NFD's Wyant named Fire Chief of the Year

The REPORTER

Noblesville Fire Chief Greg Wyant was honored by his peers in the fire prevention community Friday evening with the prestigious 2019 Fire Chief of the Year Award at the annual Indiana

Emergency Response Conference in Indianapolis.

"I am honored and humbled to have received this recognition from the Indiana Fire Chiefs. I could not be more grateful to city administration and my staff for secretly coordinating the evening which included my family," Wyant said.

Wyant began his service with NFD in 1994 and has served as an administrator since 2004. In his tenure with the department, Wyant has been a firefighter, lieutenant, captain, division chief, assistant chief and fire chief.

During his time at NFD, Wyant has strongly advocated for firefighters as well as

Remembering Dave Tudor

Hamilton County's premier political junkie, Dave Tudor, died Wednesday. I use that term "junkie" in a respectful sense, and I think Dave would agree that is what he was. He was actually also a longtime attorney in Noblesville, but his first love and passionate hobby was Republican politics.

I knew Dave for more than 40 years. I knew if I mentioned the name of an Indiana politician, Republican or Democrat, we would talk (or in my case, listen) for 20 minutes while Dave gave the history of the subject. He seemed to know them all.

Dave never held elective office. He ran for state representative twice and for county Republican chairman once. He did not win these races, but that did not dampen his interest in politics in the slightest. He showed up at political gatherings all around central Indiana until illness in recent years prevented it.

Dave was born into a family of educators. His mother was a teacher and his father was a teacher and basketball coach, so he knew the sport well and could give you plenty of information of that too. He grew up in Westfield and later lived in Sheridan. Dave was married twice, but had no children of his own.

Following a lengthy illness, he died this week at Harbor Manor nursing facility.

At the county GOP fall dinner on Thursday, there was a moment of silence observed for Dave. That was a fitting time and well-deserved tribute to a man known to so many in county political circles.

Carmel dedicates "Carter's Green" honoring legacy of city councilor

By DENISE MOE
For The Reporter

In a surprise announcement Saturday morning, Carmel mayor Jim Brainard told the public that the space known as Center Green will now be known as Carter's Green. The city of Carmel has dedicated this space to Carmel City Councilor Ron Carter, who has served on the Carmel City Council since 1996.

Carter was the catalyst for the creation of the Carmel Farmers Market, which takes place on Carter's Green from May through September,

Westfield 'home body' travels abroad

Some might call me a "home body." I love being in Westfield. I love being in Central Indiana. When the thought of going to Japan on a business development trip first came up, I was a bit reluctant.

Now, after having caught up on my sleep and eaten a few hamburgers, I can look back and enthusiastically say that it was good for me and, more importantly, the City of Westfield. Why? Because, economic development is complex. It is not just about tax abatements and TIF. What I learned from the Japanese is that it is about relationships too.

Westfield opened its first Japanese-owned business this year. Bastian Solutions is a Toyota Industries Corporation (TICO) company. Our first stop was in the City of Takahama at the TICO forklift assembly plant where we had the honor of certain Fishers neighborhoods and the Internet company MetroNet has been a rocky one. Subcontractors for the firm have been accused of utility strikes while digging fiber optic networks. There have been stop orders issued on more than one occasion by the City of Fishers.

At a recent Fishers City Council work session, the city and MetroNet officials talked about how to move forward as MetroNet construction continues in Fishers. Kris Smith, government affairs manager for MetroNet, and Mark Hill, market manager for the MetroNet area including Fishers, met with the council and talked about past errors as well as how to move forward.

Fishers Director of Engineering Jason Taylor briefed council members on what has happened so far with MetroNet and the city. Taylor described weekly meetings his staff has recently had with MetroNet and said there are situations when people blame MetroNet when another utility may be at fault. Regular communications with the technology firm have helped, according to Taylor.

"We have an even stronger commitment to safety and restoration today," MetroNet's Smith told Fishers city councilors. "We've improved our construction communications program tenfold. We have an executive vice president who is running our construction team. We've put several layers in place."

Smith said subcontractor crews will always be clearly marked, outfitted in vests, with identifying signs on trucks, along with the department, championing improvements and issues that impact firefighters' safety and health — especially the research he conducted on cancer risks among firefighters and the resulting initiatives established within the fire industry to help lower the cancer risk among firefighters. His research on firefighter exposure to harmful carcinogenic airborne products after a fire was published in the International Fire Service Journal of Leadership and Management and led to the creation of safer operating procedures where firefighters wear self-contained breathing apparatus throughout a fire incident, including the period of time immediately after the fire is extinguished.

"This was more than a policy change, it was a cultural change and NFD led the way," said Mayor John Ditslear. “Noblesville was one of the first departments in the area to start implementing this and many departments still don’t have or enforce policies on this protection type. There is no doubt that this has reduced the health risks for an entire generation of NFD firefighters and will continue to benefit us in the future.”

“The greater reward for this research will hopefully reveal itself in the years ahead when our firefighters exhibit lower cancer rates than the industry trend. This policy change is just one of many actions the fire service is embracing to reverse the cancer trends,” Wyant said.

Wyant has served as Noblesville’s Fire Chief since 2015. His belief of fire prevention and education led Noblesville to host 171 community education events, provide nearly 100 smoke detectors to residents, install 25 smoke detectors and hold fire training for local businesses in 2018.

During his NFD career, Wyant was appointed by Governor Mitch Daniels and reappointed by Governors Mike Pence and Eric Holcomb to serve on the Indiana Board of Firefighting Personnel Standards and Education, where he also served as the board's chairman for five years. He graduated from the National Fire Academy's Executive Fire Officer Program and is a graduate and past president of the Hamilton County Leadership Academy. Prior to his employment with NFD, Wyant served six years in the United States Navy.

"For all the qualities that have made Chief Wyant an outstanding public servant, his leadership has brought about significant accomplishments. He serves our community with integrity, courage and exemplifies the level of distinguished service of this deserving award," Ditslear said.

Zionsville's James VanGorder was also named Fire Chief of the Year Friday evening. The Indiana Emergency Response Conference honors the best and brightest among Indiana first responders and public safety officials at its annual awards. The IERC serves as the annual gathering for firefighters, emergency medical services, law enforcement, emergency management agencies, hazardous materials professionals, special operations personnel and telecommunications. It includes educational sessions, innovative presentations and discussions about some of the most pressing issues facing the emergency response community in Indiana.

MetroNet expects to be finished with construction within what the company calls the Fishers “city build” areas by spring of 2020. “City build” means MetroNet will not be installed in all Fishers neighborhoods. “We made some mistakes, there’s no question of that,” Smith said. “But it’s how we’re moving forward; we want to improve that.” MetroNet provides home internet, television and telephone services.

offering fresh local produce and culinary in a lively community environment.

Carter is an avid bike rider who was an early proponent of biking in Carmel, helping pave the way for the Monon Greenway and the city's vast system of trails and paths. He was a founding member of the Monon Greenway Committee and the Hamilton County Alternative Transportation Taskforce.

In addition to his City Council service, Carter served on the Carmel Redevelopment Commission during its early years, creating world class venues such as the Palladium at The Center for the Performing Arts. His dedication, leadership and support helped transform Carmel into the walkable, bike-able vibrant city you see today.

Carter's involvement in these and many other local initiatives lead to him being named the 2006 most valuable volunteer award by the Carmel Chamber of Commerce. He has lived in Carmel since 1987 with his wife Barbara, a nurse, who has also been very active in the community. His early career was spent in marketing, communications and sales. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in marketing from Indiana University.

visiting the Toyota leadership, welcoming them to the community, thanking them for choosing Westfield, and delivering a quilt made by a local artisan.

Creating this friendship is important as we work with TICO on potential future growth of Bastian Solutions. The friendships help as we build trust. I want the Toyota team to know that we want their business to succeed in Westfield. We want them to grow in Westfield. The jobs they bring to our community help us create the quality of life that is important to our families.

The Indiana delegation included business and government leaders from across the state. Governor Eric Holcomb led the trip and supported our effort to tell the Westfield story. The business meetings, events and receptions we hosted in Nagoya, Tochigi Prefecture (Indiana's sister state) and Tokyo, reinforced the importance of relationships. It also allowed us to introduce Westfield and Grand Park to hundreds of business leaders.

Indiana is home to 319 Japanese businesses. I met many business leaders interested in learning more about Westfield. We did not come home with concrete instant economic development "wins." What we did do, and what is so important to remember, is that we started the process. Building relationships is the foundation of how things are done in Japan. I am anxious to follow up with my new friends and see how we can forge long term relationships.

During my trip, I did experience a few things that were all new to me. I traveled to Japan on my first international business development trip. I rode with Governor and Mrs. Holcomb on the bullet train which travels up to 200 mph. I survived a typhoon. I ate some foods that might not appear on a traditional Indiana dinner table. And, I came to the understanding that the Japanese are among the kindest people I've met – similar to the folks in Westfield. They were absolutely wonderful.

The job of a mayor is managing the day-to-day of running a city. We do that quite well in Westfield. We have amazing police, fire and public works departments. We have a community that cares. We have the country's premiere youth sports venue. We have great support of our schools and vice versa.

It is also my duty to build a healthy economy. One thing I learned in Japan is that business leaders there are looking to locate communities that can accommodate all levels of employees and have a sense of place. All of these things we are doing and creating in Westfield are critical to our ability to attract economic development. So, if it means leaving Westfield for a few days, this "homebody" will do it. But, I am sure glad to be back home.

New Earth Festival coming Saturday and Sunday . . .

Atlanta to welcome tens of thousands

By STU CLAMPITT
ReadTheReporter.com

The population of Atlanta is approximately 750, but this weekend this little northern Hamilton County town will see 70,000 to 100,000 visitors at the 46th annual Atlanta New Earth Festival.

The Reporter had the opportunity to speak with event organizers Jennifer Farley and Catharine Heller about what visitors can expect at the longest running and largest festival in Hamilton County.

Farley

Nickel Plate Express will offer 30-minute rides for $10 per person, kids 4 and under ride for free at the festival. Rides will leave at 1, 2, 3 and 4 p.m. on Saturday.

There will be over 600 vendors lining Atlanta's streets. "The town has three different areas it rents: Main Street, Dolles Park and Broadway Street, but homeowners also get involved," Farley told The Reporter. "So around 600 vendors is the estimate throughout the whole town."

It should be noted that official participation in the New Earth festival will involve all vendors and events taking place up to the south side of County Line Road.

"For the last 20 years we have seen at least this many vendors, but over the last several years the types of vendors has been slowly changing," Farley said.

According to Farley, Main Street will be reserved for vendors offering handmade items.

"On Broadway Street you will find antiques, collectibles, crafters, pet items, candles, and while there will be handmade things there, not everything is focused specifically on that," Farley said.

There will also be a farmer's market on Broadway.

"A big thing the last few couple has been the woman's boutique clothing," Farley said. "We have several vendors selling those items. Then the vintage and repurposed items are also very big right now."

Returning Vendors have consistently told Farley this is the event that puts them in the black for the year. The festival also helps the Town of Atlanta in many ways.

"It is a kickoff to Christmas shopping for many people," Farley said. "But it helps us too. Our general fund budget is not that large, so this festival helps us fund things that we otherwise could not do."

As many as 70,000 to 100,000 people will visit the Town of Atlanta this weekend for the 46th annual New Earth Festival.

Trimming trees, the purchase and removal of abandoned properties, special projects, maintenance of Dolles Park and other local projects are paid for with funds from the festival.

If all that seems a little overwhelming, have no fear, the Boy Scouts are always prepared to help. There will be an information booth on Main Street manned by local Boy Scouts to help you find your way around. You can find fliers, maps, programs, T-shirts and more at the booth.

Farley wanted to emphasize the importance of the sponsors and volunteers who make this festival happen every year.

Some of the main sponsors include: Commissioners Mark Heirbrandt and Christine Altman, Hamilton County Tourism, Roubush Equipment, Endeavor Communications, Taft Law, Nickel Plate Express, and Mr. Muffins Trains and the Choo Choo Café.

A big draw for Hamilton County visitors is the live entertainment. "The entertainment sponsorship started at our 40th anniversary," Farley said. "We decided we wanted to do something new and we wanted to do it right. In order to fund that we started a sponsorship program. This year's free entertainment is made possible by the sponsorship of Commissioner Mark Heirbrandt. Commissioner Heirbrandt was one of the first Sponsors of the festival and we appreciate his continued support."

Once again, the festival is also partnering with Good Samaritan Network on a festival food drive.

Farley told The Reporter the Good Samaritan Network (GSN) is a project begun by Nancy Chance to unite several charitable organizations in one place. All the resources that are available for charitable and outreach projects are reachable in one location. Thus, the network can connect people with the right organization for their individual needs.

According to gsnlive.org, GSN is a collaborative/network of nonprofits in Hamilton County. GSN utilizes two serving approaches, direct and indirect services, and in part is designed to ensure efficiency and communication among the different agencies, social services, nonprofits, local government, pantries and businesses – as together they serve the needs of Hamilton County residents who are at-risk or underserved.

When asked about the name and history of the festival, Farley told The Reporter, "The festival started on Main Street in 1974. One of the business that helped start it was called 'A Touch of Earth.' Everything at the first festival was handmade. Originally it was the first week in October, but in time it was moved the fourth weekend in September."

It takes several people to help put the festival on – from putting 600 trash boxes together, to setting up water and electrical services for the food vendors, placing barricades and sponsor signage, setting vendors and having emergency services available. These are just to name a few things that take place before the festival begins.

Farley would like to especially thank Ryan Horine and the Hamilton County Sheriff's Department and Atlanta Utility Superintendent Andy Emmert for all they do to help make the Atlanta New Earth Festival a success.

This weekend, the 46th annual Atlanta New Earth Festival has plenty to offer. Visit atlantaindiana.com for more information.

What’s “love” got to do with it?

For every-thing there is a season ... espe-cially when you have grandkids that play sports.

I know where every (almost every) basketball gym and football and soccer and baseball field is in the area. I know rules, regulations and terms and positions that my grandkids play.

Or so I thought. A few weeks ago, Jake, who is 13, decided he would no longer play football.

COLUMNIST
JANET HART LEONARD
From the Heart

Jake has been playing football since he could figure out a shot-gun formation. He was the quar-terback and knew what the audible "Omaha" meant when Peyton Manning yelled it before he could tie his cleats.

This summer he began to fall in love with playing tennis. Garrick and Alex were partners in the crime of stealing the football away from Jake and replacing it with a tennis racket.

And so this grandma is now learning the facts of playing tennis.

I've learned football, baseball, basketball, gym-nastics, soccer, golf and even the language of la-crosse.

You may not be able to teach an old dog new tricks, but this grandma is bound and determined to learn the language of tennis.

I've had a crash course and I am a bit overwhelmed.

Ace? A serve landing in-side the lines and untouched by opponent. Advantage? A point that follows a deuce score. Deuce score? What?

40-40. I'm so confused.

Let? Match Point? Un-forced error? Volley? Oh Jake, you have challenged your grandmother's brain. I'm not sure I can follow your down-the-line or sliced backhands.

I just hope your foot isn't found at fault or you strike the ground. I want to see you at the breaking point and maybe even a double bagel.

I have no idea what I just wrote, but I just know while I may not understand all the terms, if I get to watch my grandson Jake, I know I will learn to LOVE tennis.

Indiana red flag law touted by Lt. Governor

By FRED SWIFT

ReadTheReporter.com

Lieutenant Governor Suzanne Crouch addressing the Hamilton County Republican Fall Dinner, hit familiar themes for GOP speakers on the hustings this year. She said Indiana's financial position is strong and the economy is thriving under the administration of Governor Eric Holcomb.

She also touted progress in education "so important to the future of our state." And, she called attention to Indiana's red flag law, which is now gaining acceptance in other states as well as in the U.S. Congress.

The law allows police to take firearms from a person who shows signs of endangering themselves or others. The firearms can be returned to owners only after a court determines no threat to the public or the owner exists.

More than 300 partisans attended the dinner at the 502 East Event Center in Carmel. It was hosted by the county Republican Central Committee. The overall message of the evening was the importance of getting voters to participate in the upcoming off-year municipal election, as stressed repeatedly by Chairwoman Laura Campbell.

Municipal elections in Hamilton County are usually a mere formality since Democrats often fail to field candidates for city or town office. But, this year there is opposition in a number of races for city council seats in Fishers, Carmel, Noblesville and Westfield.

Most county and municipal officeholders and candidates attended the dinner. Major party contributors were also present and recognized.

And, for the first time, a group of high school Young Republicans were present.

League of Women Voters launches new voter resource site profiles.

Additional information is included on such things as referendums, absentee ballots and ID requirements. Videos from the League’s candidate forums are posted to the site as well.

Hoosier History Highlights

Where was the first daily high school newspaper in the country published?

The REPORTER

1863 – Planning began for a new cemetery in Indianapolis to be created on over 200 acres north of the city in an area that included "Strawberry Hill." Graves from the city's old Greenlawn Cemetery were moved to the new location. Today Crown Hill covers over 500 acres and is the third largest private cemetery in the nation.

1894 – Henry Harrison Culver started a college preparatory school on his property near Lake Maxinkuckee in Marshall County. Modeled after West Point, Culver Military Academy enrolled 45 cadets the first year. Today, with an enrollment of over 800, the Culver Academies are ranked among the best in the nation.

1898 – The first issue of The Daily Echo was published by students at Shortridge High School in Indianapolis. It was the first daily high school newspaper in the country. Many members of the staff over the years went on to fame, including Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., Dan Wakefield, Richard Lugar and Madelyn Pugh, writer for the "I Love Lucy" show.

1919 – The Elkhart Band Instrument Company filed for incorporation. For many years, Elkhart was called the "band instrument capital of the world" and was home to such famous brands as Conn, Selmer, Buescher and Martin.

1965 – Indiana Selective Service officials announced that the state quota for the month was 1,075. They noted that the quota for California at the same time was 1,039, although that state's population was four times larger. It was explained that draft quotas were "based on availability of manpower and not population." Over 2.2 million men were drafted across the nation during the Vietnam era.

2012 – A state historical marker was dedicated in Rockville, the hometown of Juliet V. Strauss, a popular newspaper columnist who was published in the Rockville Tribune, the Indianapolis News, and Ladies' Home Journal. She helped save the old-growth forest which became Turkey Run State Park in 1916. She is honored by a memorial statue in the park.

Artists from across the Midwest and beyond competed for more than $11,500 in prize money at this year's Carmel on Canvas.

Carmel on Canvas awards announced

The REPORTER

The sixth annual Carmel on Canvas plein air paint out was held Sept. 13-15. This open-air painting exhibition and competition took place on the sidewalks throughout the Carmel Arts & Design District and Midtown.

"Carmel on Canvas is an event that is perfectly aligned with our strategy of using the arts as an economic development tool," said Carmel Mayor Jim Brainard. "So many artists traveled to Carmel from across the Midwest and other parts of the country to create works of art using Carmel's Arts & Design District and the new Midtown area as their inspiration. One of my favorite aspects of this event is that the artists interact with the public who are able to see the works of art created. Our hope is to grow this event to be the best plein air paint out in the country."

The Carmel on Canvas plein air event hosted more than 70 highly acclaimed artists from the Midwest and beyond, including Missouri, Ohio, Illinois, Florida, Colorado, Kentucky, Wisconsin and other communities. The artists competed in a variety of plein air contests during the three-day event. They registered in a division that matched their skill or age level: Professional, non-professional, teen and children. Award winning artist Shawn Krueger, signature member of the American Tonalist Society and participant of many curated shows throughout the country, served as the judge, with all plein air prizes awarded at the public reception on Saturday night in the Arts & Design District.

David M. Seward, Zionsville, took home the Grand Prize.

"I enjoy the Carmel on Canvas paint out very much, as I have been to all of the competitions since it began six years ago," said Seward. "The City of Carmel continues to put on a top-notch event and the people that I come in contact with are very nice. Thanks to the judge, Shawn Krueger, the city and all the individuals who helped put this year's event together."

On Saturday morning, a Quick Paint took place at the Carmel Farmers Market at Center Green. The winners of this contest were selected by visitors to the market, which raised community awareness of the event overall.

An Art Fair concluded the weekend on Sunday afternoon, where artists displayed and sold their work to visitors. Artists displayed creations from the Carmel on Canvas event as well as pieces from their broader scope of work.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

They answered and said unto him, Abraham is our father. Jesus saith unto them, If ye were Abraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham. But now ye seek to kill me, a man that hath told you the truth, which I have heard of God: this did not Abraham. Ye do the deeds of your father. Then said they to him, We be not born of fornication; we have one Father, even God. Jesus said unto them, If God were your Father, ye would love me: for I proceeded forth and came from God; neither came I of myself, but he sent me. Why do ye not understand my speech? even because ye cannot hear my word. Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it. And because I tell you the truth, ye believe me not. Which of you convinceth me of sin? And if I say the truth, why do ye not believe me? He that is of God heareth God's words: ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God.
John 8:39-47 (KJV)
