Hamilton County Parks gets 129 acres on White River

New land much-needed for further county park development

The REPORTER

A number of factors, organizations, and individuals were involved in the significant transfer of land in Hamilton County by Central Indiana Land Trust, Inc. (CILTI) to Hamilton County Parks and Recreation (HCPR). The transfer will result in the county park department gaining 129 acres of non-developed land, referred to as Burr Oak Bend, which is comprised of land parcels that are adjacent to and near an existing canoe landing the park department currently owns and maintains. The amount of land transferred will permit HCPR to provide increased public access and expanded passive recreation opportunities in and around Riverwood Canoe Landing, located on the banks of White River at 20814 Riverwood Ave., Noblesville. Additionally, the overlapping stewardship objectives of both CILTI and HCPR will ensure the continued preservation and protection of the land in perpetuity. The complex transaction was set in motion 17 years ago

Lady and the Monks

Her name was Lady. The first childhood dog I clearly remember. A Collie. Looked just like TV's Lassie. My Lady. A rural route existence was a lonely one for a little boy, but Lady made me forget all that. She was my best friend. Our summer was spent exploring the southern Indiana countryside and lazily whiling away in the shade shifts until sunset and the flicker of fireflies, just a boy and his dog. Twilight knew no better best friends. Timmy and Lassie had nothing over us. I loved pulling the day's ticks off her nightly, just as Mom did for me. My Lady. One day, Lady went missing. I inquired about her whereabouts. My straight-faced parents informed me that she was taken to the St. Meinrad seminary. They assured me the monks would take good care of Lady. I don't recall being told why Lady was taken to live with the monks. Had she killed a neighbor's chicken? I'm not sure our neighbors even had chickens.

Westfield reveals State Road 32 plan

By CAMILA FERNANDEZ & BRADY GIBSON
WISH-TV | wishtv.com

A new plan will expand State Road 32 to four lanes through much of downtown Westfield. The plan publicly revealed this week would add lanes on State Road 32 from just east of U.S. 31 to just beyond Timberbrook Drive. The project calls for widening other sections of State Road 32 and adding a roundabout at East Street. City leaders cite worsening traffic congestion in downtown Westfield as the reason for the project, which will require moving or demolishing 13 buildings. The current plan calls for keeping at least one lane of traffic open at all times, but project leaders admit they are considering a full shutdown of State Road 32 from Poplar Street to Union Street at some point during construction.

City leaders are accepting public comment on the plan through Feb. 10. Some business owners say although they're excited about the changes they're concerned about its impact on their businesses.

New art gallery opens in Carmel with live paint event by SemperFly Studios to prevent bullying

By DENISE MOE

A packed house enjoyed a night of giving and art on Thursday at Bar Louie, 1111 W. Main St., Carmel. Local fine artist Gavin Goode of SemperFly Studios performed a live painting event and had his art on display throughout the location. SemperFly Studios is a fine art and design company. Goode's specialty is applying fine art to any surface, be it interior or exterior, residential or commercial. Surfaces include wood, concrete, plaster, canvas, vehicles, the human body and steel, which has become a staple of SemperFly because of the degree of difficulty to work on.

Westfield Chief of Staff Todd Burtron to retire after 26 years

The REPORTER

Westfield Mayor Andy Cook announced Friday that Chief of Staff Todd Burtron is retiring after 26 years of service to the city. "Todd is a natural leader and a man of deep faith," Cook said. "He's chosen to put those attributes together and take his skills to the next level as a future attorney. He has served Westfield with distinction and with honor and I am grateful for the many years he has dedicated to our wonderful city." Burtron first served as a firefighter, followed by five years as Westfield fire chief. He was appointed Chief of Staff by Mayor Cook in 2011. In that role, he was instrumental in developing Westfield's Grand Park Sports Campus, negotiated the $91 million sale of the city's water and sewer utilities, implemented a fiscal Sustainability Strategy and helped move city employees to a self-funded insurance program. His retirement from Westfield comes after he was recently accepted to Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law.

The Hyperion Players to present classic drama, The Glass Menagerie

New Hamilton County theatre opens inaugural production Feb. 10-12 with play by Tennessee Williams

The REPORTER

The Hyperion Players, a new community theatre serving Hamilton County, will present Tennessee Williams' award-winning memory play, The Glass Menagerie, Feb. 10-12 at the Ivy Tech Auditorium in Noblesville. A drama of great tenderness, charm, and beauty, The Glass Menagerie is one of the most famous plays of the modern theatre. Set in 1930s St. Louis, the story follows the impoverished Wingfield family: Amanda Wingfield is a faded remnant of Southern gentility who lives with her son, Tom, and her daughter, Laura. Amanda strives to give meaning and direction to her children, though her methods are ineffective and irritating. Tom is driven nearly to distraction by his mother's nagging and seeks escape in alcohol and the world of the movies.

Laura also lives in her illusions. The crux of the action comes when Tom invites a friend to dinner, and the world the Wingfields have striven to create begins to collapse about them. "Through this story, Williams deftly unspools themes of memory, family, and how people look to escape from their everyday realities," said director Ian Hauer. "There's a reason this play is constantly revived by professional and amateur companies alike, and we are thrilled to continue that tradition in Noblesville."

“Parking, infrastructure, and, hopefully, the city can work through those details because they are extremely important,” said Keith Dusko, the owner of Chiba, a Japanese restaurant. “My business is about increasing consideration and not the opposite, so if people are concerned about parking and infrastructure, they might go somewhere else. “There are not enough words to properly express my gratitude to this community,” Burtron said. “Serving for the past 26 years has been such an honor and I am humbled to have been allowed to lead such a dynamic team who have transformed Westfield in so many positive ways.”

Mayor Cook has appointed the current director of the Department of Public Works, Jeremy Lollar, as the new Chief of Staff. Lollar began his career with Westfield in 2005 as a water supervisor and then assistant director before becoming director of public works. Lollar graduated from Indiana Wesleyan University with a Bachelor of Business Administration degree.

“Working with Todd over the last seven years has been a highlight of my professional career,” Lollar said. “He has been an exceptional mentor, leader

It is an incredible honor to be following in his footsteps and I look forward to continuing to advance this community in the direction that he and the mayor have guided us over the last 10 years.”

Burtron’s last day with the city is Feb. 27.

I was born and raised right here in Noblesville. I grew up in a home without domestic violence or assault - it wasn’t something I saw, or even heard about. But when I was introduced to Prevail of Central Indiana, I was shocked by the number of individuals who are affected by domestic violence. In 2018 alone, Prevail helped more than 4,000 clients in Hamilton County (nearly 80 percent of clients are women and children). Domestic violence and abuse are hard topics to discuss, so you don’t often hear about them. But at Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville, we’re breaking the taboo and raising awareness for Prevail, an organization that helps families in Hamilton County.

Fishers sees drop in new positive case rate

The REPORTER

This week, the Fishers Health Department (FHD) has seen a break in the level of new cases with the Omicron variant.

Compared to the previous seven-day period, FHD has seen a 26 percent decrease in new cases in Fishers and a 12 percent decrease across Hamilton County. Statewide, cases have increased 6 percent, but this local data indicates the area might potentially start to see this decrease reflected in hospital and ICU relief.

PARK

installation of a path through the wooded bank area to the river and serviced by a small parking lot off Riverwood Avenue. The original funding CILTI used to purchase the land came from a settlement from the White River fish kill in 1999.

At a later date, Steve Schwartz, now President of the Hamilton County Council, who also serves as the Council's Park Liaison along with his wife Lori, deeded one of the six parcels of land that now comprise what is known as Burr Oak Bend to CILTI, to ensure its proper care for the benefit of the Hamilton County community. That parcel of land was included in the recent transfer.

Another environmentally aware organization involved in the transfer, Friends of Hamilton County Parks, Inc., recognized the benefits of increasing community access to the land, as well. Members on the "Friends" board, learning that use of the canoe landing had far exceeded its capacity during the pandemic, moved to provide a portion of the funding necessary for the land transfer.

"This land transfer is made all the more important, knowing that the Indiana Department of Natural Resources lists Hamilton County as a CRITICAL County – a designation that identifies the county as significantly lacking in parkland, based on the ratio of available park space to the population it should sustain," said Director of Protection Manager, for the roles they played in making this land transfer possible, as well as our visionary elected officials and all of those groups and individuals that supported this important transaction."

HCPR's goal to provide passive recreation to Hamilton County residents, central to its mission, will be achieved by the installation of strategically placed, multi-use trails on the newly acquired land, serviced by a minimum of access points that accommodate a limited number of users' vehicles.

No timeline has been set for trail development at this time. Stice anticipates that, when completed, the trails will be used and enjoyed for wildlife viewing, photography, nature education programming, running, walking and a host of other quiet recreation activities, for years to come.

Perhaps I am mixing that up with a Lassie episode. Seems like chickens were always dying on that show, with Lassie catching the blame before proving her innocence by the closing credits.

At the time, I would've preferred that Lady had been taken to "the farm" that I had always heard about. It seemed a better place for a dog, especially since I knew a lot of kids whose dogs had been taken there. I imagined a farm with tons of relocated dogs playing with one another. Never a lonely day on a dog farm. What a lovely thought.

My straight-faced parents told me maybe we could visit her sometime, but that never happened. Apparently, monks needed a lot of quiet time and seldom were allowed visitors. At least Lady was in a place where she was undeniably safe and loved.

Lady had successors, each outdoor dog meeting its violent demise. Rural routes can be tough on dogs. Patches was hit by a car, a little lifeless lump of white fur that I spotted in a snowy ditch. Barney met her tragic end in a neighbor's barn while giving birth to her final litter of pups. Barney had popped out so many litters in her lifetime that she should've been in the Guinness Book of World Records. (My Aunt Carol, knowing we were heartbroken about Patches, found Barney for us. She told us Barney was a male. Aunt Carol was a nurse. We trusted she knew the difference between male and female dogs. But then the pups started popping out of our new dog. Much to our surprise, Barney was really a Bernice. Still, we stuck with the Barney name.) Schooner was another roadside casualty, as was Captain, as was Jack.

But Lady. She was something special. I never had to deal with the death of Lady. She was protected by monks – a surety always carried within my heart. Nothing bad could happen to her out there with God's people in a land so special it was named after a saint. She was in heaven before she was in heaven. A lovely thought.

Fast forward to 2012. I was 48. To celebrate my folks' 50-year wedding anniversary, I decided to gift them with a professional photo session using the bucolic seminary as a backdrop.

As we crossed the seminary's campus, I recalled Lady. I hadn't thought about her in decades. Finally, after all these years, my parents and I actually visited the seminary grounds together for the first time. I said to them, "Hey, I wonder if Lady is still here."

I knew there was no way that Lady could still be alive. Still, it was a comforting thought.

My parents stopped dead in their tracks. They looked at each other without saying a word. After 50 years of living together, I'm sure telepathy came easily for them. They finally looked at me.

"What did you say?" Dad asked.

"You guys brought Lady out here to live."

"We didn't bring Lady here," Mom said.

"Lady and the monks," I said.

"We didn't bring a dog here," Dad said.

"Lady and the monks," I said again. They were getting up there in years. Obviously, their fading memories needed a jump-start.

They looked at each other again. They both smiled, as if freed from the burden of an ancient lie.

"Lady and the monks?" I persisted.

"We didn't bring Lady here."

"My God. All my life I believed Lady was here."

I recalled Mom telling me about the pet bunnies she and her siblings always got as gifts on Easter. How they were the cutest things. How they would mysteriously vanish after a few months. How fried rabbit was served for dinner the day after each disappearance. This vicious cycle went on for years.

"What the hell happened to Lady?"

I braced myself for an awful truth. She was run over. Shot by a chicken farmer. Fell down a well. My God, did we eat Lady for dinner?

Mom started to relay the bad news, but Dad butted in. "We took Lady to the farm."

It took a few seconds to process the news. "Thank God," I said. "I was scared something bad had happened to my Lady."

Carmel's unemployment rate drops to 0.7% in December

The REPORTER

The Indiana Department of Workforce Development released labor statistics for cities, towns and counties in Indiana this week and Carmel once again saw a drop in its unemployment rate. The rate for December 2021 was 0.7 percent, which is lower than November's 1.2 percent and October's 1.6 percent.

The State of Indiana's unemployment rate is 2.7 percent while the national rate is 3.9 percent. Both of those are seasonally adjusted.

Carmel's unemployment rate is tied with West Lafayette as having the lowest among any legally classified city (i.e., not a "town") in Indiana with a population of at least 25,000.

This news is a positive indication of the success that Carmel has had in attracting highly educated residents who are able to fill high-wage jobs created by the city's 130-plus corporate headquarters and other local business employers.

"Our local economy is strong, and it is good to start the new year off with numbers that show we are still on the right path of building a city with a high quality of life that can attract the professionals – young and old – who are able to fill the thousands of jobs created by our growing corporate community," said Mayor Jim Brainard. "Recent Census Bureau statistics show that more than 70 percent of our residents have a bachelor's degree or higher, and that is why Carmel is the perfect place for corporations to establish their operations here and take advantage of a workforce that can help them grow and be successful."

We all have something in common with Olympians: The need for flexibility!

"Make it so..." – Captain Jean-Luc Picard, Starship Enterprise

The Winter Olympics are on the horizon! And while I do not catch every sport, there are several that I will not miss seeing: figure skating, Alpine skiing, luge, and curling, to name a few! While I have certainly never been (nor have most of you I am assuming!) the caliber of an Olympic athlete, we actually do have something in common with them if we are serious about our exercise and activity level.

What do we have in common with Olympic athletes as well as top-tier athletes in every sport? The need for FLEXIBILITY! Yes, stretching before any physical activity is part of every athlete's regimen AND should be part of our daily schedule as well. Whether you are a 16-year-old tennis player, an 80-year-old golfer, or anyone in between, proper stretching will enable you to perform better and most importantly to avoid injury. In particular, as we age stretching becomes even more important to ward off age-related stiffness and to promote coordination and balance.

Many of you readers may take a regular yoga class or use DVDs, etc., and that is great. And some of you readers may be somewhat intimidated by imagining yourself in a yoga class, and I understand – yoga is not for everyone. However, we can all increase our flexibility with some level of participation in a regular stretching routine. If you have issues with your back, knees, or hips – or know that you have low bone density – you should look for well-trained teachers who provide alternative poses and options. Please remember that not all teachers are trained to do this. Modifications are very important as we are all different and no class or program is "one size fits all." In particular, avoid strenuous twists and bending from the hips if you have osteoporosis. And, please, be sure to check with your physician to find out if any movements are contraindicated for your situation.

A well-trained and certified teacher will include modifications as well as a mix of movement and will incorporate proper breathing techniques – in which most of us are deficient. Deep breathwork will enable you to get the oxygen to those brain cells to better focus, minimize pain, and even sleep better!

Incorporating a stretching and flexibility routine does not have to be time consuming. In just 10 to 20 minutes a day with proper stretching techniques you can reap great benefits for your body and mind. Whether you take a class in person or online, use a DVD, or just fit into your day where and when you can, make flexibility a goal which will enrich your life and help you to avoid injury. As Captain Picard said, "Make it so..." AND "Execute" – so begin your stretching routine today!

Letter to the Editor

Weingarten: Much like politicians, House 1134 lacks all common sense

Dear Editor:

House Bill 1134 opens the door to end education and turn schools into political machines depending who is in power.

Right now, it bans “divisive concepts” that starts to include almost everything if someone objects.

It requires teachers to post materials on a website for parents to inspect.

They can then object to anything they feel is uncomfortable. Based on our current political divisive trend no matter what I say someone will find it psychologically distressful and then can sue the school if they don’t remove it.

I believe our schools should teach about the Holocaust, but I am certain someone who is anti-Semitic will object. Someone will object to what every President did during their term in office; OK, remove all history about Presidents. What’s next? Everything.

It also allows the Secretary of Education revoke a license if a teacher, principal or superintendent or other employee violates the law. This in the long run would allow a political party in power to get rid of any teacher from the other party. Sounds a lot like communism. Oh no, I would be fired for saying that.

This bill is totally ill-conceived to fix something that is not broken. It totally lacks something our current politicians seem to be lacking: common sense.

Drug treatment services say opioid settlement bill improves flexibility

By GARRETT BERGQUIST
WISH-TV | wishtv.com

Drug abuse treatment advocates said Friday they hope some cities reconsider their plans to opt out of the opioid settlement.

Indiana is supposed to receive up to $507 million from the $26 billion settlement with opioid manufacturers that was concluded last summer. State lawmakers approved legislation that would send 70 percent of the total into the state's coffers for the sole purpose of funding opioid addiction treatment and prevention programs. A number of Indiana cities have since opted out of the agreement, instead pursuing their own lawsuits. This reduced the money Indiana could receive from the settlement.

On Wednesday, in an effort to bring those cities back into the fold, the Indiana House unanimously approved a fix. Under the bill, 35 percent of the settlement money would go to cities, towns and counties to fund their treatment programs.

The move heartened advocates, including Brandon George, the Indiana Addiction Issues Coalition director. He said grants are the primary source of funding for drug abuse treatment programs in Indiana, and organizations that provide such services must re-apply for grants every year. George said the settlement money will provide a steady flow of funding for some 10 to 15 years.

"This bill looks like it's really going to get help get the cities, towns and municipalities back to the table," George said, "which will ensure that Indiana can get as much money as possible out of the settlement, and that is by far the No. 1 concern."

Natasha Newcomb, deputy chief of addiction services for Hamilton Center in Terre Haute, said her case workers are seeing more people with opioid addictions than ever. She said

Hamilton Center provides services in 11 counties, including an opioid program in Plainfield, and each of those counties has a different set of needs.

"Maybe they need more outpatient substance abuse treatment in that county, (then) we will work to get a provider to be able to provide that service," Newcomb said. "We really work to be a support for the communities that we serve. If they have an identified need, we do what we can to fill that need."

Newcomb said giving local officials more access to the settlement money is a smart move because local officials know where the service gaps are and which areas have been hit the hardest. She said letting those officials opt back into the settlement means her organization could afford to start more programs.

George said the key with any legislation related to the opioid settlement is to ensure money goes to opioid addiction services. He said advocates want to avoid a repeat of the 1998 Tobacco Master Settlement Agreement. Funding from that agreement was supposed to cover tobacco prevention and cessation programs but, in many cases, went to other uses, such as economic redevelopment in historically tobacco-dependent areas.

George said the bill the House approved would keep the settlement money focused on addiction services. He said he hopes the Senate keeps it that way.

2022 Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act report sent to Congress

Report shows failures to deliver parity in mental health, substance-use disorder benefits

The REPORTER

The Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services and the Treasury on Tuesday issued their 2022 Report to Congress on the Paul Wellstone and Pete Domenici Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act of 2008 (MHPAEA).

The report includes information that suggests health plans and health insurance issuers are failing to deliver parity for mental health and substance-use disorder benefits to those they cover. The report also highlights the departments' recent emphasis on greater MHPAEA enforcement in addition to guidance to correct those failures and makes recommendations to strengthen MHPAEA's consumer protections and enhance the departments' enforcement abilities.

In general, MHPAEA requires that the financial requirements and treatment limitations – such as copayments and prior authorization requirements imposed by a group health plan or health insurance issuer on mental health or substance-use disorder benefits – cannot be more restrictive than the predominant financial requirements and treatment limitations that apply to substantially all medical and surgical benefits. The report cites specific examples of health plans and health insurance issuers failing to ensure parity. For example, a health insurance issuer covered nutritional counseling for medical conditions like diabetes, but not for mental health conditions such as anorexia nervosa, bulimia nervosa and binge-eating disorder.

"The report's findings clearly indicate that health plans and insurance companies are falling short of providing parity in mental health and substance-use disorder benefits, at a time when those benefits are needed like never before," said U.S. Secretary of Labor Marty Walsh. "The pandemic is having a negative impact on the mental health of people in the U.S. and driving a rise in substance use. As a person in recovery, I know firsthand how important access to mental health and substance-use disorder treatment is. Enforcement of this law is a top priority for the Department of Labor and an objective I take personally."

"Access to mental and behavioral health support is critical as the COVID-19 pandemic continues to impact so many lives across the country," said U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services Xavier Becerra. "Unfortunately, as today's report shows, health plans and insurance companies are falling short of providing access to the treatment many working families need. We are committed to working with our federal partners to change this and hold health plans and insurance companies accountable for delivering more comprehensive care."

The Department of Labor's Employee Benefits Security Administration is taking unprecedented steps to enforce the law and to ensure that the agency is using its full authority to facilitate access to mental health and substance-use disorder treatment. Similarly, HHS through its Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services has increased its MHPAEA enforcement activities in the individual and fully insured group markets in states where CMS has enforcement authority and over non-Federal governmental plans in all states.

"In the past year, the Employee Benefits Security Administration has placed great emphasis on ensuring parity for mental health and substance use disorder benefits," said Acting Assistant Secretary for Employee Benefits Security Ali Khawar. "As we continue to strengthen and build on these efforts through regulation, enforcement and compliance assistance, EBSA is determined to deliver on the law's promise."

The report outlines the departments' efforts to interpret, implement and enforce the amendments to MHPAEA made by the Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2021. The act provided the departments with an important new MHPAEA enforcement tool and additional funding to implement it. The law also requires the departments to report findings under this new provision annually. Tuesday's issuance is the first report under this requirement.

The report also details the departments' ongoing efforts to engage with stakeholders to reduce stigma that individuals with mental health conditions or substance-use disorders often face and raise awareness amongst stakeholders of these vital protections.

A fiscal year 2021 MHPAEA enforcement fact sheet is being issued with the 2022 MHPAEA Report to Congress. This fact sheet highlights EBSA's landmark settlement against United Behavioral Health, as well as other enforcement data and significant results from MHPAEA investigations closed by EBSA and CMS in fiscal year 2021.

EBSA has primary enforcement jurisdiction over MHPAEA for approximately two million health plans covering roughly 136 million Americans. CMS has enforcement jurisdiction over MHPAEA in the individual and fully insured group markets in states where it has enforcement authority and over non-federal governmental group health plans, such as plans sponsored by state and local governments for their employees.

Hot-shooting Millers win over HSE

By RICHIE HALL

NOBLESVILLE - There are some nights when a basketball team can't miss, and Noblesville's boys had a night like that on Friday.

With a nice-sized crowd cheering them on, the Millers put together a great shooting performance during their all-county and Hoosier Crossroads Conference game with Hamilton Southeastern at The Mill. Noblesville beat the Royals 74-65, and are now sitting in a three-way tie for second place in the conference with a 3-2 record.

"All those HCC game are tough," said said Millers coach Scott McClelland. "There's no easy ones."

Southeastern got off to a good start, leading 6-2 within the first couple minutes of the game. Sam Jacobs, Donovan Hamilton and Reph Stevenson each scored baskets for the Royals.

Then Luke Almodovar took over. The junior made a 3-pointer and followed that with a layin to put Noblesville ahead 7-6. Jacobs answered that with a layin, but then the Millers went on a quick 8-0 run. E.J. Smith hit two 3s, with Aaron Fine making a layin in between. Noblesville led 15-8 and would not trail again.

The Millers were up 19-15 at the end of the first quarter. Noblesville slowly increased its lead throughout the second period; a basket from Cooper Bean and a 3 by Fine pushed the Millers ahead 29-19 late in the quarter. Later, Smith drained a long 3 to give Noblesville a 34-23 advantage.

Hamilton's putback kept Southeastern within 34-25 at halftime. The second half began with five quick points from Bean, a triple and a basket off a steal, and the Millers were suddenly up 39-25.

"I thought we played better, certainly better than Tuesday night," said McClelland. "I still think this group's got plenty of room to grow."

Two free throws by Tyler Lacy cut Noblesville's lead to 43-35 with 3:53 left in the third, but the Millers went on a 9-0 spurt to reach their largest advantage of the game at 52-35. Fine and Smith made baskets, Almodovar was good on a three-point play, and Bean finished up the run with a dunk.

Southeastern kept battling, with Stevenson leading the charge in the fourth quarter.

Reporter photos by Kent Graham

Noblesville led 54-42 going into the fourth, and was up 56-44 early on. Stevenson then went on a personal 7-0 run - a basket, an and-one and two free throws - to get the Royals within 56-51.

But the Millers again used a quick spurt to get out of trouble, this one a 10-2 run. Bean's three-point play with 3:04 left gave Noblesville a 66-53 lead with 3:04 left, and the Millers were able to hang on.

"Tough game, but we had some different kids step up, make some shots," said McClelland.

Extreme spirit carries Pacers to overtime win at OKC

By BRENDAN ROURKE
Courtesy nba.com/pacers

Looking to brush off a tough loss, the Pacers traveled to Oklahoma City to play the Thunder for the first time this season.

Showing extreme spirit, Indiana fought through its miscues, scratching and clawing for every extra point and board possible. In the end, the effort paid off. The Blue & Gold defeated the Thunder, 113-110 in overtime.

"It was a night of many frustrations," Rick Carlisle said. "But in the end, it was a night of great joy because of how the guys stuck to it, and stuck together."

Indiana (18-32) trailed by as many as 16 in the third quarter before climbing back. In the extra frame, Luguentz Dort knocked in back-to-back threes to give Oklahoma City (14-34) a 108-102 lead. However, Jeremy Lamb, Domantas Sabonis, and Justin Holiday contributed to the gutsy comeback.

Lamb started with five straight. Then, Sabonis fought for three consecutive offensive boards to earn a tough putback. Finally, Holiday pushed Indiana ahead with a steal-and-finish. The iron man also put the game on ice at the free-throw line.

The trio led the squad on an otherwise off-shooting night. Sabonis tallied a monstrous 24-point, 18-rebound, 10-assist triple-double. Holiday added 22 points on 8-of-12 shooting and five boards, and Lamb recorded a bench-high 14 points. Dort had a game-high 27 for Oklahoma City.

"I'm proud of the whole team," Sabonis said. "We were down three times in the game big. Just to come back and keep fighting...Caris (LeVert) and Jeremy Lamb late were big time. Very clutch."

The Pacers started solidly on the offensive end, finding spaces in the paint. Tied at four, the Blue & Gold mounted a 9-3 run that elicited the Thunder's first timeout. Sabonis and Holiday teamed up for the early highlight. The big man fired a bounce pass through two defenders to his wingman for a reverse dunk with 7:56 to play.

However, the Thunder began capitalizing on numerous Pacer turnovers. Rookie sensation Josh Giddey tallied two buckets and an assist on an 8-0 Thunder run that earned an 18-15 lead with 3:22 left.

Down the stretch, the squads remained in close combat. Lance Stephenson provided a spark with four points, while Lamb and Oshae Brissett did damage from deep. Brissett's triple with 15.6 seconds to go set up the Pacers for a halftime lead. But, Mike Muscala retaliated with 1.6 seconds to spare to give the hosts a 30-29 edge.

A low-scoring start to the second produced a 34-34 tie until Sabonis banked in a layup at the 7:11 mark. Before that, the lone offense came from two-way player Terry Taylor. The rookie forward battled for two quick buckets in the paint.

A Holiday trey pushed Indiana's lead to five. However, a 12-3 Thunder run – seven from Darius Bazley – gave the hosts a 46-42 advantage with 3:25 remaining.

The Blue & Gold battled back to tie the score at 48. But, Shai Gilgeous-Alexander knocked in four straight to push the Thunder ahead again. The hosts led 54-51 at halftime.

Out of the break, the Thunder ignited. The Thunder knocked in eight unanswered in the first 1:25 of the quarter, extending their lead to 11. Muscala and Tre Mann anchored the run with a pair of threes.

A timeout did not invoke a rebuttal. The Thunder stretched their lead to as many as 15 before Duarte stopped the run at the 7:36 mark. His 3-point dart from the right side provided the first Pacers points of the frame. The squad tallied just three more points over the next three minutes.

Yet, the defense kept Oklahoma City from expanding the margin. Finally, Taylor and Brissett found points to cut the Thunder's lead to 70-61 with 3:38 left.

From there, the Pacers scratched and clawed their way back into it. Using free throws and toughness in the paint, the squad trimmed the deficit to 74-70 with 1:39 to play. On one sequence, Indiana battled for four offensive rebounds – two by Brissett – to earn a tough bucket.

However, the three-ball favored Oklahoma City as the quarter closed. Triples from Ty Jerome and Kenrich Williams negated late three-point plays from Sabonis and Lamb. The Thunder claimed an 80-73 edge after three quarters.

Indiana started seeing shots fall to begin the fourth. Using treys from Holiday and Brissett, the squad rattled off an 8-2 run to cut the gap to 82-81 with 9:20 remaining.

At the 8:43 mark, Sabonis muscled the rock away from his defenders and flipped in a hook shot to give Indiana a one-point lead.

But Jerome tallied five unanswered to flip the script once more.

Indiana cut the deficit to one, twice, but the Thunder held on for a spell. Finally, with 4:25 to play, Caris LeVert knocked in a three – his first – to give the Pacers a 94-91 advantage.

The Thunder retaliated with an 8-2 run to take a 100-96 lead. But, Indiana battled back again. Sabonis hauled in an offensive board for a putback to tie the game at 100 with 55.6 seconds to go.

Thanks to two more offensive boards, the Pacers had two chances to seal the win. But, Lamb and LeVert came up short on their shot attempts. The squads headed to overtime.

After trading baskets, Dort pushed the Thunder in front with a three. When Indiana misfired, he added another. Oklahoma City led 108-102 as Rick Carlisle called a timeout with 2:27 to play.

After Lamb's five, Sabonis' gutsy put-back, and Holiday's game-changing steal, Indiana held a 111-110 lead with 40.8 seconds remaining.

After a Thunder timeout, a wild sequence of events occurred. Mann missed a floater, and Brissett hauled in the rebound. But Indiana had trouble getting the ball over halfcourt. Throwing up a prayer, Mann picked off the pass. Oklahoma City had two chances at the rim but somehow came up empty.

"Sometimes, you get rewarded when you play hard and play together," Holiday laughed.
