Carmel announces 'Midtown's Got Local newspaper covers Hamilton Talent' vocal competition winners County best

The REPORTER

The winners have been announced from Midtown's Got Talent, which staged its second annual vocal talent competition at Midtown Plaza in Carmel. Playing out over three weekends and including a variety of age and performance categories, Midtown's Got Talent continued to grow in participation and audience attraction.

'We established this competition in 2020 because the COVID-19 pandemic restrictions forced the cancellation of CarmelFest's Got Talent, which was held annually at the July 4th celebration," said Nancy Heck, Director of Community Relations and Economic Development. "While CarmelFest was back this year, we wanted to continue this competition in the fall to give local talent an additional outlet. It was wonderful to see the number of contestants grow this year. Midtown's Got Talent is a unique way to let our local talent hone their skills and have the chance to perform in front of a crowd."

Midtown's Got Talent applications for 2022 will be taken in ler, Lilian Hirschfield the late summer of next year.

S&P Global Ratings raised its long-term rating to 'AAA' from 'AA+' on Hamilton County's existing general obligation bonds (GO) and its lease debt not subject to annual appropriation. At the same time, S&P Global Ratings assigned its 'AAA' long-term rating to the county's 2021 general obligation refunding and project bonds, with a preliminary par amount of $38.61 million. The outlook is stable.

Hamilton County zoning board shuts down only full-time goat yoga operation in Indiana

By RICHARD ESSEX WISH-TV | wishtv.com

Happy Goat Luck Acres was the only full-time goat yoga operation in Indiana, and the owners said they were doing well until the Hamilton County North Board of Zoning Appeals told them to shut down.

Goat yoga first became popular on the West Coast and moved across the country. It's essentially yoga with goats, with the instructor leading a normal class and the goats interacting as they please by climbing onto participates or just mingling around the participants.

Jordan Stevens and her partner started raising goats at their Hamilton County farm a few years ago. When goat yoga gained a following, they provided goats to yoga classes.

Stevens said, "We saw how

A combination of transportation issues and the COVID-19 restrictions forced Stevens and her partner to stay closer to home, so they offered goat yoga at their farm.

The classes were in a small, fenced field on the weekends and occasionally on weekdays. On average, Stevens says, about 20 people signed up to do yoga with a dozen or so goats. She says the classes were going well "We have an independent until they received a notice in August from the zoning board to stop offering the classes at the farm. She says she and her partner were thrown into bureaucratic web of zoning boards and planning commissions.

The issue was is that it is a business that isn't in their allowed business for an agricultural area," Stevens said.

Stevens says the farm is zoned for agriculture, and she thought the goat yoga classes would be a great agri-business.

Her family has owned this land for generations – her grandmother and mother live on separate parcels of the farm. Stevens's goal is to earn a modest income from the classes and stay close to family.

She had planned to only offer the classes six months out of the year. But, in order to continue,

NOBLESVILLE, CARMEL, WESTFIELD, SHERIDAN, HAMILTON HEIGHTS, FISHERS, UNIVERSITY, GUERIN CATHOLIC, HAMILTON SOUTHEASTERN Michaela Headlee seals it with five-foot putt . . .

County players help Team Indianapolis to victory at Yestingsmeier Cup

Displaying steely nerves while dozens of her teammates and competitors watched from a few feet away, Carmel's Michaela Headlee calmly dropped a fivefoot putt to win her Sunday singles match, securing the Yestingsmeier Cup for Team Indianapolis at Evansville Country Club.

The event is a yearly competition pitting 24 of the top junior golfers in Central Indiana against their peers from the Evansville area. Players are paired up with a teammate for two Saturday matches, then all players tee it up for solo headto-head matches on Sunday.

Headlee's putt capped a great day for Hamilton County golfers in the competition. Her younger sister, Maddie, won two of her three matches.

Carmel's Owen Sander won all three of the matches he played during the weekend, prompting his teammates to hand him the Cup to hold for team photos.

University High School's Becky Williams and Hamilton Southeastern's Marissa Spreitzer also won one point each in the important Sunday matches. Carmel's Claire Swathwood was also selected for the team.

The final score of 25-23 marks the second straight win for Team Indianapolis, which now gets to keep the Cup until next year, when a course in Central Indiana will host the event.

On Monday, the Colts celebrated their victory with a little friendly competition. Several members of the blue and white, hit the lanes to support their teammate and Indianapolis native Jack Doyle.

The players laced them up Monday night to participate in the second annual Jack Doyle All-Star Bowl event.

The Cathedral grad and current Colts tight end along with 20 of his teammates competed with fans in a fundraising event benefitting the Dayspring Center, a family emergency shelter that helps homeless families with children in central Indiana.

Doyle and several other Colts spoke about why this cause is so important to them.

Doyle said, "Casey and I just, we just fell in love with the kids and I don't know how you cut it. So, it's great to be back out here after you know last year we had to kind of do a virtual thing and, and the guys always have a lot of fun coming out and supporting this because you know there's a lot of trash talking about who's the best bowler."

Tight end Mo Alie-Cox said, "It's great to come out, give up, give back, and whenever Jack supports something, I've been with him for five years now, so come out and support him and also support the cause.
