Heights Educational Foundation turns 30

The REPORTER

This year marks the 30th anniversary of the Hamilton Heights Educational Foundation (HHEF). The organization can be proud of the difference in education it has made for Heights students over the past three decades.

"Having served as a member of the Board of Directors and President, I can't say enough about the value this organization brings to Heights," said Melissa Martin, whose leadership has been an invaluable component of the Foundation's success during her eight-year tenure. "The group of local visionaries who founded the organization, many of which still live and work in the community, certainly knew it would be a worthwhile endeavor but could not have possibly known how very essential the Foundation would become."

"Initially, the members saw the undertaking as an opportunity to elevate the learning environment by creating an entity to raise money for new and innovative projects and to enhance existing programs," continued Martin. "Since then, the Foundation has grown in size and scope, providing financial support through grants to groups, schools and district level programs that might not otherwise be possible. Its grants fund programs that demonstrate innovative and effective ways to meet students' needs, enhance student achievement and increase motivation to learn."

Since the Foundation's inception in 1989, it has provided hundreds of thousands of dollars to students and classrooms across all grade levels. While the Foundation receives more requests than it can fund, it funds as much as it can while it works to raise money and seek out additional funding sources. Its annual golf scramble brings in the bulk of its grant money. Each year, money raised from the outing is funneled back into the district.

The Foundation got a boost last year when the community rallied to help it secure a $25,000 Blue Bunny Helmet of Hope grant from the Jimmie Johnson Foundation. HHEF was among the five not-for-profit organizations supporting K-12 education in the nation awarded this grant. Most recently, Founda-

A lesson in kindness

"I saved you a seat." Oh, the sweetness of those words.

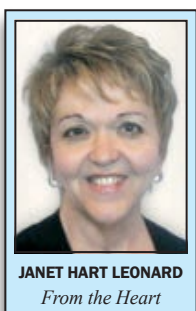

I was walking into Leah's gymnastics meet and I had no idea where to go and what to do once we got registered.

The mother of Leah's teammate called out to me and said that I could sit with her and the other mothers.

She had saved me a seat knowing I was not familiar with the gist of gymnastics. In other words, I was totally out of my element. I may not have had a deer in the headlights look but definitely had one of "Grandma is lost and please help me find my way."

I wanted to hug her.

Now as an extrovert you would think I could just walk into that gym and find my way around. Sure, I could do that but I was not comfortable doing so.

The truth is that I have always dreaded walking into a room of people by myself. What if I sit in the seat where someone usually sits? What if I am not familiar with the program and what to do when?

I have tried my best over the years to include new people in a conversation. If someone looks lost I try to help them find their way. I've also believed that what goes around comes around.

Comfort is found in the simple kindness of others.

My mother was a great example of making people feel comfortable, and at 93 she still does.

Last week when her assisted living was having a Mother's Tea she heard her neighbor say that she would just stay in her room. She had asked the activity director where she was supposed to go and why. Mom sensed her hesitation. Mom gave me the "look."

I reassured her neighbor that she could sit with us and join in the fun. We would make sure she got back to her apartment. She smiled as she walked with us down the hallway.

Soon, she was wearing a bonnet and singing with the singers and enjoying some tea and pastries. Mom held her hand and said, "Isn't this nice?" Her smile became a sweet grin. They sang and swayed to the music of Sentimental Journey.

We got her back to her room and Mom said, "Janet, I know what it is like to be new here and afraid to not be included. I wanted her to know she has a friend."

I guess my mom taught me well. She saved me a seat in the front row of kindness.

Westfield's Northpoint Business Park selected for site readiness program

The REPORTER

Developing and promoting the economic and social growth of a community, state or region is rewarding, long-term work. That's why Duke Energy and its predecessor companies in Indiana have been front and center in helping communities grow.

Duke Energy has selected six locations in Indiana, including Westfield's Northpoint Business Park, to participate in the company's Site Readiness Program, which identifies, evaluates and improves sites in the company's 69-county service territory for potential industrial development.

Northpoint Business Park is bordered by East 196th Street to the south, Grassy Branch Road to the east, 202nd/203rd Street to the north and U.S. 31 to the west.

"Those of us who perform economic development work as a career know that our labor does not produce instant results," said Erin Schneider, Indiana director of economic development for Duke Energy. "It is an honor to join forces with hard-working economic development groups to help bring lasting change and improvement to their communities."

Three site development companies and one engineering company will evaluate Northpoint Business Park and make specific recommendations for attracting large companies to build their facilities there.

Duke Energy will present its findings, including a detailed report and conceptual drawings to local economic development officials when the studies are completed later this year. Economic development will also receive a check for $10,000 from Duke Energy to help implement the recommendations.

After a site's readiness has advanced, Duke Energy's business development team will strategically market those sites nationwide to companies looking to expand or relocate their operations.

According to Duke representatives, an ideal property for Duke Energy's Site Readiness Program is typically 40 acres or larger, served by the utility, or a vacant industrial building of at least 20,000 square feet identified to support renewed industrial growth and sustainable development in a community.

Duke Energy's overall economic development program has been consistently named by Site Selection magazine as one of the nation's "Top 10 Utility Economic Development Programs." Since 2008, the company has participated in the creation of nearly 20,000 jobs with a total capital investment of approximately $4.5 billion.

I was born and raised right here in Noblesville. I grew up in a home without domestic violence or assault - it wasn't something I saw, or even heard about. But when I was introduced to Prevail of Central Indiana, I was shocked by the number of individuals who are affected by domestic violence. In 2018 alone, Prevail helped more than 4,000 clients in Hamilton County. (Nearly 80 percent of clients are women and children.) Prevail is strictly confidential, and since their core values include integrity and respect, they provide their services at no charge. Domestic violence and abuse are hard topics to discuss, so you don't often hear about them. But at Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville, we're breaking the taboo and raising awareness for Prevail, an organization that helps families in Hamilton County. - Mike Bragg, GM of Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville

To help Hamilton County families affected by domestic violence and sexual abuse, you can donate the following items:

- Art supplies (for children to journal and express their emotions)
- Bottled water (8 oz. bottles, preferably)
- Individually packaged snacks
- Gas cards (many women have no access to funds after fleeing their abuser)

You can drop off items at Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville, located at 14701 Tom Wood Way. You can also donate directly to Prevail of Central Indiana by visiting Prevailinc.org.

Just a few election takeaways

The municipal primary election of 2019 is behind us and many candidates are breathing a sigh of relief that the campaign is over.

ADAM AASEN
Carmel Convo

It's a stressful time of year for political candidates and their families, and so now with the Republican nominees in place we can turn to the work of continuing to make Hamilton County one of the best places to live in Indiana.

I wanted to quickly share a few thoughts about the 2019 election:

Countywide turnout was low compared to mid-term or presidential elections, but that's always the case. Countywide it was about 16 percent turnout which is about what it was in 2015. Carmel saw the highest turnout in 2019 with more than 20 percent of registered voters showing up the polls.

Elections can get nasty. Candidates are real people with families and it can be very tough for the entire family when an election turns negative. That being said, candidates need to have thick skins and it's time to heal after an election. Candidates shouldn't hold grudges and the focus needs to turn to helping the community. I successfully ran for Carmel City Council this year and I'm proud of the fact that we ran a positive campaign and did not attack others. I am going to actively continue to seek out feedback and guidance from those that might not have voted for me so I can understand their viewpoints and listen to advice on how I can improve as a public servant. We might disagree on certain issues but we all want our community to succeed. The best thing we all can do is continue to listen to one another and treat each other with respect.

Finally, I wanted to take a moment to honor a long-time elected official in Carmel who lost his election on May 7. Ron Carter has served the City of Carmel for 24 years as an at-large member of the City Council. I proudly voted for Ron and I consider him a friend, but even if you didn't vote for Councilor Carter, I would urge you to reflect upon Carter's legacy. Carmel would not be what it is today without Ron Carter. He was instrumental in extending the Monon Greenway from Indianapolis into Carmel and he helped found the Carmel Farmers Market. He's tirelessly worked to better his community for more than two decades and he deserves our gratitude. If you see Ron at the farmers market on a Saturday morning, please tell him thank you for all he's done.

Soil and Water, Ivy Tech combine forces to host state Envirothon

The REPORTER

The Hamilton County Soil and Water Conservation District (HCSWCD) and Ivy Tech aligned to host the state Envirothon competition held on April 24. Envirothon is a high school-aged student competition that helps students learn about natural resources and the issues facing current and future generations.

Teams are comprised of five students in grades 9 through 12 and one adult coach. During the competition, each team answers questions about environmental resources consisting of aquatics, soils, forestry, wildlife and a current environmental issue. Teams may consist of members from a variety of organizations, including clubs at high schools (environment, agriculture, science and academic clubs), the Scouts, home-schooled students and 4-H Clubs.

This year, Rossville FFA took the win and will represent Indiana at the North American Envirothon competition to be held on July 28 in Raleigh, N.C., on the campus of North Carolina State University.

The Envirothon Competition is completely volunteer based and depends on support of local businesses, donations and volunteers to make it successful. HCSWCD and the Indiana Envirothon Board would like to thank everyone who worked together to achieve the day's success. Experts from the United States Forest Service (USFS), the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), the IN Department of Natural Resources (DNR), the National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD), the Cope Environmental Center, the Environmental Education Association of IN (EEAI) and IN Agriculture Nutrient Alliance all acted as judges for the oral presentations.

German-born U.S. World War II vet to speak at Carmel's Memorial Day ceremony

The REPORTER

Carmel will hold its annual Memorial Day Ceremony to remember those who paid the ultimate price in service to our country. Members of the local American Legion Post 155 and Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) Post 1003 will conduct a flag raising ceremony and all attending will have the opportunity to place flowers at the Memorial.

Not "just" a farm kid

Editor's Note: The Sheridan Student Column is brought to readers by Sheridan High School's 10th grade English class, taught by Abby Williams.

LEAH MOORMAN
Sheridan High School Student

It has come to my attention that, unfortunately, people often see kids who grow up in rural communities as "just" farm kids. There is no such thing as "just" a farm or ag kid. Growing up on a farm teaches kids a plethora of life lessons and applicable skills. From time and money management to the value of hard work, the life of many farm kids will help them succeed in their future endeavors.

Because of the skills they develop, individuals who grow up on farms or are involved in 4-H and/or FFA are more employable. Daily chores such as feeding and watering livestock teach farm kids the value of hard work, and therefore they develop a passion for their work. Farm life teaches kids true motivation: Getting up early to feed, water and clean so that the animal is ready for show and then market. Even when they lose or make a loss at market, ag and farm kids just head back home to start over and try again.

Furthermore, kids involved in 4-H learn the pledge including the line, "I pledge my hands to larger service." FFA encourages students to be involved in their communities and give back as well. For kids involved with these two organizations, community service is the norm. Farm kids grow up knowing the importance of giving back and continue to do so throughout their lives. 4-H, the FFA and farm life in general teach children how to become leaders. Whether it be in their school, community or a future job, farm kids are taught from an early age the skills and traits necessary to become true leaders in their endeavors.

Aside from work ethic and values, farm kids know how to communicate with anyone. Growing up on a farm taught me a lot, but I realize now that if it weren't for my upbringing, I would probably be a lot more socially awkward than I am now. Going to various elevators selling grain, talking with local farmers about yields, and bartering prices for steers or used machinery teaches farm kids how to effectively communicate. 4-H and FFA help teach kids how to introduce themselves properly and communicate in a professional manner. Competitions such as 'Job Interview' help teach members of these organizations how to not only apply for a job, but also how to do well in the interview. For farm kids, this social networking is a daily activity that will come in very handy in college, as well as in future careers.

Professional development is just one of the many other benefits growing up with a rural lifestyle develops. 4-H does a phenomenal job of teaching farm kids how to accept criticism. It's pretty hard to stand in front of the judge and listen to him/her explain where you went wrong with your project, whether it be for horticulture or showing a steer that you thought deserved Grand Champion. After spending all year getting up every single morning -- including Christmas and every other holiday -- to feed, water and take care of an animal, and to spend countless hours walking it and practicing, it's not very fun to lose. But 4-H'ers learn through this process how to accept criticism from the judge and use it to make their project even better next year.

For FFA members, reading over the evaluation sheets after contests helps develop the same skill. Judges will mark where you went wrong and what you should've done and will usually make notes in the margins of their critiques. Similar to 4-H projects, sometimes these criticisms are hard to hear after spending countless hours striving to make a project perfect. For farm kids who aren't involved in these organizations, sometimes the criticism comes from the elevator when discussing seed. Or when, for some reason, yields just aren't doing well. Or when you've stacked all the hay, but the farmer you're working for says you didn't do a good enough job -- do it again. This criticism can hurt and be a pain, but farm kids, 4-H'ers and FFA members learn to take it in stride and learn from it. Many kids who aren't involved with rural life don't learn how to do that until much later in life, which can serve to their detriment in future careers.

Lastly, for most farm kids, family is the cornerstone upon which they stand. From gathering together for birthdays to helping another farm family with harvest, rural life teaches kids what true family values are. They're raised to know how important it is to show up for family events. Farm life teaches kids the value of serving others through family relationships as well. Whether it's helping a local farmer harvest wheat because he was injured by a steer or fell ill, to loading up supplies and food to help a family in a rough spot, farm kids learn that it's never all about them. There's always someone else who can be helped, somewhere else to be served. Rural communities are frequently rather close-knit, and many farming families grow up together, so this mentality of service bears helpful to all.

In conclusion, there is no such thing as "just" a farm kid. People who are raised on a farm or involved with agriculture develop a plethora of skills that will be forever beneficial to them.

Hoosiers turn in nearly 1 ton of unwanted drugs

The REPORTER

On April 27, Hoosiers participated in the 17th nationwide "Prescription Drug Take Back Day" by visiting Indiana State Police Posts, locations sponsored by the Indiana Professional Licensing Agency (IPLA) and the Indiana Board of Pharmacy, and other sites across the state.

"Kudos to everyone who helped protect their

"We hope more people will take advantage of convenient prescription drop-off locations available year round across Indiana."

In partnership with the federal Drug Enforcement

Administration (DEA), the drug take back initiative seeks to prevent prescription drug abuse and theft through proper disposal of prescription drugs. A total of 95 sites across Indiana partnered with the DEA to collect unused medication.

During the one-day event, the DEA reports that Hoosiers safely disposed of 22,757 pounds of unused medication. Collectively the Indiana State Police received 1,794.9 pounds of unused, expired or unwanted medications for proper disposal. Partners from the Indiana Professional Licensing Agency and the Board of Pharmacy received 1,153 pounds of prescription medication.

Brooks, others reintroduce gun violence reduction bill

The REPORTER

Last week during National Police Week and Mental Health Awareness Month, U.S. Representatives Susan W. Brooks (R-Ind.-05), Ted Deutch (D-Fla.-22), Fred Upton (R-Mich.-06) and Debbie Dingell (D-Mich.-12) reintroduced the Jake Laird Act, a bipartisan bill named after an Indianapolis police officer who was shot and killed in 2004 in the line of duty by a man who struggled with mental illness.

This bill provides grants to encourage states to adopt laws, similar to Indiana's 2005 Jake Laird Law, that enable local law enforcement, with probable cause, to temporarily remove and retain firearms from individuals who are determined to be an imminent danger to themselves or others.

"Red flag laws save lives and are already working in states across the country, including Indiana and Florida, to prevent devastating losses of life," said Brooks. "As our country continues to grapple with how to keep our communities safe, the Jake Laird Act of 2019 will provide local law enforcement officers the tools and training necessary to help prevent senseless acts of violence from claiming more innocent lives. I am proud to reintroduce this bipartisan gun violence reduction tool that will help us better avoid situations that could jeopardize the lives of our loved ones, friends, and neighbors while also protecting individual constitutional rights."

Brooks

The Jake Laird Act of 2019 is endorsed by the Indiana State Fraternal Order of Police.

"The Jake Laird Act is a common sense approach to keeping firearms out of the hands of those who have no reason to have them and who could harm themselves or others," said President of the Indiana State Fraternal Order of Police Bill Owensby. "Anything that can be done to keep our first responders safer makes our citizens safer. The Indiana Fraternal Order of Police supports Congresswoman Brooks' proposal."

Background

The Jake Laird Act of 2019 provides grants to states that enact laws substantially similar to Indiana's Jake Laird Law. This grant funding will equip police officers with training and additional resources needed to deescalate life-threatening crisis situations and prevent future potentially deadly events from occurring in the first place. Since 2005, Indiana's Jake Laird Law has been used over 700 times in Indianapolis alone.

The Jake Laird Act of 2019 respects constitutional Second Amendment protections for law-abiding gun owners and provides for due process by guaranteeing a day in court within 21 days. Brooks helps reintroduce legislation to protect women's access to mammograms

On Wednesday, Congresswomen Susan W. Brooks (R-Ind.-05) and Debbie Wasserman Schultz (D-Fla.-23) reintroduced the Protecting Access to Lifesaving Screenings (PALS) Act. The PALS Act would postpone U.S. Preventive Services Task Force (USPSTF) recommendations that could severely limit women's access to mammograms, and was passed previously extending the moratorium on USPSTF guidelines to 2021.

"Women of all ages are affected by breast cancer and every woman should be able to access mammograms when they need them," said Brooks. "Taking preventative measures, such as having mammograms, are key components to combating a disease that takes the lives of too many Hoosiers and Americans. If left in place, USPSTF recommendations put women, especially young women, at risk of losing insurance coverage for essential mammogram screenings that could save their life. I'm proud to continue work to protect coverage of life saving preventative screenings with my friend, and cancer survivor, Debbie Wasserman Schultz."

Background

This year, more than 40,000 Americans will lose their lives to breast cancer. In 2017, the American Cancer Society estimated that 9 percent of new, fatal cases of breast cancer were among women in their forties. Despite that, the most recent recommendations from the USPSTF gave annual mammograms for women ages 40 to 49 a "C" grade, meaning they recommend that screening be performed only selectively, and stated that women between the ages of 50 and 74 should have mammograms only bi-annually. Because many insurance companies use these guidelines as the basis for coverage, 22 million women between 40 and 49 could be at risk for losing coverage for lifesaving mammograms.

The PALS Act protects access to annual mammograms with insurance coverage with no-copay starting at age 40 by extending the moratorium on the USPSTF breast cancer screening guidelines, and also ensures that women veterans treated in the Veterans Health Administration do not face these same obstacles to getting the care they and their health care providers deem necessary.

The PALS Act is supported by: the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, American College of Radiology, American Women Unite for Breast Cancer Screening, Black Women's Health Imperative, Breast Friends, Bright Pink, DenseBreast Info. Inc, Don't Be a Chump! Check for a Lump!, FORCE: Facing Our Risk of Cancer Empowered, Living Beyond Breast Cancer, Men Against Breast Cancer, Moffitt Cancer Center, National Association of Nurse Practitioners in Women's Health, National Black Nurses Association, National Consortium of Breast Centers, National Hispanic Medical Association, National Patient Advocate Foundation, Prevent Cancer Foundation, Servicewomen's Action Network, Sharsheret, Society of Breast Imaging, Susan G. Komen, and Tigerlily Foundation.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

And it came to pass, that as he was come nigh unto Jericho, a certain blind man sat by the way side begging: And hearing the multitude pass by, he asked what it meant. And they told him, that Jesus of Nazareth passeth by. And he cried, saying, Jesus, thou son of David, have mercy on me. And they which went before rebuked him, that he should hold his peace: but he cried so much the more, Thou son of David, have mercy on me. And Jesus stood, and commanded him to be brought unto him: and when he was come near, he asked him, Saying, What wilt thou that I shall do unto thee? And he said, Lord, that I may receive my sight. And Jesus said unto him, Receive thy sight: thy faith hath saved thee. And immediately he received his sight, and followed him, glorifying God: and all the people, when they saw it, gave praise unto God.

Where does Wonder Bread get its name?

The REPORTER

This coming week in Indiana's history ...

1856 - A post office was established in the newly-named town of Santa Claus in Spencer County. The previous name, Santa Fe, was changed because there was already a town by that name in Miami County. In the early 1930s, the town was featured in Ripley's Believe It or Not. That Christmas, the post office received thousands of letters to Old St. Nick, a tradition which has continued to this day.

1919 - Madam C. J. Walker died in Irvington, N.Y. At the time of her death, she was considered the wealthiest self-made woman in America. She had amassed a fortune from her cosmetics and hair care business in Indianapolis. Her legacy includes the Walker Theater on Indiana Avenue.

1921 - Wonder Bread was introduced by the Taggart Bakery in Indianapolis. The name was inspired by the "wonder" of the International Balloon Race at the Speedway. At first, the bread was sold as a solid loaf. The "pre-sliced" product was not offered until the 1930s.

1929 - Ceremonies

were held at Garfield Park in Indianapolis for the re-dedication of the Confederate Soldiers and Sailors Monument, which had been moved from the old Greenlawn Cemetery. The memorial is in tribute to the 1,616 soldiers who died at Camp Morton, a Civil War prison camp on the north side of the city.

1938 - Novelist Thomas Wolfe was the featured speaker at a literary banquet in the Memorial Union Building at Purdue University. Dr. E. C. Elliott, University President, was the toastmaster at the event. Wolfe, the author of Look Homeward Angel, spoke on the topic of "Writing and Living," drawing upon his own works, experiences and convictions.

1954 - Comedians Jerry Lewis and Dean Martin visited the Indianapolis Motor Speedway and, according to newspapers, "hit like a tornado, and aroused drivers, mechanics, officials, and a swarm of spectators with their antics." They took a spin around the track in the pace car, a yellow 1954 Dodge Royal.

The Fishers Unified Track team won its first-ever sectional championship Saturday at Noblesville's Beaver Materials Field. The Tigers were also one of three teams to advance to next Saturday's regional at Kokomo.

Fishers wins first-ever sectional, advances to regional Fishers made history on Saturday, as the Tigers won their first-ever IHSAA Unified Track sectional.

Noblesville hosted the sectional at the Millers' Beaver Materials Field. It was a close competition between the top three schools, with Fishers coming out on top with 118 points. Warren Central finished second with 115 and Lawrence North was third with 112. All three schools advance to next Saturday's regional at Kokomo.

"Very proud of our students today," said Tigers coach Patrick Schooley. "Everybody threw and ran and jumped the way they should have. We had a lot of PRs today. It's very important. We talk about it all the time about doing your best and try to PR everything that you do. Maximizing your points. Great team effort."

Samuel Syrus had top finishes in the 100 dash and 400 dash, and Fishers also had the top finish in both the girls 4x100 relay (which consisted of Ariana Wills, Lindsey Dale, Kristyn Santiago and Elizabeth Maahs) and the boys 4x100 relay (the team of Joshua Ibey, Nathan Oman, Anthony Bishop and Anthony Valerio).

Millers edge Logansport in regular-season finale

Noblesville won its regular-season finale on Saturday, beating Logansport 7-6 at Don Dunker Field.

The Millers scored three runs in the first inning. Cade Nelis singled in Andy Cleverly and DJ Owens, then Jackson Hancock got home on Brady Walden's sacrifice fly.

The Berries tied the game in the third inning, then took a 6-3 lead in the top of the fourth. Noblesville knotted the game in the bottom of the fourth; Owens tripled in Matt Peck, then Ethan Imel hit a two-run home run, also sending Owens home.

The Millers pulled ahead in the sixth inning, as Lucas Williams scored after Imel reached on an error. Logansport got on base in the seventh inning, but a double play and a pop out ended the game.

Owens finished the game 2-for-3. Jared Crandall got the pitching win.

Noblesville finished the regular season 16-13.

Conor Daly qualifies 11th for the Indianapolis 500

Noblesville's Conor Daly had by far his best-ever qualifying run at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on Saturday, and was rewarded with his highest-ever place on the starting grid.

Daly qualified 11th for the Indianapolis 500. Daly ran the first qualifying attempt of the day, clocking in at 227.921 mph. But he ran a second attempt later that afternoon, which proved to be a good decision: Daly's second qualifying run was 228.617, good enough to move him to 11th, where he remained for the rest of the day.

"It was a rollercoaster of a day and we only did two runs," said Daly. "It was wild. I am over the moon. I didn't really know what to expect, but to be .1 mph off of the Fast Nine and starting on the fourth row in 11th is super cool. I think the team did an awesome job after our first run. We just missed the setup a little bit, but we made the perfect adjustments for the second run. We timed it perfectly too because the (qualifying) line started getting stacked up and we made the right call. Credit to Michael (Andretti, team owner/strategist), Andy (Listes, engineer), TZ (John Tzouanakis, Assistant Strategist) and all of the U.S. Air Force guys. It is a lot of fun to be a part of this team and it's only getting better every single day."

This will be Daly's sixth start in the 500. His rookie year was in 2013, and he has qualified every year since 2015.
