

Jackson Township's new office will open in October

Hamilton County Councilman Steve Schwartz recently stopped by to check on the progress of the new Jackson Township office building. A fire destroyed the prior office building on Aug. 22, 2020, and the office is on track to be moved in to the new building by mid-October. According to Township Trustee Robyn Cook, Schwartz is always supportive of what's going on in Jackson Township and always makes himself available to meet with township officials and offer his assistance as county councilman. Above, from left: An employee of Hearn Construction, County Councilman Steve Schwartz, and Jackson Township Trustee Robyn Cook.

Worried? Stressed? Get busy!

Last Saturday I volunteered for the morning shift at Agape Therapeutic Riding Center's Mane Event horse show in Cicero. If you've never been there, by the way, I highly recommend you visit – it's one of the top centers in the country.

If you recall, last weekend was brutally hot, and I was a bit nervous for all of us as we gathered in prayer. Would the riders, their families, the horses, the staff, and volunteers be okay? But I soon pushed away my thoughts and just dove in, helping out wherever and whenever I could. I walked alongside happy kids and teenagers to make sure they were safe on their horses, braided manes, scooped poop, and set up tents. I chatted occasionally with other volunteers and got to know some incredible people.

Gov. Holcomb's executive order loosens Indiana's quarantine rules for schools

By DEMIE JOHNSON
WISH-TV | wistv.com

Indiana is loosening its quarantine rules for schools, and some parents are concerned.

Gov. Eric Holcomb issued a new executive order that keeps districts with mask mandates from having to quarantine.

It says schools and day cares that have mask requirements do not have to quarantine students, teachers and staff who are close contacts and aren't showing symptoms of COVID-19.

Parent Courtney Short isn't sold on the idea.

"I don't want my kids to catch it," Short said. "Like, kids seem to be getting it more and more and my kids aren't even old enough to get the vaccine yet, they're still too young."

However, Holcomb says

keeping kids in classrooms continues to be a priority for the state, and it's up to all Hoosiers to help.

"We can all stay safe if you get vaccinated, and that truly is my appeal is to get vaccinated," Holcomb said. "This is what is interfering with our supply chains. This is what's holding parts of our economy back. This is what's pulling our kids out of school and while we have 3.1 million some who are vaccinated, the balance leaves a lot to spread."

The order also says schools still have to contact trace by notifying their local health department as well as parents, teachers and staff who were exposed to a positive case.

While Short says she doesn't agree with the rule change, she hopes it pushes more schools to implement

Nearly all counties in higher COVID risk levels

WISH-TV | wistv.com

Nearly all Indiana counties are now listed by the state health department in the higher risk categories for COVID-19 spread as severe illnesses are straining hospitals at levels months earlier than last winter's surge.

Gov. Eric Holcomb said a new statewide executive order issued Wednesday won't reinstate any mask mandates or business restrictions even as more schools face COVID-19 outbreaks and Indiana's vaccination rate remains relatively low.

The coronavirus risk ratings updated weekly by the state health department put 13 of Indiana's 92 counties in highest-risk red category, with 75 counties with the next-highest orange rating. Only four counties were in the lower-level yellow category.

Westfield Washington Schools to follow governor's quarantine guidelines

Editor's note: The following statement was released Thursday afternoon.

As you may be aware, yesterday, Governor Eric Holcomb issued an executive order that changes the requirements for quarantines of people considered to be close contacts to a person who has tested positive for COVID-19.

Since our district has a mask mandate in place, starting [today], September 3, anyone identified as a close contact in a masked setting no longer has to quarantine as long as the close contact is symptom-free (click here for more information). We will be contacting families of students who are currently quarantined and eligible to return.

Indiana Hospital Association: Vaccination is "most effective way" to ease hospital burdens

Editor's note: The following statement from Indiana Hospital Association President Brian Tabor was released on Thursday.

We appreciate that the State of Indiana recognizes how strained Indiana hospitals currently are with the Delta variant wave. One region in Southern Indiana has already exceeded its highest number of COVID-19 hospitalizations at any point during the pandemic.

According to Kentucky Governor Andy Beshear, only 115 intensive care unit (ICU) beds were available in the entire state of Kentucky earlier this week.

There is a massive storm cloud of this virus sweeping up through Indiana, and increasing our state's vaccination rate is the most effective way to ease the burden on our courageous health care heroes and ensure a hospital bed for every Hoosier that needs one.

desire to learn.

Signs at each location will direct participants to the conversation locations within each park.

ICPYAS offering suicide prevention training this month

The REPORTER

September is Suicide Prevention Month. To help raise awareness, the Indiana Center for Prevention of Youth Abuse and Suicide (ICPYAS) is offering suicide prevention training free throughout September.

QPR stands for Question, Persuade and Refer – the three simple steps anyone can learn to help save a life from suicide. QPR is not a form of counseling or treatment. Rather, it is intended to offer hope through positive action. By learning QPR you will come to recognize the warning signs, clues and suicidal communications of someone in trouble and gain skills to act vigorously to prevent a possible tragedy. To register, visit indianaprevention.org/events.

“September is always an exciting time around our offices. We have started doing all our Body Safety programs in the Central Indiana schools, we are kicking off Suicide Prevention Awareness Month, and this year we are rolling out a new Suicide Prevention Education program from Middle and High Schools,” said Maggie Owens, Director of Education and Community Relations.

Since 2001, ICPYAS has been providing this life-saving child abuse prevention program to schools. Now mandated in all schools in the state of Indiana, this teaches kids about how to get help if they are in an unsafe situation.

“We have been providing QPR for many years and the requests were often made for something we could implement for the students in the schools for mental health and suicide prevention education,” Owens said. “The program we are offering really meets the students at a developmentally appropriate spot, allows for discussion and questions, with the outcome being that all students will be able to help if a peer, or themselves, are having a difficult time.”

For more information on all the programs

ICPYAS offers as well as how to find ways you can help support them during Suicide Prevention Month and throughout the year, visit indianaprevention.org or send an email to contact@indianaprevention.org.

About Indiana Center for Prevention of Youth Abuse and Suicide

The Indiana Center for Prevention of Youth Abuse & Suicide (ICPYAS) was founded in 2001. ICPYAS works passionately to end youth abuse and suicide through its educational programs. With almost two decades of experience, ICPYAS provides evidence-based programming to educate youth and adults, empowering them to recognize, react and locate the appropriate resources available for help. ICPYAS offers five comprehensive programs that support the organization’s mission as it actively works towards a day when there will be no more abuse or suicide in the lives of Hoosier children.

Carmel Symphony Orchestra joining Beatles tribute band Sunday at Coxhall Gardens

The REPORTER

The Carmel Symphony Orchestra (CSO) will accompany Classical Mystery Tour, a critically acclaimed troupe of musicians, set to perform an extraordinary Beatles musical tribute at 7 p.m. this Sunday, Sept. 5 in The Centerpiece – Coxhall Gardens' stately, outdoor, terraced amphitheater, located at 11677 Towne Road, Carmel.

It was 57 years ago today – Sept. 3, 1964 – the four young Brits who had taken the world by storm appeared in Indianapolis for two performances at the Indiana State Fair: An afternoon show at the Coliseum, and an evening concert in front of the Grandstand. Beatlemania was on full display in the Hoosier state.

Fast-forward to this Sunday, the special, one-concert only appearance, title sponsored by the City of Carmel, marks the first time the highly respected orchestra, led by CSO Artistic Director Janna Hymes, has performed in The Centerpiece.

Classical Mystery Tour is comprised of four accomplished musicians that artistically pay the highest tribute to the Fab Four through their musical stylings and spot-on delivery of not only the iconic band's sound, but their larger-than-life, onstage personas. Their performance includes wardrobe changes that represent the Lads from Liverpool's musical stages through time.

The group is hailed by Broadway World as "the world's best Beatles show with symphony orchestra," while The Los Angeles Times wrote that Classical Mystery Tour elicits "a high goose-bump quotient ... (it's) more than just an incredible simulation ... the crowd stood and bellowed for more!"

General admission is just $25 per person. Bring your own blankets or chairs and enjoy the performance from lawn seating at the park. General admission for children ages 6 and under is free. Additional event and ticket information may be found online at CarmelSymphony.org or by calling (317) 844-9717.

TODAY’S BIBLE READING

By the humility and gentleness of Christ, I appeal to you—I, Paul, who am “timid” when face to face with you, but “bold” toward you when away! I beg you that when I come I may not have to be as bold as I expect to be toward some people who think that we live by the standards of this world. For though we live in the world, we do not wage war as the world does. The weapons we fight with are not the weapons of the world. On the contrary, they have divine power to demolish strongholds. We demolish arguments and every pretension that sets itself up against the knowledge of God, and we take captive every thought to make it obedient to Christ. And we will be ready to punish every act of disobedience, once your obedience is complete.

Tigers score HCC sweep of Millers

The Tiger Den was turned into a block party by the Fishers volleyball team Thursday night.

The Tigers took on Noblesville in a Hoosier Crossroads Conference match, and won by sweeping the Millers 25-19, 25-16, 25-22. All three sets followed mostly the same pattern: Fishers would get an early lead, then hold off several Noblesville comebacks along the way.

For example, in the first set, the Tigers led 17-11 before the Millers ran off five straight points to pull within 17-16. Consecutive blocks by Ella Peter and Aubrey Sticher helped get Noblesville within one point. But Fishers stopped the run and won eight of the next 11 points.

The Tigers dominated the second set, leading 23-11 before the Millers ran off five straight points. Fishers won the last two points to take the set. Noblesville led 2-0 in the third set, but the Tigers scored four straight and never trailed again, although the Millers did tie the set up at 12-12 before Fishers took over for good.

Ava Vickers led the offense with 10 kills, while Carsen Plew hit eight kills. But the story of the match was the Tigers' blocking. Fishers collected 14 blocks for the match, with Vickers making 9.5, an unheard of amount.

"Being stronger at the net is important," said Fishers coach Steven Peek. "It's one thing we've been focusing on. Sometimes, putting up a bad block is worse than not blocking at all, because they can tool you and deflect it and make it hard for our defense to work around the block. It was really cool to see that come to fruition tonight, especially very early. I think it set a great tone very early in the match, that you can't just hit hard at us and wherever you want to, because there's probably going to be a block there. That's great to see."

Adi Amirrezvani and Samantha Perdue both served three aces, with Perdue collecting 10 digs as well. Margo Hernandez dished out 28 assists.

For Noblesville, Sticher had nine kills and two aces, while Diana Cox made 13 digs.

"We got beat by the faster offense," said Millers coach Annie Phillips. She noted that Fishers' setter ran "a very quick and efficient offense," and said that her team has to be able to run that faster offense. Phillips said if Noblesville "can figure out how to run that fast offense and have blockers keep up with the faster offense, that's going to be the key for us."

The Tigers are unbeaten in the HCC at 2-0 and are 5-1 overall. They will play at a tournament at Providence on Saturday. Noblesville is 1-1 in conference play and

Millers beat GC in showdown of top-ranked teams

In a battle of top-ranked boys soccer teams, Class 3A No. 1 Noblesville beat 2A No. 1 Guerin Catholic 5-1 Thursday night at the Millers' Hallmark Orthodontics Soccer Complex.

Noblesville got its first goal in the 28th minute, when Brayden Doll sent a cross to Palmer Ault, who headed the ball into the far post. With under one minute to go in the first half, Jackson Montgomery took the ball, passed to Ault, who sent it to Spencer Holland for the score.

That put the Millers up 2-0, which would be the halftime score. Noblesville quickly added three goals in the second half, starting in the 44th minute when Ault scored off a cross from Noah Bernot for the third goal.

The Millers' fourth goal was scored by Kyle Goad, who put in a pass from Ault. Holland scored the fifth goal, kicking in a cross from Bernot.

Evan Miller scored Guerin Catholic's goal in the 56th minute.

Noblesville is now 7-0-1 for the season and hosts Westfield Tuesday in a Hoosier Crossroads Conference game.

The Golden Eagles are 3-1 and host Bishop Chatard Saturday afternoon in a Circle City Conference girls/boys doubleheader.

HSE star wins two silver medals at 2020 Tokyo Paralympic Games . . .

Malone: "I really cannot ask for more"

Noah Malone, pictured on Sunday, Aug. 29, won two silver medals in his Paralympic debut in Tokyo.

Hamilton Southeastern graduate Noah Malone won his second silver medal of the 2020 Tokyo Paralympic Games on Thursday in the men's T12 400-meter run.

Malone finished in 47.93 seconds, breaking Josiah Jamison's U.S. record of 51.40 seconds set back in 2008. Abdeslam Hili (Morocco) took first place in 47.59 seconds, a new world record, and Rouay Jebabli (Tunisia) placed third in 48.01 seconds.

"It's a huge honor. I really cannot ask for more," Malone said. "I just realized it's taken two world records to beat me each time. It's cool to think about it like that; as my competitors, they had to bring their best."

Jebabli told reporters that he had actually planned for Malone's speed on the track. "We tried to prepare a strategy for this race, especially because the American guy [Malone] is very fast, so I tried to start strongly and keep a steady pace until I managed to win the medal," Jebabli said.

Malone finished his first Paralympic Games with two silver medals. He placed second in Sunday's T12 100-meter dash as well.

"It's a great atmosphere and it's bringing the best out of everyone, me included," he said.

Now, the 19-year-old is preparing to return to school at Indiana State and will keep training for more races ahead. "I'm ready for the worlds next year and the ones after that, then it's Paris [2024 Paralympic Games]," Malone said. "As of now I'm going back to school and try and learn there. But this has been a nice ride, a nice ride."

In 2015, Malone was diagnosed with leber's hereditary optic neuropathy, which eliminated half of his vision. He had to leave his high school basketball team but remained on the track team and began training for the Paralympic games after officials contacted him in 2017.

Colts QB Wentz removed from COVID list, returns to practice

By CHARLIE CLIFFORD
WISH-TV
Blue sky. Low humidity. The return of quarterback Carson Wentz.
On Thursday, picture-perfect conditions awaited the Colts for their afternoon practice session.
September is here, thankfully, after a turbulent August of surgeries and COVID-19 issues that hampered Frank Reich's ability to mesh his offense into the unit he envisions.
On Thursday, Wentz, center Ryan Kelly and wide receiver Zach Pascal were placed back on the active roster following "close contact" tracing that linked to a team staffer who tested positive for COVID-19 this past week.
The NFL mandates unvaccinated players to quarantine for five days in a close contact situation. Vaccinated players are not required to miss any time.
Wentz met with the media after practice and addressed why he remains unvaccinated.

"Trust me, it is a personal decision," Wentz said. "I'm not going to go into depth on why but I will say it's a personal decision for me and my family. I respect everybody else's decision and I just ask that everybody does the same for me. I know that's not the world we live in, not everyone is going to equally view things the same but yeah, no one really knows what's going on in someone else's household and how things are being handled. It's a personal decision. That's just where I'm at on it and with the protocols and everything the way they are, really for us, it's about understanding them clearly and making sure that we are dotting our I's and crossing our T's. All of those things so that we can avoid what happened this week with a couple of us."
Wentz went on to share that his decision whether to get the vaccine remains "fluid" and it is one that "keeps me up at night."
For now, Wentz and pro bowl linebacker Darius Leonard are two of at least a handful of key Colts who have elected to remain unvaccinated.
"Trust me, I've weighed a lot of things," Wentz said. "I've factored in everything and I know what's at stake. I know all those things and like I said, it's where I'm at, where I'm at with my family and that's why - just understanding the protocol. To truly try everything we can to avoid what happened this week. It is what it is whether we agree or not with the pro-

Colts quarterback Carson Wentz was among three players placed back on the active roster following "close contact" tracing that linked to a team staffer who tested positive for COVID-19 this past week.

ocol and the rules, they're in place. So we have to honor them as best as we can so we can avoid what happened."
For Leonard, his reasoning behind being unvaccinated is due to long-term concerns that the 26-year-old still feels he needs answers.
"I think that's a personal decision of mine, Leonard said. "I'm just a down south guy. I want to see more. I want to learn more. I want to get more educated about it. I've just got to think about it. I just don't want to rush into it. I've got to see everything. I'm listening to all the vaccinated guys here. I'm not pro-vax or anti-vax. I've got to learn. When you don't know a lot about something, you've got to educate yourself more about it and you've got to figure out what it is and you've got to make a decision from there."
On the field, barring a setback, Wentz appears ready to start the season opener one week from Sunday against Seattle at Lucas Oil Stadium.
Thursday marked Wentz's first fully padded 11-on-11 work since the Aug. 2 surgery to remove a loose bone fragment in his left foot.
"It felt great to finally get out there in full pads," Wentz said. "Obviously, I was hoping a little earlier this week, but things happen. Felt good to get out there finally with the guys, really, mostly a full squad upfront and everything. Some mistakes, some things to clean up and all that, but I thought it was fun to get out there finally and start getting dialed in for Seattle."
Frank Reich listed Wentz as "limited" on Thursday, with second-year pro Jacob Eason taking the remainder of the first-team reps.
Reich gave the Colts a three-day weekend beginning on Friday to "re-charge" ahead of the grueling 17 game season ahead.
Following practice on Thursday, Reich laid out his plan for Wentz's week of preparation ahead.
"I think it's generally safe to say that if we come in here and Carson (Wentz) is taking most of the reps on Wednesday, the intention is that he's going to play," Reich said. "The only thing that would inhibit that is if all of a sudden Thursday there is some sort of setback. We've got to wait and see. Obviously as we said, this last week was a setback to us. We didn't get the chance for him to get the work that we needed to see. Whatever, you deal with it and you move on. The good news is that if something crazy like that happened and Jacob (Eason) had to step in, he's gotten a ton of reps."
The Colts officially placed T.Y. Hilton on IR (to return) following neck surgery. With no timetable on Hilton's return, Wentz turns to a young stable of wide receivers led by Michael Pittman Jr.
Elsewhere, defensive end Kemoko Turay and offensive lineman Danny Pinter remained sidelined with injuries on Thursday.
