Sheridan cuts ribbon on $10M wastewater upgrade

The REPORTER

Indiana American Water Company, a subsidiary of American Water Company, on Friday joined local and state officials, community leaders and project partners at a ribbon cutting to mark completion of a nearly $10 million upgrade of its wastewater treatment facility in Sheridan.

"The investments we have made in the Sheridan wastewater system since acquiring it in 2018 will enable it to come back into compliance with state and federal regulations and give the town the ability to grow again," said Indiana American Water President Matt Prine. "These improvements will provide significant additional treatment capacity so we can treat wastewater that historically has overflowed or been bypassed into the environment."

The Sheridan wastewater system had received numerous notices of violation of its National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permit over the years following many bypass and overflow events related to limited treatment plant capacity for flows coming to the plant during wet weather.

"Much of the existing wastewater infrastructure in Sheridan was put in place decades ago and was nearing the end of its useful life," said

War of the sunflowers

The line has been crossed. The battle is on.

I see him sitting outside my window. He's staring at me, perched atop the shepherd's hook. I'm trying to drink my coffee and read the newspaper. He is trying to intimidate me. He is quite the strange window peeper. He's been giving me the evil eye.

He is a squirrel.

Over the past few months, he has kept us entertained, climbing the shepherd's hook as if it was his personal trapeze.

You need to understand that our bird-feeder is supposedly "squirrel-proof." Someone has not informed Bushy of that information. Yes, we have named him. He has a huge bushy tail ... thus the name.

Bushy scampers to the top of the shepherd's hook and hangs upside down and stretches to reach the openings of the feeder. We've been feeding him whether we like it or not. I must say he is quite the contortionist.

This little trapeze artist will look through the window and give us the evil eye if the birdfeeder needs filling. Due to the bird virus, we have not been feeding the birds ... or the squirrels.

Masks won't be required for Carmel Clay Schools students

By DEMIE JOHNSON
WISH-TV | wish-tv.com

Children in Carmel Clay Schools won't be required to wear masks in the classroom. On Thursday, just one day after the district's announcement, the Hamilton County Health Department held a virtual town hall to discuss kids and vaccines.

Some parents used the meeting as an opportunity to ask if the health department agreed with the district's decision.

Doctors on the call were quick to say kids should keep the masks on in the classroom.

"It's just a good, polite thing to do. It helps breakthrough cases and everyone is going to do better with it, so I would encourage everyone to wear their mask in school, vaccinated or not," said Dr. Chris Belcher, a pediatric infectious disease specialist who was part of the town hall.

Since most kids aren't eligible for the vaccine yet and with the Delta variant on the rise, doctors say there still needs to be added protection. WISH-TV News 8 talked to one mom before the meeting who is also a nurse.

Tara Gavardinas said if the school district doesn't change the policy, she plans to pull her kids out.

"This virus has a lot of room left to continue to optimize its potency," Gavardinas said. "It will continue to become more and more deadly in all age groups. The only way we get off this roller coaster ride of wave after wave, the only way, is to stop human to human transmission."

She said vaccines, better PPE for all ages, and proper ventilation in buildings would make her feel better about the return to the classroom.

Health education specialist Jim Ginder works for the Hamilton County Health Department and said the health department can only make recommendations to schools.

"So the last executive order that Gov. Holcomb actually released to us stated that that decision goes back to the school board and the local superintendents," said Ginder.

The schools will be open for full-time, in-person learning with no virtual option. If the state changes any recommendations, all schools will have to follow suit.

Day center for adults with disabilities to open in Noblesville

The REPORTER

A day center for adults with disabilities will open in Noblesville this August.

Maureen Ponto, a state-licensed teacher with 15 years of experience and a degree in social science, and her husband David Ponto, a registered nurse with 15 years of experience, will open Grace's Oasis, 9675 E. 148th St., Suite 200, Noblesville.

The center was named after their daughter Grace, who is on the autism spectrum. This day center will fulfill a vital need in Hamilton County, as many families like the Ponto family worry about where their family members will go while the parents work during the day.

According to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, 18.7 percent of the population lives with a disability, and many of those individuals are unable to care for themselves or be left alone during the day. When these young adults age out of the school system, their families are left to worry about who will take care of their family member during the day, or if one parent will have to quit his or her job.

That is why Maureen and David Ponto are so passionate about creating Grace's Oasis. As parents, they envisioned a place where Grace and other adults like her could thrive as she matured, with a compassionate staff who understands their individualized needs and will help them succeed.

Grace's Oasis will have lounge areas, a library/quiet area, a rec/gym area, a movie room, a dining/activity room, music area, art area and more. Mr. and Mrs. Ponto say they hope their facility will be a fun and exciting "oasis" where people like their daughter can have a sanctuary during the day, while giving their loved one's peace of mind.

Where was the first Carnegie Library in Indiana?

The REPORTER

This week in Indiana's history ...

1902 – Dedication ceremonies were held for the Carnegie Library in Crawfordsville. It was the first of 164 libraries in Indiana to be funded by businessman Andrew Carnegie. He built more libraries in Indiana than in any other state. Like many, the Crawfordsville library was started by a local women's organization, the Current Events Club. The Carnegie building in Crawfordsville now serves as the Montgomery County Museum.

1917 – Anna Marie Ridge organized the first group of girl scouts in Marion County. Named Indianapolis Troop 1, the scouts became active in the community. They were awarded a flag for selling bonds during the Liberty Loan drive in World War I. For many years, the troop met at the Presbyterian Church in Irvington.

1931 – The Indiana Railroad System advertised new high-speed electric coaches in service for Central and Northern Indiana. The company offered "swift and luxurious travel" with 15 trains daily between Indianapolis, Anderson, Muncie, Hartford City, Montpelier, Bluffton, and Fort Wayne. Riders could leave Indianapolis at 7 a.m. and arrive in Fort Wayne at 10:45 a.m.

1945 – The USS Indianapolis was torpedoed by a Japanese submarine. Of the 1,196 men aboard, approximately 300 went down with the ship. Those remaining were plunged into shark-infested waters. By the time they were rescued four days later, only 316 were alive.

1959 – A large tent collapsed at the Rush County Fair, trapping about 100 people. In the midst of a searing heat wave, a violent thunderstorm hit the area with 80 mph winds. Most of those caught in the tent suffered only minor injuries, but several were taken to the Rush County Hospital with more serious injuries.

1984 – An Old-Timers Dream Baseball Game heralded the opening of the new Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis. Over 15,000 fans cheered as Joe DiMaggio, Bob Feller, Whitey Ford, Don Larson, Hank Aaron, Ernie Banks, Carl Erskine, Willie Mays, Brooks Robinson and other legendary players took to the field. On the PA microphone was veteran Chicago Cubs broadcaster Jack Brickhouse.

Women4Change discussing how to reduce Indiana's gender pay gap

Submitted by Women4Change Indiana

Across the U.S., women earn less than men, but in Indiana the gap between what women and men earn is even wider than the rest of the country. Indiana's average gender pay gap is 24 percent; the national average is 18 percent.

Women4Change, a non-partisan organization that educates, equips and mobilizes Hoosiers to make positive change for women, is working to reduce Indiana's gender pay gap. As part of this effort, the organization is hosting a virtual event, "Listen, Connect, Participate: Economic Stability," at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, July 28.

Click here to get your ticket for this virtual event. Tickets cost $10, but scholarships are available by emailing haley@women4changeindiana.org.

"Women's economic mobility is one of our four key focus areas," said Rima Shahid, executive director of Women4Change. "That's because the gender pay gap can result in long-term impacts for working women that include lower lifetime earnings, less income for their families, and higher poverty rates."

Panelists for the July 28 event will include:

- State Representative Carolyn B. Jackson, representing District 1 in north-west Indiana
- Alison Bell, Chancellor of WGU Indiana
- Dr. Laura Merrifield Wilson, Assistant Professor of Political Science and Faculty Leader of the Gender Center at the University of Indianapolis

Joy E. Mason, founder of Optimist Business Solutions, will moderate the panel. A certified Six Sigma Black Belt strategist, Mason worked at Eli Lilly and Company for most of her career and then established a company that helps clients in the midst of organization change management and continuous improvement strategies move "from steps to strides" with their Diversity, Equity and Inclusion efforts.

Women4Change is hosting this event in partnership with the National Coalition of 100 Black Women Indianapolis Chapter, Indiana Institute for Working Families, AAUW Indianapolis and AAUW Indiana.

Women4Change hosts quarterly "Listen, Connect, Participate" events on a variety of topics.

Spotted lanternfly found in Indiana

The REPORTER

Spotted lanternfly (Lycorma delicatula) was found in Indiana for the first time in Switzerland County last week, the farthest west the insect has been found. This federally regulated invasive species has a detrimental impact upon plant growth and fruit production, especially in vineyards and orchards.

A homeowner in Vevay contacted DNR's Division of Entomology & Plant Pathology (DEPP) with a picture that was taken outside his home of a fourth instar, or developmental stage, larvae. DEPP staff surveyed the site and discovered an infestation in the woodlot adjacent to a few homes in the area. The site is within two miles of the Ohio River and the Markland Dam. DEPP and USDA are conducting an investigation to determine exactly how large the infestation is and where it could have come from, as well as how to limit the spread and eradicate the population.

Spotted lanternfly is a planthopper that originated in Asia. It was first discovered in the United States in Pennsylvania in 2014. The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture tried to limit the spread of this pest, but it excels at being a hitchhiker and is often spread unknowingly by humans.

Adult spotted lanternfly has two sets of wings, and the underwing has a very distinct red color with spots on the outer wings. The fourth instar of the insect is bright red with black and white markings. The egg masses of this invasive insect look like mud and they can be spread by vehicle transport including recreational vehicles, cargo carriers (truck transport) and freight trains. They can also be spread through trade materials sold in infested areas that are shipped out of state including nursery stock, outdoor furniture, lumber, etc. Anyone receiving goods from the east coast should inspect for signs of the insect, especially if the commodity is to be kept outdoors.

Spotted lanternfly prefers to feed on tree of heaven (Ailanthus altissima), but it has been found on more than 103 species of plant including walnut, oak, maple, and various fruit trees. This insect is often found on grapevines in vineyards. Adult insects have piercing, sucking mouthparts and weaken the plants through feeding on them, which can make it difficult for the plant to survive the winter months. Congregating spotted lanternfly insects produce a sticky substance called "honeydew" in large quantities that over time becomes infested with sooty mold that attracts other pests in the area.

The Indiana DNR is asking for all citizens to keep an eye out for spotted lanternfly. The bright color of both the last instars and the adults of the insect should be present at this time of the year. Anyone that spots signs of the spotted lanternfly should contact DEPP by calling 866-NO EXOTIC (866-663-9684) or send an email to DEPP@dnr.IN.gov.

TODAY’S BIBLE READING

Now this is our boast: Our conscience testifies that we have conducted ourselves in the world, and especially in our relations with you, with integrity and godly sincerity. We have done so, relying not on worldly wisdom but on God’s grace. For we do not write you anything you cannot read or understand. And I hope that, as you have understood us in part, you will come to understand fully that you can boast of us just as we will boast of you in the day of the Lord Jesus.

Olympics swimming

Carmel's Jake Mitchell places 8th in 400 free

The first of Carmel's two swimming Olympians took to the water on Saturday, and he made his way into prime time.

Jake Mitchell made a stunning run into the final of the 400-meter freestyle event Saturday morning at the Tokyo Olympics. Seeded 13th in the semi-finals, Mitchell swam a personal best time of 3:45.38 to place seventh overall, with the top eight advancing to the final and a chance to swim for medals.

Mitchell finished eighth in the final, with a time of 3:45.39, just .01 seconds off his semi-finals time. Mitchell and the other qualifiers swam the finals on Saturday night (Sunday morning in Tokyo) and a large crowd of several hundred people gathered in Carmel's Midtown Plaza to watch on the big screen television.

The gold medal in the 400 free went to Tunisia's Ahmed Hafnaoui. The 18-year-old came from behind to finish first and give his country its first-ever gold medal in that event. Hafnaoui's time was 3:43.36. He qualified eighth in the event and swam from Lane 8, making him only the third swimmer in Olympics history to win gold from that lane.

Carmel's second Olympian, Drew Kibler, will begin his Olympic quest on Tuesday. Kibler will be part of the US men's 4x200 freestyle relay. The American team will swim in the second of two heats at 7:03 a.m. EDT Tuesday morning.

Each heat contains eight teams for a total of 16 competitors. The top eight teams advance to Tuesday night's final, which is set for 11:26 p.m. EDT.

Jim Irsay details Hall of Fame celebration plans for Peyton Manning, Edgerrin James

By CHARLIE CLIFFORD
WISH-TV

Colts owner and COO Jim Irsay is pulling out all of the stops for a two-night Pro Football Hall of Fame celebration next month in Canton, Ohio, for Peyton Manning and Edgerrin James.

The two Colts icons will be enshrined on Aug. 7 and 8, beginning with James on Saturday evening.

On Thursday, Irsay opened up on this incredible feat for the franchise and his honor of presenting James' ahead of his induction speech.

"It's the greatest privilege I think that I could have with the stewardship that I have," Irsay said, "It's just an indicator to me that forging that close relationship and really knowing what great friends we are, how we have each other's backs and how close we really, really are. I mean these guys mean a tremendous amount to me. They lay a lot on the field – their preparation. It's a tough game. They are heroic in what they do and I, like all fans, really look up to all the aspects that these great athletes go through."

As the planning for the afterparties continues, Irsay delivered a preview of the scene once the speeches are done.

"There's never really any limitations I don't think, except how many people can physically fit inside the circus tent that the party is in," Irsay said. "It's just a great time and a great party. It's just really special to see the family and extended family and friends of these people we all love as Colts fans. To see them all there and to see this magical night and to see their grandmother or to see their grandfather, their coach from grade school, to meet their best friend that has been there for them since first grade, it's that type of setting. It's really magical. In life you have those moments and those are the ones you wish that could go on forever."

As for the wish list from Manning and James regarding the parties? Irsay isn't about to be outdone in any department.

"There are no limits, they ask me for this DJ or that DJ and I said fine. I just want to see everyone have a great time. I haven't shut anything down yet. No one has asked me to have the Rolling Stones or U2 play at their party yet, but that could be a negotiation (laughing)."

For Manning and James... forget the bill for this bash.
