Hey, can you grab that door?

With all the excitement lately surrounding the Avengers: End Game movie, my thoughts have turned to my own superhero activities through the years. Not to brag, but I, too, have a secret identity, and you finally get to meet her today. I'm Door Woman.

AMY SHANKLAND
Sandwiched

I first realized how important it is for people to open doors for one another when I sprained my ankle 20 years ago. You really learn how kind people can be – and how thoughtless – when you're on crutches. The day after the sprain, I had to judge a debate meet at a local high school. While I spent most of the day sitting with my leg up, I did have to hobble from one classroom to the next.

Some of the kids were awesome and practically ran to open up doors for me. Others were lost in their own world and I felt invisible when I approached a door. I vowed that day to always keep an eye out for people who need a little help in this area.

I greatly appreciated the kindness of this act when Jonathon and Jacob were toddlers years ago. It was such a tremendous relief to not have to wrestle with a double stroller/car seat AND a door when we went out and about.

As they got older, my husband John and I always reminded them to get the door for others. We still do, which often leads to some eye rolling.

Most recently, I've been grateful for the human door openers of the world when I take my mom out for lunch, dinner, doctor appointments, etc. She's used a walker for a couple of years now. A lot of places have the automatic push-button door openers, which are a Godsend. But ... a lot of them don't.

Most of the time I can get the door for Mom, but sometimes my hands are full with both of our purses, some to-go boxes, packages, etc. It's always a relief when a restaurant host/hostess, office worker, or just a kind stranger on the street rushes over to get that door for us.

So I like to pay it forward and get the door for anyone in need whenever I can. It often leads to a bit of confusion when I'm with family and friends, as I'll leap up suddenly, exclaim, "I'll be right back," and tear across the room (hallway, sidewalk, street, whatever) to grab a door for a stranger. Most of the time I don't even have time to change into my superhero costume, but Door Woman gets the job done anyway.

They say it's always the little things that make a difference to others, so I'll keep on being Door Woman for the rest of my life. And if others want to borrow my secret identity, that's okay, too.

Dems plan Carmel contest; few local incumbents lose

Republicans got all the attention in Tuesday's local primary elections. But, Democrats say they will make a limited effort in the November general election campaign. Democratic County Chairman Joe Weingarten said this week that he is "95 percent certain" his party will have a candidate for mayor in Carmel. But, he is not ready to identify the candidate.

FRED SWIFT
The County Line

Weingarten had good news for Noblesville candidate Chris Jensen and renominated Mayors Scott Fadness of Fishers and Andy Cook in Westfield. No opposition in November for them. Democrats have until next month to fill their ticket for the fall election, but no prospects, the chairman says.

He said an announcement on a Carmel candidate may be made May 14 after a scheduled County Election Board meeting. At that time Democrats will seek further investigation into an allegation that a bribe was offered to Carmel mayoral candidate Fred Glynn to drop out of the race for mayor.

Incumbent Mayor Jim Brainard, who says no such offer was made, defeated Glynn in Tuesday's election. He is seeking his seventh term in the city that has never elected a Democrat to public office.

The outcome of the GOP primaries on Tuesday were widely predicted. With few exceptions, incumbents prevailed for most offices a stake. And, in Noblesville what mayoral candidate Mike Corbett called the "establishment" was quite successful if there is indeed an establishment. The term is hard to define, especially in the case of our county's growing cities.

Since incumbent officeholders are established in office, one could assume their successful re-election would be a victory for the establishment. The only incumbent to lose in Noblesville was city councilman Rick Taylor. Of course, mayor-to-be Jensen is not an incumbent, but had the support of retiring Mayor John Ditslear.

The most surprising loss of an "establishment" incumbent was that of Carmel City Councilor Ron Carter. He has been the longest serving, most loyal supporter

HSE School Board gives its final approval of nondiscrimination policy

By LARRY LANNAN
LarryInFishers.com

I have done my share of attending school board meetings over my career in journalism, but have never witnessed anything quite like the public hearing held Wednesday night by the Hamilton Southeastern (HSE) School Board. I counted 38 people walking up to a microphone before the board and those watching on a video live stream.

Speaking before a school board is stressful enough. Add in the fact that you are a student in the school system. In addition, you have been bullied because of being transgender or gay. Yet, somehow, you find the courage to publicly tell your story before the elected board and a mass of humanity watching you.

The board room filled up quickly once the doors opened, and overflow rooms were available to watch the live video as the meeting moved along. The number of people wanting to view the meeting was amazing.

This all happened because the HSE Board was considering final approval of a revised nondiscrimination policy. There were several versions of the language, but the wording released just a few hours before the meeting appeared to satisfy the group HSEqual, which had been arguing for more inclusive language in the policy, including naming gender identity as a group covered by the policy and removing language that tied the policy too closely with federal and state law.

Board member Amanda Shera proposed a "conscience clause" in the policy, which would allow an exception to the policy for religious reasons. That measure failed on a 5-2 vote, with Shera and Sylvia Shepler voting yes.

Then the board passed the new policy proposal 5-2, with Mike Bottorff, Julie Chambers, Janet Pritchett, Brad Boyer and Michelle Fullhart voting yes; voting no were Amanda Shera and Sylvia Shepler.

After the vote, Fishers Mayor Scott Fadness issued a statement praising the school board for its action on the nondiscrimination policy:

"I commend the action of the school board tonight to adopt a new non-discriminatory policy that ensures all students have protections against discrimination and demonstrates to all students that they have the support of their school community. Thank you to the board members who worked on the new non-discriminatory language and who listened to the students, teachers and public."

Advocating for Victims of Crime and Abuse

I was born and raised right here in Noblesville. I grew up in a home without domestic violence or assault – it wasn't something I saw, or even heard about. But when I was introduced to Prevail of Central Indiana, I was shocked by the number of individuals who are affected by domestic violence. In 2018 alone, Prevail helped more than 4,000 clients in Hamilton County. (Nearly 80 percent of clients are women and children.) Prevail is strictly confidential, and since their core values include integrity and respect, they provide their services at no charge. Domestic violence and abuse are hard topics to discuss, so you don't often hear about them. But at Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville, we're breaking the taboo and raising awareness for Prevail, an organization that helps families in Hamilton County. – Mike Bragg, GM of Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville

To help Hamilton County families affected by domestic violence and sexual abuse, you can donate the following items:

- Art supplies (for children to journal and express their emotions)
- Bottled water (8 oz. bottles, preferably)
- Individually packaged snacks
- Gas cards (many women have no access to funds after fleeing their abuser)

You can drop off items at Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville, located at 14701 Tom Wood Way. You can also donate directly to Prevail of Central Indiana by visiting Prevailinc.org.

Nickel Plate Express to celebrate National Train Day

The REPORTER

Nickel Plate Express will join the rest of the United States railroad community in celebrating National Train Day on Saturday, May 11.

First hailed as a national holiday by Amtrak in 2008, the holiday celebrates the impact rail travel had on America's history. The holiday is also a reminder to the public to take advantage of the rail travel that's still offered today. Traditionally, the holiday is held on the Saturday closest to May 10. On May 10, 1869, the Golden Spike was driven, marking the completion of the first transcontinental railroad in the U.S.

The Nickel Plate Express will honor the holiday with both family and adult rides on May 11 and 12. Passengers can board the historic equipment and pay homage to the rich history of rail travel.

"Nickel Plate Express is excited to celebrate our first National Train Day," said Dagny Zupin, communications coordinator for Nickel Plate Express. "We look forward to welcoming passengers on board to appreciate this historic day with us."

Tickets can be purchased at NickelPlateExpress.com.

About Nickel Plate Express

Nickel Plate Express is managed by nonprofit Nickel Plate Heritage Railroad Inc. The organization provides themed, year-round train excursions in northern Hamilton County. Nickel Plate Express seeks to educate and entertain all ages through moving historical experiences.

Noblesville doctor to merge his practice with Aspire Indiana Health

The REPORTER

David Dwyer, M.D., a mainstay in internal medicine in Noblesville for four decades, will merge his practice with Aspire Indiana Health on July 1. Dr. Dwyer recently announced his intention in a letter to his patients.

"After spending my entire medical career in solo private practice, I have decided to join a group practice and will be affiliating with Aspire Indiana Health," he wrote.

Dwyer will practice at the Aspire health center on Cumberland Road in Noblesville, and assured patients they would see no interruption in their care.

Aspire appointed Dwyer as its first Medical Director of Primary Care in December 2017, and since then the relationship had continued to deepen, according to Aspire Indiana Health Executive Director Jerry Landers. Merging practices was the next logical step.

"Dr. Dwyer's reputation is that of someone who cares deeply for his patients and fosters the next generation of physicians," Landers said. "This joining of practices marks a key phase in our evolution as a fully integrated health care provider."

Dwyer is a graduate of Georgetown University and the University of Wisconsin, performing his internship and residency at the University of Missouri Medical School. A doctor of internal medicine, he specializes in the diagnosis and treatment of acute and chronic medical conditions.

Aspire Indiana Health is a Federally Qualified Health Center (FQHC), meaning its health centers are certified to accept Medicare and Medicaid as well as most commercial health insurances. The nonprofit organization has experienced sustained expansion, including opening its Noblesville center in early 2018.

Letter to the Editor

Noblesville reader, voter worried about future of city

Dear Editor:
Noblesville voters, where were you? Did you not vote thinking it would be okay? Now we are headed for more of the current administration. More crooked decisions without the input of us the residents and citizens. Some of us have been here our whole lives and we will be here beyond.

My father was born in a 2 room shanty. He and my mother built onto the house for their 3 children. Now mom is in Heaven and Dad survives cancer. I moved home to care for him. I am concerned about the devious decisions that are made without any concern to the residents of Noblesville. Old Town Noblesville and yes I hate that term. We are not Old Town. Because we aren't the Harbours or the Wellingtons or Hamilton Town Center ... I'm not alone in my feelings.

Now what's to happen to our town? More decisions beyond our control. More 3-4 lane roads taking out more houses. More bad decisions without our input. More Carmel and less Noblesville. I can imagine someday the development of a subdivision in my neighborhood. Without my approval they can just condemn the property and take it.

More development and change we the people don't agree with. Like they have before with the development of 5 story buildings. Apartments that Noblesville don't need or can afford. How about we think more about our teens and seniors. We need things for our teens and young and old to do. Do you not remember them taking our train? Trails will bring more crime and you mark my words. Just you watch and see.

The skating rink and the game shops are long gone. I remember the teens going to play pinball and games. Gee, I wonder why you all think our teens are turning to crime and drugs. Let's just open another work out center nobody needs or wants. Let's get back to the basics and bring back some of the 70s for a better Noblesville.

It's happening in Westfield too. Look at the changes. Not all high class development is good. If you think it won't happen in your town think again. Push us to the side. Someday you too will be old and pushed to the side and your voice won't count. It's called Karma! I'm sad for Noblesville!

After I voted, on my way home I witnessed Mike Corbett walking my neighborhood. Yes he was sweating. I thought to myself, Wow he will make a great mayor! He works hard for Noblesville and he is what we need. At this point all I can do is PRAY. Pray I'm wrong and pray our new mayor listens to us and works for us not against us! We the People of Noblesville deserve that.

National Nurses Week: A heart to serve

In recognition of National Nurses Week (May 6-12), St. Vincent is proud to honor America's 4 million registered nurses who serve patients with compassion and dedication. These men and women understand that the nursing profession is a calling and I've been lucky enough to see my colleagues in action as they go above and beyond for their patients every day.

the family and her patient was quickly reunited with his pet.

There are thousands of other stories out there where nurses have made a difference in the lives of their patients, both in and outside of the hospital. They are true servant leaders and this is why we take the time to honor, support and celebrate all nurses during this special week.

Recently, a patient who underwent brain surgery at St. Vincent shared with one of his nurses that his beloved dog had disappeared from his backyard. The patient was even more worried because the 15-year-old dog is also blind, deaf and has no sense of smell. Fortunately for the patient, that same nurse volunteers at the Humane Society. One day after the patient's surgery, the nurse heard about a family who found a dog matching the description of her patient's dog. She was able to reach out to

As our nation's baby boomers continue to age, there will be more people needing health care. Currently, the enrollment of nursing students has not been able to keep up with the growth of the need, so we are seeking individuals who have a heart to serve. As a nurse, you can encompass a variety of different roles that lead to a rewarding outcome. You are able to help people navigate through some of the most difficult (cancer diagnosis) or exciting (birth of a baby) times of their life.

There are lots of opportunities available in a variety of clinical areas. If you're seeking a new career or just not sure if nursing is for you, consider educational and open house opportunities in your area to explore the nursing profession. Nursing offers a fulfillment in service to others, flexible scheduling and a gateway for career growth in a variety of settings - from a patient's bedside to regional hospital system leadership.

We are blessed to have so many phenomenal caregivers in our community and I would like to personally thank all nurses for their service to others.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

Then said he unto the disciples, It is impossible but that offences will come: but woe unto him, through whom they come! It were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he cast into the sea, than that he should offend one of these little ones. Take heed to yourselves: If thy brother trespass against thee, rebuke him; and if he repent, forgive him. And if he trespass against thee seven times in a day, and seven times in a day turn again to thee, saying, I repent; thou shalt forgive him. And the apostles said unto the Lord, Increase our faith. And the Lord said, If ye had faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye might say unto this sycamine tree, Be thou plucked up by the root, and be thou planted in the sea; and it should obey you. But which of you, having a servant plowing or feeding cattle, will say unto him by and by, when he is come from the field, Go and sit down to meat? And will not rather say unto him, Make ready wherewith I may sup, and gird thyself, and serve me, till I have eaten and drunken; and afterward thou shalt eat and drink? Doth he thank that servant because he did the things that were commanded him? I trow not. So likewise ye, when ye shall have done all those things which are commanded you, say, We are unprofitable servants: we have done that which was our duty to do.
