

Noblesville Schools to “Back” we go install vaping detectors

By JENNY DREASLER
WISH-TV | wishtv.com

The Noblesville school district is looking to curb the use of teen vaping by putting new technology in three of its buildings.

This year, Noblesville Schools will install vape detection sensors at Noblesville High School and at Noblesville East and Noblesville West middle schools. School officials hope the addition will help reverse a growing trend among teens.

“There’s a few kids, about two in my grade and a lot in eighth grade I know that vape,” said Ashlynn Kirkman, a sixth-grader at Noblesville East Middle School.

Ashlynn says vaping is quickly becoming a real problem in the district.

“I think it should be recognized at the high school especially because there are kids that have gotten caught in the bathroom vaping,” Ashlynn said.

A district spokeswoman says the sensors work similarly to smoke alarms and will notify school leaders when vaping is detected.

Noblesville Schools release a statement saying in part, “These will be an important deterrent as the sensors will assist administrators in quickly addressing student vaping. ... We work with our Noblesville Police Department school resource officers to address vaping, and the dangers of vaping are covered with students in health classes.”

Ashlynn’s mother, Shelby Kirkman, said, “I think it’s a great thing to be in place actually. I wasn’t aware that it was a problem until recently. And I think it would be a pro, not very much of a con, especially since the age of legal tobacco use is now 21.”

One of the worst things that can happen to a member of the sandwich generation is to get injured or sick. I haven’t dealt with the latter in a couple of years now.

But unfortunately, the former hit me out of nowhere last Monday morning. The day started out normally and without any stress. My youngest son went off to school just fine, I did a few household chores, and settled into my workday seated at the corner of my dining room table.

her routine that I knew would upset her.

Ordinarily I drive over to her apartment to share bad news. At least in person I can hug her and try to comfort her. But I couldn’t possibly get over there, even with my husband driving, and walk down the long hallway to her apartment.

I calmed down as best as I could and made the call. My heart broke as I heard her voice go from its usual cheerfulness to sorrow. My own tears started up again before we discontinued. I spent the rest of the afternoon and evening alternating between crying and attempting to get some work done in my recliner.

After reaching a good stopping point, I stood up to go to my 11:20 a.m. dentist appointment – and froze. Agonizing, sharp pain radiated from my lower back, causing me to cry out and gasp in shock. I recognized the feeling from a similar incident five years ago and hobbled to the bottom of our stairs to let my husband John know I was in trouble, wincing and fighting tears with every step.

He didn’t have any sales appointments until the evening, so thankfully he could get out the heating pad and prepare the recliner while I called the dentist and the chiropractor. During my chiropractic appointment that afternoon my phone rang and went to voice mail.

As John drove us back home, I listened to the message and could no longer hold back the tears. It was Mom’s facility giving me some bad news. Mom was okay, and I can’t share exact details of what happened, but they were going to have to change something in

No one ever likes to make their mama cry, and I felt completely helpless about the situation. The only thing I could do was ask God to help us both in whatever way He could and let Him know we needed Him.

By the next day I was about 50 percent better physically and emotionally. I felt blessed thanks to technology to continue to do my work, which is essential when you own your own business. I somehow sensed that my mom would be okay.

John and both of my sons have been a huge help to me this week. I feel grateful that the boys are now older and don’t have to rely on me as much. I know that “this too shall pass” and I’ll be back to my normal sandwich generation duties soon.

Carmel announces new Clay Center Elem. School

The REPORTER

The Carmel Clay Schools board voted unanimously on Monday to name the new elementary school between 116th Street and Clay Center Road, Clay Center Elementary School.

The recommendation to name the new elementary school on Clay Center Road was derived from historical information found in the book The Early History of Carmel Clay Schools, written by A.J. Wright of the Carmel Historical Society. Mr. Wright’s research found that on Sept. 25, 1912, Clay Township opened a new brick school, named Clay Center, on the northeast corner of 116th Street and Clay Center Road. The district’s new elementary school will be located north of where the original Clay Center school was built.

Kerschner

“After hearing Mr. Wright’s research on the original Clay Center School that opened in the early 1900s, I believe the administration and board both believed that Clay Center would be the perfect name for the new elementary school,” said Carmel Clay Schools Superintendent Dr. Michael Beresford. “It’s not often that a school district can re-establish a bit of Carmel history.”

“On behalf of the CCS Board, we are excited to have approved the name, Clay Center Elementary School,” said Board President Mike Kerschner. “We look forward to the next steps of the process and getting students involved with selecting a mascot and school colors.”

Clay Center Elementary School will open in August 2021.

Wellbeing Coalition of Westfield launches wellbeing index survey

The REPORTER

On Thursday, the Wellbeing Coalition of Westfield launched the first-ever Westfield Wellbeing Index Survey. The announcement was made at the State of the City luncheon in Westfield.

“Having an independent-from-government group come in and take this on is wonderful,” said Mayor Andy Cook. “This is a grass roots effort not a government initiative and our community has stepped up!”

“This survey will give us the data to really step back and see what we, as a community, can do to help our residents of all ages live better lives,” said Kyle Miller, Coalition volunteer and Project Lead. “The critical next step is getting our citizens to take 10 minutes and give us their honest feedback.”

The Index will provide an in-depth look at the overall wellbeing of Westfield residents by exploring how people view their lives and daily experiences. Wellbeing is a term used to describe the extent to which individuals lead happy, healthy and productive lives in five interconnected areas:

Noblesville Parks’ spring break day camp registration now open

The REPORTER

Spring break is right around the corner and the Noblesville Parks Department is offering full-day, week-long camps for ages 6 through 11. Held in conjunction with Noblesville Schools’ two-week vacation, registration is open with camp options from March 30 through April 10.

Camp programs facilitated by parks staff offer opportunities for two weeks of games, crafts, nature, laughter and friendship. Campers will have a science project, arts and crafts, and will stay active each day of camp. New this year, Spring Break Camp will include field trips on Tuesdays and Thursdays to area locations – including Conner Prairie on March 31, Urban Air on April 2, the Indianapolis Zoo on April 7, and the Rhythm and Discovery Center on April 9. Campers registered for camp on those dates will be transported to and from the field trip.

“Our Spring Break Camp is a great option for kids to come learn, play and explore in new ways and make new friends. We have added two exciting field trips each week that give campers a variety of activities over break,” said Kaitlyn Smith, recreation program coordinator. “The options are very flexible, whether you need a few days or the whole week, we can accommodate you.”

VAPING

District officials say vaping has become such an issue that the district recently implemented a new remediation program at Noblesville High School. Any student who is caught vaping must attend a mandatory Saturday vape counseling class. While the district continues its fight against vaping, parents News 8 talked to say the sensors are a good idea, but they fear children may see the rules as something meant to be broken. Shelby Kirkman said, “Initially, it’ll kind of put maybe some fear into the students. But like all rules, I think at some point they might try to be broken. I’m interested to see how that will unfold.”

The sensors are one of the many safety initiatives being paid for through the November 2018 referendum that provided funding for safety, mental health and staff compensation. There has been no word yet on exactly where the sensors will go in the school or on an exact timeline to get them installed.

WELLBEING

Physical, social, emotional, spiritual and mental. Having a baseline understanding of how people are doing in these areas will help identify areas of strength as a community, and at the same time, highlight areas for improvement so all Westfield residents have the opportunity to thrive. All responses on the survey will be completely confidential and no personally identifiable information will be collected. The survey will take about 10 minutes to complete and is open to any Westfield Washington Township resident ages 18 and older. It can be taken now through March 1. The Wellbeing Coalition, in partnership with IUPUI's School of Public Health, will analyze the data to show areas of strength and challenges in the overall wellbeing of Westfield residents. The results will help guide the Coalition as it works to build on Westfield's strengths and address its challenges. The tool was modeled after the work completed in Santa Monica, Calif.

About the Wellbeing Coalition of Westfield
The Wellbeing Coalition started as a partnership between Westfield Washington Schools, the City of Westfield and the Hamilton County Community Foundation. Since its inception, the coalition has grown and is now made up of a diverse group of community members who are passionate about ensuring all Westfield residents live in a thriving community where every individual feels empowered to make the necessary changes to reach their full potential.

I was born and raised right here in Noblesville. I grew up in a home without domestic violence or assault – it wasn't something I saw, or even heard about. But when I was introduced to Prevail of Central Indiana, I was shocked by the number of individuals who are affected by domestic violence. In 2018 alone, Prevail helped more than 4,000 clients in Hamilton County. (Nearly 80 percent of clients are women and children.) Domestic violence and abuse are hard topics to discuss, so you don't often hear about them. But at Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville, we're breaking the taboo and raising awareness for Prevail, an organization that helps families in Hamilton County.

IU Health investing millions in CPR training

WISH-TV | wishtv.com

Indiana University Health announced plans to implement an entirely new cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) protocol for the 20,000 medical professionals working in their hospitals. The announcement came Friday from Chief Medical Officer Dr. Jonathan Gottlieb.

The education training is called Resuscitation Quality Improvement (RQI) 2020 and hails from the American Heart Association.

"It's their attempt to raise the bar," said Dr. Michele Saysana, vice president of Safety, Quality and Performance at IU Health. "This is a critical step in helping resuscitation practices and really building on a program that meets the needs of clinicians using updated adult learning theory to teach these concepts."

The education program couldn't come at a better time. National survival rates for cardiac arrest average just 26 percent.

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) is a critical, lifesaving skill. It combines a series of rhythmic chest compressions interspersed with mouth-to-mouth rescue breaths and is essential when a person experiences cardiac arrest or a heart attack. Without emergency CPR, the body remains lifeless, lacks a heartbeat, is without a pulse and isn't breathing. Permanent brain damage and/or death can occur in as little as six minutes.

The previous protocol allowed medical personnel to retain a CPR certification for two years before having to re-certify. Yet, according to the IU Health press release, "key skills [learned] decay in as few as three months after training is completed. This decline in competence puts those in need of CPR at a lower risk of survival."

Under the new program, professionals are now required to refresh their skills every three months. Furthermore, classes incorporate computerized mannequins allowing students to "perform high-quality compressions and ventilations with personalized audio and visual feedback."

This differs from previous classroom formats procured by teachers.

As a former instructor, Saysana admits she thought she knew how well people were performing but came to realize in a classroom with multiple students, it's nearly impossible to give each and every student individualized attention. The computerized mannequin, however, is designed to do just that – assess real-time performance on every compression and every breath providing students immediate feedback.

"The American Heart Association is thrilled that Indiana University Health has implemented RQI 2020 to improve CPR readiness for its staff and healthcare providers, becoming the largest program adopter in the state," said Wendy King, Executive Director of the American Heart Association, Indianapolis branch.

"By implementing RQI, staff are equipped with high-quality CPR skills and stronger competence and confidence in life-saving situations, ultimately helping to increase in-hospital cardiac arrest survival rates."

Shaffer awaits Carmel’s 2019 financial report with “fear and trembling”

Dear Editor:

As Hamilton County residents await the 2019 updates to the State of Indiana on local financials, Carmel residents await them with fear and trembling.

The audited and approved Carmel Annual Financial Report for 2018 disclosed at $111.3 million deficit of revenues and expenditures.

The 2017 number was $84.8 million.

Two-year total expenditures of nearly $200 million in money borrowed without voter consent to buy solutions to problems that don’t exist.

That’s deficit spending on steroids.

Old-fashioned murder to hit the stage in Carmel next week

The REPORTER

Actors Theatre of Indiana will start off 2020 with the Indiana premiere of Murder for Two. This witty and winking homage to old-fashioned murder mysteries begins Friday, Jan. 24 at the Studio Theatre in Carmel.

Officer Marcus Moscovicz is a small-town policeman with dreams of making it to detective. One fateful night, shots ring out at the surprise birthday party of Great American Novelist Arthur Whitney and the writer is killed ... fatally. With the nearest detective an hour away, Marcus jumps at the chance to prove his sleuthing skills – with the help of his silent partner, Lou.

But whodunit? Did Dahlia Whitney, Arthur's scene-stealing wife, give him a big finish? Is Barrette Lewis, the prima ballerina, the prime suspect? Did Dr. Griff, the overly-friendly psychiatrist, make a frenemy? Marcus has only a short amount of time to find the killer and make his name before the real detective arrives ... and the ice cream melts.

With a perfect blend of music, mayhem and murder, this hilarious show features two performers playing 13 roles.

Tickets are on sale at the Box Office, by calling (317) 843-3800 or at ATISStage.org.

Commissioner since 2011...

Bobby Cox announces retirement from IHSAA

Bobby Cox, Commissioner of the Indiana High School Athletic Association, Inc. since 2011, announced to the IHSAA Executive Committee his intention to retire effective Aug. 1, 2020. Cox's announcement came Thursday morning as part of the group's January meeting.

Cox, 63, and who will be completing a 41-year career in education, joined the IHSAA as an assistant commissioner in 2000 and began his tenure as the IHSAA's eighth commissioner on February 1, 2011 succeeding Blake Ress (2000-11). Other former IHSAA commissioners include: Bob Gardner (1995-2000), C. Eugene Cato (1983-1995), Ward E. Brown (1976-1983), Phil N. Eskew (1962-1976), L.V. Phillips (1945-1962) and Arthur L. Trestler (1929-1945).

"It has been an honor to serve as Commissioner of this great organization," says Cox. "I will take away fond memories and a sense of accomplishment on behalf of our member schools and thousands of Hoosier students knowing that education-based athletics remains vitally important and relevant in our state."

The Personnel Committee announced that a plan to begin the search for a new commissioner will be developed and presented to the IHSAA Executive Committee at its February meeting.

During Cox's tenure as Commissioner, the IHSAA has made unprecedented advances in numerous areas all with the intention of further strengthening the IHSAA's brand and trumpeting the many values and benefits of participation in education-based athletics.

Cox

He oversaw an expansion of corporate partnerships and sponsorships for the Association and pushed for strides in sportsmanship, technology, coaches education, student-athlete health and safety, officiating recruitment and retention, and servant leadership just to name a few.

Perhaps most special to Cox was the Association's embrace of the Champions Together initiative, a partnership with Special Olympics Indiana which established the newest state tournaments in Unified Track and Field (2014) and Unified Flag Football (2018). The two sports allow students with and without intellectual disabilities to compete together in a team setting for their school.

In 2014, he helped finalize a deal with the Indiana Pacers and Indiana Fever to become the presenting sponsors of the boys and girls basketball state tournaments, the first professional basketball franchises in the country to partner with a state high school association.

Cox oversaw the creation and formation of the IHSAA Foundation in 2015 which continues to operate for the charitable benefits of IHSAA member schools and their student-athletes.

That same year, the IHSAA took the unprecedented step of self-producing state championship events along with games of the week in football and basketball using its online streaming platform at IHSAAtv.org. Together with the IHSAA Champions Network, it has grown into one of the most successful high school sports broadcasting aggregates in the United States.

Additionally, he's worked to promote the #FaceOfSportsmanship initiative to address student and adult behaviors, authored the Tournament Success Factor in team sports, and oversaw the move to multiple classes in boys and girls soccer (2011), and the addition of a sixth class in football (2013). He also orchestrated a total redesign and launch of the IHSAA members and officials website at myIHSAA.org (2018) and a renovation of the IHSAA building in 2011.

"Commissioner Cox has been a tremendous asset to the IHSAA during his service to the association and the State of Indiana," says Matt Martin, chairman of the IHSAA Executive Committee and athletic director at Knightstown High School. "Under his leadership and guidance, the IHSAA is currently at the forefront of numerous policies due to his knowledge and leadership. When the commissioner retires in August, the IHSAA will be in great standing due to his hard work and dedication. It has been a pleasure to serve as chairman and on the IHSAA Board of Directors under Commissioner Cox."

Prior to being appointed commissioner, Cox had served as assistant commissioner from 2000-11 administering the sports of football, boys' golf, boys' and girls' track and field, and wrestling.

In addition to leading the IHSAA, Cox has served on several different boards of directors including the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS), the IHSAA Foundation, the Indiana Basketball Hall of Fame, the Indiana Sports Corporation, the Council on Standards for International Educational Travel (CSIET), and the Center for Sports Leadership and Innovation. He is also a member of the Board of Directors for the 2022 College Football Playoff Host Committee.

Previously, Cox was a member of the NFHS Football Rules Committee serving as the Chairman of the Research subcommittee from 2008-2011. Additionally, he served as a member of the NFHS Coaches' Education committee from 2002-06 and as an advisor to the Commission on Sports Medicine of the Indiana State Medical Association.

Before joining the IHSAA, Cox had spent the previous 21 years as a teacher, coach, and athletic administrator at the Carmel Clay Schools. He served as athletics and activities director at Clay Junior
