Noblesville Schools appoints new officials

The REPORTER

Noblesville Schools announced Tuesday that it has appointed Dr. Doug Miller as principal of Noblesville East Middle School (NEMS) and Heather Young as Noblesville High School's (NHS) alternative education administrator.

Miller will transition to the lead NEMS role in July when current principal Ryan Rich moves to the district with responsibility for high school and middle school curriculum. Miller, a long-time Noblesville resident, has 25 years of experience in school leadership roles in a variety of communities, including Lafayette, Crawfordsville, Lebanon, Indianapolis and Sheridan.

He also holds Ph.D. and Ed.S. degrees in education from Indiana State University.

"Doug has been actively involved in the Noblesville community for years and is widely respected for his extensive leadership experience, integrity and compassion for others," said Dr. Dave Mundy, associate superintendent of Noblesville Schools.

Young joins the NHS team from her current role as dean at Fishers High School and brings a deep background in successful school and alternative program leadership with roles in Indianapolis and Peoria, Ill. She holds a Master's degree in educational administration from Bradley University, as well as alternative education certification from Illinois State University.

"Heather is a top-notch leader in alternative education and we couldn't be more pleased that she's accepted our offer to share her talents with us," said Mundy.

It's time for empathy

Empathy: the ability to understand and share the feelings of another (Oxford Dictionary).

I have to admit, folks, with everything happening in the world, I almost wanted to skip writing this week's column. How can I focus on a Sandwich Generation topic when the world is crying out for help in so many other areas?

Then I realized while driving and letting my mind wander that one word can help us with COVID-19, racial disparity, the sandwich generation, and so many of the problems we face today — empathy. But trying to be empathetic can be so hard because each one of us is carrying his or her own problems and challenges. Some struggle just to wake up, go to school/work, keep the household running, pay the bills, and/or accomplish what they need for their own families. It's often hard to look beyond that. But we all must do our part to bring about change in this hurting world.

Even I was overwhelmed earlier this week about how to be more empathetic. What can I do to help my black brothers and sisters in my limited spare time? How can I help those that are being crushed in one way or another by the COVID-19 situation? And what more can I do to help my mother who has been stuck in her assisted living facility apartment since mid-March?

I soon realized that I'd already been taking steps to be empathetic. I've been

Grand Park, IUPUI release results of COVID-19 youth sports research study

The REPORTER

The Grand Park Sports Campus, in partnership with the IUPUI Sports Innovation Institute, on Wednesday released the results of its COVID-19: Return to Youth Sports research study. The scientific survey of more than 10,000 people across 45 states looked at perceptions and expectations of parents, athletes, coaches, officials and administrators in relation to youth sports amid the COVID-19 pandemic.

The data will be an important tool that facilities and event operators can use to ensure athletes and their families feel safe as youth sports resume.

"As we look to see youth sports reactivate across America, it is critical that we understand the mindset and expectations of those intimately involved," said Westfield Mayor Andy Cook. "To build confidence and ensure a safe return to sports, we need to know what is expected and how it aligns with health data."

"Grand Park is the largest youth sports facility in the United States. It makes sense that we, in partnership with the IUPUI Sports Innovation Institute, lead in this research," said Grand Park Sports Campus Director William Knox. "In some cases, as we open back up, facility investments may or may not be expected. The information we have gleaned from this research is critical to event operators and organizations to create meaning-

New Fishers Connect app enables residents to report issues to city departments directly

The REPORTER

The City of Fishers has launched a new mobile app to provide residents with a one-stop shop for City services. The Fishers Connect app provides an easy way for residents to report non-emergency issues within the community related to City maintained roadways, street signs, storm water, water, sewer, streetlights, and park infrastructure elements. The app also provides quick links to City information and forms related to City services. The free app is now available for download from the App Store and on Google Play.

The City of Fishers' Business Solutions Group partnered with developer SeeClickFix to create the app. Residents can also access Fishers Connect from the City website at fishers.in.us/FishersConnect.

With the app, residents can take a photo of the issue that needs to be fixed and submit the photo, description of the issue, and GPS location—automatically provided by the app—directly to City departments. From there, residents can track the progress of their reported issue and receive confirmation once the problem is fixed. Residents can also view a map of all reported issues within Fishers and create custom "watch areas" to receive updates on issues in a specific area of their community.

The app also integrates social elements and invites residents to comment on issues reported by others, and integrates with social media platforms such as Facebook, Twitter, and NextDoor.

"Fishers Connect makes it easier than ever for our residents to report concerns directly to their city government, and allows for increased transparency as residents can view all of

Fireworks, but no Fourth festival at Carmel this year

By FRED SWIFT
ReadTheReporter.com

Although not yet officially announced, the popular Carmelfest activities on Carmel's Civic Square will not be held July 4-5 this year due to continuing concerns over the pandemic.

The only possible (and unlikely) change would be a dramatic improvement in the health situation still gripping the state.

The festival has been orchestrated for many years by the Carmel Rotary Club. It features music, food and commercial demonstrations drawing several thousand visitors from Hamilton County and surrounding areas.

Fireworks end the July 4 celebration, and those fireworks will be held again this year. But, crowds will not be invited to assemble on Civic Square for the show where normally patriotic music is provided by the Carmel Symphony.

As announced earlier, there will be no Carmel parade this year. Carmelfest officials hope to resume July 4 activities next year.

Indiana State Fair canceled

WISH-TV | wishtv.com

The traditional Indiana State Fair has been canceled due to the impact of the coronavirus pandemic, fair officials announced Thursday.

The Indiana State Fair Commission and the Indiana State Fair Board also announced a modified State Fair 4-H Livestock Show with additional activities.

The alternative festivities will be held at the Indiana State Fairgrounds in August.

Indiana State Fair Commission Chairman Brad Chambers said vendors and partners began "falling off" and so they "pivoted."

"Safety is our number one priority. We've spent months working through options that would allow us to host the Fair," said Cindy Hoyer, Executive Director of the Indiana State Fair Commission in a release to News 8. "Agriculture and youth are the foundation of our mission and the heartbeat of the Indiana State Fair, so we are determined and proud to honor our 4-H members

Brainard clarifies why he wanted to sue Minneapolis

By TRAVIS ROBINSON
WISH-TV | wishtv.com

Carmel has lifted its curfew order. Mayor Jim Brainard says the city is safe, but on Monday he was worried about possible violent protests.

Unlike downtown Indianapolis, where buildings are boarded up after rioting, Carmel appears untouched by protests and rioting.

However, many residents expressed concern after Brainard announced Monday that Carmel would sue Minneapolis for protection expenses after the death of George Floyd. Hours later, he rescinded that plan.

"An interesting concept, which I think would go nowhere," said Carmel resident Joe Henderson. "My overall feeling is it kind of makes us look a little petty."

Brainard says he hoped, by pressuring Minneapolis, the city would work faster toward a solution. He says he retracted his plans to sue because they would only send a message of intolerance to violence and looting.

"Some people clearly didn't understand that," Brainard said. "They saw it was a way to beat up on Minneapolis. That's not the case. It was meant — how can we, who are suffering — quite honestly, the impact, and I understand it's not solely that one incident, it's cumulative incidents for many years in different areas. But, this is certainly one of the most flagrant, terrible examples of racism that we have seen. And it needs to be fixed. We're looking at how do we put pressure on the police department, which is operated out of the city of Minneapolis, to make those changes?"

The most visible marks on Carmel from George Floyd's death are sidewalks marked with chalk and spray paint outside one store. Marches in the city have been peaceful. Brainard and the police chief even participated Tuesday night.

"It'll heal gradually," Ralph Payne said.

blessed to consult with an organization bringing art, culture and hope to the Near Westside Indianapolis Neighborhood for almost two years now. Its 17,000 residents are primarily minorities. I've been working to understand their challenges by attending events and reading some amazing books, including My Brown Baby by Denene Miller and My Grandmother's Hands by Resmaa Menkem.

When it comes to COVID-19, my mantra from the beginning has always been "Be kind." I've never worked in the medical field, had a serious illness, been temporarily laid off, or worked in a grocery store. But I can offer some encouraging words to the technologist during my mam-mogram, pick up groceries for someone with the virus, give $100 to someone who is struggling financially, or send a card to my friends at Dollar General.

Even though I can't give my mother a hug yet, I can still be empathetic to what she's going through. We've all had cabin fever at one time or another – especially with COVID-19! I certainly feel better whenever I can be outside. So, I've called her when I know it'll be warm enough for her to sit out on her patio, which is in a safe, interior courtyard. She gets excited at the chance to feel the sun on her face and breathe some fresh air!

Dear Readers, let's all work on growing our empathy little by little each day. When practiced more by millions (and I pray eventually billions) it can be a habit that can truly make a difference.

operators with data on how specific adaptations are received by stakeholders who are looking to return to youth sports in a timely but safe manner."

Among the findings, participants identified seven critical or expected changes as youth sports emerge amid the pandemic:

- Venues and events should invest heavily and visibly in sanitization of facilities, playing areas, and equipment before, during, and after events.
- Venue operators and event managers can feel confident that the recommendations provided by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and National Federation of State High School Associations to sanitize playing areas and equipment after each use will be well-received and welcomed by users.
- Promotion and monitoring of social distancing guidelines.
- Limiting personal contact between players.
- Limiting admission to those under age 65 with no underlying conditions.

- Completing a health and contact information questionnaire prior to entering venues by users is expected in order for youth sports to return during the COVID-19 pandemic.

I was born and raised right here in Noblesville. I grew up in a home without domestic violence or assault – it wasn't something I saw, or even heard about. But when I was introduced to Prevail of Central Indiana, I was shocked by the number of individuals who are affected by domestic violence. In 2018 alone, Prevail helped more than 4,000 clients in Hamilton County. (Nearly 80 percent of clients are women and children.) Domestic violence and abuse are hard topics to discuss, so you don't often hear about them. But at Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville, we're breaking the taboo and raising awareness for Prevail, an organization that helps families in Hamilton County.

Hamilton Heights receiving up to $50K for new civil construction program

The REPORTER

The Indiana Office of Career and Technical Education (CTE) has selected 12 recipients for a Next Level Programs of Study Implementation Grant. These grants will provide the selected schools and CTE Districts up to $50,000 each to offer a pilot program of a Next Level Program of Study during the 2020-2021 school year.

Locally, Hamilton Heights High School was chosen as one of the grant recipients for a new Civil Construction program.

Next Level Programs of Study is the state's initiative to rethink and revitalize CTE programming in Indiana and will be implemented statewide beginning in the 2021-22 school year. The Office of CTE has been working with K-12 teachers and administrators, Ivy Tech Community College, and Vincennes University in developing the new programs of study.

Each program of study will contain intentional coursework designed to give Indiana students the opportunity to earn credentials, including industry certifications and postsecondary certificates, while enrolled in high school. Students who participate in these programs of study will have an opportunity to launch their careers sooner, while saving money on postsecondary tuition and training expenses.

The Implementation Grant recipients will pilot programs in 10 different career pathways, with courses delivered in diverse settings and formats. Recipients represent career centers and high schools from across Indiana. Funds from the grant can be utilized for a variety of items, including obtaining needed equipment or professional development of staff.

Each pilot program will serve as a model for schools in preparing for statewide rollout of Next Level Programs of Study in 2021-22. Office of CTE staff will provide technical assistance to each recipient throughout this summer and school year and use lessons learned to ensure an effective statewide transition to Next Level Programs of Study the following school year.

In March, the Office of CTE awarded 36 Next Level Programs of Study Planning Grants of $5,000 each. Planning Grant recipients participated in virtual workshops put on by the Office of CTE to develop a deeper understanding of the goals and requirements of Next Level Programs of Study. Recipients then collaborated with community partners to develop an implementation plan specific to their local community. A total of 30 Planning Grant recipients submitted implementation plans, of which 12 were selected to receive Implementation Grants.

"As time goes, people will start to heal. People start to heal naturally. This is a natural instinct with people. Apparently they want something done. They want change. When things like this happen, they want action, they want the law to be taken into consideration."

The curfew has been lifted, but Brainard says the work isn't over. He says the city of Carmel will continue to examine its police department and make changes for the better of all humanity.

"It's going to cause a review of policies and procedures for how we police and interact with minority communities across the country," Brainard said. "No department is perfect. I think our department does a good job, but it could certainly improve. A lot of departments have a lot of improving to make in my estimation."

Get outdoors for Free Fishing Weekend

The REPORTER

This weekend, June 6-7, is Free Fishing Weekend for Indiana residents, who will not need a license to fish public Hoosier waters on those days.

The weekend kicks off National Fishing and Boating Week, which is June 6-14. The week is a national celebration that highlights the importance of recreational boating and fishing.

Fishing and boating are excellent opportunities to get outside and connect with family and friends while practicing social distancing. June is an especially good time to fish for largemouth bass, sunfish, catfish and Skamania steelhead.

DNR properties are open and have abundant fishing opportunities. For public fishing areas and access sites, see on.IN.gov/where2fish. For fishing tips and videos, visit wildlife.IN.gov/dnrcovid19.

Indiana is also home to several water trails across the state that provide paddling opportunities. See on.IN.gov/water-trails for more information.

There will be a few fishing events throughout the state on Free Fishing Weekend. To learn more about these events, see dnr.IN.gov/fishfree. This year’s final Free Fishing Day will be Sept. 26.

When fishing or doing any other activity, Hoosiers should follow posted restrictions and practice social distancing. Your fishing rod is a measure of appropriate social distance. For the most up-to-date information regarding DNR and COVID-19, visit on.IN.gov/dnrcovid19.

Take steps to protect your skin while working outside

StatePoint

Do you spend summer days outdoors mowing the lawn, tending to the garden and working on the house? Here are a few steps you can take to help you care for and protect your skin as you complete your seasonal chores:

- Dress right: A few wardrobe considerations go a long way. Opt for long, lightweight clothing in light colors, which can protect your skin from sun exposure while keeping you cool. Sunglasses and a wide-brimmed hat can provide further coverage. If possible, arrange to spend the bulk of your time outdoors either before 10 in the morning or after 4 in the afternoon to avoid exposure while the sun’s rays are at their strongest.
- Don’t forget the SPF. Apply sunscreen and a lip balm containing SPF before heading outdoors. Reference the bottle’s instructions to ensure you are reapplying as needed. Dermatologists recommend an SPF of 30 or higher for extended outdoor activity. For lawn care and gardening, you should also be on the lookout for a product that’s resistant to sweat.
- Promote resilience: There are many outdoor elements that produce free radicals, such as sun exposure and pollution, and exposure to these free radicals can have harsh effects on the body. To help protect and maintain healthy, youthful-looking skin, consider incorporating Heliocare Daily Use Antioxidant Formula into your morning routine. In a survey conducted by Ferndale Healthcare Inc. between November 2019 and February 2020, of 923 U.S. dermatologists, more than half personally use Heliocare, and 87 percent of these experts recommend it to their patients.

“I tell all my patients who ask me how to maintain their skin’s youthful appearance to consider taking Heliocare, particularly if they spend a lot of time outdoors,” said New York City dermatologist Dr. Rachel Nazarian.

The antioxidant-rich proprietary extract in Heliocare, Fernblock PLE Technology, has been studied for over 25 years by leading dermatologists.

To learn more and to access additional skin care information, visit heliocare.com.

- Adopt healthy habits: Drinking plenty of water and ensuring you are getting electrolytes can help regulate the balance of fluid in the body for healthy-looking skin. Also, be sure to get a great night’s sleep. Not only do you deserve it after a hard day of work, but sufficient sleep is beneficial to skin health.

This summer, treat your skin right while working in the yard. Take steps to protect it from the inside out.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

But when the Jews saw the multitudes, they were filled with envy, and spake against those things which were spoken by Paul, contradicting and blaspheming. Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bold, and said, It was necessary that the word of God should first have been spoken to you: but seeing ye put it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles. For so hath the Lord commanded us, saying, I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldest be for salvation unto the ends of the earth.

Acts 13:45-47 (KJV)

With a birdie-eagle finish . . .

Noblesville's Mike O'Toole wins Indiana PGA Senior Open

The Indiana PGA season has barely begun, but it is likely there won't be a better finish to a tournament than the one Mike O'Toole had on Thursday.

The Noblesville golfer was down by a couple shots with a few holes to go at the Indiana PGA Senior Open, which finished up Thursday at Purgatory Golf Club. O'Toole then surged to the top of the leaderboard with a birdie on the 17th hole and an eagle on 18, giving him his first-ever Senior Open championship.

O'Toole finished with a two-day score of 71-66=137, seven under par for the event. He estimated it was the first tournament he had won in a few years, and it was certainly a great way to get back in the winner's circle. O'Toole finished three shots ahead of Indianapolis' Michael Williams, who carded a 69-71=140 for the event.

"I hit the ball extremely well off the tees and gave myself a lot of good opportunities," said O'Toole. "I had two three-putts on par fives that ended up being pars. Everything seemed to go my way. I got a couple of good breaks on the bunkers and different things. Just a wonderful day of golf."

O'Toole was three under par after the 16th hole, then made his charge with the birdie on 17, his fourth of the day. He then came to 18 with a plan, and everything came through, as he got on the green in two shots and made a 20-foot putt for the eagle.

"Everything's playing real fast and firm, so basically, if you can hit the right line with your driver, it'll go forever," said O'Toole. "I was able to do that. I ended up having a nine iron, I was 157 yards from the pin, but even that's still downhill. I was just trying to hit a little nine iron about 144 yards in the front edge, and then release up on the green. I hit it exactly where I wanted to and made about a 20-footer for an eagle."

O'Toole's eagle was his second of the event; he made one during the first round on the 4th hole. He also totaled eight birdies for the tournament, with four in each round.

Two players from Carmel finished in the top 10. Jeff Cook was part of a three-way tie for seventh; he finished with a 74-71=145 for the tournament. Cook made three birdies in his final six holes to move him under par for the second round.

Lee Crannell tied for 10th place, carding a 71-75=146. He also made three birdies in the second round.

Here is the list of other Hamilton County finishers, along with any birdies they may have made during their second round of play:

IMS: No fans for Brickyard 400

WISH-TV

Businesses in Indiana are continuing to open as restrictions are lifted following the statewide lockdown.

Several weeks ago, when Governor Eric Holcomb announced his plan to open the state in different stages, he set July 4 as the date for when everything in the state would back open and running. While that is still the plan for most of the state, with Stage 5 set to allow sporting venues to hold public events with social distancing guidelines, the Indianapolis Motor Speedway will not allow spectators at July 4 weekend events, including the Brickyard 400.

IMS made the announcement Thursday morning. With Marion County, where the speedway is located, having just entered Stage 3 10 days ago, the venue is exercising caution.

In announcing the news, Penske Entertainment Corp. president & CEO Mark Miles released the following statement:

"While we certainly worked diligently to run our events with spectators, we reached a point where we needed to make a final decision because the race weekend is less than a month away. Today it's not possible to be confident that Indianapolis will be at Stage 5 of the state's reopening plan by the Fourth of July weekend."

We are extremely appreciative of the time and expertise Governor Holcomb, Mayor Hogsett and state and local public health officials have given us over the last few months. This was a collaborative process and a decision we're all aligned with after thorough review of the situation. We remain committed to welcoming the world's greatest fans to the Speedway for the Indianapolis 500 Mile Race in late August."

Here is the full press release from the Speedway, which includes refund information for fans:

"The upcoming Fourth of July race weekend at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway will run without spectators due to the COVID-19 pandemic, IMS officials announced today following extensive consultation with local and state officials.

"Stage 5 of Indiana's reopening plan allows for sporting venues to host public events with social distancing and is scheduled to begin July 4 in most counties. However, Marion County - home to Indianapolis, the state's largest city - recently entered Stage 3 of the road map 10 days after the majority of counties. This follows nationwide trends suggesting larger municipalities should exercise caution in navigating plans to reopen.

"While we certainly worked diligently to run our events with spectators, we reached a point where we needed to make a final decision because the race weekend is less than a month away," Penske Entertainment Corp. President & CEO Mark Miles said. "Today it's not possible to be confident that Indianapolis will be at Stage 5 of the state's reopening plan by the Fourth of July weekend.

"We are extremely appreciative of the time and expertise Governor Holcomb, Mayor Hogsett and state and local public health officials have given us over the last few months. This was a collaborative process and a decision we're all aligned with after thorough review of the situation. We remain committed to welcoming the world's greatest fans to the Speedway for the Indianapolis 500 Mile Race in late August."

"The culminating event of the holiday weekend will be renamed the Big Machine Hand Sanitizer 400 Powered by Big Machine Records, in recognition of the company's ongoing efforts to support the supply chain of hand sanitizer available to the public. In early March, when the pandemic started to hit hard, Big Machine Distilleries recognized the great shortage of hand sanitizer and immediately pivoted and started production to assist the local community and first responders with product. Inquiries from across the country soon dictated a full-blown national awareness, which has led to the name change of the race. The company and its Big Machine race drivers will announce plans to donate bottles of hand sanitizer to Indianapolis front-line workers around the event weekend.

"Everyone in Central Indiana and around the country can tune in to the historic NASCAR-INDYCAR double-header weekend live on NBC. The marquee holiday weekend at IMS will mark the first time the NASCAR Cup Series and NASCAR Xfinity Series have shared the same track with the NTT INDYCAR SERIES on the same event weekend. The GMR Grand Prix for the NTT INDYCAR SERIES and Pennzoil 150 for the NASCAR Xfinity Series are scheduled for Saturday, July 4, while the Big Machine Hand Sanitizer 400 Powered by Big Machine Records for the NASCAR Cup Series is scheduled for Sunday, July 5.

"Fans who have purchased reserved seats or general admission tickets to the GMR Grand Prix, Pennzoil 150 or Big Machine Hand Sanitizer 400 Powered by Big Machine Records will have the option for a credit to future IMS events, such as the 2020 Indianapolis 500 presented by Gainbridge or Harvest GP, or a refund. IMS will contact these fans directly.

"Other public events surrounding the weekend have been canceled given the decision to run all races without fans. This includes the Driven2SaveLives BC39 USAC Midget race and the FGL Fest concert. Fans who have purchased tickets to these events also will have the option to receive credit to a future IMS event or a refund and will be contacted directly by IMS.

"The NBC television schedule for the weekend will be released soon."
