No kidding – goat yoga is where it's at

Editor's note: Enjoy this story from Trina Severson, who is filling in this week for Scott Saalman. He's probably out somewhere taking photos of dogs reading his latest book.

GUEST COLUMNIST

It was late fall and I'd been wanting to try something new, something fun and social and active. And here, in a captivating post in my Facebook feed, was what I'd been searching for: Goat Yoga. I checked my calendar and registered.

When the day and time finally came, I arrived early. The host, surrounded by my soon-to-be pint-sized friends, waved me over. I stepped over the knee-high fence and joined the others in a grassy circle. I unrolled my exercise mat on the ground, sat down, and exhaled. I was about to experience Goat Yoga.

I'd been curious about this activity since discovering the trend a couple of years earlier. The idea is simple enough. Yoga, but in the company of goats. They mix among the humans, often climbing and balancing on guests during downward dog and cat poses. They frequently dole out playful head-butts, nibbles, and snuggles. I'd been careful to follow our host's advice to remove all dangling jewelry, secure loose clothing and place all valuables safely outside of the Goat Circle.

We began. I laid on my back and closed my eyes, breathing mindfully. This would be a challenge for me. Even in the serenity of traditional yoga spaces it's hard for me to find my center. Add in a wind advisory and a dozen sociable goats and there's little chance. Maybe a goat mixer with hors d'oeuvres and bluegrass music would be more my speed. But where would I find that?

I closed my eyes and strained to hear our instructor's voice over the howling wind. Was I still following along? Or was everyone else already up, standing tall in mountain poses as I lay on the ground taking deep belly breaths, dreaming of fried pickles and banjos? I peeked. No. We were all still in sync. A little goat grazing a few inches from my elbow gave me an encouraging look. I reached out to scratch her head.

As we rose into the Cobra Pose, I thought I heard a cry of distress. Had someone in class pulled a muscle? Was it a goat bleating? I couldn't tell, so I opened one eye and turned my head toward the sound. It was a big chicken, wandering the perimeter of the pen, pecking for food. All was well. I closed my eye and tried again to focus and bring my awareness inward.

Really, who was I kidding? (No pun intended.) I was just here for the goats. I find animals incredibly therapeutic, and these are stressful times. What if I became so focused on my yoga movements that I missed a chance to pet a goat?

I tried to stay the course as our instructor's calm voice prompted us through a meditative sequence. A big oak leaf thwacked

Carmel firefighters rescue two workers stuck in mud at home construction site

By GREGG MONTGOMERY
WISH-TV | wishtv.com

One worker tried to rescue another sinking in mud at a housing construction site Friday, and both ended up stuck.

Carmel Fire Department says it rescued both workers, who had no physical injuries.

The incident happened somewhere on the city's west side, the fire department said in a Facebook post on Friday afternoon.

"Contractors working on this new construction home were working in a very wet and muddy area, when one of them began sinking. The more he tried to escape the farther he sunk. A second worker came to his rescue, but unfortunately found himself in the same situation," the post said.

Firefighters used ladders over the mud to allow the workers to extract themselves from the mud. The fire department shared photos of their work.

Existentialist crashes date night

Reporter photo

On Wednesday, The Reporter met Steve & Melinda Johns at Bien Mexicana, 150 S. Peru St., Cicero, while they were enjoying food so good it has been featured on America's Best Restaurants. While they were a day late for Bien's new Taco Tuesday, they were right on time for date night ... or they would have been if a certain philosopher-turned-publisher hadn't roped Steve into a lengthy talk about Albert Camus, Fyodor Dostoevsky, and E. M. Cioran. That may sound a bit absurd, but sometimes everything is permitted. When a meeting is simply an accident, why take it all so seriously?

me in the cheek during the Bridge Pose and startled my eyes open. I took the opportunity to do a quick scan for goats, made brief happy eye contact with a little spotted billy named Rocky, and closed my eyes again.

As the class went on, the goats mingled about. A tiny one capered over and pressed its head against my calf during the Warrior Pose. A sweet little doe came by to see if maybe I had any food to share during the Eagle Pose. I was getting my money's worth. During the Tree Pose, I focused on Daisy Mae, who stood like a statue in front of me chewing her cud meditatively. She'd certainly found her center.

I've always liked goats, despite my earliest experience with one ending badly. I was a six-year-old city kid visiting the county fair's petting zoo. And I was very proud of my long pigtailed and the bright red ribbons my mother had tied around them.

An inquisitive nanny goat named Gladys found them equally fascinating. I tried to handle the issue my own, but ultimately my dad needed to step in and save me and my prized hair accessories from Gladys.

Today's Goat Yoga trend doesn't surprise me. Humans and goats go way back. They were the first animal we ever domesticated more than 10,000 years ago. They're so useful — dairy, meat, fiber, manure, weed control. Goats could even rival dogs as man's best friend. They can form social bonds with humans. They gaze at us like dogs do. They wag their tails when they're happy. Abraham Lincoln had two goats named Nanny and Nanko who pulled his sons through the White House hitched to carts and kitchen chairs. Social media is loaded with goat videos and memes. Google funny goat videos and the returns are endless. Dogs and cats should be concerned. I was hooked. I'd found my new favorite exercise routine.

So, while yoga under a blue October sky sounded wonderful in itself, adding goats to the equation was all the incentive I — and apparently countless others around the nation — needed to grab my water bottle and yoga mat and head for the farm. Namaste.

Central Ind. Dance Ensemble preparing to head to Spokane for Ballet Alliance Festival

The REPORTER

Central Indiana Dance Ensemble (CIDE), located in Carmel, will take the first step on Feb. 13 toward The Ballet Alliance Festival in Spokane, Wash. Approximately 25 of CIDE's senior-level dancers will attend the festival during the first week of May.

CIDE offers education and dance training, with the goal to provide a nurturing environment where children are taught the principles of dance. CIDE is also the Resident Company of The Center for the Performing Arts in Carmel. CIDE is committed to providing cultural and educational enrichment to the Central Indiana Community by giving students the opportunity to perform and train with other pre-professional and professional dancers and teachers.

As part of its mission, CIDE is a member of The Ballet Alliance. Alliance member companies such as CIDE value rigorous training methods, and innovative choreography, which directly benefit the technical and artistic development of dancers.

Members of The Ballet Alliance hold an annual four-day festival where dancers take master classes from renowned instructors, participate in dance-related seminars, perform for their peers, and forge new relationships. During the festival, member dancers are seen by recruiters from world-class ballet schools, professional dance companies, and college and university dance programs. It is common for dancers to be awarded scholarships to summer intensives, early acceptance to higher education dance programs, and receive apprenticeships or Mauro Villanueva's Morpheus was performed in 2021. It will be the first piece on which CIDE dancers' performance will be evaluated.

professional contracts from Artistic Directors.

An evaluation process precedes the festival. On Feb. 13, Ms. Susan Brooker, Festival Artistic Director, will evaluate the CIDE students and dances and choose a piece for them to perform in Washington. She will teach a Master Class and rehearse with the dancers.

Booker is the Artistic Director of the American Ballet Theatre (ABT) William J. Gillespie School in California. She was the Director of the Preparatory Dance Program at the University of North Carolina School of the Arts for several years and has taught in schools in the USA, Europe, Canada, and Japan. Her students have won prestigious international dance competitions including the Prix de Lausanne and are dancing with companies in the U.S., South America and Europe.

On Feb. 13, two pieces of choreography will be evaluated. The first is Morpheus – a contemporary ballet piece by choreographer Mauro Villanueva, who is a 2022-2023 School of American Ballet National Visiting Fellow and is dedicated to creating inclusive dance spaces through his work as co-director of The Joffrey Workshop. As a member of the Joffrey Ballet, he danced ballets by world renowned choreographers. He has also worked for Barak Ballet, Ballet San Antonio, The Jacksonville Symphony, and others. He sent the piece back in 2019. CIDE is restaging the dancers again this year. It was performed in 2021, as well.

The second piece will be Khachaturiana, a classical ballet piece choreographed by Lisa Slagle. She received her early dance training in both southern California and Texas and began her professional dancing career at the age of 11 when she appeared as a solo dancer in the Elvis Presley movie, Clambake. Upon graduation from high school, she was offered a position with the Joffrey Ballet in New York. Upon her retirement from dancing, she started teaching ballet in the Dallas area, and in 1999 became the founding director of the Ballet Academy of Texas. Slagle was asked to be on the Advisory Board for American Ballet Theatre's National Training Curriculum in 2007. For the next 12 years she taught with ABT as a Master Teacher for their various Summer Intensive workshops, and as an Artistic Coordinator for their Young Dancer Workshop in Dallas in 2018 and 2019.

Ashley Jacobs, Co-Artistic Director of CIDE, said she is excited as The Ballet Alliance Festival looms closer. As Jacobs, along with her students, wonder which of the pieces they will ultimately perform, they will continue their hard work in anticipation. This is an annual event that gives the students an opportunity to spread their wings to a larger audience, to meet and work with a broader range of dance professionals, and to possibly receive opportunities they've been dreaming of.

The beloved Italian American tenor has planned a setlist that includes some of the most romantic music, including "Somewhere," "Some Enchanted Evening," "Can't Help Falling in Love," and tunes from his critically acclaimed, award-winning The Love Album.

"I'm in the business of making people feel good, making people happy," Nunziata said. "I'm grateful I get to tell stories for a living through lyrics and music. To make people laugh, cry, feel something – there's nothing like it."

His original pop song "The Gift Is You" – which he wrote honoring his mother's battle with breast cancer (she is now cancer-free) – is currently being used as an anthem for The Susan G. Komen Foundation. Learn more at AnthonyNunziata.com.

Letter to the Editor — Samaritan’s Purse thanks Hamilton County for its contributions to last year’s Operation Christmas Child

Dear Editor:

Generosity throughout Hamilton County contributed to a successful shoebox gift collection season at drop-off locations for the Samaritan’s Purse project Operation Christmas Child.

Across the U.S., the project collected 10 million shoebox gifts in 2023. Combined with those collected from partnering countries in 2023, the ministry is now sending over 11.3 million shoebox gifts to children worldwide, including many who are suffering from war, poverty, disease, and disaster.

Through shoeboxes – packed with fun toys, school supplies, and personal care items – Noblesville area volunteers brought joy to children in need around the world. Each gift-filled shoebox is a tangible expression of God’s love, and it is often the first gift these children have ever received. Through the continued generosity of donors since 1993, Operation Christmas Child has collected and delivered more than 220 million gift-filled shoeboxes to children in more than 170 countries and territories.

Across Indiana, shoebox packers often shop for deals on shoebox items throughout the year, and many serve at a deeper level by becoming a year-round volunteer. Information about ways area participants can get involved year-round can also be found at samaritanspurse.org/occ or by calling (937) 374-0761.

Although local drop off locations for shoebox gifts are closed until Nov. 18 through 25, 2024, anyone can still be a part of this life-changing project by conveniently packing a shoebox gift online in just a few simple clicks at samaritanspurse.org/buildonline.

These simple gifts, packed with love, send a message to children worldwide that they are loved and not forgotten.

Beck’s & Indiana AgriNews announce 2024 Indiana Farm Family of the Year

The REPORTER

Beck's and Indiana AgriNews have announced the Muegge family as the 2024 Indiana Farm Family of the Year. Residing in Hancock County, the Muegge family represents the dedication and service the award represents in a farm family.

Bruce and Linda Muegge spearhead their family's cattle and grain operation, while their three children, Carli, Cari, and Chris, their spouses, and Bruce's mother are also vital contributors to the success of the family farm.

Off the farm, Bruce and Linda have been active members of the Walnut Ridge Friends Meeting for 20 years, and Linda currently serves as the Monthly Meeting Clerk and Trustee. Bruce served on the Hancock County Co-Op Board for three years before its consolidation and on the Indiana Cutting Horse Association for three years. Linda has served as the Chamber of Commerce Board Director and President of the Morristown Chamber of

Commerce, Greenfield Area Chamber of Commerce, Board of Directors and Treasurer of the Blue River Community Foundation, and the Hancock Community Foundation for 14 years.

All three of their children are heavily involved in different community organizations, including FFA, Indiana Farriers Association, Once Upon a Prom, Leadership Hancock County, Greenfield Area Chamber of Commerce, Community Foundation of Hancock County's Women's Fund, Indiana Farm Bureau, Hancock County District, and so much more.

“Helping others is what’s most important,” Linda said. “We’ve worked hard to instill that in our children and our grandchildren.”

In 2021, the Muegge family hosted their first M5 Farm to Fork Market, a farmers' market dedicated to bringing together local ag/home producers of food, crafts, woodworking, and produce. Their mission is to drive local production and purchasing and bring people together once a month.

“While agriculture continues to evolve, the resilience of farm families does not,” Beck’s President Scott Beck said. “The Muegge family represents an unwavering dedication to their hometown and Indiana agriculture that we are proud to recognize.”

Beck’s and Indiana AgriNews recognized the family at the 2023 Indiana Farm Bureau Convention held on Dec. 15 in Fort Wayne, Ind.

For the past 26 years, Beck’s and Indiana AgriNews have honored one Indiana farm family for their work on the farm, service to their community, and the agricultural industry. The award aims to increase awareness of the important contributions farm families make. Nominations for the 2025 Indiana Farm Family will open in the summer of 2024.

GOP gubernatorial candidates criticize state’s proposed disabled care cutbacks

By GARRETT BERGQUIST
WISH-TV | wishtv.com

More than one of the Republican candidates for governor on Thursday said the state shouldn’t cut a Medicaid service for the disabled to fill a budget hole.

The comments came during a forum in Carmel in which, among other things, the candidates were asked about their plans to control medical costs.

The Indiana Family and Social Services Administration last week said it plans to discontinue a program that reimburses parents and guardians of medically complex children for caregiving expenses. The move is in response to last month’s discovery that the state faces a billion-dollar Medicaid funding shortfall.

The announcement brought dozens of families to the Statehouse to protest on Monday. The agency has said parents will have the option to enroll in a new program that pays a daily rate.

The forum featured the five major Republican gubernatorial candidates: Sen. Mike Braun, Lt. Gov. Suzanne Crouch, former Attorney General Curtis Hill, former Indiana Secretary of Commerce Brad Chambers, and former Indiana Economic Development Corporation President Eric Doden.

Not all the candidates directly addressed the FSSA issue but those who did said the agency should not discontinue the program.

“I will continue to fight for them and their families so that they can continue to fulfill the dreams they dream and build the lives they want to build, and that is our responsibility,” Crouch said.

The candidates offered similar views on a variety of social issues in particular.

All of them said they supported the idea of diverting individual students’ school funding into education savings accounts which could then be used to pay for tuition at either a traditional public school, a charter school, or a private school.

All five candidates said they would send National Guard soldiers to the southern border, shut down the Office of Inclusion, Equity and Opportunity, block any effort to speed up the decommissioning of coal power plants, and support efforts to require school board candidates to declare a party affiliation.

As in previous forums, the candidates differed most on economic policies.

Chambers said he considers growing the state’s economy the governor’s number-one job. He said the IEDC’s incentives don’t get paid out unless companies can prove they are delivering the jobs they promised.

“It takes competition in the global economy,” Chambers said. “We have a good product, and it’s the people and the universities and the location and we have the tools and we’re investing them well.”

Braun and Doden said the IEDC should place greater emphasis on growing small and medium-sized businesses in all 92 counties rather than focusing on landing large corporations.

Crouch said the best way to grow the economy is to eliminate the state income tax. Hill said he disagrees with the notion that economic development is the government’s job in the first place.

The candidates also were asked about a bill to limit any emergency declaration by the governor to 30 days and require legislative approval for anything longer. The bill has already passed the Senate and is now in the House. All five candidates said they support the idea.

Senators Young & Braun introduce bill to collect more information on foreign ag land ownership

The REPORTER

U.S. Senators Todd Young (R-Ind.) and Mike Braun (R-Ind.) have joined a bipartisan group of senators in introducing a bill to collect more information about foreign ownership of agricultural land in the United States.

This bill was prompted by a report by the U.S. Government Accountability Office (GAO), released last week, titled, “Foreign Investments in U.S. Agricultural Land: Enhancing Efforts to Collect, Track, and Share Key Information Could Better Identify National Security Risks.”

Under the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act (AFIDA) of 1978, foreign persons who acquire, dispose of, or hold an interest in U.S. agricultural land are required to disclose those transactions to the USDA.

Last week’s GAO report found that the USDA process for complying with AFIDA is ill-equipped to fully combat nefarious foreign ownership of American agricultural land by foreign adversaries.

According to United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) data from December 2021, foreign investors own approximately 40.8 million acres of U.S. agricultural land. (Editor’s note: That’s an area roughly equal to the state of Wisconsin.) Foreign ownership of U.S. agricultural land increased modestly increased from 2009 to 2015 at an average increase of 0.8 million acres per year. However, since 2017, this number skyrocketed to an annual average of 2.9 million acres. Additionally, between 2010 and 2021, entities or individuals from China increased their ownership of U.S. agricultural land from 13,720 acres to 383,935 acres.

The AFIDA Improvements Act of 2024 will take the following actions to improve the USDA’s processes, drawn largely from recommendations from the GAO report:

- 1. Streamline CFIUS Data Sharing: Require USDA to enter into a memorandum of understanding with the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS) to govern data sharing between USDA and CFIUS member agencies within one year of enactment.
- 2. Modernize the AFIDA Handbook: Direct USDA to update the agency’s handbook for officials to collect AFIDA data within one year of enactment. This handbook was last updated in 2006.
- 3. Implement Current Law: Require USDA to develop and report to Congress a timeline to meet specific implementation benchmarks for an online AFIDA submission system and public database. While Congress has required USDA to implement an online system by 2025, GAO discovered that USDA “has not developed timelines for creating an online submission process [or] a public database.”

4. Improve Data Verification and Monitoring: Direct and empower USDA to take any such actions as are necessary to validate foreign ownership data collected under AFIDA.

5. Identify Suspected Non-Fileers: Direct USDA to better leverage Farm Service Agency data to identify individuals who have illegally not filed transactions with foreign persons under AFIDA.

6. Collect Data from Every Foreign Investor: Require reporting for foreign persons with a minority stake in an agricultural land asset, including through ownership tiers or shell companies.

In addition to Senators Young and Braun, Senators Jon Tester (D-Mont.), Joni Ernst (R-Iowa), Sherrod Brown (D-Ohio), Roger Marshall (R-Kan.), John Fetterman (D-Pa.), Marco Rubio (R-Fla.), Tammy Baldwin (D-Wis.), Bill Hagerty (R-Tenn.), Eric Schmitt (R-Mo.), and Katie Britt (R-Ala.) also cosponsored the bill.

“This is an important national security issue on the minds of many Hoosiers, particularly in our Indiana agriculture community,” Sen. Young said. “As we seek to counter the Chinese Communist Party’s efforts to manipulate markets, this legislation will provide critical information and transparency to better protect our homeland.”

“Many Americans are worried about adversarial foreign countries buying up American farmland and jeopardizing our food supply chain,” Sen. Braun said. “This bipartisan bill will improve the USDA’s system for collecting information on purchases of farmland by foreign nationals better identify transactions that should have been reported but weren’t.”

This bill is supported by the Agribusiness Council of Indiana, the Indiana Corn Growers Association, and the Indiana Soybean Alliance.

JACOB PREPARES TO MEET ESAU

Jacob also went on his way, and the angels of God met him. When Jacob saw them, he said, "This is the camp of God!" So he named that place Mahanaim.

Jacob sent messengers ahead of him to his brother Esau in the land of Seir, the country of Edom. He instructed them: "This is what you are to say to my lord Esau: 'Your servant Jacob says, I have been staying with Laban and have remained there till now. I have cattle and donkeys, sheep and goats, male and female servants. Now I am sending this message to my lord, that I may find favor in your eyes.'"

When the messengers returned to Jacob, they said, "We went to your brother Esau, and now he is coming to meet you, and four hundred men are with him."

In great fear and distress Jacob divided the people who were with him into two groups, and the flocks and herds and camels as well. He thought, "If Esau comes and attacks one group, the group that is left may escape."

USPS unveils first electric postal vehicle charging stations & electric delivery vehicles

Our postage costs just went up & electric vehicles went down to Georgia

The REPORTER

On Monday, the United States Postal Service (USPS), alongside White House officials, unveiled its first set of electric vehicle (EV) charging stations at its South Atlanta, Ga., Sorting and Delivery Center (S&DC). Charging stations like these will be installed at hundreds of new S&DCs across the country throughout the year and will power what will be the nation's largest EV fleet.

USPS says electrification and modernization of the Postal Service's delivery fleet is part of the organization's $40 billion investment strategy to upgrade and improve the USPS processing, transportation, and delivery networks.

"The improvements we need to achieve in sustainability are an integral outgrowth of the broader modernization efforts we have undertaken through our 10-year Delivering for America plan," Postmaster General Louis DeJoy said. "As we transform our operating processes and invest in new automation, new technologies, and upgraded facilities and vehicles, we will generate significant efficiencies that reduce our costs, slash our carbon footprint, and minimize waste. We are grateful for the support of Congress and the Biden Administration through Inflation Reduction Act funding, which helped enable the electrification in evidence here today."

At Monday's event, USPS also showcased new battery-powered and domestically manufactured commercial off-the-shelf (COTS) delivery vehicles that will make up a portion of the Postal Service's EV fleet. Deployment of electric delivery trucks will start in Georgia and then expand to other locations across the country throughout the year. The vehicles feature air conditioning and advanced safety technology and are designed to meet modern operational requirements.

The procurement of EVs and charging stations is enabled by the Postal Service's overall network modernization efforts – which allow more rapid EV deployment – as well as its improving financial condition, which includes $3 billion in congressional funding appropriated under the Inflation Reduction Act (IRA).

Noblesville comes from behind, takes two overtimes to topple Southeastern

By RICHIE HALL
sports@readthereporter.com

NOBLESVILLE – The Millers call it T-squared: toughness and togetherness.

The Noblesville boys basketball team needed both as it hosted Hamilton Southeastern Friday night at The Mill in a Hoosier Crossroads Conference game. The Class 4A No. 5 Millers played the Royals from behind for the first three quarters, got on top in the fourth, then played two overtimes before finally getting a 57-50 victory.

“You can’t beat this,” said Noblesville sophomore Baron Walker. “A packed gym like tonight was, two overtimes. You seriously can’t beat that.”

The Millers got their first lead of the game at the start of the fourth quarter, when Hunter Walston made a rebound basket. It was part of a 9-0 Noblesville run that started at the end of the third quarter: Fine made two free throws with 4.3 seconds left, the Millers got the ball back, and Baron Walker drained a 3-pointer to get Noblesville within 35-34.

Fine scored after Walston’s basket, and Noblesville led 38-35. The Millers were up 45-42 late in the quarter before Southeastern’s Braeden Totten nailed a 3, sending the game to the first overtime.

the first OT until the last five seconds. Michael Griffith put the Royals up by two with a reverse layup. Noblesville quickly called timeout with 3.8 seconds left, and that was just enough time for Fine to rush down the floor and make a layin.

“We were just trying to get the ball out and catch it on the run,” said Fine. “Three point eight seconds is plenty of time to get to the rim.”

So, it was on to the second overtime. Fine hit a 3 for the extra period’s first basket, and the Millers were able to stay in front until the

“Tough game,” said Noblesville coach Scott McClelland, who had plenty of praise for Southeastern. “They’re good. They really are. They’ve won 11 games and (Donovan) Hamilton’s a terrific athlete. I just saw it in the first half. They got the tempo where they wanted it and they got the pace of the Noblesville tied the game three different times in the second quarter, but six points from Hamilton, including a steal and dunk, kept the Royals ahead 21-19 at halftime. Southeastern went on a run to start the third quarter, with Totten scoring five points. Griffith's basket gave the Royals their largest lead of the game at 28-21, and after a Fine basket, Hamilton hit a pair of free throws to put HSE ahead 30-23.

That's when Walker got going. He made three 3s in the quarter, including the buzzer-beater to get Noblesville within one. Walker drained a fourth 3 in the middle of the fourth quarter.

McClelland said people will look at the four 3s, but pointed out other things that Walker did to impact the game, including taking two charges.

"He's bringing energy, he's playing hard and he's doing some things," said McClelland.

The coach also pointed out the poise that his young players had, especially the sophomores Walker and Justin Curry, while the junior Davidson is coming back from missing games.

"Those kids, we expect a lot from them," said McClelland. "And I think it's getting to the point where everybody always expects it. But you have to keep in mind, they're still only 15, 16 years old and this is maybe the first or second time they've been in this situation."

Fine finished with 25 points, followed by Walker with 13. Walston had 10 points and seven rebounds. Curry collected six rebounds and Aiden Brewer had five.

Hamilton led the Royals with 19 points and eight rebounds, while Totten drained four 3s on his way to 18 points. Nathaniel Orr had eight rebounds and Kameron Anthony collected five. Hamilton also had five assists.

Noblesville is 3-2 in HCC play and 14-2 overall, and hosts 3A No. 3 Guerin Catholic this afternoon. Southeastern is 1-4 in the conference and 11-6 overall; the Royals return home tonight to host Pendleton Heights.
