Don McLean celebrates 50th anniversary of “American Pie”

Reporter scores interview with legendary rocker

By EMMA QUASNY
emma@readthereporter.com

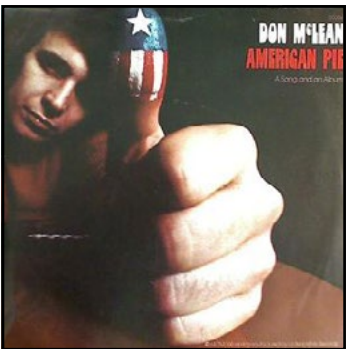

American singer-song-writer Don McLean is back on tour after 18 months of absence. His 2022 American Pie 50th Anniversary Tour is the first time he will hit the stage since the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic. This year marks the 50th anniversary from when “American Pie” landed on the No. 1 spot on the Billboard Hot 100.

The Reporter had the privilege of speaking with McLean on April 18 about his chart-topping legendary hit, as well as his upcoming tour across North America.

American Pie, released in 1971, was McLean’s second album, and the title track sported a running time of eight-and-a-half minutes. According to McLean, the original single of “American Pie,” with a running time of three minutes, instantly became a hit and led to the eight-minute song holding the No. 1 spot on the Billboard Hot 100 song in terms of its running time from 1972 until last year. In 2021, Taylor Swift passed “American Pie” with her 10-minute song “All Too Well (Taylor’s Version).” When McLean originally released the single, he did not expect it to become popular. “I was virtually unknown, so the likelihood of having what happened to me happen was next to zero in terms of statistical probabilities for a whole lot of reasons,” McLean said. “I thought it would just be one more song that I sent, but it turned into one of the most iconic songs of my career.”

I wish I could write like her. Erma Bombeck or Fannie Flagg or Shauna Niequest or Ann Voskamp. They are my mentors.

These ladies can paint a picture with their words that take my breath away. In celebration of their writing, I reread their words and feel the same feels again. They have me gasping for breath as I laugh so hard as well as having to cross my legs to keep from . . . well, you know. A few pages later, I am wiping tears as their words grab hold of my heart and I mourn the loss of a new friend I found in the beginning chapters. A gifted writer takes you there.

Introducing Fishers Committee on Disability

Mayor Fadness appoints nine members to newly codified committee

The REPORTER

The City of Fishers has announced the nine Mayoral-appointed members of the newly codified Fishers Advisory Committee on Disability.

The committee will further assist the city’s efforts of becoming a community where persons of all abilities are recognized as a key component to the city’s vibrancy; where persons with disabilities are recognized as vital members of the community; and to establish priorities and strategies to address the various challenges and needs facing the disability community.

The committee is charged with providing strategic direction and guidance of the annual March Disability Awareness Month celebration and the Fishers ADA Transition Plan, along with providing feedback on the city’s current services, policies, and practices. The committee will also work in partnership with local area employers and community partners to increase employment and meaningful work opportunities of people with intellectual and developmental disabilities in the city.

The Fishers Advisory Committee on Disability met for the first time in this new capacity on April 14, where Cecilia Coble and Kelly Hartman were elected Co-Chairs for 2022-2023. The committee also approved funding for an Accessible Housing Study to be completed later this year.

Northern Chamber creates new program to foster entrepreneurship

The REPORTER

The Northern Hamilton County Chamber of Commerce (NHCCOC) has created an entrepreneurship program called BYOBoss.

“We have seen a growing interest in secondary and post-secondary students operating their own business, and our Chamber can help,” NHCCOC Board President Liz Nelson said.

The Chamber plans to offer an entrepreneur experience-based course to educate the participants on how to identify and develop opportunities; how to take them to market; and how to operationalize them. The course plans to teach the concepts of defining and taking meaningful, intentional action, and then adjust based on results.

The course will be taught over five weeks with meetings once a week.

The sessions are geared towards teams of two working together, as it usually takes more than one person to get a business

Reporter helps non-profit help local youth in need

The REPORTER

The Chris Center, 1721 Wood Valley Drive, Carmel, recently added an alpaca program to its list of ways to help teens find emotional wellness.

While working on an article about the Alpaca Adventure Program early this month, the Reporter learned that there was a need for financial assistance for some young people who would benefit from the program but could not afford it. Hamilton County’s Hometown Newspaper stepped up and provided scholarship money so more youths can get help when struggling with mental and emotional wellbeing.

The Reporter’s contribution will pay for several students to attend programs this spring, summer and fall. If you would also

Richardson, Wiles tapped to lead Noblesville Bicentennial Committee

The REPORTER

The City of Noblesville has created a committee to plan the city’s Bicentennial Celebration in 2023, the 200th anniversary of Noblesville being platted.

Noblesville Mayor Chris Jensen has appointed Bret Richardson and Megan Wiles to serve as the honorary chairs of the Noblesville Bicentennial Committee. The two will oversee the planning and programming of the celebration, while residents will help provide input and volunteer at the events.

“The goal is to showcase 200 years of community contributions, achievements and milestones,” Jensen said. “We aim to encourage the widest possible involvement of the people of Noblesville in the Bicentennial celebration, so that all citizens feel a sense of participation and civic pride in the commemoration of our rich history and bright future.”

Bret Richardson is a sixth-generation Noblesville native and his family history in the area dates back to 1821 when his great, great, great-grandfather moved to the area before Hamilton County and the city were formed.

He and his wife, Tammy, live in a home on Logan Street in the historical district built by his great-aunt, Cory Heylmann, who was in the buggy and wagon business in downtown Noblesville in the early 1900s.

Richardson is semi-retired and owns two buildings on the historic square. In his free time, he serves

This week, I was reminded of Erma Bombeck by my friend and fellow gal author, Donna Cronk. Erma could take the most mundane story and turn it into a laugh-fest that would be envied by the writers of any modern-day comedy. She could tell a story that you would remember and each time you remembered it, you would laugh again. That talent is no laughing matter.

Fannie Flagg wrote the book, Fried Green Tomatoes, which has been made into my favorite movie. Fannie gave a voice to her characters like no other writer. Fannie is truly gifted with sarcastic wit and the ability to capture feelings and put them into words that keep me wanting more. Her ability to get rid of an evil character in a way that I never saw coming makes her a brilliant writer. How does such a sweet southern lady know the “recipe” to get rid of any evidence? Let’s just say the “secret” is in the sauce.

Shauna Niequist’s heart knows my heart quite well, yet they have never met. Her newest book, I Guess I Haven’t Learned That Yet, just arrived on my porch. I savor her words in every book she has written. She writes of always waiting for the big moments and missing out on the ones she should be celebrating. Shauna teaches how to celebrate each day. She welcomes me, with her words, to her table where her words lavish me with the wonders of the ordinary. She keeps me wanting to pull up a chair at her table and enjoy what her writing has to say.

Ann Voskamp’s writing refreshes my weary soul. She understands the clutter of life. She sees beyond the need to do what is expected to relish in doing what is needed. She writes with such insight and wisdom. Her words tell me to look for God in ways I did not expect. It leaves me wondering what I have missed as God brushed by me, ever so quietly, while I was looking for the grand entrance with pomp and circumstance.

While I will never write like these amazing women, I still must write. My soul has the need to express how it feels. My heart has words to say that I cannot hold back from saying. Writing from my heart is what I do. It’s what I will continue to do. Someday, when I take my last breath, the words will stop. Until then, my heart will always have something to say.

Thank you for reading my words.

McLEAN

Now McLean has been on over 10 world tours and featured in many media related aspects.

Although it has been over a year since McLean performed live, he has used his time to work on personal projects and rejuvenate from the last 50 years.

“The first year of the pandemic I really enjoyed that because I didn’t have to catch a plane and didn’t have to travel anywhere, so it was really nice to sort of sit back,” McLean said. “[The] second year, by that time, I started getting into doing a whole lot of things that I’d wanted to do for a long time.”

During this time McLean worked on a children’s book, American Pie: A Fable, that integrates themes from the song along with experiences from his early life. Along with publishing a book, he is currently filming a documentary that will explain how “American Pie” came to be a hit song and the meaning behind it.

McLean and his team ultimately decided to go back on tour because of the 50th anniversary of “American Pie” and the worldwide hit it became.

“The song has sold millions and millions of copies around the world, so millions and millions of people know all those 10 songs and many more,” McLean said. “It gave me a repertoire and a basis for touring the world which I did, and I am doing right now.”

McLean will tour throughout North America and Europe until November. He says he is thrilled to be back on the road doing what he loves.

“I feel normal again ... I feel totally like I did before,” McLean said. “I feel better physically, and I have energy ... I have plans and I’m doing things.”

As for the future, McLean is moving ahead one step at a time. He continues to write songs and bring attention to his music by making media appearances.

“The future takes care of itself if you take care of today,” McLean said. “I just put one foot in front of the other and soldier on. I have a lot of things to do, and I just do them one at a time rather than think about the future”

I was born and raised right here in Noblesville. I grew up in a home without domestic violence or assault - it wasn't something I saw, or even heard about. But when I was introduced to Prevail of Central Indiana, I was shocked by the number of individuals who are affected by domestic violence. In 2018 alone, Prevail helped more than 4,000 clients in Hamilton County (nearly 80 percent of clients are women and children). Domestic violence and abuse are hard topics to discuss, so you don't often hear about them. But at Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville, we're breaking the taboo and raising awareness for Prevail, an organization that helps families in Hamilton County.

In her role on the committee, she will work closely with city employees and committee members to identify projects related to the city's infrastructure. She will also spearhead those working on a solution for accessible transportation.

Oldham and her subcommittee are excited about the current pilot program for driverless transportation among many other initiatives set to increase the freedom of mobility for residents with disabilities. Her motto is, "I don't have a Bucket List. I have a To Do List for others."

Oldham says she believes the Fishers Advisory Committee is on the verge of some fantastic projects and opportunities that showcase Fishers as a model for inclusion.

Do you want to be a Christian and a Christian alone?

As a country, state and county we will soon enter into another contentious political season. Are you a Democratic, Republican, Libertarian or unattached? To whom do you give your allegiance? What determines your political allegiance? Rest easy this is not a political ad nor is it intended to promote any party or candidate. I want us to think for a moment about what brings us to that conclusion.

When we consider our religious affiliation, what leads us to make that decision? This decision is far more significant than making a commitment to a political party or candidate. If God is who He says He is and Jesus is His Son, it behooves us to surrender and submit to Him and Him alone! God will not accept divided devotion and thus we would call on all men to worship Him and Him alone. Repeatedly in the Old Testament, we read of commands to worship Him and Him alone. Enshrined in the Law was the command to "worship no other god, for the LORD, whose name is Jealous, is a jealous God" (Exodus 34:14). Paul warned of the danger of provoking God to jealousy (1 Cor. 10:22).

Why not leave any commitment to a church founded by men, not provoke God to jealousy and seek to be a Christian and a Christian alone? Is that idea intriguing? Does it seem reasonable? Let's investigate that together.

The Uncensored Library

The Sheridan Student Column is brought to readers by Sheridan High School's 10th grade English class, taught by Abby Williams.

There are countries where news and social media are changed by the government in order to affect how the people who live there see the world. It affects those who grow up with these changes more strongly.

However, a few years ago, the organization Reporters Without Borders found a way to bypass internet censorship in some of these countries in a way that will be easily accessible – by using the game Minecraft.

Reporters Without Borders collaborated with

COLUMNIST

MAKENA CLARDY
Sheridan High School Student

Blockworks, a company that creates Minecraft worlds, to make the Uncensored Library. The Uncensored Library is a place where journalists who come from places where there is a lot of censorship can still get the information that they have risked their homes, their jobs, and even their lives to get to the public, to the public.

Their website, uncensoredlibrary.com/en, mentions a few specific reporters and reporter groups. The ones that you can see are Jamal Khashoggi from Saudi Arabia, Yulia Berezovskaia from Russia, Nguyen Van Dai from Vietnam, Javier Valdez from Mexico, and the Mada Masr from Egypt. The section for Mexico also has a list of reporters who have died reporting. The Minecraft world itself consists of an island with a few trees, a huge garden that surrounds the library, a statue in front of the library, and, of course, the library itself. The library is big, with several floors and six separate wings. Five of the wings are dedicated to specific countries. Each of those wings has a centerpiece that somehow corresponds to how information is being censored there. For example, the Russian one is a data kraken, representing how tight Russia is on internet censorship. The last one is dedicated to Reporters without Borders, and the work that they do.

It's really cool how they found a way to get information to their target audience in a way that would be easily accessible.

Give bees a chance

Note: Dear Readers – this is a reprint column from one year ago, but I believe the topic is important and warrants thoughtful discourse.

"The world is plentiful with honey, but only the humble bee can collect it."

– Ralph Waldo Emerson

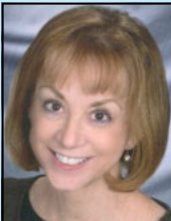

Honey – mmm! Possibly my favorite food! My grandfather in North Carolina was a beekeeper in his spare time and I loved watching him go into the hive area with his white outfit and helmet! I remember the many jars of honey, some with honeycombs, sitting in my grandmother's pantry. Delicious memory for so many reasons.

So – we love our honey for its sweetness, but do you know honey also has many other benefits to our health? Honey has been reported to have an inhibitory effect on around 60 species of bacteria and some species of fungi and viruses. Antioxidant capacity of honey is important in many disease conditions and is due to a wide range of compounds, including phenolics, peptides, organic acids, enzymes, and Maillard reaction products. Honey has also been used in some gastrointestinal, cardiovascular, inflammatory and neoplastic states.¹

Honey is as old as written history, dating back to 2100 B.C. where it was mentioned in Sumerian and Babylonian cuneiform writings, the Hittite code, and the sacred writings of India and Egypt, and has been used for thousands of years for its antibacterial properties. Note: Honey is NOT appropriate for babies or young toddlers. Please contact your physician or health care provider for more information.

Now – who are these blessed little critters who enable us to have this delicious and formidable health additive? The almighty BEE! However, our little friends have been in jeopardy for some time now. Sadly, bees of all types are in decline worldwide, as are many other insects. The honeybee has suffered greatly from colony collapse disorder, in which hives suddenly lose their adult members. Populations of bumblebees and other solitary bees have steeply declined in many places, largely because of insecticide and herbicide use, and habitat loss due to overdevelopment.

SHARON MCMAHON

As honeybees gather pollen and nectar for their survival, they pollinate crops such as apples, cranberries, melons and broccoli. Some crops, including blueberries and cherries, are 90 percent dependent on honeybee pollination. One crop, almonds, depends entirely on the honeybee for pollination at bloom time.

Parents and grandparents ... as a child do you have any memories of picking a dandelion bouquet for your mothers? Did you enjoy sitting in your yard, playing campout, rolling around in the grass, and making clover chains for hours? Am I the only one? Maybe so! Although I enjoy a lovely green lawn as much as anyone, most children would not be safe rolling around in the grass these days – pets as well! Our lawns are full of pesticides and herbicides to take care of those "nasty" dandelions and clovers – which honeybees have also enjoyed over the years.

Remember, too, that there are many types of honey out there for sale. When you shop for honey make sure that it is safely sourced if possible. For me, there is nothing to compare with Sourwood honey from North Carolina! My last jar is almost gone so I am off to the mountains to secure another supply! Yum!

County Communications Executive Director resigns

Jeff Schemmer leaves county for job with State of Indiana

The REPORTER
Jeff Schemmer, Executive Director of Communications for Hamilton County, has resigned. He has accepted a job as Executive Director at the Indiana Statewide 9-1-1 Board, a quasi-state government agency.
"It has been a pleasure to be part of such a well-respected and forward-thinking emergency communications team," Schemmer said. "It will be hard to say goodbye because I have such an incredible team here. They are like family." Schemmer came to Hamilton County in February 2019 from Bloomington, Ind., where he served as Communications Director for the Monroe County Emergency Dispatch Center. At his new post, Schemmer will oversee the operation of the statewide 9-1-1 network, implement innovative technology, and collect surcharges from all communication service providers to be distributed to local units of government.

Schemmer

"There is no other job I would consider leaving my current position for," Schemmer added. "The Indiana 9-1-1 program has been recognized as one of the most advanced emergency services inter-networks in the United States. So, this new position will allow me to make a difference on a larger scale. I find comfort in knowing I still get to look after Hamilton County, just from a higher perch."

County Commission Steve Dillinger said Schemmer has been instrumental in his leadership position as Director of 9-1-1 Communications.
"Public safety is a top priority in Hamilton County," Dillinger said. "Jeff has always been driven to be the best and provide outstanding service to our citizens. We wish him well in his future endeavors and thank him for his service."
Schemmer's last day with Hamilton County will be May 6. A nationwide search for his successor is underway.

Tipton author's book about 1965 Palm Sunday tornadoes coming in May

The REPORTER

The 1965 Palm Sunday Tornadoes in Indiana will be released by national publisher The History Press on May 2. The book was written and compiled by Tipton-based author Janis Thornton.

Thornton

The tornadoes that devastated much of Indiana were part of a collective rampage that ripped through six Midwestern states. The day, Palm Sunday, started as the nicest of the year, with the kind of weather that encouraged Hoosiers to enjoy an afternoon outdoors, fire up the barbecue grill, hit the golf course, or take a leisurely drive through the country.

That evening, however, the skies over northern and central Indiana turned an ominous black and storms moved in, quickly manifesting as the worst tornado outbreak in Indiana history. Within three hours, twisters, some a half-mile wide, swept through 17 counties, destroying communities and leaving death and destruction in their wake.

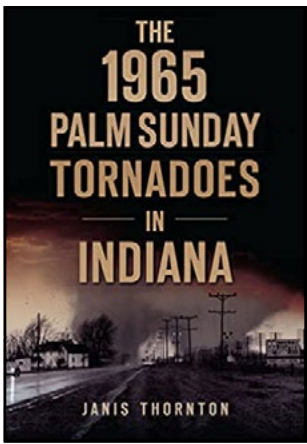

When the tornadoes were finished with Indiana, 137 people were dead, hundreds were injured, and thousands more were forever changed.

Thornton's book is the first encompassing all three lines of tornadoes that tore through northern and central Indiana on April 11, 1965. The book features dozens of photographs and more than 100 stories shared by people who experienced the tornadoes' wrath firsthand. They are stories of heroism, terror, and heartbreaking loss, many told for the first time.

"When people ask what drew me to this project," Thornton said, "my answer is simple: I love people, I love history, and I love telling powerful stories. Recording one of Indiana's most tragic natural events through the experiences of people who lived it makes for powerful storytelling, and I am immensely grateful for the opportunity to document how so many lives were touched that long-ago Palm Sunday night."

The 1965 Palm Sunday Tornadoes in Indiana is Thornton's sixth non-fiction work. Her previous works include true crimes books, No Place Like Murder and Too Good a Girl; pictorial histories covering Tipton County, Frankfort and Elwood (all in Indiana); as well as three mystery novels. She is a member of The Authors Guild, the national and Indianapolis chapter of Sisters in Crime, Women Fiction Writers Association, the Indianapolis Writers Center, and the Tipton County (Indiana) Historical Society.

The book will be available for purchase at major bookstores and online booksellers, as well as Thornton's website, janis-thornton.com. For more information, please contact Thornton via her website or visit her on Facebook.

Hitting the brakes on free speech zones

In Indiana, we are hitting the brakes on free speech zones.

Free speech zones debuted on college campuses across the country, limiting expressive language and activities to designated areas.

Rather than promoting critical thinking and difference of thought, some college administrators are more concerned about confining freedom to avoid conflict. By setting limits on free speech, these higher learning institutions stifle students' ability to learn and develop.

This blatant infringement of the First Amendment, however craftily labeled, will not be tolerated in Indiana. With a new law I co-authored, free speech will be protected by banning free speech zones at our public state colleges and universities, and by preventing colleges from discriminating against and denying benefits to student groups on the basis of religion, political affiliation or ideology.

Quite opposite than its name, free speech zones confine expression to certain locations, often in small and remote spots. In some cases, schools give groups permission to use the spaces and then put up other roadblocks, like requiring registration weeks in advance and setting strict time limits. Indiana's new law will help guide campus policies and ensure that free speech is protected for all students. Several national stories of speech suppression on college campuses have brought this conversation to the forefront.

In California, a stu-

CHRIS JETER
State Representative

dent attempted to distribute Spanish-language copies of the Constitution and recruit members for a new chapter of Young Americans for Liberty along the main campus thoroughfare at a large community college. According to the Foundation for Individual Rights in Education (FIRE), the student was approached by an administrator who told him that he could not distribute literature outside the free speech zone, a 616 square-foot area of the college's 426-acre campus. He was also told that he must fill out a permit application to use the free speech zone – requiring him to get a permission slip to exercise his First Amendment rights. He was informed that he would be asked to leave his own campus if he refused to comply. The case, and many like it, ended up in court, where it was ultimately settled.

Recently, a large group of Yale law school students hijacked a campus panel discussion about free speech. The conversation was intended to demonstrate how two speakers from different ideological perspectives could agree on the need to support the First Amendment. However, more than 100 law students shouted obscenities and threatened visiting speakers, shutting down civil discourse.

Confining free speech is not free speech. It's an attack on our God-given rights and it's unconstitutional.

I hope more people join me in speaking out against free speech zones, and encouraging young adults to engage in conversations that challenge their way of thinking while respecting others' rights to express themselves – no matter how unpopular or uncomfortable their ideas may be.

Freedom of speech is what makes our society better, ensures our government serves the people, and it's worth fighting for on our college campuses and beyond.

State Rep. Chris Jeter (R-Fishers) represents House District 88, which includes portions of Marion, Hamilton and Hancock counties.

Hoosier History Highlights

Who first won the title of Mr. Basketball?

The REPORTER

This week in Indiana's history ...

1865 – The funeral train carrying the body of Abraham Lincoln arrived in Indianapolis. The President lay in state in the rotunda of the old Capitol. Although there was a steady rain all day, over 50,000 people passed by the bier. At midnight, the casket was returned to Union Depot where the train traveled to Michigan City, its last scheduled stop in Indiana.

1865 – The sidewheeler steamboat Sultana exploded and sank on the Mississippi River near Memphis. The boat, built to carry 376 passengers, was vastly overloaded with paroled Civil War prisoners of war. Many of the over 1,200 who died were from Indiana. The 55 from Delaware County are honored by a monument at Beech Grove Cemetery in Muncie.

1919 – Hoosier leaders were aboard a welcome boat in New York Harbor as 1,800 Indiana soldiers of the 150th Artillery Regiment returned from service in World War I. They came home aboard the S. S. Leviathan, at the time the largest ship in the world. An Indianapolis Star reporter wrote, "There are simply no words to describe the fervor of the welcome accorded these fighting men."

1939 – The Crosley Corporation announced plans to manufacture a low-priced automobile in Richmond, Ind. The one-seat, three-passenger car would have a wheelbase of about six feet. It would go up to 60 mph and travel 50 miles on a gallon of gas. The proposed cost of the little Crosley was around $400.

1949 – Multi sport athlete George Crowe, a Franklin native and the first winner of Indiana's Mr. Basketball, became the first African American from Indiana to sign with a major league baseball team, the Boston Braves. This was two years after Jackie Robinson broke the Major League Baseball color line. Crowe spent most of the next two years in the Braves farm system before making his major league debut on April 16, 1952.

1972 – Former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey was in Clarksville campaigning for the Democratic presidential primary. He had been to Terre Haute earlier in the day. He called for the Vietnamese to release American prisoners of war and said the United States needed a better relationship with Russia and China. He lost the primary that year to George McGovern.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

One of Crete's own prophets has said it: "Cretans are always liars, evil brutes, lazy gluttons." This saying is true. Therefore rebuke them sharply, so that they will be sound in the faith and will pay no attention to Jewish myths or to the merely human commands of those who reject the truth. To the pure, all things are pure, but to those who are corrupted and do not believe, nothing is pure. In fact, both their minds and consciences are corrupted. They claim to know God, but by their actions they deny him. They are detestable, disobedient and unfit for doing anything good.

AG Rokita working to protect Hoosiers who use GoFundMe

The REPORTER

To protect Hoosiers who donate on the GoFundMe platform, Indiana Attorney General Todd Rokita on April 18 identified potential consumer protection concerns with the conduct of GoFundMe's platform. GoFundMe's terms of service are ambiguous, raise accountability concerns, and have the potential to deceive consumers. "Hoosiers are generous," Rokita said. "And when they give money to a cause, it's only logical to assume the money actually goes where it was directed. GoFundMe's current terms of service are too vague to assure a donor that is the case – and I will get to the bottom of it." In a letter co-authored with other like-minded attorneys general, concerning issues are identified, such as a lack of clearly expressible standards regarding GoFundMe's independent ability to freeze, redirect, or refund donations. Rokita is charged with protecting consumers and statutorily regulating non-profits. Under that authority, he has used one of his investigatory tools to inquire into GoFundMe and its operations.

Charged for an iPhone you didn't buy? Don't panic

The REPORTER

This phishing scam looks like an honest mistake, but it's not. BBB Scam Tracker is getting reports of phony emails and texts that appear to be receipts for a new iPhone you didn't purchase. Scammers are hoping you'll panic and contact them to correct the "error." How the scam works You receive an email or text message saying you purchased a new iPhone, and your Amazon account, bank account, or credit card will be charged. But you didn't buy a new phone. Eager to reverse the charge, you call the customer service number included in the email. The email may even specifically say: "Didn't make this purchase? Contact us at..." or "If you feel you are receiving this message in error, contact us immediately." When you call the number, you speak to a helpful customer service representative who says they can fix the problem. However, you must act immediately before the charge posts to your account. An Indianapolis consumer reported to BBB Scam Tracker after having received a text message on WhatsApp from an unknown number claiming to be a FedEx agent. The alleged agent said they have a package containing a laptop and iPhone, but demanded the consumer give them their name. The consumer refused and reported the incident. Con artists also told victims their accounts had been hacked. In these cases, the "customer service rep" asked for credit card or bank information, claiming they need it to cancel the sale. No matter what scammers say, don't fall for it. Remember, con artists often stoop to scare tactics to trick you into action. How to avoid phishing scams • Double check the sender's email address. Phishing emails are usually designed to look like they come from a reputable source like your bank or Amazon. Look closely at the sender's email to see if it's really from an official source. • Check your bank for charges first. If you receive an email claiming you made a purchase, check your bank or credit card account. If the change isn't there, it's likely a scam. Don't contact the scammers. Instead, erase the email and block the sender. • Never click on suspicious links. It's best not to click on links in unsolicited emails you receive from unknown senders. These links could download malware onto your computer or mobile device, making you vulnerable to identity theft. For more information Discover more ways to protect yourself from scams in general by going to "10 Steps to Avoid Scams." Learn how to identify fake emails. Become a skilled scam spotter by visiting BBB.org/SpotaScam and report any suspicious activity to BBB.org/ScamTracker. Tigers triumph at Bob Spacey Invitational

The Fishers boys golf team scored a significant tournament victory on a windy, warm Saturday at Fox Prairie Golf Course.

The course hosted Noblesville's annual Bob Spacey Invitational, with 16 teams in attendance. The Tigers finished on top of them all, totaling a 317 to win the event. Fishers finished comfortably ahead of Noblesville Gold and Yorktown, which tied for the runner-up spot with 327s.

Connor McMillan led the way for the Tigers, carding a 71.

"I played really well today, especially with the wind," said McMillan. "It was good to get on a hot start to the season."

Eli Toon was next in line for Fishers with a 79, followed by Jonathan Ash with an 82. The Bob Spacey was Fishers' second 18-hole tournament of the year; Tigers coach Mike Mozingo said his team carded a 319 at Twin Bridges earlier in the season.

"Considering weather and conditions, the way the course was playing, they played pretty well," said Mozingo. "Stuck things out and Connor McMillan, our No. 1 played really well for us."

Will Perkins led the Noblesville Gold team with a score of 78, followed by Brady Mangin with an 80. The Millers had two other teams play at Fox Prairie: Their Black team was led by Drew Werkley's 79 and Wyatt Fazi led the White team with an 80.

Hamilton Southeastern finished with a 331 and had three players score 82: Cole Starnes, Lane Zedrick and Nate Benson. Hamilton Heights scored a 371; Ethan Mill-saps led the Huskies with a 90.

The Fishers boys golf team won the Bob Spacey Invitational Saturday at Fox Prairie Golf Course. The Tigers scored a 317, and had the individual medalist in Connor McMillan, who carded a 71.

Indianapolis 500 veteran Prappas dies at 66

Ted Prappas, who made his sole Indianapolis 500 start in 1992, died April 22. He was 66.

Southern California native Prappas started 32nd and finished 16th in the No. 31 PIG/Say No To Drugs Lola-Chevrolet fielded by P.I.G. Enterprises and owner Norm Turley. Prappas was sidelined due to gear-box problems after completing 135 laps in the unseasonably cold 1992 race.

Prappas earned his only starting spot in “The Greatest Spectacle in Racing” in dramatic fashion, making a successful qualifying run at 5:54 p.m. on Bump Day, Sunday, May 17, just six minutes before qualifications ended. Prappas became the final driver to qualify with his run, in his third and final attempt in his primary car.

In an interesting historical footnote, Prappas’ successful qualifying run bumped Scott Goodyear from the field. In the next few days, Walker Racing announced Goodyear would replace Mike Groff in the team’s qualified car. Goodyear started from the rear of the field and fell just .043 of a second short of victory to Al Unser Jr. in the closest finish in Indianapolis 500 history.

Prappas climbed to CART with P.I.G. in the 1991 and 1992 seasons after finishing second in the Indy Lights standings with the team in 1990. His best finish was sixth as a rookie in 1991 at Long Beach. He was runner-up to Jeff Andretti in the CART Rookie of the Year standings in 1991.

The team fielded a car for Prappas in the 1991 Indianapolis 500 but failed to qualify.

Prappas won two career Indy Lights races, in 1990 at Laguna Seca for P.I.G. and in 1989 at Detroit for TEAMKAR International.

He started his open-wheel career in Super Vee in 1983 in a car bought for him by Academy Award-winning legendary actor James Stewart. Prappas’ mother helped to manage Stewart’s career.

Prappas won the championship in the 1986 West Coast Atlantic Racing series before climbing to Indy Lights in 1988.
