Logan Street Bridge reopening postponed

The REPORTER

Due to the heavy rains and flooding, the Logan Street Bridge over White River will not be completed this year as originally planned. The bridge is currently under lane restrictions, but provides an open lane of travel in each direction.

Construction will continue through December, when it will temporarily halt until the spring when temperatures rise high enough to safely finish out the bridge work. The new expected completion date for this project is May 2020.

When construction is demobilized for the winter months, the northbound lane of State Road 19, which has been closed since construction began, will reopen to motorists and will remain open the remainder of construction.

PREVAIL Advocating for Victims of Crime and Abuse www.prevailine.com

I was born and raised right here in Noblesville. I grew up in a home without domestic violence or assault - it wasn't something I saw, or even heard about. But when I was introduced to Prevail of Central Indiana, I was shocked by the number of individuals who are affected by domestic violence. In 2018 alone, Prevail helped more than 4,000 clients in Hamilton County. (Nearly 80 percent of clients are women and children.) Prevail is strictly confidential, and since their core values include integrity and respect, they provide their services at no charge. Domestic violence and abuse are hard topics to discuss, so you don't often hear about them. But at Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville, we're breaking the taboo and raising awareness for Prevail, an organization that helps families in Hamilton County. - Mike Bragg, GM of Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville

To help Hamilton County families affected by domestic violence and sexual abuse, you can donate the following items:

- Art supplies (for children to journal and express their emotions)
- Bottled water (8 oz. bottles, preferably)
- Individually packaged snacks
 Gas cards (many women have no accertainty)
- Gas cards (many women have no access to funds after fleeing their abuser)

You can drop off items at Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville, located at 14701 Tom Wood Way. You can also donate directly to Prevail of Central Indiana by visiting Prevailinc.org.

"Love it or leave it?" We can do better, America

School children born long after Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated in 1968 read about his famous I Have a Dream speech. Spoken on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C. at the historic March on Washington in 1963, Dr. King cast a vision for a country where all people would be judged not by the color of their skin but the content of their character. His vision for equality for citizens of color was part of a larger vision for a country that lived up to its lofty ideals including "liberty and justice for all" and the inalienable rights for all citizens in "pursuit of happiness."

This iconic oration is studied in speech and communication classes and is often referred to as an energizing moment in history. The eloquence and cadence of the I Have a Dream speech, which is rich with historical and geographical metaphors and facts, is often portrayed as a call for unity and justice for all. There is no doubt as Dr. King ends the speech, a vision cast of "all of God's children coming together." However, from beginning to end this is primarily a critique of America and its failure to deliver on its promise of a just and fair "Republic."

In recent days we have heard calls for people who have criticized America to "go back to where they came from." At a recent North Carolina rally, those responding to the President's critique of Congresswoman Ilhan Omar from Minnesota began chanting "Send her back." What is the honest desire of Americans who would chant "Send her back?" I believe that our misguided notions of national pride have clouded our understanding and appreciation for the role of critique and dissent in the shaping of a more perfect union. Had Dr. King been alive today and given an I Have a Dream speech, at what point would thousands of Americans chant "Love it or leave it?" As one who pointed out the stark reality and injustice of poverty amidst a country of great wealth, would his speech make it to the end when we all sing together? Or would the chant directed at a living prophet be different then the deference given a dead American civil rights hero? The I Have a Dream speech was quite radical in its claims. King's speech was a prosecution of America for its shortcomings and hypocrisy at that moment

Dr. King reminded a 1963 America that 100 years post the Emancipation Proclamation that, "The negro is still not free." He described African Americans as "exiles in their own land." Hold on, it gets worse: "America has defaulted on its promissory note insofar as her citizens of color are concerned." This is not a veiled critique of America or a plea for sympathy for people of color.

This is an indictment of a country claiming to be great, while awash in societal segregation and economic disparity. "America has given the negro people a bad check, which has come back marked, 'insufficient funds." This is where I imagine many Americans would silently or out loud declare, "Go back to Africa! America, love it or leave it!"

I believe the great genius of Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and many others was the gift of calling America to live up to our highest ideals, finding strength in our diversity and a pathway to equality. This is a definition of an American patriot who loves their country enough to refuse to allow it to linger on the low ground of isolationism and contradiction.

If I told you Dr. King articulated a current popular protest line "No Justice, No Peace" would you believe me? In his I Have A Dream speech, King makes this declaration in the very country he loved and died: "There will be neither rest nor tranquility until the negro is granted citizenship rights." As we discuss and dream and work for gender pay equity, comprehensive immigration reform, racial healing and pursuit of the common good, let us love our country enough to respect all people, leave room for critique and come up with a better response than "love it or leave it/send her back."

How about a movement to resurrect the Golden Rule? I believe Jesus gave us the template in Matthew 7:12: "Therefore, treat people in the same way you would want them to treat you."

We can do better, America. Bishop Julius C. Trimble Indiana Conference, The United Methodist Church

Noblesville reader calls for higher taxes on tobacco

I applaud Indiana's health commissioner for making it easier for tobacco users to access smoking cessation products without a prescription. Tobacco use kills believe we must do everything we can to discourage smoking.

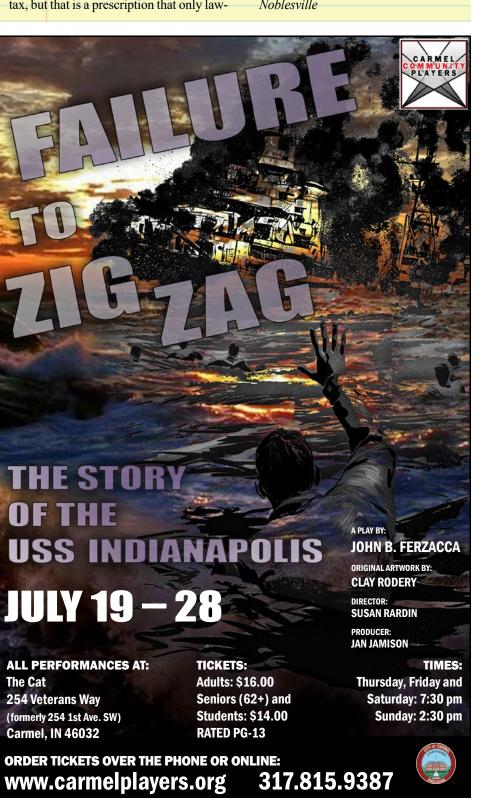

However, the single best prescription state's health. for reducing smoking rates in Indiana is a significant increase in the state cigarette tax, but that is a prescription that only lawmakers and Governor Holcomb can write.

So far, they have failed to treat the problem despite Indiana having one of the highest smoking rates in the country and one of the lowest tax rates in the 11,000 people every year in our state, so I region. Until our elected officials raise the cigarette tax, I am afraid tobacco use will remain the biggest threat to our

Rep. Brooks applauds passage of bill designed to prevent robocalls

The REPORTER

On Wednesday, bipartisan members of the House, led by Congressmen A. Donald McEachin (D-Va.) and Pete Olson (R-Texas), issued statements after their bipartisan bill – the Locking Up Robocallers Act of 2019 – passed out of the House as part of H.R. 3375, the Stopping Bad Robocalls Act.

The Locking Up Robocallers Act of 2019 was introduced by Congressman Donald McEachin (D-Va.) and Congressman Pete Olson (R-Texas), with original co-sponsors Congressman Andy Kim (D-N.J.), Congresswoman Susan W. Brooks (R-Ind.), Congressman Anthony Brindisi (D-N.Y.) and Congressman David Kustoff (R-Tenn.).

The bill directs the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to provide evidence of unlawful robocall violations to the attorney general. It would also require the FCC to publish and submit to Congress a report outlining the number and types of robocaller violations. This would strengthen enforcement of current law aimed at ending the scourge of predatory robocalls.

the House "Today, passed a bipartisan bill to protect American consumers from pesky, dangerous and illegal robocalls that continue to scam hard-working Americans out of time and money," said Brooks. "I'm proud the Stopping Bad Robocalls Act includes our bill because it is critically important to

The high school soccer season is not County girls teams are already in tournament mode.

Carmel is hosting the DeWayne Akin Summer Soccer Showcase this week at the Greyhounds' practice fields near 126th Street and River Road. Teams from all across the state are participating in the event, along with three other county schools: Noblesville, Fishers and Guerin Catholic. Games continue today.

The tournament is a good opportunity for teams to get a look at their players in game situations, something that's important as the first official IHSAA practice draws near. Practices begin on Aug. 5.

"It's so vital," said Carmel coach Frank Dixon. "I don't know how we did it before we had this. We'll have 100 kids out at tryouts and you don't know what they're like in game situations. You can see the technical ability in training, but this is the real deal. There's pressure on them and they have to make decisions."

like this is a good way for them to evaluate the athletes on their team.

"It's just a good opportunity to get far away, and a handful of Hamilton everybody a chance to get on the field and play," said Noblesville coach Mike Brady. "We've been practicing and training and games are different, seeing how they work hard all summer. We like coming out here and watching all the girls get a chance to compete, which is what we saw from the team that played this first game this afternoon."

> "We want to get to know our players coming into tryouts so we can put them in spots to evaluate them properly," said Fishers coach Ben Beasley. "It's hard. You have tryouts for a couple days. You want to make sure every kid has an opportunity to show their best."

"Frank Dixon and Carmel High School do a brilliant job every summer bringing in some really great programs throughout the entire state of Indiana to come compete in a couple days of friendlies and let all the players, the programs and the coaches have an opportunity to see where things are at at this particular The coaches agreed that a tournament point of the year," said GC coach Jonathan McClure.
