Heights hosts 130th meeting of superintendents

The REPORTER

Hamilton Heights School Corporation had the honor of hosting the 130th annual meeting of the Northern Indiana Superintendent's Club (NISC) last week. The day-long networking event included a variety of activities to highlight the corporation and the district's communities of Arcadia, Cicero, Atlanta and Jackson and White River townships.

Members in attendance this year represented over 20 school districts. Tours included new construction and recent additions to the corporation, a visit to Mr. Muffin's Trains in Atlanta, a luncheon ride aboard the Nickel Plate Express, and an up-close and personal trip to see some of the behind-the-scenes operations at Beck's Hybrids, the largest family-owned retail seed company in the United States. Weingardt defends tax increase in 2020 Fishers city budget

By LARRY LANNAN

Election Day is a little less than three weeks away, but even at this stage of an election campaign, nerves can become a bit frayed.

At Wednesday night's Fishers City Council Finance Committee meeting, Chairman John Weingardt provided a spirited defense of the property tax increase built into the 2020 city budget. As the panel discussed the final budget approval vote set for the regular city council meeting Monday, that sparked the tax discussion.

The 2020 city spending plan includes 2 cents per $100 of assessed valuation property tax increase, funding road repairs, including repaving in the Burberry Place neighborhood, where the concrete streets built years ago are beginning to come apart.

"If we wouldn't have done this, this incremental increase, we wouldn't be doing these roads," Weingardt

Visiting elderly is a great experience for children

Halloween is less than two weeks away now. Soon ghosts, goblins and other assorted creatures will descend upon neighborhoods across the country.

In recent years, trick or treating has expanded beyond this tradition to include Trunk or Treat events, trick or treating at church parties and fall festivals, and costumed visits to facilities for the elderly. I, of course, especially love the latter idea.

Seniors enjoy visits from people of all ages, but I think having energetic, happy little faces lights up their world even more. My mom has a picture of her and a young dancer together during a recent performance in her facility. The smile and joy radiating from her face in that photo is a sight that makes me happy whenever I visit.

Numerous studies have linked social interaction with decreased loneliness, delayed mental decline, lower blood pressure, and reduced risk of disease and death in the elderly. Socializing across generations has also been shown to increase the amount of smiling and conversation among older adults.

But it's not just the seniors who benefit from these interactions. According to a 2018 study by Generations Unlimited and the Eisner Foundation, children who spend time with adults with dementia develop social and emotional competencies, such as empathy, patience and problem solving. Adults are often less agitated and more engaged during interactions with kids than in other activities.

The report also showed that elementary-school-age children in intergenerational programs demonstrate a greater ability to regulate their behavior. Ninety-seven percent of adults who participate in such programs said they felt happy, loved and needed.

I've been thrilled to see Intergenerational Learning Centers popping up throughout the United States and other countries in recent years. These are essentially childcare centers and/or preschools held within a living-care community for older adults. The benefits of this set up for kids are remarkable.

Intergenerational interactions enhance children's

Scholarship fund established in honor of NHS basketball legends Davis, Cox Cole

The REPORTER

Noblesville Schools announced Thursday that the Noblesville High School (NHS) girls basketball team has established a scholarship fund in honor of recently deceased NHS basketball legends Krissi Davis and Courtney Cox Cole.

"Honoring the legacy of these two amazing women means so much to me and to our whole basketball program," said Donna Buckley, Noblesville High School girls varsity basketball coach. "Krissi and Courtney were role models in basketball and in life, representing excellence on and off the floor. This scholarship will

Schaibley urges legislature to allow Hamilton County to hire additional magistrate

The REPORTER

The Interim Study Committee on Courts and the Judiciary recommended Thursday that the General Assembly allow Hamilton County leaders to hire an additional magistrate, according to State Rep. Donna Schaibley (R-Carmel).

Schaibley said the new magistrate would work with the local circuit and superior courts to handle minor offenses or hold preliminary hearings for more serious crimes.

"Hamilton County is the fastest growing county in the state, which means our courts need additional resources to keep up with the increased workload," Schaibley said. "The summer study committee's recommendation is a positive step forward, and I plan to file legislation to help make our county's judicial process more efficient."

The most recent data from The Weighted Caseload Measure shows Hamilton County has one judicial officer for every 29,432 people.

She said the committee's recommendations received support from all of the superior court judges in Hamilton County, the circuit court judge, the Hamilton County Commissioners, the Hamilton County Council and the Hamilton County prosecuting attorney. Schaibley plans to author legislation to allow for an additional magistrate this upcoming session, which begins in January.

State Rep. Donna Schaibley (R-Carmel) represents House District 24, which includes portions of Boone and Hamilton counties.

Go Purple with Prevail!

"I am,"
two of the most powerful words.

What you put after them shapes your reality!

Even though emotional abuse doesn't leave physical scars, it has a major impact on self-esteem.

4 tips on how to improve your self-esteem once you have been in an abusive relationship.

- 1.) Incorporate affirmations into your daily routine. Affirmations are positive statements that you can repeat to yourself or place around your home as reminders of your value. You may put them on your refrigerator or on your bathroom mirror, for instance. Some examples of affirmations include: "You are lovable," "I am beautiful," and "I deserve to be respected."
- 2.) Love yourself. Exercise regularly, maintain a nutritious diet, get adequate rest, and seek regular preventative medical care. Indulge in safe, comfortable and enjoyable activities, such as journaling, soaking in bubble baths and reading. Loving yourself also requires that you set firm personal boundaries with others -- think about actions and behaviors you will not tolerate from others and how you might respond to any violations of these boundaries.
- 3.) Get support. Your abusive partner may have attempted to isolate you from friends, family or anyone else who may have offered emotional and spiritual strength. This is a tactic commonly used by abusers to ensure that victims can depend only on them. Reach out to the friends and family members with whom you may have lost contact.
- 4.) Learn the warning signs. To prepare for the future, familiarize yourself with the red flags that suggest someone may potentially be abusive.

social and personal development. Children who have early contact with older people are less likely to view them as incompetent. Exposing children to positive depictions of elders reduces their chances of experiencing ageism, which is prejudice or discrimination on the grounds of a person's age. Kids in these situations are prone to feel more comfortable around those with disabilities and impairments of all kinds than others who lack such experiences.

My friend Cindy and her daughter Arianna regularly visited an assisted living facility near them when they lived in Atlanta. She has shared with me multiple times how much it has helped her young daughter be a kind, caring and compassionate person.

“We loved it and it brought blessings to us and them!” Cindy remarked about the experience.

My mom's facility will have little “trick or treaters” coming soon and I know she's looking forward to it. If you have young children, I encourage you to talk to your local elder care facility to see if they might be open to regular visits. Even a regularly monthly visit can do wonders for all!

day concluded with dinner and music featuring pianist and Hamilton Heights High School student Nicholas Rice.

“As we highlighted the many great programs and facility upgrades taking place throughout our corporation, showcasing our community, and catching up with colleagues near and far, I found myself feeling very proud to be a member of the Northern Indiana Superintendent Club, but even more proud of being Superintendent of Hamilton Heights School Corporation,” said Arrowood. “It was an honor to host this special group of school leaders who took a day out of their very busy schedules to spend the day here and see firsthand why northern Hamilton County is a great place to live, work, and play.”

About NISC

The Northern Indiana Superintendents' Club was founded in 1889 in Logansport. The purpose of the club is to discuss informally and freely subjects of special interest to those engaged in school administration, to produce a closer acquaintance of its membership, and to encourage a high standard of professional ethics. Active membership is limited to 35 members in districts that are north of or include U.S.

40. Membership is open to any Northern Indiana Superintendent of Schools of a school corporation governed by a Board of Education, provided he/she has completed at least two successive years as Superintendent of Schools in his/her present position.

The scholarship fund will be managed through the Noblesville Schools Education Foundation (NSEF) and will provide financial assistance each year for senior members of the NHS girls basketball team.

The team will celebrate the legacies of Davis and Cox Cole at Nov. 9, games in their honor. The junior varsity game tips off at 5 p.m. and the varsity game will start at approximately 6:30 p.m. Proceeds from both games will go towards the scholarship fund.

Custom Krissi/Courtney T-shirts may be purchased through the Noblesville Girls Basketball Club at noblesvillegbc.com before Oct. 28, with all proceeds going to the scholarship fund. Community members interested in contributing can also make a donation directly to NSEF c/o the Courtney Cox Cole and Krissi Davis Scholarship. NSEF donations can be made online at noblesvilleschools.org or by mailing a check to 18025 River Road, Noblesville, IN 46062.

The Davis and Cox families have expressed interest in establishing additional scholarship funds in honor of Krissi and Courtney with more details to come.

said. “It’s that simple. All these folks bantering about, about a tax increase, I mean, we’re doing it for a reason. There’s no such thing as a free lunch. We have to balance our budget. We can’t borrow away like the federal government does.”

He emphasized that the road work in Burberry Place, along with other parts of the city experiencing deteriorating concrete, would not be possible without this tax increase.

“In order for us to do anything, there comes a point in time where we have to invest, and if people don’t want this tax increase, I invite everybody wearing a purple shirt to go over to Burberry Place and knock on their doors, since they’ve got such a voice, and tell them, we don’t want your roads repaired. I’m tired of it,” Weingardt told Finance Committee members.

According to Weingardt, the one-year tax increase means the city will pay for this work all in one year, with no need to issue debt in the form of a bond to pay for it.

“This isn’t easy,” according to Weingardt. “We’re in an election year. We’ve got the guts enough to do something to take care of our constituents. I really believe that this is the right thing for us to do.”

Finance Committee member Eric Moeller added that with construction costs rising every year, the city will save in the long run by doing this road work in 2020.

Democrats running for Fishers City Council have been critical of property tax increases the city has enacted over the past five years. City Controller Lisa Bradford shared numbers she has crunched on the tax increases for years 2015-2020. She says the tax rate has gone from 62 cents per $100 of assessed valuation in 2015 to an estimated 71 cents in 2020, meaning the tax rate has gone up 9 cents over five years. For a family owning a home valued at $207,000, and assuming the value has not increased, the actual additional tax on that home would have increased a total of $94 over that five-year period, according to Bradford.

Toward the end of the meeting, Councilman Eric Moeller asked about the 911 emergency service income tax increase the Fishers council has approved. Bradford said enough local councils have approved the increase and it will go into effect for all of Hamilton County in 2020.

Moeller asked about a Hamilton County Council vote, and was told by Finance Committee Chairman Weingardt that the county council has decided not to vote on the 911 income tax increase.

“Another show of good faith by our county council on public safety,” Moller said, somewhat sarcastically.

DNR grants $40K for Stony Creek project

The REPORTER

DNR grants totaling $1,164,100 will be used to improve Indiana's water bodies.

The grants were awarded by DNR director Cameron F. Clark through the Lake and River Enhancement (LARE) program in the Division of Fish & Wildlife.

Locally, $40,000 was directed to a Hamilton County project for the Stony Creek Stream stabilization and dam removal feasibility study.

The grants will fund projects on seven lakes and 15 rivers and streams in 23 counties. Projects will be completed within a two-year time frame.

Local sponsors apply for LARE assistance and commit to sharing a portion of the total project cost. LARE project funds come from an annual boat owner registration fee collected by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles.

The majority of selected projects are designed to improve Indiana water quality by addressing sediment and nutrient inputs into lakes and streams. Reducing erosion in the watershed or along the banks of lakes and rivers is more economical than trying to correct water quality and habitat impairment as a result of continued erosion.

Many projects include habitat improvement components that benefit fish and wildlife populations. The most striking habitat improvements include wetland projects in LaPorte, Marshall and Steuben counties, and low-head dam removals on Cedar Creek and the Salamonie River. Wetlands improve water quality, reduce flooding, and provide wildlife habitat. Dam removals reclaim riverbank habitat, improve fish passage, benefit fish and freshwater mussel populations, and make streams safer for recreational users.

"The LARE program continues to invest boat-generated revenue into conservation efforts to protect and enhance Indiana's lakes and streams," said Amanda Wuestefeld, Division of Fish & Wildlife director. "We also can't forget the local sponsors who will also invest in these projects to make our waters healthier, which will benefit fish and wildlife species."

AG Curtis Hill warns Hoosiers to watch out for added-on costs when purchasing vehicles from dealers

The REPORTER

Indiana Attorney General Curtis Hill is warning Hoosiers to watch out for costs added by dealerships to the price of vehicles at the time of purchase. Fees added by dealers can increase final purchase prices by thousands of dollars, and in some cases, they may violate state law.

"As with any transaction, people buying vehicles must be absolutely vigilant in making sure sellers are not slipping extra charges into the deal," Hill said. "Anytime Indiana residents encounter questionable business practices, we want them to let our office know so that we can investigate and fulfill our vital mission of protecting Hoosier consumers."

The Office of the Attorney General recently investigated two Clark County car dealerships based on allegations of this type of behavior. Both entered into agreements with the State of Indiana under which they must pay civil penalties and pledge to stop certain business practices.

As part of the agreements, the dealerships have not admitted to any legal wrongdoing nor been implicated for any such violations.

In the first instance, Kia of Clarksville added a "Kia Total Protection Package" sticker to all new vehicles. This "protection package" – featuring mudguards, all-weather mats and a spare tire kit – increased the cost of each new vehicle by $3,990. The added sticker also listed the manufacturer's warranties as part of the protection package even though the warranties were already included in the manufacturer's suggested retail price (MSRP) of each new vehicle. Kia of Clarksville did not include the cost of the protection package in any of its advertising.

Under the terms of an Assurance of Voluntary Compliance (AVC) approved by the Clark County Circuit Court, Kia of Clarksville must remove all references to warranties and roadside assistance packages from the added stickers. They also must include the costs of any added packages in the advertised prices of vehicles. Kia of Clarksville also agreed to pay a civil penalty of $55,000 plus $2,000 in costs for a total monetary payment of $57,000.

In the second instance, Neil Huffman Honda utilized a similar "protection package" addendum sticker on all new vehicles. This package increased the cost of each new vehicle by $1,995 and included mudguards, all-weather mats and a key chain.

The added sticker lists Honda's roadside assistance program as part of the package even though this benefit is already provided by Honda and included in the MSRP of each new vehicle.

Neil Huffman Honda also represented that the package included two years of certified maintenance. However, Neil Huffman Honda offered and advertised this maintenance program at no cost on each new or used vehicle sold, meaning that consumers were not receiving it through purchasing the additional protection package.

Under the terms of an AVC approved by the Clark County Circuit Court, Neil Huffman Honda must remove all references to roadside assistance and certified maintenance from the added stickers. They also must include the costs of any added packages in the advertised prices of vehicles. Neil Huffman Honda also agreed to pay a civil penalty of $50,000 plus $3,000 in costs for a total monetary payment of $53,000.

Consumers who believe they have encountered similar practices at any other dealerships in Indiana are asked to report these instances to the Office of the Attorney General. They may do so by calling 1-800-382-5516 or going online at in.gov/attorneygeneral and clicking the "File a Complaint" box at the bottom of the page.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

Then from that day forth they took counsel together for to put him to death. Jesus therefore walked no more openly among the Jews; but went thence unto a country near to the wilderness, into a city called Ephraim, and there continued with his disciples. And the Jews' passover was nigh at hand: and many went out of the country up to Jerusalem before the passover, to purify themselves. Then sought they for Jesus, and spake among themselves, as they stood in the temple, What think ye, that he will not come to the feast? Now both the chief priests and the Pharisees had given a commandment, that, if any man knew where he were, he should shew it, that they might take him.
John 11:53-57 (KJV)

Volleyball sectionals

Fishers, Southeastern are first-round winners

By RICHIE HALL

Sectional 8 volleyball began Thursday at The Mill in Noblesville with victories by Fishers and Hamilton Southeastern.

The Tigers beat the host Millers in four sets, 19-25, 25-17, 25-23, 25-18 in the evening's first match. After that, the Royals swept Westfield 25-18, 25-19, 25-17. Both teams advance to the Saturday morning semi-finals, where Fishers takes on Carmel and Southeastern will play Zionsville.

Before they could think about Saturday morning, the Tigers had to get past Noblesville, which took the first set of the opening match. The Millers jumped ahead 20-15 after senior Lexie Almodovar hit a kill, then Noblesville held on during a back-and-forth last part of the set. Rose Crist hit a kill to secure the set.

The second set was close until the Tigers went on a 5-0 run to jump ahead 22-15. Grace Dunnuck and Mikayla Christiansen both hit kills, Emily Brewer and Grace Dunnuck combined for a block, Emily Waldrop also had a successful block and Bryn Roberts served an ace. Fishers won the last two points to take the set and level the match.

The Tigers dominated the first part of the third set, leading 6-2, then 9-3, then 15-7. Jada Allen hit back-to-back kills early in the set, Emily Brewer served back-to-back aces, and Christiansen put down two more kills.

But Noblesville began working its way back into the match. The teams went back-and-forth for several points, and eventually Allen hit a kill to put Fishers up 24-18, giving the Tigers multiple set points. The Millers then won five straight points before Fishers finally got the set at 25-23. Almodovar hit two kills and Bella Hines hit an ace during Noblesville's run.

The Millers then jumped out to a 10-5 lead in the fourth set, scoring six straight points after begin down 5-4. Rose Crist hit a kill and Ella Peter served an ace.

But Christiansen nailed back-to-back kills, and that started a string of 10 straight points for the Tigers. Shelby Settles later hit an ace to put Fishers ahead

Hamilton Southeastern's Kyla Berg makes a bump during the Royals' sectional volleyball match with Westfield Thursday at Noblesville. Berg had 11 digs for Southeastern, one of many good defensive performances in the Royals' win.

17-11. Noblesville made one more run to get within 17-14, but Ava Vickers ended that with a kill, and the Tigers cruised from there.

“Certainly sets two, three and four, even when they went on a run, we were doing things in the game plan, while also keeping our eyes open for obvious things that we could take advantage of in the blink of an eye,” said Fishers coach Steven Peek.

Christiansen and Allen both had 12 kills, with Waldrop putting down 10. Dunnuck and Vickers each hit seven kills. Brewer handed out 48 assists and served three aces for the Tigers, who are now 14-13.

On defense, Perdue collected 14 digs

Fishers' Mikayla Christiansen (12) makes a block for the Tigers during their match with Noblesville. Fishers overcame the loss of the first set to win in four sets.

Noblesville's Olivia Gulley stretches out to make a dig for the Millers in their first-round sectional match with Fishers.

Noblesville's Lexie Almodovar shares a moment with Millers superfan Rickie Woods during Thursday's sectional. Woods watched Lexie's mother Jill (Lyon) Almodovar play volleyball and basketball - every game and match - during her four years of high school, and watched every volleyball match of Lexie's as well.

Westfield's Anna Johnsey hit eight kills for the Shamrocks in their first-round sectional match with Hamilton Southeastern on Thursday. Visit the following link to see more images: <https://capturephotographybydkirk.smugmug.com/HSE-vs-Westfield-G-VB-Sectional-101752019/> and Settles had six digs. Allen made six blocks, Dunnuck had four and Christian-sen had three.

“We were prepared, we worked hard all week, we knew what they were going to do,” said Noblesville coach Jill Almodovar. “The only switch on that was they put Jada on the outside, which I wasn’t expecting. But we were prepared and the kid were as ready as they were going to be. So I think they gave it their very best and it just wasn’t enough.”

Lexie Almodovar finished her sensational career as a Miller with 16 kills. Crist added nine kills for the Millers, who finished 11-21.

In the second match, Westfield played well against Southeastern, but the Royals found a way to pull ahead in the later stages of each set. Southeastern led 14-9 early in the fifth set, with Abby Weber hitting a kill and Carly Mills serving an ace.

The Shamrocks went on their own run to pull within 14-13, including a kill and a block from Anna Johnsey. But the Royals would eventually take control of the set, and Weber finished it with a kill.

The second set followed the same script. Westfield had it tied at 15-15, but Southeastern used a 7-1 run to go ahead 22-16, then ran out the set. Weber hit another kill to get the Royals ahead by that six-point margin. Weber then put a tip over the net on set point that landed on the line and gave Southeastern a two-set lead.

The Royals dominated the early part of the third set, at one point leading 11-4. Delaney Garner hit four kills during that run. Westfield stormed back, getting within 16-14. Kenzie Daffinee put down three kills during the middle part of the set. But Abby Weber hit kill to start a 4-0 run for Southeastern, and the Royals had control of the set. Emily Weber ended the match with a kill.

“Having to play them three times is not easy,” said Southeastern coach Jason Young. “And they’ve gotten better every single time that we’ve seen them. “We knew they’d be very, very prepared against us. I think at about 15-all, it seemed like every set was like 15-all, was the turning point where we just turned it up. Obviously grateful to get the win today.”

Abby Weber hit 15 kills for the Royals, who are now 24-4, with Grace Hunter putting down seven kills. Emily Weber handed out 20 assists. Everybody had a hand in Southeastern’s defense: Hunter had 17 digs, followed by Mills with 13, Kyla Berg with 11, Lillian Leiner with 10 and Abby Weber with nine. Maddie Cole made 3.5 blocks.

Daffinee had 11 kills for the Shamrocks, followed by Johnsey with eight. Grace Stewart served three aces, while Logan Mapes dished out 24 assists. Peighton Isley had 17 digs and Ellary Detamore collected 15 digs. Jonsey had four blocks, and Mairin McAndrews had three. Westfield finished its season 21-11.

“We had a good scout on HSE,” and they ran what we expected them to,” said Shamrocks coach Sandra Burks. “It was one of our goals to get hands on the slide so they’d be forced to run something else. We were able to put pressure where we wanted to, but HSE deserves credit for running their offense well. We have a lot of players returning next year and have nothing but good things to look forward to.”
