New roundabout coming soon to 111th & Westfield Blvd. in Carmel

The REPORTER
Beginning on or after May 10, the City of Carmel will begin building its 139th roundabout at the intersection of 111th Street and Westfield Boulevard.

This will result in an estimated 45-day full closure of that intersection. Once that portion of the project is complete an estimated 35-day closure of Westfield Boulevard will take place north of that intersection for the replacement of a culvert under the road. Expect all of this work to take place throughout most of the summer, with local traffic only between 106th and 116th streets on Westfield Boulevard.

Detours consist of 106th Street, College Avenue, Keystone Boulevard, and 116th Street.

State awards over $2.7M to help drive Hamilton County road projects

The REPORTER
Indiana recently awarded more than $2.7 million in state matching grants to local communities for road and bridge improvements, according to Hamilton County lawmakers.

House Speaker Todd Huston (R-Fishers) said through the Community Crossings Matching Grant program, 218 Hoosier cities, towns and counties received a combined total of over $100 million.

Huston "Indiana is on a roll with its continued investment in critical infrastructure, which spurs economic development and job creation," Huston said. "These investments help our local communities take care of our roads and bridges, and prepare for future growth."

Schaibley This program was established in 2016 and expanded a year later in 2017 through laws State Rep. Tony Cook (R-Cicero) and other local Jeter lawmakers supported.

Torr "Our roads are an integral part of our state's infrastructure, with Hoosiers using them every single day to travel to work, school or visit loved ones," Cook said. "We must take steps to keep up with maintenance, and these dollars can help local communities continue this much-needed investment."

The Indiana Department of Transportation oversees and distributes these grants twice each year, according to State Rep. Chuck Goodrich (R-Noblesville).

Northview Church shows what it means to be a good neighbor

The REPORTER

From April 25 through May 1, Northview Church mobilized its nine Central Indiana locations to go out into their communities to show the love of Jesus through serving. Northview members participated in a range of service projects, including the following and more:

- Zoe Faith Inc.: Seventy volunteers made hundreds of bracelets for Zoe Faith Foundation, who provides the bracelets to local mothers who experience loss during pregnancy.

- Carmel Clay Parks: Volunteers covered an entire playground with mulch.

- Hygiene Kits: Volunteers collected and assembled 475 hygiene kits for the homeless.

- Brookside Community Church: Over 50 volunteers deep-cleaned Brookside Community Church near downtown Indianapolis, mulched the property and completely organized the church's warehouse.

Additionally, volunteers serving the Noblesville and Carmel communities place special emphasis on community teachers. Northview provided 588 boxes of snacks for 27 schools in Noblesville and Carmel.

"This year, we really wanted to do something that would bless our teachers," said Mike Polster, Northview Church missions pastor. "It has been such a hard year for teachers, students and parents juggling ever-changing schedules and learning the best way to reach. What better way to encourage teachers to finish the year strong than to provide all teachers at Noblesville and Carmel schools with snacks?"

Be conscious of your investment environment

On April 22, we observe Earth Day, an occasion that has inspired millions of people over the decades to take steps to clean up our world. Of course, your physical surroundings are important, but you also operate in other “ecosystems” – social, cultural and political. And you’ll need to consider your investment environment, too. How can you improve it?

Here are a few suggestions:

Avoid “toxic” investment strategies.

The dangers of pollution helped drive the creation of Earth Day. As an investor, you also need to watch out for “toxins” – particularly in the form of unhealthy investment techniques. For example, chasing after “hot” stocks can burn you. In the first place, by the time you’ve heard of them, they may already be cooling off. Second, and probably more important, these hot stocks just may be wrong for the investment mix that’s appropriate for your needs.

COREY SYLVESTER

Another toxic investment strategy: trying to “time” the market by “buying low and selling high.” No one can really predict when market highs and lows will occur, and if you’re always jumping in and out of the investment world, you’ll likely waste time and effort – not to mention money.

Instead of looking for today’s hottest stocks or guessing where the market is heading, try to create and follow a long-term investment strategy based on your goals, risk tolerance and time horizon.

Reduce waste.

From an environmental standpoint, the less waste and garbage we produce, the better it is for our planet.

As an investor, can you find “wasteful” elements in your portfolio? It’s possible that you own some investments that may be redundant – that is, they are virtually indistinguishable from others you may have.

Also, some investments, due to their risk profile or performance, no longer may be suitable for your needs. In either case – redundancy or unsuitability – you might be better off selling the investments and using the proceeds to purchase others that can be more helpful.

Recycle wisely.

Recycling is a major part of the environmental movement. At first, though, you might not think the concept of recycling could apply to investing.

But consider this: If you own stocks or mutual funds, you may receive dividends, and, like many people, you may choose to automatically reinvest those dividends back into the stocks or funds. So, in a sense, you are indeed “recycling” your dividend payments to boost your ownership stakes – without expending additional resources. And, in fact, this can be quite an effective and efficient way to increase your wealth over time.

Planting trees has always been a key activity among boosters of the environment – with the recognition that their efforts will take years, or even decades, to reach fruition. When you invest, you must sometimes start small. By purchasing a limited amount of an investment and nurturing it over the years by adding more shares, you may one day have achieved significant growth. (Keep in mind, though, that there are no guarantees – variable investments such as stocks can lose principal.)

By making these and other moves, you can create a healthy investment environment – one that can help you achieve your long-term goals.

TODAY’S BIBLE READING

To the rest I say this (I, not the Lord): If any brother has a wife who is not a believer and she is willing to live with him, he must not divorce her. And if a woman has a husband who is not a believer and he is willing to live with her, she must not divorce him. For the unbelieving husband has been sanctified through his wife, and the unbelieving wife has been sanctified through her believing husband. Otherwise your children would be unclean, but as it is, they are holy. But if the unbeliever leaves, let it be so. The brother or the sister is not bound in such circumstances; God has called us to live in peace. How do you know, wife, whether you will save your husband? Or, how do you know, husband, whether you will save your wife?
1 Corinthians 7:12-16 (NIV)

HCC boys track and field meet

Millers, HSE, Fishers get multiple wins

By RICHIE HALL
ZIONSVILLE - The Hoosier Crossroads Conference boys track and field meet took place Friday night at Zionsville.

The HCC's four Hamilton County teams all made an impact at the meet. Hamilton Southeastern had the highest team finish by taking third, with Fishers and Noblesville joining the Royals in winning multiple events and Westfield having strong performances as well.

Southeastern scored 89 points and picked up two event victories. Gage Pratt won the 200 dash in a new conference meet record time of 21.44 seconds. Pratt's time was six-tenths of a seconds faster than the IHSAA state standard of 22.04, which is significant since the sectional is only two weeks away.

Another athlete looking to peak as the tournament approaches is the Royals' Xan Cluff. He won the pole vault event with a best effort of 13 feet, 6 inches, doing so in windy conditions.

"I think I vaulted pretty well with the wind going," said Cluff. "It was a weird crosswind, at 20 mph, really on and off."

Still, Cluff managed. He said during windy conditions, many vaulters do is "jump in from a shorter step" so that the wind doesn't affect them throughout the entire run.

The Tigers scored 74 points and had two event wins as well. The 4x800 relay team of Jonathon Roth, Alec Foster, Ben Greiwe and Keefer Soehngen won that event in a time of 8:00.69. Soehngen later won the 400 dash in 49.94 seconds, taking the race by 1.39 seconds over second place.

Noblesville placed fifth with 73 points, but had three individual victories. Mac Smith took the 100 dash and also had a personal achievement: He broke 11 seconds for the first time, finishing the race in 10.98 seconds. Afterwards, Smith said he was "very ecstatic" about reaching that goal.

Hamilton Southeastern's Gage Pratt (center) won the 200 dash at the Hoosier Crossroads Conference meet Friday, setting a new meet record time of 21.44 seconds, a time well under the IHSAA state standard. At left is Noblesville's Mac Smith, who won the 100 dash by breaking 11 seconds for the first time.

"I just had to focus on holding that drive phase, really pumping the arms to the finish line," said Smith. "It was tough competition from Brownsburg, which really pushed me, so that was great."

The Millers' distance runners also stepped up. Andrew Anderson won the 800 run in a time of 1:55.56, and Cole Kimmel placed first in the 3200 run at 9:31.10.

Westfield finished third in three events: Kai Connor in the 1600 run, Jonathan Frey in the pole vault and the 4x100 relay team of Jayden Bernavil, Dylan Walker, Frey and Carson Voorhis.

Brownsburg won the team championship by scoring 128 points, with Zionsville the runner-up with 101 points.
