Fishers youth take the lead in climate change action

By BETH EDWARDS
Guest Column

Three young Indiana women are working to avert the upcoming environmental disaster that scientists warn could be their future. One leads a program that teaches elementary school students about the impact of climate change. Another helps lead recycling efforts as president of her school environmental club. And a third is developing a city climate change resolution with her local council representative.

Inspired by 16-year-old Swedish climate crusader Greta Thunberg and other youth activists across the world, Hamilton County high school students Martha Abaddi, Vernice Riego and Emma Summers are using their passion for environmental issues to change their communities.

Abaddi, president of the environmental club at Hamilton Southeastern High School in Fishers, said she feels a responsibility to stand up for the planet that her generation will someday inherit.

"Environmental activism is important to me because, growing up in a generation where our Earth is being exploited, I feel more of a responsibility to do something about it because I'm going to be here," she said.

The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change estimates that by the year 2050, a child born in 2000 is likely to experience "atmospheric concentrations of CO2 between 463 and 623 parts per million, 1.5 to 2.6 C warmer, and with sea levels higher by 5 to 32 cm."

These projections predict consequences in the form of economic loss, human health and the reduction of current land mass. Younger people today will face the potential for more disease, extreme loss of ecosystems, and food and water vulnerability. These changes will disproportionately affect populations that are already vulnerable, such as indigenous people, coastal communities and those currently experiencing poverty.

Along with worries about global ecosystems and communities come concerns about these activists' own loved ones and futures.

"I want our children to have a future like my childhood," Riego said. "I want them to be able to play outside without worrying about what's in the air and what's going on around their planet, because it's being destroyed right now."

For Abaddi, Summers and Riego, an essential part of protecting the global environment starts at the local level, with awareness and policy changes. At their respective high schools, the girls have launched a variety of initiatives to make local change.

To help inform and educate younger generations, Abaddi is leading a program called Eco-scouts, where she and her fellow environmental club members visit local elementary schools to discuss environmental issues and to make students aware of how climate change is affecting their community.

The answer is: What is Jeopardy?

Why is it that some weeks I sit down at my computer and the words just flow from my fingertips like it's harvest time and the crop is at its peak? Other times, my words are struggling from a mental drought.

This week, it's the drought. I think I have figured out why I am struggling ... Jeopardy.

Yes, for the past few days Chuck and I have not only watched regular Jeopardy but the "Greatest of All Time" Jeopardy. My brain is tired. For our entire marriage if you asked our kids, at 7:30 each evening, do you know where your parents are? They would all know - watching Jeopardy. If we have to miss it, we tape it. Chuck qualifies each category, as they are announced at the beginning of the show, as to whether he may know the answers. Chuck? American History. Mathematics. Crossword puzzle clues. Golf. Me? 70s sitcoms. Country music. Fashion. Car talk. We both do well on the Bible and lousy on Before and After.

Funny thing is on regular Jeopardy Friday night, there was a Car Dashboard category. They were pictures of lights that would light up on your dashboard and what those lights meant. I got them all, including the glow plug coil light for diesel engines. Chuck said, "Well, you are the truck lady!"

Back to the GOAT Jeopardy. Chuck is cheering for James and I am cheering for Ken. We can never think of the other guy's name. He is struggling. Oh, yes ... Brad.

These guys rarely miss an answer. The key seems to be not only knowing a lot about a lot of things but being quick on the buzzer.

The guys are having fun with Alex, the host. Most people know that he has been diagnosed with pancreatic cancer. They are saluting him and cheering him on with their answers and quick wit.

Chuck was so disappointed on Friday evening when the GOAT took a break for a few days. It will return on Tuesday. I have not told Chuck that if he looks for it on Monday he will find "The Bachelor" in its place.

If you ask what TV show that you will never find Chuck Leonard watching, the answer will be, "What is The Bachelor?"

Hopefully, by next week, my brain will be back to its old self, but until then I'm wagering all my money on Ken Jennings and making it a true Daily Double!

Italian fine dining alive and well in Westfield

By STU CLAMPITT

Kent and Patsy McNall were running a restaurant in Florida when customers from Westfield asked them to come home to Indiana and bring their delightful sauces with them. Now, Pasto Italiano, 3150 E. State Road 32, Westfield, offers an intimate setting, daily specials, music from Eddie Money's former guitarist and of course, the sauces.

"We were down in Florida for about five years," Patsy told The Reporter. "Kent is friends with John Perazzo who owned J. Razzo's restaurant in Carmel. He called us when we were running an Italian fine-dining establishment called Cibo in Fort Myers."

According to Kent, they had several couples from Westfield who visited the restaurant in Fort Myers. The couples were snowbirds visiting the Sunshine State in the winter.

"Our regulars in Florida said they'd love to have these sauces in a place up there," Kent said. "They told us, 'You haven't been up there in a while; you should see all the development.' We came up from Florida a couple years ago and saw John Perazzo. We took Patsy's mom out to dinner there. We talked to John and he said he was going to close that location and sell this one. Patsy said Kent starting driving around the Westfield area to check out the neighborhood and they were impressed with what they found.

"Kent looked at the neighborhood here and saw how quick it was growing and how wonderful and booming this area was," Patsy said. "So, we made our menu and sold our condo and came back up here! We have had the warmest reception from the people here in Westfield, Carmel and Noblesville. We have been received very well. They have been so marvelous about our returning. They are just really nice people. I just can't say enough about them."

Pasto Italiano features daily specials and live acoustic jazz on Wednesday evenings with Benito DiBartoli, former guitarist for Eddie Money.

"Benito lives here in town," Kent said. "I have known him for years. We had talked about when we opened. But Eddie was still around and I didn't want to do it if he couldn't commit to being here. At that time, he was never sure because sometime a show would come up and he might have to like fly to Philadelphia or somewhere. He still has a blues band and does a lot of jazz guitar now."

And what about those sauces and recipes the snowbirds wanted to have closer to home?

"All our sauces are all made from scratch," Patsy told The Reporter.

After they both took a moment to taste the day's sauce and decide if it needed any adjustments before customers started to arrive, Kent told The Reporter, "I pick out all the produce. I personally pick out every head of lettuce, every batch of tomatoes. Every day."

According to Patsy, Pasto Italiano has a wine selection stocked mostly with options you can't find anywhere else.

Cox Leadership Summit will encourage servant-leadership skills, abilities in area youth

Submitted

"My biggest lesson is that life is truly a gift... and it is up to us to make the absolute most of it."

— Courtney Cox Cole

Beyond This has announced a leadership summit/mentoring movement to encourage and inspire students in Central Indiana as the nation celebrates Dr. Martin Luther King on the National Day of Service. These efforts are to commemorate the legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

On Monday, Jan. 20, more than 100 students of diverse backgrounds will join together to symbolize a unified effort and spread a message of hope, grow in their leadership, have fun tubing, engage in service projects and hear from some amazing speakers.

As Dr. King stood for more than just marches and rallies, his concept of "somebodiness," which symbolized the celebration of human worth and the conquest of subjugation, gave the impoverished hope and a sense of dignity. His courage inspired a nation to service, which will be lived out on this National Day of

Service at the Cox Leadership Summit.

This event is in honor of Courtney Cox Cole, an inspirational leader in Central Indiana, who recently died of lung cancer. She was a motivating example of a person who fought to be the best in everything she did – as an athlete in high school becoming a 1989 Indiana Basketball All-Star, to her career as a keen businesswoman and co-owner of Hare Chevrolet, to the bravery and dignity which she used to fight cancer.

"It is our goal to help young people tap into their leadership abilities by demonstrating this act of servant-leadership and humility, gather together with other young people across Central Indiana and to share a message of hope," said Todd

Melloh, founder and CEO of Beyond This. "Each year the Corporation for National and Community Service honors the legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. by asking Americans to serve others and on January 20 over 100 students will do so in a very profound way."

The Cox Leadership Summit is for students in grades 6 through 12 and will be held at Purgatory Golf Club, 12160 E. 216th St., Noblesville. The purpose of this day-long event is to tap into the true leadership potential of local youth. There will be inspirational talks, age-specific break-out groups, service projects and even sledding (if weather permits) at nearby Koteewi Sledding Park. It's a great way to get kids out from behind their devices to spend a fun day in community.

Cost to attend is $55. For details and to register, check out beyondthis.net/cox-leadership-summit or call (317) 417-3525.

Mitigating dementia, depression with the arts

Submitted

Can the arts truly make an impact on your loved ones with dementia and depression?

Dr. Don Hay, M.D., past President of Indiana Psychiatric Society, has spent more than 40 years studying the link between dementia and depression. Dr. Hay is now retired and visits PrimeLife Enrichment (PLE) several days of the week.

Here are a couple of facts provided by Dr. Hay: 1) One-third of people who develop clinical depression for the first time in their senior years may develop dementia. 2) Another one-third that develop dementia may develop clinical depression after the dementia.

The Alzheimer's Association, the National Alliance for Caregiving, and many other organizations have compiled statistics that affirm what Dr. Hay has known for years: Dementia and depression have created a health crisis that needs addressed by all sectors of our community.

Fortunately for many dementia patients and their caregivers, the arts can have a positive impact on their mental and physical well-being. Studies have shown that people with dementia can flourish and show creativity in ways they, their caregivers and loved ones never thought possible. Whether the therapy consists of the visual arts, music therapy, performing arts, crafts, etc., research shows that the results can include significant improvements in mood and cognition, as well as a reduced risk of social withdrawal and depression. Ultimately, the arts can make a contribution to the quality of life of people living with dementia, give their caregivers a stronger sense of purpose, resolve and commitment, and help make our community more compassionate and aware.

Dr. Tim Brimmer of Butler University and founder of Sound Minds is passionate about the role music can play in the lives of dementia patients and their caregivers. He and his team of colleagues, students and industry leaders in music, psychology, pharmacy, communication science disorders, physics, and innovative technologies, working alongside leading physicians, nurses and caregivers, support research and professional training programs that advance quality of life for the elderly and their caregivers.

Their current projects focus on the use of music and other expressive arts as a non-pharmacologic intervention for individuals diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease or other related dementias. They increase engagement that may assist in reducing falls, behaviors and prescription drug use.

More simply, Dr. Brimmer said, "Music breaks barriers to allow for enjoyment and improved quality of life."

Dr. Brimmer comes to PLE every first week of the month bringing with him, music for all to join in and leave feeling so much better.

Dementia patients and their caregivers are often at risk of suffering from serious depression. Fortunately, music and other arts therapy can help reduce this risk. The arts provide them with an opportunity to become immersed in creative activity that can help them recover, especially when integrated with appropriate medical therapy.

While art therapy is not a cure for depression and other mental health challenges, a recent article in the American Journal of Public Health noted that, "There are clear indications that artistic engagement has significantly positive effects on health."

PrimeLife Enrichment (PLE) is taking steps to address the growing health crisis of dementia and depression in our community. PLE's weekly "Mood and Memory" program, developed with the assistance and input of Dr. Hay, features arts-related therapeutic and educational activities designed to help memory-challenged individuals and their caregivers stay connected with others and avoid or overcome feelings of depression and social isolation.

This program is offered every Friday for free. It is important to get your loved ones out of the house and these "Mood and Memory" offerings will help you and your loved ones feel better. Lunch is served at 11:30 a.m. by Second Helping, and the program starts at noon. You do not need to be a member or live in Hamilton County to take part.

PLE, with the assistance of the Central Indiana Council on Aging (CICOA), is also launching a program to start educating local businesses about the Dementia Friends program. You can help get the word out by encouraging your employer to allow PLE to educate fellow employees about the resources available to help meet the personal challenges of caregiving for loved ones with dementia.

For more information about these or other services offered by PrimeLife Enrichment, contact Executive Director Linda Handy by calling (317) 815-7000.

Finally, if you have the opportunity to thank CICOA, United Way, the Hamilton County Council and Commissioners, and most recently the City of Carmel for their financial support of PLE's efforts to fight dementia and depression, please do so. Without such support, PLE would be unable to continue to meet the evolving needs of Hamilton County's senior population.

Duke Energy offers tips to trim energy usage in the new year

The REPORTER

If saving money made your New Year's resolution list, start by cutting your energy use to save money year-round. With some simple lifestyle tweaks, you can trim your energy usage and help keep your 2020 budget in check.

Here are ways to monitor and cut your energy use this winter and also avoid billing surprises:

7 ways to cut your energy costs

- Reduce your thermostat to the lowest comfortable setting. If you have a heat pump, maintain a moderate setting or use a programmable thermostat specifically designed for use with heat pumps.
- Leave drapes or blinds open during sunny winter days to allow the sun to warm the house. Close them at night to help insulate your home.
- Have the heating and air conditioning system checked regularly to maintain performance. Duke Energy offers qualified customers rebates to help offset the cost of replacing older

HVAC units with more energy-efficient ones.

- Replace standard incandescent bulbs with light-emitting diodes (LED). LEDs are more efficient while giving off the same amount of light.
- Operate ceiling fans in a clockwise direction, which pushes warm air back down into the room.
- Change air filters regularly. A dirty air filter makes a heating system work harder, which uses more energy.
- Set your water heater's thermostat to 120 degrees to help you reduce your monthly water heating bills.

5 tips to help manage, understand your bills

- Check the number of days in your billing cycle. Most bills are for 30 days, but there are times when the billing cycle is shorter or longer. If there are more days in the bill, your bill total could be higher.
- Look at "average kilowatt-hour" (kWh) use per day. At first glance your bill may look higher, but if your average use is similar to the same time last year or in a month with similar extreme temperatures, it's a normal bill.

- If you have a smart meter, check online to see if a daily usage analysis tool is available. Smart meters collect usage information by the hour, so checking spikes throughout the month – by day and even hour – can show what appliances and behaviors are increasing your bill.
- Customers without a smart meter can receive high bill alerts when hotter or colder weather may be causing your bill to trend higher than last month. We send these alerts before you receive your bill – so you can take steps to lower your usage before your bill comes.

Customers can also use the Duke Energy app to access and manage your account, making it easier to stay on top of your energy usage and bills. You can also take advantage of our energy- and money-saving products and services.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

Jesus saith unto him, Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed. And many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book: But these are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name.

Who was the "Corn King"?

The REPORTER

This week in Indiana's history...

1876 – The Oliver Company in South Bend opened a new factory which would employ 400 workers. The company became famous for its "chilled" plow, which retained its sharp edge and required less cleaning in the field. The company soon dominated the industry, selling over 62,000 plows in 1878 alone.

1916 – Purdue University named 18-year-old Fred Thomas of Posey County the "Corn King" for the second year in a row. His crop yielded an average of over 126 bushels of corn per acre.

He and 10 other agricultural contest winners were given a free trip to Washington, D.C. There they shook hands with President Woodrow Wilson and took a tour of the White House. Later they met with Vice President Thomas Marshall, former Governor of Indiana.

1920 – Governor James P. Goodrich called a special session of the Indiana Legislature to ratify the Women's Suffrage Amendment of the United States Constitution. Indiana was the 26th state to approve the amendment, which became effective nationwide in August of 1920. In signing the document, Governor Goodrich described the measure as "an act of tardy justice."

1931 – Will Rogers, cowboy philosopher and star of radio and movies, flew into Indianapolis and landed at Mars Hill Airport. He was full of his usual wisecracks, but he grew serious when he mourned the recent death of his friend Kin Hubbard, popular Indiana author and cartoonist. Rogers called Hubbard "America's greatest humorist."

1943 – Construction was completed on the United States Pentagon. The building, which includes 6.5 million square-feet of office space, is covered with Indiana limestone. Finished in only 16 months, it is the largest office building in the world, spanning over 28 acres.

1958 – Johnny Cash and Jerry Lee Lewis were on stage at the Murat Theater for two performances. Cash had already scored a number one country song with "I Walk the Line." Lewis was riding high with his top hit, "Great Balls of Fire." Reserve seats for the show were $2.50, with general admission at $1.75.

Brooks votes against House resolution directing President Trump to cease military action in Iran

The REPORTER

On Thursday, Congresswoman Susan W. Brooks (R-Ind.-05) provided the following statement after voting against H. Con Res. 83, Directing the President pursuant to section 5(c) of the War Powers Resolution to terminate the use of United States Armed Forces to engage in hostilities in or against Iran.

"As Commander-In-Chief, the President has inherent Article II authority to defend the United States and our forces. He possessed the legal authority for the strike on Soleimani and complied with the 48-hour reporting requirements under the War Powers Resolution. Under Article II powers, presidents of both parties have claimed the inherent Constitutional right to use U.S. military force without Congressional authorization in pursuit of an important U.S. national interest, such as defense of U.S. personnel or diplomatic facilities abroad, as long as that use of force is limited in nature, scope, and duration – as the strike on Soleimani was.

"President Trump made the correct decision to keep Americans safe by removing the head of one of the most dangerous and well-armed terrorist organizations in the world. Since 1998, Qassem Soleimani commanded the terror arm of the Iranian Regime, the Quds Force. Soleimani was responsible for killing at least 603 U.S. service members and injuring thousands more in Iraq, while continuing to orchestrate attacks that would have threatened even more American lives.

"In the last two months

alone, Soleimani ordered to dramatically escalate Iran's campaign of violence against U.S. citizens in the Middle East. Iran used its proxies in Iraq to launch more than a dozen rocket attacks aimed at U.S. forces or interests including the rocket attack on December 27, 2019, which resulted in the death of an American citizen, wounded four American service members, and threatened the lives of many more American personnel. Soleimani also ordered the assault on the U.S. Embassy in Baghdad.

"According to intelligence officials, Soleimani was actively developing plans to strike U.S. diplomatic personnel and service members throughout the region. If the President had not intervened to stop Soleimani, one of the most dangerous terrorists, the result could have been more attacks on our U.S. Embassies, more American lives lost, and undermining the Iranian peoples' pursuit of freedom.

"Iran's retaliation to the killing of Soleimani was unsuccessful thanks to the preparedness of our incredible military. No Americans or Iraqis were harmed in Iran's recent missile attack on our military bases.

"The Administration has stressed the U.S. does not seek war and is committed to de-escalating Iranian hostility. H. Con. Res. 83 ignores President Trump's clear ongoing efforts to avoid war and bring Iran to the negotiating table. He has called upon NATO and other allies to help us work toward a responsible diplomatic de-escalation in the Middle East."

To become tight ends coach...

Reports: Kevin Wright headed to IU

Several media outlets reported on Saturday that Kevin Wright will be joining the Indiana University football team's coaching staff as a tight ends coach.

Bruce Feldman of The Athletic website reported that Wright is headed to Bloomington. An announcement is expected next week. Feldman said in a Saturday morning tweet that Wright "has deep ties around the state of Indiana and figures to provide a big boost" to IU's recruiting. Wright had been the football coach at IMG Academy in Bradenton, Fla. since 2015; he resigned a few weeks ago.

Of course, everyone in Hamilton County knows about Wright's ties to the Hoosier state. Wright is the eldest son of Sheridan's Hall of Fame coach Bud Wright and played for his father. After graduating from Western Kentucky, Kevin became a successful coach in his own right.

Kevin Wright coached at Carmel from 2010 to 2014, winning a 5A state title in 2011 and guiding the Greyhounds to runner-up finishes in 2013 and 2014. Wright also won three consecutive 5A state titles for Warren Central in 2003-04-05, and coached at Noblesville from 1992 to 1998, winning a sectional title in 1997. He also spent a season at Tulsa Union High School in Oklahoma in between his employments at Warren Central and Carmel.

While at IMG Academy, Wright compiled a record of 44-2 as head coach and was part of some impressive accomplishments, according to the Academy's website. Wright coached the majority of IMG's 38-game win streak (which stretched from 2014-2018) and helped the team to a top five national ranking and undefeated records in 2015-16-17. Wright coached the Parade National Player of the Year (Dylan Moses) in 2016 and back-to-back Maxwell Football Club Defensive Players of the Year (Taron Vincent in 2017 and Nolan Smith in 2018).

Boys basketball

'Hounds hand 'Rocks first loss of the season

Carmel won a boys basketball county rivalry game at Westfield on Saturday, handing the Class 4A No. 9 Shamrocks their first loss of the season, 53-44.

The Greyhounds got out to a big lead early, going up 10-1 with 2:10 left in the first quarter. Charlie Williams was dominant for Carmel, scoring seven of those points, while Conner Gioia hit a 3-pointer during that run. Westfield was able to cut into the Greyhounds' lead in the last couple minutes, including three free throws from Braden Smith at the end of the quarter.

Carmel led 12-6 at the end of one and continued to keep the 'Rocks at arm's length in the second quarter. Peter Suder scored six points in that period to help the 'Hounds lead 25-15 at halftime.

Carmel kept its lead at around 10 points for the second half. The Greyhounds scored the first two baskets of the third quarter, from Suder and Williams, to enjoy a 29-15 advantage early in the period. Westfield twice got the lead under 10 during the quarter, on a 3 from Cam Haffner and a layin by Nic Dipasquale. But both times, Carmel answered with its own basket. A Williams layin put the 'Hounds ahead 38-26 at the end of three.

Smith made a 3-pointer to get Westfield within 40-31 early in the fourth quarter, but the 'Hounds made consecutive baskets (from Suder and Gioia) to push the lead up again. The Shamrocks fought to the end, getting within 49-43 after Camden Simons made a floater with a minute left. Carmel clinched it from the free throw line, making 4 of 6 in the last minute.

Four Greyhounds players reached double figures. Gioia scored 14 points, while Suder earned a double-double, getting 15 rebounds to go with 12 points. Williams and Wil Leary each had 11 points, including a 3-pointer for Leary. Williams had five rebounds and Suder made two blocked shots.

Smith led Westfield with 15 points, while DePasquale scored 12 and pulled seven rebounds.

Carmel is 7-3 and plays at Cathedral on Wednesday. The Shamrocks are 8-1 and will host Hamilton Southeastern next Friday in a girls-boys Hoosier Crossroads Conference doubleheader.

The University girls entered Saturday afternoon's game at Lebanon having won all 18 of their contests this season, having never trailed in the second half of any game. That changed during Saturday's game as with 2:30 remaining in the third quarter Saturday, the upstart Tigers held a 36-28 lead.

How did the second-ranked Class 2A Trailblazers respond? University held Lebanon scoreless for the next 12 minutes and scored the next 26 points of the game to record a 62-39 win.

Senior Lindsey Syrek had the fourth triple double of her career with 18 points, 19 rebounds and ten blocked shots. Senior guard Maddi Sears had 16 points, 11 rebounds and five assists. Freshmen Kelsey DuBois (10 points, nine rebounds) and Payton Seay (five points, 10 rebounds) helped University control the glass.

Freshman Jordan Patterson started University's comeback with a baseline jumper with 2:27 remaining. Syrek made a pair of foul shots and DuBois added a basket with 24 seconds left to pull University within 36-34 at the end of the third quarter.

DuBois made a foul shot early in the fourth quarter before Syrek put University on top to stay with a basket with 7:10 remaining. Patterson increased the lead to three with a basket before a foul shot by Seay and a Syrek rebound basket put the Trailblazers up 42-36 with 4:45 remaining.

Seay

A driving basket by Sears followed by a DuBois basket off a great feed by Seay gave University a 10-point lead with 3:00 remaining. Another DuBois field goal and a Syrek basket off a pass from Seay made the lead 49-36 with two minutes left.

Lebanon finally got on the board in the fourth quarter with 49 seconds left, making a foul shot to end a 12 minutes scoreless streak. The Tigers kept fouling and University kept making free throws to close out the game.

The second-ranked Class 2A Trailblazers are now 19-0. Lebanon fell to 10-7.

University is next in action Saturday afternoon when it will host the PAAC championship game at 2 p.m. against the PAAC South champion. Bethesda Christian currently lead the PAAC South at 3-0. Greenwood Christian is 3-1 and Park Tudor 2-1. Bethesda Christian will play Park Tudor on Tuesday. A Bethesda Christian win sends the Patriots to The U Center on Saturday. A Park Tudor win creates a three-way tie for first, with the tie being broken by the Sagarin ratings.

HCC swim meet

Southeastern boys, Fishers girls are team champions

Hamilton Southeastern hosted the Hoosier Crossroads Conference swimming and diving meet this weekend, and the Royals also provided an exciting finish to the event.

Southeastern's boys were trailing Zionsville by 1.5 points going into the final race of the meet, the 400 freestyle relay. The relay squad of Keegan Streett, Evan Sellers, Marcus Eden and DJ Rogers finished that race by less than a half-second ahead of the Eagles, and that propelled HSE past Zionsville for the conference championship. Southeastern scored 430 points to the Eagles' 425.5.

"In meets this close, there is always a tendency to focus on the final race - those four boys secured the win for the Royals, but our team would have never been in the position to win without an outstanding day from every team member," said Royals coach Andy Pedersen.

Southeastern stayed close during the first eight events, helped out by a runner-up finish in the medley relay and Streett taking second in the 200 free. Connor Harrison and Andrew Christopher were second and third respectively in the butterfly.

The Royals won the 200 free relay, with Streett, Zack Bostock, Christopher and Rogers setting a new meet record. Eden, Ryan Harrison and Ethan Forbes had season bests in the backstroke, and Thomas Reising, Justin Voelker and Andrew Truxall went 4-5-6 in the breaststroke to keep Southeastern close.

"It is very hard to win a championship in the toughest swim/dive conference in the state so we are really proud of these young men," said Pedersen. "They were unified and excited all day long plus just very very tough today."

Fishers placed third with 384.5 points and won two events. Sebastien Otero and William Jansen went 1-2 in the diving, which was contested Friday night, and Aaron Frolo was first in the 500 free.

Westfield placed fifth with 194 points; Alex Casas took eighth in the breaststroke. Noblesville finished eighth as a team with 89 points, with Cameron Kramer taking 11th in the 500 free.

In the girls meet, Fishers won the team title with a score of 508.5 points. The Tigers led off the meet with a medley relay victory; that squad consisted of Jo Jo Ramey, Lydia Reade, Alexandra Stein and Corinne Yorkman.

Ellen Fero placed first in the 50 free, with Abby Jahns pacing the 500 free. Fishers won the 400 free relay; swimming on that team were Ramey, Jahns, Yorkman and Hannah Pratt.

Southeastern was a strong second in the girls meet by scoring 421 points. Molly Pedersen was a double winner in the 200 and 100 freestyles, with Sarah Ballard placing first in diving. Kennedy Fisher, Grace Newton, Pedersen and Kayleigh Witt also picked up a 200 free relay victory.

Noblesville finished fifth as a team with 208 points. Sammy Huff got a win for the Millers in the breaststroke. Westfield placed sixth with 166 points, with Macy Hoaglan taking sixth in the 200 free.

Complete results now follow.
