolonged by a lack of credit in the economy.

Fifty-five years ago, when I came to Carmel to teach government, the school's tax base was less than $24 million, or roughly less than $10,000 per student. Most of our revenue came from property taxes on homes, not businesses. Over the next several years both the town and schools struggled to keep up. Today that tax base is over $6.5 billion or $400,000 behind each student. Why? Because we're no longer a bedroom community where people live but don't work. Forty-one percent of property taxes are now paid by non-residential property owners (business and commercial property).

As a very young teacher making $4,900 a year, I normally had to drive to Nora to find an affordable place to eat. Carmel had Whitiker's Steak House (witch I couldn't afford), Ben's Island which was moderately priced and a walk-up Dairy Queen that sold hot dogs. Look at us today.

How did we get a community with dozens and dozens of restaurants, a gold medal park system, a library rated one of top 10 in nation for communities our size, the Monon Parkway, Keystone Parkway, etc.?

It took money. Our tax base had to grow, especially in non-residential properties. The mayor and several different city councils chose to expand by borrowing money but within a fiscal plan that tracked the debt and payoff. Then use that money to create an infrastructure that was inviting to commercial and business interests.

One other thing about the debt and what that money buys. Twenty years ago, the library board borrowed $24 million to build the present 116,000 square-foot awarding-winning library. In the meantime, residents for the past 20 years have been paying for that library, not just the residents who lived here 20 years ago. The same can be said about our schools, which is the largest magnet for drawing new residents to Carmel. One of the benefits of bonds is that people who are going to enjoy structures and services that are provided are paying, not just the people who live here at the time the bonds are issued.

Finally, the second big issue seems to be the length of time Jim Brainard has been in office. A few years back in a Republican primary election, Richard Murdock was able to defeat six-term Senator Richard Lugar with the phrase "it's time." A pitifully small turnout of Republican voters rejected the best U.S. Senator our state has ever produced by a Tea Party-backed candidate. The result was a loss in the general election. We all must weigh experience vs. change.

For these reasons, I plan to vote for the incumbent Mayor Brainard on May 7.

Shaffer: First Amendment thriving in Hamilton County

Dear Editor:

I wish to thank and commend The Reporter for extending the privilege to me to present uncomfortable facts about Carmel in letters to the editor.

The Current in Carmel management bent to pressure from City Hall when my letters and, later, Non-Mayor opinion column in that weekly struck too many nerves.

After being patronized, deceived and lied to by Carmel's elected officials, I reverted to my old newsman days at The Associated Press, applied a few reporting skills and found lots of data that strikes even more nerves.

The First Amendment is alive and thriving in Hamilton County thanks to The Reporter.

Noblesville voter wants Corbett to tell the truth

Dear Editor:

After weeks of hearing Mike Corbett's claim that he has not accepted donations from "special interests" or the "political elite," I did my research. As I had imagined, this claim is simply not true.

First, it must be noted that Mike, his family and his business donated (directly or in-kind) $8,500 of his $15,230 in reported funds. Of the remaining $6,730, a whopping 73 percent came from special interests:

• Richard Vonnegut – CEO, Hoosier Rails to Trails ($4,000)

• Jae Ebert – President, V&J Consulting, Engineering and Construction Consultant ($480)

• Jason Spartz – Noblesville land developer and husband of State Senator Victoria Spartz ($450)

While disguised as "individual donations," these are not "everyday citizens" looking out for the little guy, as Corbett would have you believe. Corporate donations are a part of nearly every campaign, as we've all learned by now.

I just wish Mr. Corbett would tell the voters the truth.

Ball State student explains seriousness of obesity epidemic, offers solutions

Dear Editor,

According to the Community Health Needs Assessment Report in Hamilton County, obesity in both adults and children is considered one of the top health issues in our community. In this study, 45 percent of the community members reported this as a problem we face. Residents of Hamilton County believe eating habits, lack of exercise and stress are the top contributing factors to obesity.

Obesity is a serious, chronic disorder that can have negative effects on many systems in your body. It is not a disease, per se; rather a complex disorder that is completely preventable.

Obesity can also lead to diseases such as cancer, heart disease and diabetes. Heart disease and cancer are the leading causes of death in the United States. Obesity rates continue to increase drastically among children and adults.

We as a community need to come together and understand the negative impacts that we can face when obesity is left untreated. This has become a major issue as we start to see the promotion of unhealthy lifestyle choices, such as unhealthy food being more convenient and accessible, technology decreasing the amount of effort we use in our daily lives and an imbalanced promotion of a healthy life style choices.

We do not typically see gym memberships or healthy food choices being promoted in our lives. Healthy lifestyle choices are more expensive, adds stress to our lives and just does not appeal to the consumer.

First, I believe that we need to understand this is a real problem that the community faces to find the right solutions. If we do not believe this to be a real issue, then no one will believe that changes need to be made. There are many solutions that can be made at a local level. According to the CDC, community efforts should focus on supporting healthy eating and active living in a variety of settings, whether that be at home, work or school.

Nowadays, most people thrive off the technology that we use, such as our smart phones, TVs and many other devices. Promoting better lifestyle choices on commercials or within schools is a better alternative then promoting fast food or nothing at all. The consumer can subconsciously make better lifestyle choices when they are presented with knowledge and facts on these said choices.

Understanding the value of nutrition could also really help to see a change in people's diets. If people don't realize the risk they are putting their own lives in, they won't change. Change must come from a willingness within oneself. It is not our job to change others' lives, rather it is to help promote and give knowledge so that someone will be willing to make the change on their own.

If you can't understand the negative impacts on your health and life, then you need to understand them for your children's sake because it is the parent's job to be a good role model. It is easy for a child to change his or her lifestyle to promote a better future, but that starts by setting a positive example as a parent. Promoting healthy behaviors with a healthier diet and more physical activity can set your children up for success. Making better choices for your health can prolong your life and teaching your children the positives of living a healthy lifestyle can prolong theirs.

Another solution I think would help to promote better lifestyle choices is getting more physical activity. If we could encourage more physical activity in community members' lives, paired with healthy eating, we would see less obesity and more healthy people. The community could implement free or cheap programs that allow families to come together to increase their physical activity levels.

Not only does the community need to help with change, but you could also encourage less TV at home and instead try to go out for a walk or maybe even short breaks during work hours walking up the stairs. People need to realize every little bit will help.

Schools should also add healthier food and more exercise rather than only focusing on academics. Studies show that students as well as adults perform at their peak abilities when they do regular exercise. Physical activity paired with a healthy diet can help you to reach and maintain a healthy body weight, reduce your risk of chronic diseases (like heart disease and cancer) and promote your overall health.

Remember that every little bit does help. If you hope to see a brighter future, then I hope everyone will understand the need for more positive changes. I appreciate you for taking the time to read my letter.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

And there went great multitudes with him: and he turned, and said unto them, If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple. And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple. For which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first, and counteth the cost, whether he have sufficient to finish it? Lest haply, after he hath laid the foundation, and is not able to finish it, all that behold it begin to mock him, Saying, This man began to build, and was not able to finish. Or what king, going to make war against another king, sitteth not down first, and consulteth whether he be able with ten thousand to meet him that cometh against him with twenty thousand? Or else, while the other is yet a great way off, he sendeth an ambassage, and desireth conditions of peace. So likewise, whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple. Salt is good: but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be seasoned? It is neither fit for the land, nor yet for the dunghill; but men cast it out. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

Southeastern girls win HCC track and field meet

The Hamilton Southeastern girls track and field team defended its home turf on Tuesday by winning the Hoosier Crossroads Conference meet.

The Royals scored 131 points, pulling away from what had a tight battle with rival Fishers in the early stages of the meet. The Tigers were second with 105 points.

Southeastern coach Julie Alano said that her team was trying some different things, as the Royals prepare for the sectional, which they will enter as defending state champions.

"We're just trying to figure some things out for the tournament and make sure we're ready to go there," said coach Julie Alano. "But we also like to win the conference meet. It helps with the school and the overall trophy, the all-sports trophy, so we also like to win this meet for the school."

Southeastern got individual victories from Regan Wans in the 400 dash, Lulu Black in the 3200 run, and the 4x100 and 4x400 relays.

The Tigers picked up two victories, both from Ella Scally. The freshman was first in the 100 dash and set a new meet record in the long jump of 18 feet, 5.75 inches. Southeastern's Tierra Sydnor was second at 18 feet, 2.25 inches, also under the old record.

Noblesville finished fifth as a team, winning three events. Shelby Tyler was first in the high jump and pole vault, and the Millers also took the 4x800 relay. Noblesville's time of 9:27.76 is currently the best in the state.

Westfield finished sixth. Zoe Pentecost won the shot put and placed second in the discus.

A list of top eight county finishers in each event now follows.

Millers crush Shamrocks, take series

By RICH TORRES

NOBLESVILLE – Justin Keever wasn't too happy with his baseball team's current trend. On Monday night, the host Noblesville Millers responded and corrected course with a sound 14-2 victory in five innings over rival Westfield.

Seniors Cade Nelis and Brady Walden combined for seven RBI behind three hits, and junior Ethan Imel added two more RBI, hitting atop the Millers' order, as Noblesville erupted for nine runs in the first inning to secure its second straight win.

"I was really disappointed in how we performed in Game 1, and the guys came out and played with some energy in Game 2, and this one doesn't count in the HCC standings, but it's good to get the win, put some runs up," Keever said.

The Millers lost their series opener against Westfield 3-2 at Grand Park on Friday before splitting with an 11-4 victory on Saturday. During Monday's series finale, which had no impact on the Hoosier Crossroads Conference standings, the Millers didn't slow down at the friendly confines of Dunker Field.

Noblesville (11-8, 6-2) laced six hits, drove in 12 runs and led 10-0 after two innings, while Matt Peek and Ethan Leslie limited the Shamrocks (7-5, 5-3) to five hits and two runs overall through five innings pitched.

Peek tossed three, five-hit frames, and Leslie pitched a near two innings of perfect relief with three strikeouts.

"They just came in with the mindset to throw strikes and pitch to contact. It worked out for them," Imel said. "At the plate, we're really sticking to our approaches and trying to do damage in the count and just grind it out and not let them beat us."

Imel, the team's starting catcher, did his part for the HCC frontrunners, finishing the game 2-for-2, including a pair of hits in the bottom of the first as the Millers sent 12 batters to the plate.

Imel opened the game with a single to left field and later drove in two runners with a ground-rule double and one out after the Millers loaded the bases three times in the first inning.

Westfield pitching walked 10 batters and hit three more overall to open the door for the surging Millers, who have racked up 25 runs in the past two games.

"It was pretty embarrassing on the mound to be honest. The last I checked we had 10 walks, three hit batsmen and committed five errors on top of that," Shamrocks coach Ryan Bunnell said. "Really no excuses. We were just really, really bad tonight, and whatever the reason is, we have to figure that out because you can't do that."

The Millers discovered their offense behind six hitters scattered throughout the lineup with at least one RBI each.

Nelis went 2-for-3 with three RBI. He drove in the Millers' first run with a bases-loaded single in the first inning and drove in two more with a double in the bottom of the fourth.

Walden had an RBI walk in the third and an RBI single in the second after a bases-loaded fielder's choice in the first.

"Last week we started out slow. I think we had two hits against Franklin Central. We've been working a lot at practice, staying disciplined, getting pitches that we can drive and it helped a lot," Walden said.

The Millers lost 5-1 to Franklin Central on April 22, which they followed up with a loss to Westfield before turning the offense around.

"We've been putting up some runs, but they gave us a lot. They had a hard time throwing strikes tonight and catching the ball, but we'll take it," Keever said.

Noblesville drove in runs in every inning and plated three runs in the bottom of the fourth to end the game by mercy rule in the top of the fifth.

Tyler Smitherman finished 1-for-3 with two RBI for Westfield with a two-run double in the top of the third, but the Shamrocks had few answers against Peek and Leslie.

"We're better than this, and we have to learn to come with a consistent effort and performance level," Bunnell said. "We certainly didn't do that tonight. It kind of started on Saturday to be honest. We jumped up three runs, and then we weren't really good on the mound on Saturday either."

Noblesville turned a 3-0 deficit on Saturday into a 6-3 lead and eventual 11-3 advantage to split the series and keep their ½ game lead over Hamilton Southeastern in the HCC standings.

"Ultimately, yeah, in the grand scheme (this game) doesn't count in the conference standings, but we've got to compete and perform a lot better than we did tonight," Bunnell said.

The Millers came out ready, compiled eight at-bats before the Shamrocks recorded their first out. Zach Gruver and Peek had RBI in the first inning for Noblesville. The Shamrocks sent four pitchers to the mound to quiet the Millers, but Noblesville loaded the bases eight times in the game.

"I thought we played really good defense tonight, and I thought Matt and Ethan Leslie, who came early, threw strikes," Keever said. "(Westfield starter Parker Bard) was struggling to find the zone a little bit, but Ethan kind of broke it open with that bases-loaded double. He's put some great at-bats together for us tonight. We like him there (hitting No. 1) because he gets on base."

Bard lasted 1.0 inning before getting pulled with three walks surrendered, a hit batter and two strikeouts.

"We lost one to Westfield in the first game, so we kind of used that as a reality check, kind of find who we are," Walden said.

The Millers know now, and they hope to carry the momentum into this week's HCC showdown with HSE (10-4, 5-2) beginning at Thursday in Fishers. The two-game series concludes at Dunker Field on Friday.

Huskies drop first game of series with Cass

Roth

Hamilton Heights dropped the first game of its Hoosier Conference series with Lewis Cass 6-2 on Tuesday at the Huskies' field.

Both teams got on the board in the fourth inning. Heights scored when Erik Malott led off with a single, then Sam Fulton tripled him home.

But the Kings scored in the next three innings, including three runs in the sixth. The Huskies scored their second run when Lucas Letsinger doubled in Alex Roth.

"We just couldn't get anything going offensively," said Heights coach JR Moffatt. "Rodebaugh is a really good pitcher, he will pitch for the Boilers in West Lafayette next year. We had him in a couple of tough spots and he worked his way out of it. There's a reason he's headed up there."

Malott finished the game with two hits. Fulton pitched five and a third innings, striking out five.

"No shame in losing to a good team and Cass is really good," said Moffatt. "On the flip side I didn't think we fought very hard. We have a couple of kids gone on a school business trip and another that got hurt today
