County Councilman Mark Hall's February Timesheet

As your employee, larly reading this column, important getting involved, and by to me that you asking questions. Council what is meetings are at 7 p.m. the first Wednesday of every month at the Judicial Center in downtown Noblesville. Meetings are also available to watch online for those unable to attend in person.

Here is where my time my hope is that this past month has been spent.

> Like many of us, February's work was interrupted by Influenza A. Yep, I caught the flu. Personally, I missed an entire week of work. Yuck! Glad that's over. February's work concentrated on Finance, the Regional Development Commission, the County Utility District and researching upcoming proposed projects for both the full council as well as the RDC.

February's personnel committee meeting was canceled. Normally, personnel requests are voted on as they occur - first in the personnel committee and then at the next regular council meeting using a recommendation from the committee.

The finance committee meeting included a detailed presentation of, and much discussion about, the county's cash position. We were also briefed on the increase in interest income over budget and the final county tax rate as approved by the Department of Local Government and Finance. The county is in a strong financial position, our tax rate went down slightly, we have the sixth-lowest tax rate in the state and continue to maintain the best possible bond rating, AAA.

You may recall from a few months ago, the 2024 budget, for the first time in a few years, contributes to the rainy-day fund. The challenge ahead will be to balance the expense of upcoming projects with keeping our reserves strong.

I spent time this month studying the County Utility District. Of particular interest is how it works, why it was necessary and then learning how important it is as a means of protecting the water sources (aquifers) we have in the area. Water This is where my time went is increasingly becoming a challenge for counties throughout Indiana and for Hamilton County to stay competitive. Reviewing the proposed Police and Fire Training Center plans along with the financing options has taken a good amount of time. This project is being revisited from a few years ago. This proposed project would be funded with existing county TIF district money. Along with updated functionality this new development has the support of our public safety leadership around the county. After much review, I am in favor of the project, provided we can successfully fund the construction and provided ongoing operational and maintenance costs are paid for independent of county funds.

In addition to the County Council public meetings, February's work included attending our first 2024 Finance Committee meeting, watching a Board of Commissioners public meeting, attending a Noblesville City Council meeting and a Cicero Town Council meeting.

This month there were two constituents service requests. Usually, requests require research with a county department, securing the correct answer and then following up with the taxpayer.

February's taxpayer questions were regarding the 2024 budget and the county tax rate. A constituent expressed concern after reading in the paper that higher than expected county investment income would be moved into existing budgeted line-item expenses. The 2024 budget included a substantial budgeted amount of investment income, and thanks to our County Treasurer, the investment income numbers exceeded the anticipated budgeted income. Those excess funds will be held in the county general account until appropriated.

The second request was for information regarding the county tax rate and where on the county auditor's webpage our rates by township could be found. The taxpayer wanted to compare the county tax rate with that of Noblesville School District.

This month, it was an honor to represent you at the Westfield Small Business Networking meeting and at the Judge Andrew Bloch robing ceremony. This is my timesheet. during month 14. There are quite a few projects in the queue for 2024, and while my job is primarily the financial oversight of the county budget, it is important to understand the Board of Commissioners' priorities and balance them with the stewardship of taxpayer dollars. That is the job, and I am excited to do the people's business. As a taxpayer myself, and listening to so many of you, our employers, it's important for the taxpayers to have access to all the information you want. I work for you and although you may not choose to do a deep dive into what your County Council does, it's important that you can always do so. Feel free to contact me at (317) 832-1104 or mark. hall@hamiltoncounty. in.gov with questions, feedback or if you would like to talk about county business.

Indiana stands at an energy crossroads. The Indiana Utility Regula-Commistory (IURC) sion has sounded the alarm: our state needs more power. Not just to fuel the promising influx of new manufacturing projects, like microchip plants and data centers, but to ensure that our existing industries continue to thrive without the threat of blackouts or curtailments.

While adding more wind and solar sage was clear: power sources, it's importwithout action, ant to remember that these sources are intermittent go out, and our and rely on weather conditions. Therefore, it's crucial to have reliable 24/7 power sources like coal, natural gas, and nuclear energy to support them.

The recent cold spell that forced Indiana manufacturers to halt production is a harbinger of what's to come if we fail to act. The Utilities have invested North American Electric the IURC, recently testi- $6.7 billion in emission Reliability Commission's Affordability is the other piece of the puzzle. Indiana could once boast about having low electric rates when competing against other states for manufacturing dominance. We do not have the luxury to do so anymore. Commissioner Huston mentioned in his opening remarks that Indiana used to have some of the lowest utility rates in the country, primarily due to the availability of affordable coal. However, as ing powerhouse and a bea-more environmental regulations were implemented on coal facilities, Indiana's utility rates increased significantly. Indiana ranks 29th in the country for utility rates, which is quite a drop from its previous position as the fifth lowest.

Indiana's energy future hinges on a balanced approach prioritizing reliability and affordability. It's time to champion an "all of the above" energy strategy that leverages our abundant resources, like coal, while paving the way for innovation.

Let's ensure that Indiana remains a manufacturcon of progress.

As Hoosiers, we must come together to support a diverse energy mix that ensures our economic prosperity. Contact your elected officials, participate in community conversations, and promote policies that protect our state's energy reliability and affordability.

By working together, we can ensure that Indiana has a steady power supply that keeps our lights on and allows industries to continue to thrive.

Lauren's story, part 2: Votaw embraces fewer limitations, new addition to family

By RICHIE HALL sports@readthereporter.com

The story of Fishers girls basketball coach Lauren Votaw's ulcerative colitis and ileostomy journey didn't end with her February 2021 surgery to remove her colon.

In fact, some parts of the story are still in the first chapter. That includes the part where Votaw talks about how much her life has improved after years of suffering from colitis as well as the part where she and her husband Jeremy welcomed a new addition to their family.

Votaw was in the hospital for 70 days after the surgery due to several complications, and she admitted there were times that were not easy. (Votaw posted about her journey on her Facebook page, which you can find at facebook.com/lauren.vail.18.) But once she was out of the hospital, she was on her way to a much-improved life.

An ileostomy is a stoma, or surgical opening, formed when the end of the small intestine (ileum) is brought onto the surface of the skin. Waste product then leaves the intestine and stoma, where it is deposited into a bag.

It is necessary to empty the bag throughout the day, but Votaw said in a Facebook post on about Inflammatory Bowel Diseases that it takes "approximately one minute" to empty it – which again is life has improved.

going to be limited when in reality, it's the complete opposite," said Votaw. "I have way fewer limitations now on what I can eat, when we can travel. I don't have to worry about where a bathroom is. I can exercise more because my body is healthier."

Votaw is sharing her story with the hopes that she can "take some of the stigma away from stomas and ileostomy.

"I don't hide my ileostomy," said Votaw. "I don't hide the bag because I want people to ask about it. I want people to know how it saved my life. You never know when you might run into somebody with Crohn's disease that they've been scared to have the surgery because they're scared of the bag. In most cases, your life is way better."

"Lauren worked tirelessly to manage this disease and continue to participate in all the activities a young adult wants to experience," said Ann Vail, Votaw's mother. "She made so many adjustments to her daily routine just really wanted to do. Very few people realized how challenging her daily life had become. After the surgery, not only did she feel significantly better than she had for 10 years, many other aspects of Votaw marked two years a perfect example of how her her daily life improved and since Lauren's surgery by she had more time and ener-"I thought my life was gy for her personal and work activities."

> Votaw also wants to being general awareness of bowel diseases. She estimated that she had gone through "12, maybe 13 colonoscopies in that entire time," when most people will have five in their entire lifetime.

> "I was having to miss school a lot and the students would ask why," said Votaw. "One of the things that I would try to do was be open and honest about what was going on. Colon cancer is a very curable cancer if they find it early and a lot of people are scared of colonoscopies."

> Votaw wants to help her students understand that it's okay to talk about topics like that, and it's not something to avoid.

> "If they're ever in a situation, they know it's okay to do that," she said.

Votaw and the Fishers girls basketball team has gotten involved with the Crohn's and Colitis Walk at Conner Prairie. They participated in the walk in 2022, and also helped with the event set-up.

"It means a lot to me that so she could do the things she they come and participate in that," said Votaw. This year's Indiana Take Steps Walk is scheduled for June 8 at Conner Prairie. More information is available here.

finding out they were going to be parents. That was also a story marked with twists and turns before a happy ending.

The Votaws were matched to adopt a baby that was due in November 2022. But that baby's birth mother changed her mind and decided to raise the baby herself.

"Obviously at the time we were very sad," said Votaw. "We weren't really sure what to think. But we trusted our faith. It's very strong and that's a very important part of our lives. I had a peace that I couldn't really understand after that happened. I'm just going to keep doing my thing. Everybody kept saying 'The child you're supposed to have will end up with you."

Lauren Votaw coached her Tigers team through the 2022-23 season, a historic campaign where Fishers reached the Class 4A state championship game for the first time in school history. During the season, the Votaws kept hearing about another mother that their adoption agency thought would be a good match.

Mahler was born Nov. 16, 1936, in his grandpartrack's condition and rolled ents' home in Alpha, Iowa. He was a skilled skier who raced in and won local competitions. He also played tennis and football in high school. He graduated from Iowa State University as an engineering major. While in college, he was a member of the Navy's ROTC program, served a summer in the Mediterranean and attended the Marine Corps Officer Candidate School in Quantico, Virginia. Mahler and his brother, Jim, raced in the Sports Car Club of America around the Midwest. In 1970, Mahler and co-driver Jerry Thompson drove the Owens Corning Fiberglass Corvette to a class victory in the Rolex 24 At Daytona. They finished sixth overall. Mahler qualified for his first "500" in 1971 but was replaced in the starting field by his teammate, Dick Simon, due to sponsorship commitments. Mahler made his first IMS start in 1972, finishing 22nd. He also earned a starting position in 1977 (he was relieved by Larry Cannon) and 1978. His best finish was 14th in '77. After the memorable qualifying run in '79, he tried to make Indy's show four more times without success. Mahler made 36 INDY-CAR SERIES starts, finishing in the top 10 six times. His best finish was sixth on the Indianapolis Raceway Park road course as a series rookie in 1970. Mahler was preceded in death by his wife, Connie. He is survived by his five children: Kathleen, John Phillip, Carol, Anthony and Susan, along with two brothers, a sister and many grandchildren.

Mahler said he wasn't sure what to expect from the Eagle, but it mostly ran beautifully aside from a big push toward the wall in Turn

"It was pretty exciting the pace necessary to earn being inside the car," Mahler said with a laugh. "I was going as fast as I knew I needed to go. I was coming up on the Turn 1 wall and I said, 'I ain't gonna lift.' A strange thing happened. Just when I was about to hit the wall the (air from the compressed air) pushed the car to the left. I was really surprised, but I was so determined that I just put my foot down.

> Listening to Jim McKay's call of Mahler's qualifying run added to the drama. After posting a 184.811 mph average for Lap 2, the veteran announcer said, "He can make it if the car holds up." After a third lap at 184.388 mph, McKay was even more confident in the run. "He's in very good shape."

> Lap 4 was 183.411 mph, capping a four-lap run of 184.322 mph that was enough to bump Vukovich's 183.889 in a Watson. In those days, McKay couldn't immediately confirm the feat, announcing that it was "unofficial." Soon after, ABC left the IMS broadcast to begin "The Osmond Family Show" featuring Donny, Marie and other Osmond family members. Mahler liked to joke that his qualifying run that pushed into the 6 o'clock hour bumped the Osmonds, too.

Upon returning to the team's Gasoline Alley garage, Mahler fondly remembered the look on the face of his chief mechanic, Bob knew the courage it took to Iowa.
