Lunch Pal partners Sheridan students with local mentors

The REPORTER

Sheridan Elementary School (SES) has created a partnership with United Animal Health, headquartered in Sheridan. The program, called Lunch Pal – Partners Affecting Learning – began a few years ago and continues to grow.

Employees from United come once a week to eat lunch with their special student and will often stick around to play a game or two at recess. “It has been incredible seeing the bonds of friendship grow,” said Valerie Roberts, SES Assistant Principal. “We know how important building relationships are, so we can’t thank them enough for partnering with us in our Lunch Pal program.” Roberts helped start the program four years ago and has seen the benefits to the students as they look forward to their special visitor each week.

This year Roberts was challenged by a co-worker to grow the program even further. “It’s a little complicated, hard for the public to understand, and that’s probably the way some in this story wanted it.” The county wants to hold on to the $56 million, which is likely more than any other county in Indiana.

County officials have done a great job of financially providing for the services residents want and need without excessive taxes. But, in one recent instance they have not done what they could do to save our citizens money.

A little added tax really necessary?

These are financially good times for Hamilton County government. According to County Commissioner Mark Heirbrandt in a recent mailing to voters, the county has an unobligated cash balance of $56.3 million, which is likely more than any other county in Indiana. County officials have done a great job of financially providing for the services residents want and need without excessive taxes. But, in one recent instance they have not done what they could do to save our citizens money.

saying they have needs for State Road 37 cost overruns, partial payment for a parking garage, etc. But, that does not add up to the $56 million.

So, some county officials encouraged city and town leaders to increase the Local Income Tax to pay for the Emergency 911 Communication Center. That’s because the larger cities were paying a disproportionate share of the $9 million annual 911 cost, a third of which is paid by state-collected cell phone taxes. Ever-increasing county revenue could pay for it. And, why shouldn’t it be county funded? After all, 911 communication workers are county employees working in a county facility. And, if the

Lt. Gov. Crouch swears in Carmel city officials

The swearing in of Carmel’s newly elected and re-elected public officials took place Wednesday at the Monon Community Center. Officials were sworn into office by Indiana Lieutenant Governor Suzanne Crouch. This event was history-making as Carmel completes its transition to a second-class city by adding a new voting district, two new council members and the first City Clerk. The ceremony lasted about an hour and refreshments followed.

Commissioners amend sign ordinance

Hamilton County’s cities expected to pass similar plans

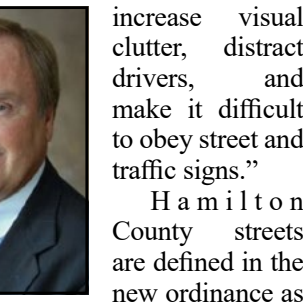

The REPORTER

The County Commissioners have approved an amended sign ordinance that should help eliminate confusion between similar ordinances in Hamilton County’s cities and towns.

In a unanimous vote, the commissioners passed Amended Ordinance No. 11-25-19-A at the Dec. 19 meeting. The amended proposal prohibits the placement of all non-public safety signs within public rights-of-way in the unincorporated areas of Hamilton County, along roads and bridges maintained by Hamilton County, and on land owned by the county.

“When it comes right down to it, this is really a matter of safety,” says Steve Dillinger, President of the Commissioners. “Poorly placed signs increase visual clutter, distract drivers, and make it difficult to obey street and traffic signs.”

Hamilton County streets are defined in the new ordinance as all public streets within the unincorporated area of Hamilton County, 146th Street east from the Boone County line to Marilyn Road, Campus Parkway east from Marilyn Road to the Interstate 69 bridge, Ohio Road from 96th Street north to, and including, the roundabout at Campus Parkway, and any bridge of over 20 feet in length located within Hamilton County other than bridges over I-69, U.S. 31, State Road 37 and Keystone Parkway.

more, so she decided to look within the building for some help. Unbelievably, 15 staff members decided to join the Lunch Pal Program and take on a special student as well. The staff members, as well as one school board member, gladly give up a lunch or prep time twice a month to have lunch and some fun with their student.

This week, all students in the program celebrated with a pizza party and some Christmas cheer. One teacher shared that she didn't think she was making a difference, until the day before the party her lunch pal arrived at her classroom door with a gift for her and a special note stating that after this "Lunch pal thing" is over, she hopes that they can stay friends forever.

Roberts said, "It only takes one person to step up in a child's life to start the tides of change and at Sheridan Elementary we are watching the benefits before our eyes."

Next year Roberts said she will be looking for other local businesses that might be willing to spend a lunch hour mentoring students. If your business would be interested, please contact Roberts at Sheridan Elementary School.

COUNTY LINE

worst happened, a tiny increase in countywide property taxes could cover the needs. So, most of the cities and towns adopted a resolution to enact a local income tax increase of 10 percent. In an ironic twist, since the county council did not vote on this tax, their members can say they did not vote to increase taxes.

The Local Income Tax next year will rise from one percent to 1.10 percent, which amounts to about $17 million. That doesn't sound too bad, and maybe few taxpayers will notice this increase each year. But, it is the principle of the thing that matters and the fact that only half that amount will be needed. And, it may not be the last increase. (If Marion County's Red Line mass transit system is a success, look for local officials to push for another increase to help fund expansion of the Red Line into Hamilton County.)

In October, a resolution calling for the increase, apparently drafted by the Town of Arcadia, was circulated to the county, town and city councils and sold on the argument that fairness was the issue and everyone should pay their share. And, everyone involved wants to keep an effective 911 system, as we all do.

As a result of the increase, the small towns' budget makers are off the hook for paying toward 911 communications, the larger cities like Carmel, Fishers and Noblesville, won't have to contribute to 911, and instead can direct the money to other uses. And, county government doesn't have to face financing the operation countywide in their budget.

So, it seems there is something for everyone, except the taxpayer. And, many of the taxpayers do not know what happened because the matter saw little to no debate or publicity.

As stated earlier, the amount is not large for any one taxpayer, but there is a lesson here. It's well to watch what officials are considering and demand information regarding true needs for tax revenue because this kind of issue could soon arise again.

limits end," Dillinger said. "That's why we've been working with the cities to create an ordinance that will work for all of us. Fishers, Westfield and Noblesville plan to adopt similar amendments at upcoming council meetings. Carmel's current ordinance is nearly identical to this one."

Traffic, utility and construction signs approved by the Board of Commissioners or the Hamilton County Highway Department are not prohibited by the new ordinance, as are signs placed on private property with the consent of the property owner. Signs found to be in violation of the ordinance will be collected and taken to the Hamilton County Highway Department. They can be retrieved for $3 for each sign of six square feet or less and $15 for each sign larger than six square feet.

Fees help cover the cost of trucks and crews used to collect the signs. If the signs are not collected before June 30 or Dec. 31 of each year, the signs may be destroyed.

The sign ordinance will be enforced starting Saturday, Feb. 1, 2020. Copies of the ordinance are available in the Hamilton County Auditor's Office. A copy will also be posted at hamiltoncounty.in.gov.

I was born and raised right here in Noblesville. I grew up in a home without domestic violence or assault – it wasn't something I saw, or even heard about. But when I was introduced to Prevail of Central Indiana, I was shocked by the number of individuals who are affected by domestic violence. In 2018 alone, Prevail helped more than 4,000 clients in Hamilton County. (Nearly 80 percent of clients are women and children.) Domestic violence and abuse are hard topics to discuss, so you don't often hear about them. But at Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville, we're breaking the taboo and raising awareness for Prevail, an organization that helps families in Hamilton County.

Enjoy the quiet times this season

My younger son, Jacob, battled stomach flu last week. This is the kid who NEVER gets sick. In fact, we imagined that he would receive an award next spring for two years in a row of perfect attendance. But the nasty norovirus said “no” and he missed school last Friday as well as his holiday choir concert on Saturday.

I had planned to have lunch with my brother Friday, as he was in town for a few days. I was also going to see Jacob’s recital that morning for his advanced piano class. Squeezing work in between it all was going to be a challenge but I was ready. We were also set to enjoy a Saturday afternoon of holiday music at Noblesville High School on Saturday.

All of that went out the window. Yes, he’s 17, and if he were simply battling a cold or sore throat, we may have done things differently.

COLUMNIST

AMY SHANKLAND

But this flu left him weak and dehydrated and we wanted at least one parent home with him.

I worked on my laptop in our dining room Friday while I watched Jacob get some much-needed sleep on our living room couch. And suddenly I realized that I was getting a lot done and enjoying the quiet.

As I get older, I realize how precious it is to get unexpected free time back into my day or week. It’s especially amazing during this holiday season.

I would never have wished this illness on my son, or really anyone, but knowing the worst was over for him was a relief. I began to relish this gift of time, especially on Saturday when he was up and about, eating a little more, and looking less like a zombie from The Walking Dead.

I’ll bet I’m not alone in feeling happy when some plans get canceled. Yes,

I love seeing family and friends, meeting up with clients, or chatting with an acquaintance over lunch. But when these fun plans change, those quiet times are often a gift – a rare one.

Whether planned or unexpected, I think now more than ever we need more free time in our lives. My friend Jennifer and I were just discussing this last week – sometimes we need to ponder the universe, pray, or enjoy some newly fallen snow and the lights from our Christmas tree.

If you’re in the sandwich generation, this gift of time doubles in importance. Sometimes we “go, go, go” taking care of everyone else and forgetting about our own needs. But if we don’t stop, breathe, and enjoy life once in a while, we’ll get burned out and not be much help to the ones we love.

So, if you find yourself deleting something off of your calendar this holiday season, try to enjoy the quiet instead of filling up that space right away. Consider it a secret gift to yourself!

Rep. Brooks votes against Articles of Impeachment

The REPORTER

Congresswoman Susan W. Brooks (R-Ind.-5) provided the following statement following her vote against Articles of Impeachment on Wednesday:

"Today is a somber day for our country. For only the third time in our nation's history the House of Representatives voted to impeach a sitting President," said Rep. Brooks. "Regrettably, the impeachment process in the House was flawed, inherently unfair, and politically motivated. All things our Founding Fathers warned us against."

"The Constitution of the United States allows for Congress to impeach a president if he or she commits 'high crimes and misdemeanors.' In order to uphold the oath that each Member of Congress took to protect and defend the Constitution, they must ensure their vote is not motivated by partisan disagreement. As Alexander Hamilton said in the Federalist Papers, 'There will always be the greatest danger that the decision to use the impeachment power would be driven by partisan animosity instead of real demonstrations of innocence or guilt.'"

"Disappointingly, the House Democrats have been solely driven by partisan animosity. Their desire to find a path to impeach the President began the day he was sworn in. Contrary to past impeachment inquiries, there was no neutral independent investigation that took place before this impeachment inquiry began. Chairman [Adam] Schiff of the House Intelligence Committee led the most partisan process imaginable acting as the investigator, prosecutor, grand jury and judge. Contrary to past precedent, Chairman Schiff selected what evidence was heard and prevented the Republicans on the House Intelligence Committee and the President from presenting evidence of their own. Even with a completely one-sided and unfair fact gathering process, Chairman Schiff and the Democrats did not make their case."

"House Democrats' argument for impeaching the President ultimately rests on the allegation he asked a foreign power to intervene in the 2020 presidential election. In reality, it is the hypocrisy of the Democrats interfering in the 2020 election by impeaching President Trump eleven months before the election.

"The Articles of Impeachment allege President Trump abused his power and obstructed Congress. First, Democrats allege President Trump abused the power of his office. This is untrue. The facts revealed President Zelensky of Ukraine said multiple times he did not feel pressured by President Trump. The facts revealed no Ukrainian investigation of the Bidens occurred. The facts revealed Ukraine received the foreign aid from the United States. Therefore, the facts demonstrated there was no bribery and there was no extortion."

"Second, the Obstruction of Congress article has not been proven. President Trump, as many other presidents have done, exerted Executive Privilege to prevent members of his administration from testifying before Congress. Under the Constitution, when disputes arise between the Executive and Legislative branches, the separate but equal Judiciary Branch decides those disputes. House Democrats, in their haste to impeach the President, failed to appropriately litigate this matter in the courts thus any discussion of Obstruction of Congress is premature.

"For these reasons, I do not believe the President committed high crimes and misdemeanors, therefore I voted against the Articles of Impeachment."

"While I am disappointed in the extraordinarily partisan impeachment process that transpired in the House of Representatives, I continue to have faith in our democracy. We must find a way forward to bridge the partisan divide and deliver bipartisan solutions to improve the lives of Americans."

AG Hill: Court decision means it's time to move past Obamacare

The REPORTER

This week, a federal appeals court struck down a key component of the Affordable Care Act, also known as Obamacare, by ruling that the federal government cannot require Americans to purchase health insurance. This decision comes after Indiana and several other states challenged the law's constitutionality. In response to Wednesday's court ruling, Attorney General Curtis Hill released the following statement on Thursday:

"This law's incompability with the Constitution is the reason my office chose to challenge it. From the beginning, the Affordable Care Act amounted to federal overreach. Congress should never have imposed this one-size-fits-all mandate in the first place. Choice, freedom and the roles of the individual states must remain part of the health care equation in America."

"Beyond violating the Constitution, the Affordable Care Act also has failed on a practical level to achieve its stated aims. It has narrowed people's health care options and driven up costs."

"At this point, Americans now must engage with the question of where U.S. policymakers should go from here. Congress, the Trump administration and the 50 state legislatures all have important parts to play. President Trump has expressed support for the latest court decision and pledged to keep working to give the American people the best health care in the world.' "All Americans – not just the 85 to 90 percent covered by their employers and/or Medicare/Medicaid – should have access to quality health care that they can afford. While remaining true to the Constitution, Congress and the individual states now must develop sound policies that safeguard the health care needs of all individuals, including those with pre-existing conditions."

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

Then said the chief priests of the Jews to Pilate, Write not, The King of the Jews; but that he said, I am King of the Jews. Pilate answered, What I have written I have written. Then the soldiers, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments, and made four parts, to every soldier a part; and also his coat: now the coat was without seam, woven from the top throughout. They said therefore among themselves, Let us not rend it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be: that the scripture might be fulfilled, which saith, They parted my raiment among them, and for my vesture they did cast lots. These things therefore the soldiers did.

The Shamrocks were victorious in 10 of the 14 matches, including pins from Gabe Arvin, Dylan Driver, Carson Eldred and Alec McLaren, and technical falls from Braxton Vest and Seth Martin. The Millers got a pin from Adam Rider at 285 pounds.

"Noblesville's a well-coached team," said Westfield coach Phil Smith. "It was a conference win for us, so we're excited about how our guys performed today."

"I'll tell you right now, Westfield's a well-coached team and a great team to compete against and I was proud of our guys," said Millers coach Michael Weimer. The coach was pleased that his team "improved from Tuesday's dual to Thursday's dual," which is what he wanted to see.
