Ryan White historical marker will be dedicated in Arcadia

The REPORTER

A public dedication ceremony for an Indiana state historical marker commemorating Ryan White and his efforts to raise national AIDS awareness while battling the disease as a teenager, is scheduled for Friday, Aug. 30. The marker dedication will begin at 9 a.m. on the grounds of Hamilton Heights Middle School at 420 W. North St., Arcadia. White attended Hamilton Heights High School at this location from Aug. 31, 1987 until his death on April 8, 1990. Parking is available in the school parking lot and along the side streets.

The text follows for the state marker entitled "Ryan White (1971-1990)":

"Kokomo native Ryan White was diagnosed with AIDS in 1984 after contracting the virus from a contaminated hemophilia treatment. He faced intense discrimination from his community in a time of fear and misunderstanding about AIDS and was prevented from attending school in his hometown. Hamilton Heights High School welcomed White in 1987 after the family moved to Cicero. Anticipating White's arrival, Hamilton Heights developed an acclaimed AIDS education campaign. White raised national AIDS awareness while battling the disease and spoke before the Presidential Commission on the HIV Epidemic. He was named Sagamore of the Wabash for his advocacy. The Ryan White CARE Act, providing funds for HIV/AIDS treatment, passed soon after his death."

The public is invited to attend the dedication ceremony for this state historical marker that examines Ryan White's battle with AIDS and his commitment to educating others about the disease in the late 1980s. Hamilton Heights High School openly welcomed White in 1987 at a time when discrimination against those with the disease was common. School leadership and the student body fostered a climate of acceptance and trust within the community thanks to their widely praised educational campaign.

The program is free to attend, but does require a ticket. Click here to get your ticket. Following the program at the middle school and the unveiling of the new historical marker, there will be a short ceremony at Cicero Cemetery where White is buried for those interested in attending.

This is the seventh state historical marker in Hamilton County. For more information on other markers in the county, click here.

State historical markers commemorate significant individuals, organizations, places and events in Indiana history. These markers help communities throughout the state promote, preserve and present their history for the education and enjoyment of residents and tourists of all ages. For over 100 years, the Indiana Historical Bureau has been marking Indiana history. Since 1946, the marker format has been the large roadside marker, which has the familiar dark blue background with gold lettering and the outline of the state of Indiana at the top. Over 650 of these markers have been installed over the years.

The City of Carmel recently welcomed a group of students from Crimea and the Ukraine to City Hall, where they met Mayor Jim Brainard and spoke with Carmel's Redevelopment Director Henry Mestetsky, who was born in the Ukraine and was able speak to the kids in their language. After the visit, representatives from Carmel escorted the students along the Monon Greenway to the Palladium for a tour. Families can camp overnight in Noblesville's Forest Park

Join the Noblesville Parks Department and families all across the country for the National Wildlife Federation's Great American Campout on Friday, Aug. 16 and Saturday, Aug. 17. For this unique event, families will need to bring a tent, sleeping bags, camping gear and food while the parks department will provide the activities. Families are invited to camp overnight in Forest Park beginning at 3 p.m. Aug. 16.

Parks department staff will be onsite the entire time and will be available to answer camping questions, as well as to help lead outdoor experiences for children and families like hiking, exploring, camping education, scavenger hunts and other adventures. Campers are also welcome to bring charcoal to cook meals on the grills or enjoy the fire pits.

In addition to the campout activities, campers can take advantage of other park amenities available that weekend. The parks department is partnering with the Forest Park Aquatic Center to host a Flick

'N Float with the screening of "Aquaman," which can be viewed from the pool. The movie starts at dusk and pool admission fees apply. Campout participants are encouraged to arrive early to enjoy the Forest Park Carousel Corner, which includes carousel rides, concessions and mini golf. Wristbands can be purchased at the carousel for all-day unlimited rides and mini golf rounds for $10 per person.

"We are excited to help beginner campers learn the ropes of camping while being close to home," said Recreation Program Coordinator Kaitlyn Smith. "This event provides families with fun summer memories of being together outside after dark and gazing at the stars. The Great American Campout is the perfect way for kids to experience outdoor time and is the only time camping is allowed at Forest Park."

Pre-registration is required for this event and the cost is $30 per tent. Deadline to register is Wednesday, Aug. 14. For more information or to register, call (317) 776-6350 or visit noblesvilleparks.org.

Exhuming Dillinger's body not necessary, says local relative

After 85 years in the grave, the body of notorious bank robber John Dillinger is to be exhumed next month. But, at least one Dillinger relative doesn't think that is necessary.

Steve Dillinger, Hamilton County Commissioner and third cousin of the famous gangster, says his grandfather, Robert Dillinger, attended the 1934 funeral and "recognized first hand that it was Dillinger" in the coffin.

"We have a tape [recording] in which he [Steve's grandfather] tells about Dillinger and the funeral," Steve revealed.

The story of John Dillinger's famous crime spree in the 1930s has begun to fade in recent years with many in the younger generation not recognizing the name. But, for a half-century after Dillinger's death, the name was well known to most Americans, especially Hoosiers because the infamous bandit was born in Indianapolis and grew up in Mooresville.

Now, a TV documentary is planned on the life and times of Dillinger, and thereby comes the reason for digging up the body. Producers of the planned TV show want to prove one way or the other that it was Dillinger who was buried in Crown Hill Cemetery. (There have been stories during the years that the body buried in 1934 was not that of the famous bad guy.)

The Hamilton County branch of the Dillinger family came to Sheridan in the 1920s when Steve's grandfather was named manager of the Public Service Indiana operation there. He had grown up with John Dillinger and knew him well.

Later Steve's parents moved to Noblesville where Steve and most of the family have lived since. The Rev. Jim Dillinger and Rex Dillinger along with sisters Patty and Candy are Steve's siblings.

The bandit Dillinger and his gang are reported to have robbed 24 banks in the Midwest during the years 1933 and 1934. During that escapade Steve's grandmother worried that the gang might come to her Sheridan home seeking to hide out. The gang had been known to kill several people.

They never did show up in Sheridan.

Dillinger was eventually tracked down by a fledging FBI in Chicago. As in the movies, it was the famous "lady in red" who betrayed the outlaw outside the Biograph Theatre. Law enforcement agents shot and killed Dillinger when he attempted to escape arrest.

Steve says he's heard the stories that portray his infamous relative as a type of Robin Hood, aiding the poor with his ill-gotten gain.

But, "he was not a good guy." One good thing came of the Dillinger criminal activities, Steve believes. That was the federal government's decision to give the FBI broader authority and resources, a decision that came largely because Dillinger had made law enforcement agencies look incompetent of quickly catching such brazen and organized criminals.

I was born and raised right here in Noblesville. I grew up in a home without domestic violence or assault – it wasn't something I saw, or even heard about. But when I was introduced to Prevail of Central Indiana, I was shocked by the number of individuals who are affected by domestic violence. In 2018 alone, Prevail helped more than 4,000 clients in Hamilton County. (Nearly 80 percent of clients are women and children.) Prevail is strictly confidential, and since their core values include integrity and respect, they provide their services at no charge. Domestic violence and abuse are hard topics to discuss, so you don't often hear about them. But at Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville, we're breaking the taboo and raising awareness for Prevail, an organization that helps families in Hamilton County. – Mike Bragg, GM of Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville

To help Hamilton County families affected by domestic violence and sexual abuse, you can donate the following items:

- Art supplies (for children to journal and express their emotions)

Letter to the Editor

Noblesville reader implores Congress to take debt seriously

Dear Congress:

I am writing you today about our ongoing fiscal crisis and requesting that you use your office and influence to enact real structural change to our federal budget. I am expected to manage my affairs, both business and personal, in a manner which is functional and sustainable and my government should as well.

I live in Noblesville, where the median household income is roughly $74,681 and the debt load is $168,958. If my neighbors and I were to budget like the Federal government, that debt load would be a staggering $424,522.

I have to point out that the debt number I am using as the average and includes debt free households as well as borrowers, and it is likely much higher in reality. Imagine two teachers starting their first jobs in Noblesville with over $400,000 in debt.

See the table below for a few numbers that highlight the absurdity of our current fiscal policy.

If the federal budget looked like the average household in the USA, our debt load would be $8,057,326,387,890.55. That is a 60 percent difference between government and personal financial stewardship.

Let's put this another way: If you hired me to run your business or your campaign and I brought you numbers that looked like our government's, you would both fire me and have me arrested.

Sincerely,
Walter Setmeyer

First solar co-op to kick off this Monday

The REPORTER
Hamilton County residents will band together this year to form the first solar co-op in Fishers, which will allow members to purchase and install money-saving solar panels using a single installer at a group rate.

“Establishing a co-op lowers the cost for local residents to install solar power and reap the economic and environmental benefits of clean energy,” said Zach Schalk, Solar United Neighbors of Indiana Program Director.

Solar United Neighbors expands access to solar by educating Hoosiers about the benefits of distributed solar energy, helping them organize group solar installations, and strengthening Indiana solar policies and its community of solar supporters.

The co-op will be announced at 10 a.m. on Monday, Aug. 5 at 13600 Conner Knoll Pkwy., a home that already has solar panels installed so attendees can learn more about the process. Solar United Neighbors will conduct a series of local meetings following the kickoff to sign up local residents.

Presenters will include Solar United Neighbors Indiana Program Director Zach Schalk, Carmel Mayor Jim Brainard, Carmel Green Initiative President Leslie Webb and solar homeowner George Peregrim.

Community partners to date include Solarize Indiana, local nonprofits Carmel Green Initiative and Westfield Green Together, the City of Carmel, the City of Fishers, the City of Noblesville, the City of Westfield and the Hamilton County Board of Commissioners.

Solar United Neighbors has supported nearly 200 solar co-ops around the country – helping more than 3,600 homes and small businesses to install solar energy systems and investing $73 million into their local economy. These co-ops are a part of the organization’s mission to create a new energy system with rooftop solar as the cornerstone.

AG Hill warns Hoosiers to beware online scammers imitating Equifax settlement website

The REPORTER
Indiana Attorney General Curtis Hill is warning Hoosier consumers to beware of scams perpetrated by online posers in the wake of a recent Equifax settlement following the company’s 2017 announcement of a data breach affecting approximately 147 million people.

Scammers have been setting up fraudulent websites that imitate the appearance of an authentic site created to enable people affected by the breach to file claims.

The website equifax-breachsettlement.com is authentic. (See the Federal Trade Commission’s recent post about this website.)

Would-be scammers, however, have begun setting up imposter websites – misspelling “breach” as “breech” in one URL, for example, and misspelling “settlement” in other web addresses.

“Anyone seeking to file claims at the new settlement website must absolutely make certain they are on the correct site,” Hill said. “Verify that you have received the proper website address from a trusted source such as the FTC. If you are typing the URL manually, be careful to enter the website address correctly.”

Online scammers imitating other websites are often engaged in “phishing” – an effort to get people to reveal such personal data as credit card numbers.

Consumers who believe they are the victims of scam attempts are asked to report them to the Attorney General’s Consumer Protection Division by calling 1-800-382-5516 or going online at in.gov/attorneygeneral and clicking the “File a Complaint” box at the bottom of the page.

Top tips while visiting the State Fair

The REPORTER

The Indiana State Fair runs now through Sunday, Aug. 18 in Indianapolis. The Indiana State Police offers these tips to make your trip to the fair more enjoyable and less stressful:

• Plan ahead – Visit indianastatefairparking.com to see the day's hours, events and activities.

• Parking – You can access the Indiana State Fairgrounds from several gates on each side of the property. Take time to research you best option for parking by visiting indianastatefairparking.com. Once you park take a photograph of your parking area with your cell phone so you can remember where you parked, or download an app on your phone such as Find My Car. Each year Troopers spend a lot of time helping people find their cars because people had forgotten where they parked.

• Your vehicle – Be sure to lock your doors, and if you have valuables inside the vehicle that you are not carrying with you it is best to leave them at home. If you must leave them in the car, be sure they are out of sight; locking them in the trunk is the best option.

• Cell phones – Be sure you download the appropriate app on your cell phone to allow you to "find my phone." Each year approximately 50 to 60 lost cell phones are turned into the Indiana State Police.

• Lost children – One common occurrence for Troopers at the state fair is locating lost children. A few things that will help expedite finding a lost child is a detailed description of their clothing. One option is to take a photo of your child when you arrive at the fairgrounds. In the event you become separated that photo can be quickly shared with dozens of public safety personnel at the fairgrounds. If your child does not know your phone number, you can write it on their arm, or you can pick up a child ID bracelet from any Indiana State Police Booth. Sometimes adults or elderly visitors can become separated from their caregivers, so some of the same options above can be used in these situations as well.

• 'See Something, Say Something' – Report suspicious or criminal activity to police.

With appropriate planning and patience, your Indiana State Fair visit will be a great experience.

TODAY’S BIBLE READING

The woman saith unto him, Sir, give me this water, that I thirst not, neither come hither to draw. Jesus saith unto her, Go, call thy husband, and come hither. The woman answered and said, I have no husband. Jesus said unto her, Thou hast well said, I have no husband: For thou hast had five husbands; and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband: in that saidst thou truly. The woman saith unto him, Sir, I perceive that thou art a prophet. Our fathers worshipped in this mountain; and ye say, that in Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship. Jesus saith unto her, Woman, believe me, the hour cometh, when ye shall neither in this mountain, nor yet at Jerusalem, worship the Father. Ye worship ye know not what: we know what we worship: for salvation is of the Jews.

Many returning players on Carmel, Noblesville, Westfield girls golf teams

Familiar names to lead the way

By RICHIE HALL

The beginning of the girls golf season is Monday, and some familiar names will be taking to the course for Hamilton County teams.

Westfield, Carmel and Noblesville all have most of their players, if not everyone, back from their respective teams from last year. The Shamrocks and the Greyhounds will both begin their seasons at the Bloomington South Invitational on Monday. The Millers will wait until Saturday to start their season, which they will do at the Kokomo Invitational.

Carmel made a spectacular post-season run, finishing third at the IHSAA state meet last year after winning sectional and regional titles. The 'Hounds have three of the five players on that state-medaling squad back for this season: Senior Elizabeth Hedrick, junior Katie Kuc and sophomore Ava Hedrick.

Also back from last year are junior Sydney Longstreth and sophomore Averie Reiter, who Carmel coach Kelly Kluesner said will be vying for a top five spot. Incoming freshman Ava Nguyen comes into high school golf after a "great" summer, said Kluesner, and the coach looks for her to make a big impact.

"Our team is fairly young this year but filled with players who enjoyed a summer full of competitive golf," said Kluesner. "I'm really excited for this season, we have a great group of girls with a lot of potential."

Another team that has great potential is Westfield. The Shamrocks have everyone back from last year's team, including defending individual state champion, senior Jocelyn Bruch.

"We are really looking forward to this season," said Westfield coach Trevor Neu. The Shamrocks finished third at the sectional and sixth at the regional, but were only four strokes away from third

Richie Hall/File photos

Westfield's Jocelyn Bruch has had a strong summer golf season, including a runner-up finish at the Women's Western Junior last June. Bruch will lead the Shamrocks this season, although she will be absent for Westfield's first couple meets due to her participation in the U.S. Women's Amateur Tournament next week.

place and qualifying for state.

In addition, the Shamrocks have an important transfer: Sophomore Sophie McGinnis, who played for Guerin Catholic's fifth-place state team last year as a freshman. Neu said that she "will have an immediate impact" on the team.

Bruch is one of three seniors on the team. The other two are Natalie Shupe and Grace Snyder, both of whom were also all-Hoosier Crossroads Conference players last season.

"Their leadership will be important for this team," said Neu of his seniors.

Bruch will miss the first couple meets because she will be playing in the U.S. Women's Amateur Tournament, which takes place Aug. 5-11 at the Old Waverly Golf Club in West Point, Miss.

Also returning are junior Cate Jensen and sophomores Brette Hanavan and Alli Hildebrand. Neu said that Jensen had a good summer and is "really consistent," Hanavan came on strong during the second half of last year, and Hildebrand "has worked really hard this offseason and has a chance to make an impact on this team."

The IHSAA calendar has cycled back to the latest dates that events can start, but with Westfield going back to school this week, the Shamrocks won't be able to play as many early invitationals. But they do have Bloomington South on Monday, then will play Thursday at the Crooked Stick Invitational.

Noblesville is in a similar situation as Westfield. But the Millers will also be quite a bit younger: They have one senior and a handful of juniors.

"We had no seniors last year, so we are returning our entire team," said Noblesville coach Justin Werkley. The Millers were successful in the post-season last year, placing third at their own sectional and sixth at the Lapel regional.

Noblesville's lone senior is Mia Sommervold, who played on the Millers' conference and post-season front five last year. The other four players that competed in the post-season are all back and are all juniors: Sarah Brenneman (an all-HCC player last year), Taylor Caldwell, Bella Deibel and Ellie Karst.

Rylee Kendall and Sydney Peck are two more juniors on the Noblesville team. The Millers also have three sophomores, Sophi Stutz, Erin Burt and Bergan Zebraskas, and a freshman, Caroline Whallon.

"This should be a really fun year for the Millers," said Werkley. "I am excited to watch this team play and compete. They are a great group of kids who have been working very hard throughout the off season and should see tremendous improvement from last year."

Carmel's Katie Kuc had a top five finish at the Girls State Junior Championship last month. She is one of three returning Greyhounds players that led Carmel to third place at last year's IHSAA state meet.
