Indiana House fast-tracks antisemitism bill, HB 1002

By GARRETT BERGQUIST
WISH-TV | wishtv.com

The author of legislation to prohibit antisemitism in education on Tuesday said skyrocketing antisemitic attacks make the bill more urgent than ever.

The Indiana House of Representatives on Tuesday advanced a bill to prohibit religious discrimination, including antisemitism, in education. Bill author Rep. Chris Jeter, a Republican from Fishers, said antisemitic incidents following the Oct. 7 Hamas attacks in Israel, which left roughly 1,200 dead, demonstrate the need to root out antisemitism.

“It’s just something that we want to make very clear that we’re not going to allow to be taught in our schools, K through 12 and higher ed,” he said, “and we’re going to maintain solidarity with our Jewish community and our Jewish students and make sure they feel safe.”

The Anti-Defamation League’s annual tally of antisemitic incidents recorded nearly 3,700 such instances in 2022, a record. The organization has logged nearly 3,300 incidents in the three months since Oct. 7, more than any other full calendar year other than 2022.

Jeter’s measure incorporates into state law the International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance’s working definition of antisemitism, which among other things includes “requiring of (Israel) a behavior not expected or demanded of any other democratic nation” and “drawing comparisons of contemporary Israeli policy to that of the Nazis.”

Peace activists such as Maliha Zafar, the executive director of the Indiana Muslim Advocacy Network, said that wording doesn’t provide a clear enough distinction between antisemitism and legitimate criticism of the Israeli government. She said students and faculty on university campuses already have faced disciplinary action for taking part in protests over Israel’s actions in Gaza since the Oct. 7 attacks.

“This relies on what’s happening around the world,” Zafar said. “If there are injustices happening in one place, we should be able to call it out whether or not it’s happening in other parts of the world.”

The bill includes language that states antisemitism does not include “criticism of Israel similar to that leveled against any other country.” Rep. Cherrish Pryor (D-Indianapolis) on Tuesday tried unsuccessfully to strip out the qualifier at the end of that phrase to more explicitly exclude criticism of Israel. Zafar said that amendment would have helped alleviate her concerns.

Jeter said he recognizes the concerns activists such as Zafar have but he believes the amendment Cherrish put forward Tuesday afternoon would have gone too far. He said his bill is not intended to suppress free speech.

“No definition is perfect, but I think we hit a really good spot using a universal definition,” Jeter said.

The bill passed the House on Tuesday. It is among the first to leave the chamber this session. It now heads to the Senate for consideration.

State Rep. Garcia Wilburn makes statement on passage of HB 1002

The REPORTER

On Wednesday, State Rep. Victoria Garcia Wilburn (D-Fishers) voted for House Bill 1002, a bill aimed at defining antisemitism and preventing it in K-12 and college classrooms, on its final passage out of the Indiana House of Representatives.

She issued the following statement upon its passage:

I am hopeful that House Bill 1002 is the first step in addressing hate in all of its forms. I know firsthand how delicate of a needle this is to thread.

As I have met with countless of my constituents this summer, I cannot help but think of them: all walks of life, young, old, Jewish, Catholic, Muslim, Protestant, Evangelical. And why would I know their faith? Because my faith is important to me and when I encounter people for the first time, we often share the similarities of our faith, often sharing the same value of loving our neighbor as ourselves. This is a reason why when we do have differences, we are able to be respectful and kind nonetheless.

My son spent the first three years of his life at the Bureau of Jewish Education learning and singing and playing with his peers and surprising us in his small voice with the Jewish blessing before a meal. I have been an invited guest in my district mosques and was welcomed with kindness, most evidently the compassion they had for me and my faith. When I told leaders I had to leave a bit early to attend my church service, they rearranged the entire panel because they knew how important it was to me.

I recognize that in some people, hate permeates and fills their heart, and when they target and hate one of us, they almost always target and hate all of us. When hate is on the rise for one vulnerable group, it also rises for other vulnerable groups. As Jewish hate crimes have risen, Muslim, Black and Asian hate has risen, too. This is why I continue to urge the General Assembly to pursue legislation that would address all hate crimes. We have been called to this building to represent our constituents, and when one suffers, we all do. Let us, this legislative body, set an example of being our brothers’ and sisters’ keepers.

Indianapolis Jewish Community Relations Council applauds passage of House Bill 1002 in Indiana House

Submitted

The Indianapolis Jewish Community Relations Council (JCRC) commends Thursday’s 83-0 passage of House Bill 1002 in the Indiana House of Representatives as a significant step toward combatting antisemitism in Indiana.

The bipartisan support garnered in the Indiana House reflects a shared commitment to addressing this pressing issue and providing for a safe, inclusive environment for Jewish Hoosiers.

HB 1002, which will add the International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance Working Definition of Antisemitism into the Indiana education code, is the culmination of extensive collaboration and advocacy by JCRC alongside dedicated partners and supporters. JCRC expresses its appreciation to the legislature for this legislation and its steadfast dedication to combatting antisemitism.

“We must define antisemitism if we are to counter antisemitism,” JCRC Executive Director Jacob Markey said. “This legislation provides a universal definition that will align Indiana with a widely accepted standard.”

According to the Anti-Defamation League, antisemitic incidents have risen over 350 percent in the months following the Oct. 7, 2023, terrorist attack in Israel. Many of these incidents are occurring in K-12 classrooms and on college campuses, with some administrators and professors turning a blind eye.

“Sadly, in 21st century America and in our own state, Jewish students are being targeted and are afraid to be who they are,” JCRC Board President Jamie Ratner Rich said. “It is unconscionable and antithetical to our deeply held Hoosier values.”

JCRC urges Senators to recognize the urgency of addressing antisemitism and to pass HB 1002 without delay. Doing so will send a powerful message that antisemitism has no place in society.

Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield in Indiana earns NCQA Health Equity Accreditation Plus

Submitted

Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield's Medicaid health plan in Indiana recently earned the National Committee for Quality Assurance (NCQA) Health Equity Accreditation Plus, a recognition of Anthem's leadership in developing solutions to enhance access to equitable, high-quality healthcare. It further underscores Anthem's commitment to eliminating health disparities in underserved communities to improve health outcomes and reduce overall treatment costs.

"NCQA's Health Equity Accreditation Plus recognizes our unwavering dedication to eliminating health disparities and helping ensure access to high-quality care for everyone," said Dr. Kimberly Roop, Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield's Medicaid President in Indiana. "This milestone positions Anthem at the forefront of advancing health equity through our innovative programs that provide access to individualized care to improve the whole health of our members."

NCQA Health Equity Accreditation Plus builds upon the Health Equity Accreditation designation Anthem received last year, when they were recognized among the first Medicaid plans in the nation to create a strategic framework that prioritizes health equity based on race, ethnicity, language, sexual orientation, and gender identity.

The new Health Equity Accreditation Plus goes a step further by acknowledging Anthem's data-driven approach to help identify and collect information on individuals' social needs. This data enables Anthem to develop personalized services and supports to combat health inequities, leveraging partnerships with community-based organizations (CBOs) to help improve the health outcomes of individuals.

Anthem is advancing its health equity mission through various innovative programs including:

- A dedicated team of associates who are experts in health-related social needs including employment, education, housing, food, and transportation that help members navigate barriers to improved health by collaborating with CBOs.

- The Social Determinants of Health Case Management program which provides interventions that address the social needs and risks of members tailored to their unique needs and circumstances.

- Community health workers who identify and engage key members impacted by physical and behavioral health conditions given their geography, demographics, race, or ethnicity to address their ongoing health needs through a personalized whole health approach.

"Racial and ethnic disparities have hindered quality healthcare progression for many Americans," NCQA President Margaret E. O'Kane said. "Organizations earning the Health Equity Accreditation Plus like Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield in Indiana are leading the way in bridging this gap, and NCQA salutes their commitment."

Republican Fifth District candidate Max Engling signs U.S. Term Limits Pledge

Submitted by Max for Indiana

Conservative Republican Max Engling formally signed the U.S. Term Limits pledge, stating that as a Member of Congress, he is committed to cosponsoring and supporting the U.S. Term Limits Amendment to the Constitution in Congress.

Engling said too many politicians will only step down if they're forced, and that this pledge is a step in the right direction, ensuring fresh voices that represent the people are in positions of responsibility.

Upon signing the pledge, Engling said, "Washington is broken because we keep sending more of the same type of people to Washington, D.C. I believe Congress should be made up of citizen legislators who go to work, fight for their district, then return home and let others take the reins."

Engling continued, "Like President Trump, I think we need to change the direction of Washington and that bold action requires people who aren't making a career out of serving in Congress."

Engling grew up in a supportive family as the second oldest of eight children, learning early what it meant to work hard. He baled hay, detasseled corn, maintained a campground, and ran the quality control lab as the youngest hire at an industry-leading fabrication business. Here in central Indiana, he earned a bachelor's degree at IUPUI while working full-time in construction and waiting tables. After graduating, he worked for a local HVAC business, but was soon drawn to public service.

Following the Great Recession, Engling worked hard as a volunteer with the Republican Party and on campaigns in Indiana, making the case for limited government and fiscal responsibility.

After helping Republicans secure a majority in Congress, he eagerly answered the call to serve, and started as an intern on Capitol Hill, eventually rising through the ranks to become the Director of Member Services for the Speaker of the House. In that role, he was the Speaker's delegate with the entire Republican Conference and worked directly with every Republican Representative to guide them and their staff on how to best listen, communicate, and work effectively for their constituents.

Engling met his wife, Kelcey, in Muncie, Ind., and they were married in Cicero; together they have four beautiful children. He earned his master's degree in defense and strategic studies from the Naval War College in Newport, R.I.

Reading bill moves ahead despite retention concerns

By GARRETT BERGQUIST
WISH-TV | wishtv.com

Sponsors of a reading proficiency bill on Wednesday said their measure would only hold students back after all other options had been exhausted.

State lawmakers vowed quick action in the fall after the Indiana Department of Education revealed one in five Indiana third graders can't read at grade level. That action began to take shape on Wednesday when a Senate committee approved a bill containing several provisions meant to fix the problem.

The bill is designated Senate Bill 1, indicating it is the top legislative priority for Senate Republicans.

Under the proposal, Indiana students would take their first reading assessment in second grade instead of third grade. Indiana Secretary of Education Dr. Katie Jenner told lawmakers about 60 percent of all schools in Indiana already have begun doing this and gotten overwhelmingly positive feedback from teachers and parents alike. If a student failed the IREAD test, schools would be required to offer summer reading intervention programs. Students would take the test again during and, if necessary, at the end of third grade.

A student who failed the IREAD test three times would be held back for one year. The legislation includes exceptions for students with intellectual disabilities or individualized education programs and for students who are English language learners. Students could not be held back for more than one year.

Jenner said the bill is modeled after legislation used in Mississippi, where reading scores went from 50th in the country to 29th over the past decade.

Testifying remotely, Dr. Kymyona Burk, who as Mississippi's state literacy director led the implementation of the literacy program, said more than three quarters of Mississippi students now pass the reading test the first time, a figure that rises to 85 percent with retests. She said the key is early, targeted intervention involving students, parents and teachers. If a student is held back, Burk said their repeated third grade must include reading interventions that weren't provided the first time in order to be successful. She told the committee students who were held back showed significant and consistent improvements by sixth grade compared to their peers who barely passed the reading test and thus, were not held back.

Much of the afternoon's testimony centered on the efficacy and appropriateness of holding students back. Fortville Elementary School Principal Dr. Vince Edwards said in his experience, retention did not produce the kind of benefits other types of intervention did, and data on retention reinforced his findings. He said studies he has seen that support retention don't do a good enough job of separating out other potential causes of improvement.

"If we're doing all these things and we're saying, 'Well, we've had positive gains and that includes retention,' it's hard to say that that's the bad part, but those social and emotional pieces, which again, have been studied greatly for a long time, always hang there," Edwards said.

Indiana PTA President Rachel Burke said her daughter failed the IREAD test multiple times due to special needs, including a rare form of epilepsy. She said her daughter, who is now a junior in high school and currently fourth in her class of 820, would have been seriously harmed had she been held back a year.

Bill author Sen. Linda Rodgers, R-Granger, said she doesn't want her bill thought of as a retention bill.

"Any child who is retained will have multiple opportunities to pass the IREAD and they will be provided with remediation," Burke said. "What really isn't good is to move that student on without foundational reading skills."

The bill passed out of committee on a party-line vote, with Democrats citing the retention language as the primary reason for their "no" votes.

Brad Chambers releases plan to prepare every Hoosier student for successful future

The REPORTER

Republican gubernatorial candidate and former Indiana Secretary of Commerce Brad Chambers released on Thursday his plan to transform Indiana's education system.

It would require all students to pass IREAD 3 before moving beyond third grade, ensure funding truly follows the student to give parents ample choice in their children's education, make clear career pathways available to students beginning in seventh grade, and individualize instruction using digital technologies, among other proposals.

"To prepare Hoosier students for the future and our state for continued economic success, we must rethink and redesign our education system, ensuring parents are front and center," Chambers said. "For far too long our system has been backward-looking instead of forward-looking, preventing our students from achieving their maximum potential in an economy of the future. Now is the time to act boldly and with urgency to get this right."

Chambers

From the plan: "Our current system is not producing enough well-educated Hoosiers. We leave too many behind who cannot read, who are allowed to receive a high school degree without fully earning it or who simply drop out altogether. Our state's economic future depends on addressing these issues with urgency and aspiration."

The Brad Chambers Learn More, Earn More plan:

- Requires all students to pass IREAD3 before moving beyond third grade
- Ensures funding truly follows the student to give parents ample choice

- Creates clear career pathways for students beginning in seventh grade
- Allows for individualized education using digital technologies
- Increases focus on skill-based learning
- Combats chronic student absenteeism by ensuring parental and community engagement
- Increases teacher pay based on performance and demand
- Ensures students have access to secure, reliable broadband

Attorney General Rokita alerts Hoosiers of recalled items sold in December

The REPORTER

Indiana Attorney General Todd Rokita is alerting Hoosiers of important consumer protection concerns for products recalled during the holiday season.

"Christmas may have passed, but our children's gifts could still be dangerous," AG Rokita said. "As a parent, grandparent, aunt, uncle, or friend, you should not have to worry if a product you purchased for your precious little one could cause harm. Do not allow a flawed product to put your family in danger. Please stop using recalled items immediately and pursue resolution from the manufacturer."

According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, the following consumer products were recalled in December:

- High-Powered Magnetic Balls Recalled Due to Ingestion Hazard sold exclusively on Walmart.com and through JoyBuy.
- Litti City and Litti Pritti Dress-up Playsets and Pretext Slime Eggs Recalled Due to Violations of Federal Phthalates and Lead Content Bans imported by Perch, Amusty, and Bingo Deals.
- Brandline Recalls HEAO High Chairs Due to Risk of Suffocation, Entrapment and Laceration Hazards; Violation of the Federal Safety Standards sold exclusively on Amazon.com.

- Room & Board Recalls Griffin Duo Bunk Beds Due to Risk of Collapse, Fall and Injury Hazards sold exclusively at Room & Board.

- Polaris Industries Recalls RZR 200 Youth Recreational Off-Road Vehicles (ROVs) Due to Crash Hazard and Risk of Serious Injury

- Vornado Expands Recall to Include Additional 1.75 Million Steamfast Travel Steam Irons Due to Fire, Burn and Shock Hazards

There are many more items that need to be double checked before using regularly.

If you recently purchased a recalled product, stop using it and check its recall notice. Then follow the notice's instructions, including where to return the product, how to get the product fixed, how to dispose of the product, how to receive a refund for the product, or what steps must be taken to receive a replacement product.

Roberta "Bobbie" Shelton d. January 11, 2024

Roberta "Bobbie" Shelton, 68, passed away on Thursday, January 11, 2024, at home surrounded by loved ones after a brave battle with ALS. Bobbie was born in Tipton to the late Charles ("Chuck") and Rachel (Mayfield) Ross.

Bobbie grew up in Cicero and attended Hamilton Heights High School. She spent several years as a special education instructor, and she also worked in landscaping, most recently managing a small company in Fishers. She was a passionate and dedicated member of East Union Christian Church.

Bobbie was married for 50 years to the love of her life, John Shelton. They had three children, Landi, Zac, and Levi; and one grandchild, Grant "little one" Grace. She unconditionally and unselfishly loved her family and supported them in their many endeavors over the years.

Bobbie took pride in taking care of her many trees, flowers, ponds, and miniature horses. She cherished antiques and her extensive collection of primitive dolls. She loved to spend time visiting antique stores and going to small town festivals. Bobbie was an avid shopper who had a flair for creative and interesting outfits which always had to match. She enjoyed cooking family meals, holiday traditions, and a good inspirational quote. Most of all Bobbie loved time with her whole family. Even in the last several months while she battled ALS, Bobbie was more worried about taking care of her family and friends than she was about herself. She truly was the best wife, mother, and friend. Bobbie brought many laughs, comfort, and love to everyone she met and will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

Bobbie is survived by her husband, John Shelton (Cicero); three children, Landi (Cicero), Zac (Noblesville), and Levi (Portland, Ore.); one grandchild, Grant; a sister, Teri (Terry) Dunn (Arcadia); a brother, Denny Ross (Cicero); and several nieces, nephews, in-laws, and extended family.

Bobbie was preceded in death by her parents, Chuck and Rachel Ross.

The funeral service will be at 2 p.m. on Monday, January 22, 2024, at Hartley Funeral Home, 209 W. Jackson St., Cicero, with Mark Knapp officiating. A time of visitation will be from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Monday, January 22, 2024, at Hartley Funeral Home.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to The Gleason Foundation and/or East Union Christian Church.

Online condolences can be given at hartleyfuneral-homes.com.

For all those who knew Bobbie, feel free to wear your favorite Bobbie-inspired outfit.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

LABAN PURSUES JACOB

You didn't even let me kiss my grandchildren and my daughters goodbye. You have done a foolish thing. I have the power to harm you; but last night the God of your father said to me, 'Be careful not to say anything to Jacob, either good or bad.' Now you have gone off because you longed to return to your father's household. But why did you steal my gods?"

Jacob answered Laban, "I was afraid, because I thought you would take your daughters away from me by force. But if you find anyone who has your gods, that person shall not live. In the presence of our relatives, see for yourself whether there is anything of yours here with me; and if so, take it." Now Jacob did not know that Rachel had stolen the gods.

So Laban went into Jacob's tent and into Leah's tent and into the tent of the two female servants, but he found nothing. After he came out of Leah's tent, he entered Rachel's tent. Now Rachel had taken the household gods and put them inside her camel's saddle and was sitting on them. Laban searched through everything in the tent but found nothing.

Rachel said to her father, "Don't be angry, my lord, that I cannot stand up in your presence; I'm having my period." So he searched but could not find the household gods.

Jacob was angry and took Laban to task. "What is my crime?" he asked Laban. "How have I wronged you that you hunt me down? Now that you have searched through all my goods, what have you found that belongs to your household? Put it here in front of your relatives and mine, and let them judge between the two of us."

NBA All-Star 2024 host committee announces arts initiatives in Indianapolis

The REPORTER

NBA All-Star 2024 in Indianapolis is less than 30 days away, and the NBA All-Star 2024 Host Committee, alongside partners at Indy Arts Council, GANGGANG, and Indiana Humanities, announced today a series of arts and culture immersive experiences and interactive exhibits for fans coming downtown for February's event. During a press conference at the Indianapolis Artsgarden, the Host Committee outlined the NBA All-Star footprint for downtown Indianapolis, Indy's Home Court, and discussed the significant impacts NBA All-Star 2024 is having on the creative economy in Indianapolis and across the state.

Additionally, the Indy Host Committee announced The Tip Off, a first-ever NBA All-Star opening ceremony at Bicentennial Unity Plaza on the evening of Thursday, Feb. 15. More details will be announced at a later date, but The Tip Off will mark the formal start of NBA All-Star 2024 and include music, notable personalities and officials, and more.

“There is incredible excitement around NBA All-Star 2024 because fans know there will truly be something for everyone downtown, and, working with our partners, we have created an experience at Indy's Home Court that will not only amaze visitors to the downtown but leave a lasting legacy on our city and state economies,” said Rick Fuson, Pacers Sports & Entertainment CEO and Chairman of the NBA All-Star 2024 Board of Directors.

sic, and culinary talent; and create public art experiences throughout Indy's Home Court.

The Indy Arts Council, GANGGANG, and the Indiana Humanities have led the curation of the activations as part of their work on the Host Committee, and the result ensures Indy's Home Court will be alive with energy and creativity for all downtown visitors during NBA All-Star 2024. Together, the partners will bring to life a combination of light-based public art installations, sculptures celebrating Indiana's basketball tradition, large-scale storefront murals, graffiti art, interactive pieces, and the return of Indiana's equitable fine art fair – BUTTER at Indy's Home Court. In addition to the visual arts installations, fans will be treated to 24 DJs throughout Indy's Home Court, photo stations, and unique experiences in key fan zones like Georgia Street and Bicentennial Unity Plaza.

"Sports and arts have always been great teammates in Indianapolis, and we're going to see that on full display during NBA All-Star 2024," said Julie Goodman, Indy Arts Council President & CEO. "Indy Arts Council is honored to partner with GANGGANG, Indiana Humanities, and the Arts & Culture Committee to center Indy's incredible creative talent. Our team's focus has been on large-scale public art activations that will inspire and engage all who visit Indy's Home Court. We're also excited for the ongoing impact some of these artworks will have through our Sidewalk Galleries program with the City of Indianapolis."

NBA All-Star 2024 is, uniquely, the intersection of sports, arts, culture, and fashion, a global celebration of the game of basketball, and a way to highlight Indiana's diverse and thriving creative talent. Elements like the arts and culture experiences unveiled at the press conference will not only give fans an experience unlike any previous NBA All-Star, but they are also designed to promote equity and drive investment into Indy's creative economy that will have lasting, sustainable impacts.

“The Arts & Culture committee has developed incredible activations to welcome residents and visitors to downtown, integrating an unprecedented number of artists into NBA All-Star 2024,” said Mali Simone Bacon, GANGGANG Co-Founder and Executive Director. “GANGGANG is thrilled to lead creative direction and production for what will be a once in a lifetime experience in Indianapolis.”

Led by Mali Simone Bacon and Alan Bacon at GANGGANG, the Host Committee has created a Cultural Corridor in Indy's Home Court, along Washington Street, to showcase local brands. Plaid & Pearls Coffee, a local woman-owned business, will take over the location formerly occupied by Pearings at Washington and Meridian, while the former Rock Bottom site next door will be converted into The Suite featuring the Henderson Bar, food from the International Marketplace, music curated by Chreece Presents: Nap City The Basement, comedy by Made Man Improv, and retail curated by Cargo Streetwear Boutique.

Finally, GANGGANG, with curators Deonna Craig, Kia Davis, and Alan Mills will turn the 19,000 square feet of the Indianapolis Artsgarden into BUTTER at Indy's Home Court. Programming will include a full exhibition alongside the Creative Summit at Indy's Home Court. Serving as a new model for economic justice in the arts, BUTTER maintains its commitment to sell or loan 100 percent of the artwork, giving 100 percent of the proceeds to artists.

Led by the Indy Arts Council, with support from partners Joanna Nixon and London Heist, other art activations fans will experience during NBA All-Star 2024 include:

- Six light-based public art installations, including three experiences by Indianapolis artists
- Two temporary murals by Indianapolis artists Jingo de la Rosa and Jonathan Southern will adorn the east and west facades of the Indianapolis Artsgarden.
- Sidewalk galleries: large-scale murals by Indy artists will decorate storefronts along the streets of Indy's Home Court, immersing visitors to the downtown in diverse artwork seemingly at every turn.
- Fifteen of Indianapolis' most fascinating street and graffiti artists will create new masterpieces on the Pennsylvania and Delaware rail underpasses, just north of South Street.
- Hoosier Historia: a group of 24 diverse artists from across the state will bring to life their interpretations of some of the most memorable and iconic people, moments, and places in Indiana basketball history on 6-foot basketball sculptures.

NBA All-Star 2024 takes place in downtown Indianapolis Thursday, Feb. 15 through Sunday, Feb. 18. Indianapolis last hosted the event in 1985.
