Growing artists, one ear at a time

The Reporter helps Hamilton Heights cultivate success

By STU CLAMPITT
news@readthereporter.com

As is now true one week of each month, the tops of our first three pages are a little different. Our thanks go out to some talented young artists at Hamilton Heights Middle School, an art teacher who wants students to succeed, and a group of sponsors who jumped at the chance to support these young people.

At the top of the front page of every newspaper is the name of the publication and some branding known as “the flag.” It is also called the nameplate. Some people like to refer to it as the masthead. We have gone to great lengths to perfect ours, and while there may be another newspaper out there that would be willing to give that up to support young artists, we’ve never heard of it.

There used to be a television commercial for Indiana Beach with a cartoon crow who said, “there is more than corn in Indiana.” Fifth-grader Ariel Allwardt clearly disagrees, as you

On Page A2, eight-grader Taylor Russell may have been referencing Morse Lake in this night image of a wooden dock.

Their artwork will grace the pages of The Reporter in print and online all week long.

When we explained to potential sponsors that we were willing to give our flag away to showcase student artwork, the support was incredible. That support has grown a little each month as individuals have chipped in to help keep this contest going.

Slathering gratitude with a Hallelujah . . .

Slowly, she walks up the steps of the church. She’s carrying burdens she never imagined she would carry.

No one else can see them. She hides them in her heart.

Before she left the house, she checked her smile in the mirror. She wanted to make sure it would hide the pain her heart was feeling.

She followed her daughter down the aisle of the sanctuary, finding her place in the front row – not her usual place to worship. Perhaps she needed fewer distractions. God knew.

The music started. She wasn’t prepared for the tears to fall. She looked to her left. Her grandson had his hands raised. She looked to her right. Her granddaughter was singing the words not just from her lips but from her heart. She saw the countenance on both their faces. They understood what the words to the music were saying.

So, I’ll throw up my hands and praise you again and again. ‘Cause all that I have is a Hallelujah.

It was the song by Brandon Lake . . . “Gratitude.”

At that moment, she realized she had answers to her prayers on her left and right. Her grandchildren understood what Faith was about. The legacy that their great-grandmother left them was alive and well in their hearts, a legacy of Faith.

Very Important Peony People were pleased as punch at the particular lack of precipitation for a fair-skied Friday festival. Flower fans flocked to Noblesville for the pinkening of Seminary Park. Booths were backed up with persistent patrons noshing on new-found food favorites from far and wide. There was floral fanfare and ample applause when the new HQ was announced. Janet and Chuck Leonard (above) paused to pose for a peony portrait to grace the pages of The Reporter. Enough alliteration? Nay, we say! Wednesday’s edition of this paper will pull no punches as we pack a pair of pages with a plethora of peony pictures!

Huge Hamilton County win for veterans across Indiana

The REPORTER

A legal victory by Hamilton County last Friday will help ensure supervision and accountability for services provided to veterans. At issue is who is responsible for supervising Veteran Service Officers (VSOs), and thus who is accountable to veterans when a VSO’s actions cause veterans harm.

Individual counties hire and pay VSOs. They are not technically county employees, but they report to the Indiana Department of Veterans Affairs (IDVA). Thus, Hamilton County asked the court to clarify who supervises VSOs.

A Marion Superior Court ruled Friday that the Director of the IDVA holds a statutory responsibility to supervise county VSOs, a duty crucial for safeguarding the welfare of veterans.

VSOs are appointed to a four-year term. According to court documents, in 2019, Hamilton County terminated its VSO’s remaining appointment due to “ongoing performance issues.” Among other things, that person had not been filing monthly claims for disability claims for local veterans.

While IDVA notified Hamilton County of the problem with this VSO which led to her termination, the state’s Director of Veterans Affairs also claims to not be responsible for supervising county VSOs.

Hamilton County Attorney Connor Sullivan told The Reporter that this lawsuit began as Hamilton County Commissioners’ attempt to be proactive in determining who would be responsible if any local vets had suffered financial hardship.

Commissioners told the IDVA that if the responsibility fell on the county, the county would pay it, and if the responsibility was with the IDVA, the county would be willing to pay half the cost of making local veteran financially whole.

“At the end of the day, the commissioners’ main goal was to make sure that every veteran got everything that they were entitled to,” Sullivan said. “The state did not see it that way. I think they were going to wait to see if someone were to come at them and say, ‘hey, you owe us money.’ The commissioners wanted to be proactive on it.”

The court decision reads in part, “Here, the Plaintiff sought the assistance of the Defendant in dealing with a problem that might well occur again in another county and affect other Hoosier veterans in the future. If the Indiana Department of Veterans Affairs does not exist to perform this task, then one might reasonably question its purpose.”

The court’s findings emphasize that while VSOs are county employees, their supervision is a statutory duty of the state’s Director of Veterans Affairs, as mandated by Indiana

Vicki & Arnett Cooper receive T1L1 Ida Award

Duly recognized for their work in Heights community

The REPORTER

During the Hamilton Heights School Board meeting last Wednesday, Vicki and Arnett Cooper were given the Ida Yaney Overholser Award for their volunteer work with Teach One to Lead One (T1L1).

Each year, the Ida Award is given to a person who has worked behind the scenes to help children overcome obstacles to become leaders through T1L1 mentoring. T1L1 is a unique mentoring program that requires caring partners in the community and within the school corporation.

Arnie was an early adopter of the program. As a school board member, he advocated for Hamilton Heights to host the first T1L1 pilot program in 2019 – the first of its kind in the state of Indiana. Vicki and Arnie volunteered as mentors in the high school during that initial year.

Since then, the program has served 663 students in schools across central Indiana. The Coopers were essential to seeing the T1L1 program take root.

“Arnie and Vicki were key to getting this program off the ground,” T1L1

Central Indiana President Kevin Yaney said. “Both of them connected with students immediately and it was great to see them interact with them. To this day, one of those students mows the Cooper’s lawn and shovels snow for them.”

Ida Yaney Overholser was born in Indiana in 1885. Throughout her life, she experienced heartbreaking loss and tragedy, but overcame these obstacles with a lot of grace. In her 100 years, she served as a caregiver to people in need and a comforter to those who had experienced great loss in life, as she had. The Ida Award honors her legacy to bestow grace and kindness to people in need.

T1L1 just finished its fifth year in Hamilton Heights Schools. For more information on Teach One to Lead One, go to T1L1.org.

Carmel High School teacher now has free pizza for a year

The REPORTER

The Lou Malnati’s Pizzeria team visited schools across central Indiana during Teacher Appreciation Week (May 6 to 10) to honor the winners of its “Ce-LOU-Brate” teachers contest.

Two teachers were selected as grand prize recipients. Joseph Knight from Bishop Chatard

High School and Michael O’Toole from Carmel High School were awarded ‘Free Pizza for a Year’ from Lou Malnati’s during a presentation at their schools. The pizzeria also provided a $250 catering pizza party package to the two schools.

O’Toole teaches social studies at Carmel High School and was nominated by several students. One student said, “Mr. O’Toole is what I’ve always wanted in a teacher ... I’ve tended to notice that his classroom is a large safe space for everyone who knows him, even students who don’t have him for any class. His reputation across the school is probably the most wholesome I’ve seen, and we all call him the world’s smallest celebrity.”

Sheridan Community Schools listed among best places to work in Indiana

Submitted by Sheridan Community Schools

On May 8, Sheridan Community Schools was part of the celebration of Hoosier organizations prioritizing internal cultures that bolster their workforces and companies.

The Indiana Chamber of Commerce honored a record 193 employers from throughout the state at the 2024 Best Places to Work in Indiana Awards Dinner, presented by trueU, which was held in Indianapolis at the Indiana Convention Center. Sheridan Schools was proudly represented at the event by Dr. Dave Mundy, Lacey Truex, Lindsey Martin, Valerie Love, Lisa Samuels, Ali Kiser, Madeline Sweger, and Katy Gould.

Honorees and rankings were determined through employer reports and a comprehensive, anonymous employee survey. The Workforce Research Group handled the selection process.

“The theme of this year’s program was ‘Show Off Your Superpower,’ and these winning organizations are definitely ‘super’ in the ways in which they enhance the lives of their employees,” Indiana Chamber President and CEO Vanessa

Green Sinderson said. “The fun staff events, terrific benefits and benevolent efforts to improve their communities are just some of the ways these leading businesses are setting examples for workplace culture.”

All companies that participated in the 2024 Best Places to Work program receive an in-depth evaluation identifying strengths and weaknesses according to their employees. In turn, this report can be used in developing or enhancing employee retention and recruitment programs. 2024 marked the 19th year for Best Places to Work in Indiana. Sheridan Community Schools has been fortunate to have made the list four separate times.

In addition to the awards, winners will be recognized via a special section of the Indiana Chamber’s BizVoice magazine and through Inside INdiana Business, a Division of IBJ Media – both of which reach statewide audiences. Additional program partners are HR Indiana SHRM, Indiana Department of Workforce Development, Institute for Workforce Excellence, Wellness Council of Indiana, and Workforce Research Group.

More information about the Best Places to Work honorees is available via the current edition of BizVoice magazine, available online at bizvoicemagazine.com.

Superintendent Dave Mundy praised the Sheridan team.

“Sheridan Schools is a great place to work because of our tremendous staff and community,” Mundy said. “We appreciate this honor as recognition of the fantastic family atmosphere we have here.”

County partners with Riverview Health to expand wellness program

Initiative aimed at addressing injuries & preventing missed work days

The REPORTER

Hamilton County, in partnership with Riverview Health, has expanded a wellness program to enhance employee well-being and prevent injuries.

Originally launched in 2021 as the Tactical Performance Program exclusively for employees of the Hamilton County Sheriff's Department, the initiative is now available to all county employees.

The treatment clinic, located at the Hamilton County Sheriff's Office, is operated by an onsite licensed athletic trainer. It offers free comprehensive services aimed at evaluating and treating both workplace and non-work-related injuries. The trainer can also offer personalized wellness plans to enhance overall employee well-being and prevent future injuries.

Kevin Sloderbeck, a maintenance supervisor for the Buildings and Grounds Department, has benefited firsthand from the program. He tweaked his back moving a ladder and was able to see the trainer the very same day.

"He put heat on the affected area and rubbed out the sore muscles," Sloderbeck said. "He also helped me with some stretching exercises."

With such a physically strenuous job, Sloderbeck says he's grateful for the program.

"This has happened before and without the trainer's help, I likely would have missed work the next day," he said. "This not only allowed me to function, but it spared me from putting more work on my crew."

Hamilton County's Safety & Risk Manager Steven Rushforth says he looks forward to the continued success and growth of the wellness program.

"It really aligns with the county's commitment to prioritizing employee health and safety," Rushforth said. "The hope is to quickly address injuries, minimize days away from work, and ultimately reduce or eliminate the costs associated with injuries and time lost."

HALLELUJAH

Were all their great-grandmother's prayers answered? No. Yet, she still believed that God was good even without all her prayers being answered. You see, she lived her life with gratitude. She chose to live joyfully because of all God had blessed her with. She gave her burdens to God in her prayers and left them there.

On that Sunday morning, as that grandmother stood, tears began to fall. Tears of gratitude leaked down her cheeks. She, like her mother, would leave her burdens with God.

She would throw up her hands in gratitude ... raising a Hallelujah.

Chapter 71 of the Psalms was one of the great-grandmother's favorite scriptures. But as for me, I will always have hope; I will praise you more and more. Psalm 71:14

That great-grandmother always had hope. Her daughter would have it as well. As tears fell down her cheeks, she realized hope was in those tears.

So, I'll raise my hands and praise you again and again. 'Cause all that I have is a Hallelujah.

When a life is lived with gratitude, that gratitude will slather over all the burdens and in our prayers. Gratitude is a way of life - a beautiful way to live. With our gratitude comes peace.

And so, in that moment, on the front row that Sunday morning, a grandmother smiled. That smile was genuine. It showed a life full of gratitude. Burdens were left with God that morning. There was no pretense in that smile. It was genuine.

When all she had was gratitude, the tears told her it was enough.

So, I'll throw up my hands and praise you again and again. 'Cause all that I have is a Hallelujah.

Ballet Theatre of Carmel's Enchanted Tales points to tradition

By AMY ADAMS

news@readthereporter.com

Ballet Theatre of Carmel usually performs story ballets: The Nutcracker, Swan Lake, Cinderella, Sleeping Beauty. However, the academy's upcoming performance, Enchanted Tales: Celebrating the Golden Age of Ballet, brings together a collection of shorter ballets, "The Firebird," "Les Sylphides," and a tribute to legendary classical ballerina Anna Pavlova.

The performance, set for 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 24, and 2 p.m. Saturday, May 25, at the STAR Bank Performing Arts Center in Zionsville, speaks to the breadth of influences in Artistic Director Jane Hachiya-Weiner's own professional dance career.

The upcoming performance pays homage to Ballet Russe, a ballet company that began in Paris in the early 1900s, performed all over the world, and is largely recognized as the most influential ballet company of the 20th century.

"I really love art deco and art nouveau and the sensitivities that came out of the era," Hachiya-Weiner said. "It was very innovative and left an impression like a very deep well that we go back to pull from."

Hachiya-Weiner describes "The Firebird," with music composed by Stravinsky, as a "flamboyant" and "fashy" composite of a handful of Russian fairy tales. In contrast, "Les Sylphides," a celebration of Chopin, tells of a poet cavorting in the fields with the sylphs of the air.

"It's a gem of a piece," Hachiya-Weiner said.

In between these two shorter ballets will be a remembrance of Anna Pavlova, including a piece set to Saint-Saens' "The Swan" from Carnival of the Animals. From costumes to sets, each piece truly brings to life a glorious era of ballet.

"Story ballet's are very popular with young families," Hachiya-Weiner said. "But we also need to look back and acknowledge the people whose shoulders we stand on."

These are dancers and choreographers, many of whom came to the United States to become citizens and established schools and companies across the nation.

"This is a nod to my teachers and mentors," Hachiya-Weiner said.

Born in Japan, Hachiya-Weiner began dancing at the age of 9 and apprenticed at Inoue Ballet in Tokyo, eventually becoming principal dancer. At the age of 16, she was chosen to dance the black swan with dancers from Paris Opera. Her professional dancing career brought her to the United States and eventually to Indianapolis where she met fellow dancer Frank Weiner.

Weiner, born in Zimbabwe, Africa, began dancing at the age of 15 in the U.S. and has had a full career in ballet.

Both danced with the now inoperative Indianapolis Ballet Theatre and directed the Ballet Theatre of Carmel at The Performer's Edge. When the owner of The Performer's Edge retired, the couple founded Ballet Theatre of Carmel Academy in 2018. In addition to being led by two professional dancers with vast experience, the Ballet Theatre of Carmel Academy includes the American Ballet Theatre National Training among their methods.

Fishers fifth annual Juneteenth Jubilee seeking vendors

The REPORTER

Fishers Arts Council (FAC) and Fishers High School's Future Black Leaders club will present the fifth annual Juneteenth Jubilee at Conner Prairie from 5 to 8 p.m. on June 19.

This annual student-managed event features black-owned businesses and visual artists, culinary artists, community resources, and talented performing artists.

Juneteenth Jubilee has been organized and created by students from Fishers High School's Future Black Leaders club since 2020 and this is the second year it will be held at Conner Prairie. Last year 2,500 individuals enjoyed the Jubilee with their families.

Roughly 30 spaces remain for vendors to join this annual event. The deadline to apply is Friday, May 24. Interested individuals can visit FishersArtsCouncil.org/Juneteenth to sign up. Entertainment applications are closed for 2024.

Sponsorship opportunities are also available for small and large businesses to help support different areas of the Jubilee. Details about sponsorship can be found at FishersArtsCouncil.org/Juneteenth and all sponsorship levels include a booth space at the 2024 event.

"Juneteenth is important because it is a celebration for African Americans moving closer to freedom," says Brooklynn Ferrell, student organizer for Juneteenth Jubilee and 2023-2024 Co-President of Fishers High School's Future Black Leaders Club. "This event highlights the achievements and advancements we have made as a culture. Being a part of the Jubilee helps to show support to this important historic holiday in a fun community setting."

FAC Executive Director Les Reinhardt said the students are the driving force behind this successful event.

"Working alongside these incredible student leaders is an inspiration," Reinhardt said. "We are proud to support these students and the amazing event they create for the community year after year. They decide what will be offered, coordinate with the vendors and entertainment, create educational materials, and fundraise. It's truly amazing to see the power of what our youth can make happen in Fishers."

Heights Elementary School's BASH Night brings students & families together to celebrate learning

The REPORTER

Each spring, Hamilton Heights Elementary School (HHES) holds a student art show, STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering & Math) night, a family Book Fair night, and a Young Author celebration.

This year, HHES teachers Cheri Trachtman, Joanne Renfro, Karen Jones, Kathleen Davidson, and Melissa Martin got together and had a great idea. What if all these events were rolled into one big night to celebrate reading, writing, STEM, and art?

With this, B.A.S.H. (Book Fair, Art, STEM and Husky Young Authors) Night, was born!

Thanks to the generous financial assistance from Hamilton Heights Education Foundation, the inaugural B.A.S.H. Night, the first of what is expected to be an annual event, was held last Wednesday. Upon arrival, students received a Passport which led them to enjoy artwork from every student in the building, an interactive science-filled STEM experience, the premier of books written by the elementary school students, and a chance to purchase new books in the media center. A large map showed previously studied artists' birthplaces and famous works, and students took part in a live installation based on Yayoi Kusama's famous "Obliteration Rooms."

The evening did not disappoint. The building was filled with laughter, learning, and special moments throughout. It was an interactive and engaging evening that was a win for students and families alike.

Westfield Washington Public Library to hold ribbon cutting & grand opening June 1

The REPORTER

The Westfield Washington Public Library (WWPL) has announced that the grand opening of its new state-of-the-art building is set for Saturday, June 1. The opening festivities will commence with a ribbon-cutting ceremony at noon in the atrium.

"This building has been meticulously planned to meet the evolving needs of Westfield's residents," WWPL Executive Director Sheryl Sollars said. "We invite everyone to join us as we embark on this exciting new chapter together."

The grand opening will be followed by a slew of activities to kick off the library's Summer Reading Program, promising an exciting day of celebration and entertainment for visitors of all ages. This year's theme is "Adventures Begin at Your Library" and will include a visit from life-like dinosaurs and folklorico dancers at 2 p.m. and a ukulele circle at 4 p.m.

The new 43,000 square-foot facility, located at 17400 Westfield Blvd., features expanded parking, a dedicated teen area, a spacious community room, and a coffee shop. Additionally, the 3.6-acre property will offer outdoor activity space for the community to enjoy. The Westfield Washington Township offices will call the west side of the building home.

Hendrickson, of Colorado Ballet Studio Company, will be dancing the role of the Firebird, on Friday and Saturday nights, respectively. From the Indiana University Jacobs School of Music Ballet Department, one of the top five ballet programs in the U.S., senior Aram Hengen and junior Gabriel Weiner will alternate in the roles of Prince Ivan in "The Firebird" and the Poet in "Les Sylphides."

And if Gabriel's last name sounds familiar, it is. He is the son of Jane and Frank.

"These are the pools of water I grew up in," Gabriel said. "I was surrounded by it on all sides. What I plan to do with my life is all ballet, teaching, directing. I feel like, as a dancer, you should be looking at your own 20-year-plan. I feel like my parents have given me a firm foundation."

"Coming back to perform with BTC feels nostalgic to Lohman, as well.

"This is my dance family," she said. "Coming back here helps me remind myself that I have this community that helps me and supports me; and if these talented humans believe in me, then I should believe in myself."

Heights' CTE students trade a day in class for the worksite

The REPORTER

When Nate Press, Talent Acquisition Specialist for E&B Paving, was looking at the roundabout construction project taking place at the intersection of State Road 38 and Boden Road in Noblesville, he had an "a-ha" moment.

"What an incredible opportunity for students interested in the trades to get an up-close and personal look at the components involved in an active road construction project that just happened to be taking place between the E & B Paving Office and Irving Materials, Inc. (IMI) quarry operations in our own backyard," he thought.

Press reached out to Kevin Sheets, Hamilton Heights High School Construction Trades Education (CTE) teacher, with the idea of bringing students to E&B, IMI, and the job site for interactive learning experience in real time. Sheets was all in!

Sheets, along with 10 students (including two who will intern at the E&B lab this summer), and an instructional assistant, took advantage of the offer, and in turn had a powerful, engaging, and interactive learning experience.

Press crafted a half-day agenda that featured safety briefs throughout each segment of the day. Students were divided into smaller groups, spending the first part of the day in the quarry viewing and learning the different aspects of the process – digging, blasting, moving, crushing, and re-crushing of stone. After lunch, they spent time in the safe area of the construction site to watch live construction action. The day concluded at E&B where Chad Hartwick, E&B Estimator/Project Manager, shared company history, overview, and a tour of the lab.

"It was an awesome day for students interested in civil construction/engineering," Sheets said. "Nate went all out and presented our students with an interesting, informative, and educational experience they absolutely loved. The opportunity to have a hands-on learning experience at a real job site and see how all the players are involved in that site, was a great overall learning experience."

"We welcome the opportunity to show students and literally let them see and touch what we do as we advocate for careers in the civil pathway," Press added. "This is a way we can continue to support the schools who are developing the workers of tomorrow that we want to hire. Building partnerships within our school systems is really important to us. Kevin's enthusiasm in teaching means so much to his students, but it means even more to us. We value any opportunity to engage students who might want to pursue a career in civil engineering and construction trades fields and what better way than to see those jobs in action!"

Growing our own butterflies

Optimistic much?

I have always loved butterflies. The idea of metamorphosis and seeing something turn into a creature of beauty has always intrigued me. A teacher who retired last year at my school would grow butterflies with her class every year. After over 50 years of teaching, she retired from teaching fifth grade. I always thought it was so cool that she did this with her class and after her retirement, I decided as a nod to her that I would continue it with my own class. There is so much to be learned about butterflies both physically and metaphorically.

MEGAN RATHZ
When Nature Speaks

Another aspect of my butterfly growing that I did not anticipate was that this would coincide with my school's spring break, so what started out as an experience for my students also overlapped in my living room where 40 of my new pets took residence. I was afraid to leave them in case something drastic happened with the temperature of my classroom or if they were ready to be transferred to their habitat and I wasn't there. I felt very responsible for my new caterpillar friends and wanted to do right by them, so they went into my living room.

Once the caterpillars were transferred to their cups, you basically leave them alone and observe their changes. It can take anywhere from 10 days to two weeks. You want to be sure you don't disturb them as they are changing into chrysalides. You must monitor the room's temperature and humidity. I noticed that there was silky webbing in the cup of the caterpillars that is used to attach the butterfly to a leaf, so they don't get blown away by the wind. I also noticed what is referred to as "frass" in the tiny cups.

What is frass, you may ask? Well, that is a lovely way of saying caterpillar poop. The caterpillars climb to the tops of their little cups once they have eaten their fill, stored enough energy, and are ready to become chrysalides. Something else I learned is that if you shake or disturb your chrysalides, you will see them wiggle, which is what they do in the wild to ward off predators.

It is important at this stage to pretty much leave them be until it's time to transfer them from their cups into their butterfly habitat.

Once the chrysalides are hardened (usually after about three days or so), you gently move them to their butterfly enclosure with a paintbrush and attach them to the sides of the mesh of the habitat, so they can securely attach themselves and transform into butterflies.

It was at this point that I also noticed another little note in my pamphlet, "Like any birth, the transformation from chrysalis to butterfly can be a little messy."

(TOP) Our spring break friends – Pat was told not to touch the caterpillars. The caterpillars were much larger on Day 11. (ABOVE) Mary shows one of the butterflies that it's nearly time to fly away and be free . . . but not before a sweet orange treat!

You may notice a small amount of red meconium. Do not be disturbed by this natural occurrence. Meconium is not blood; it is liquid waste left over after metamorphosis.

Well, that's lovely, isn't it? Fast forward a couple of weeks and the transformation begins to happen. The chrysalides became fuzzy and hardened. They hang in a J shape from the top of their cups and stay that way for about 10 days. At that point, I transferred them into their butterfly habitat to wait and see them turn into butterflies. I would find myself periodically looking at them to see if there was any movement, but for the most part, they just stayed that way doing what seemed to be nothing. I even started to think: Are they still alive? Did I not do the transfer to the habitat correctly?

A couple of weeks went by, and I came downstairs to check on my butterflies, and before my eyes, was an entire habitat filled with painted lady butterflies. The habitat that was holding what seemed to be lifeless chrysalides was a sea of orange fluttering all over the place. A few days later (when the temperatures were warm enough), the butterflies were released with the kids at my school in our Nature Lab. As I carried the butterfly habitat outside and heard the excitement from the kids throughout the building, I realized just how cool this process was for not only them, but also me.

One of the teachers commented that the noise of hearing the kids see the butterflies was the best sound she heard in the building that day.

If there is one thing that I have learned about doing this, it is that butterflies are a lot like us. Sometimes we do not look our best and some of us get to where we are going quicker than others. Sometimes it feels like it is taking forever for it to be our turn. Sometimes when we are covered with webbing and frass, it is hard to see our own beauty. Things will happen and bloom when they are supposed to. Sometimes you bite off more than you can chew, but you figure it out. Sometimes you think you're getting 32 of something and you end up with 45. Whatever the case may be, we are all evolving all the time. We are all at different stages in our lives and there's a plan for all of us. Nature is teaching us. What are we learning?

Megan Rathz is a wife, mother, and teacher. She says everything she has ever learned in life came from her Master Gardener mother.

Optimism . . . hopefulness and confidence about the future.

Are you naturally an optimist? I am not. It's just not the way I was wired, but I have worked to change that over the years. Still, it's just my natural tendency to fall towards the negative, so I must really work to change my mindset. I learned to strive to be an optimistic person from my mother. She always looks on the bright side.

Growing up, it used to really upset me when my mom would do this. I would often be woe-is-me, and she would say, "No, there is another way to look at the situation." A lot of times, this was related to my disability.

Looking back, and after having my own children, I now realize how hard this must have been for my mom, who was dealing with the unknowns of my disability right along with me. As a parent, I know that when your child is hurting or struggling, you feel it too – mentally and physically. It hurts to see your child in a situation where there is nothing you can do to help or make things better for them. I appreciate more now the struggle my parents must have gone through raising a child with a disability. I will never truly know exactly what they went through, because my children do not live with a disability.

Optimism is a hard thing to stay consistent with, speaking from the standpoint of my experience as a person with a disability. I can be in the best mood, and going about my day, and then go out in public and a mean comment, or a disgusted stare can wreck me. I have come so far in not letting it wreck me for long. I bounce back quicker from things like that. A lot of it I attribute to retraining my mind to be more of an optimist.

If you are constantly living in a negative mindset, it is really going to hold you back. If you are living where you let every little thing that goes wrong in your day upset you, it will take you down fast. The more I work

When a girl wants her wheels

Here is another story from my mother, Dorothy Howard Adler.

She was such a little girl – a baby, really. At 10 months she began walking, and at one and a half she was talking in sentences. There was no need for a walker or stroller, as they were sometimes called. No, she didn't need it, but having seen one, this little miss wanted a walker.

One day Mother took Baby to the doctor for a routine checkup. Sister went, too, and saw another walker. There were tears of such unhappiness that Mother went to a store and bought a little red wagon. Ah, wheels. Ah, happiness.

Now Sister had a new toy with wheels. Mother put her in it and pulled the wagon down the sidewalk to the car. If you think this made Sister forget about a walker, you are wrong. Every time she saw one, she wanted it. Finally, Mother suggested to Daddy that they buy a used walker.

Their house was small, there were no sidewalks, the child could already walk, money was scarce, walkers then were bulky and unwieldy. Oh, all sorts of good reasons not to buy one. Well, Daddy did some looking around, but this was before the flea market era and places where one can find almost anything. Daddy did not find a suitable walker and that should have ended the story.

One day Daddy had an errand in Monroe. Stucky's had a blue and white walker. Daddy and Stucky's soon struck a deal and Sister became owner of a new walker. Did she use it? Not much. There was no space. It was more of a bother than help to take it in the car if they were going shopping. Baby Brother used it a little but not much. He also walked at 10 months and didn't want to be bothered by a walker.

Eventually it was sold to the neighbor. The red wagon was used by both children. They didn't even have to take turns because Grandpa Howard's neighbor gave them a little blue wagon. Mother wouldn't be surprised that both of them remembered the wagons, but she would be surprised if either remembered the walker.

Sister and Baby Brother soon outgrew those names. Baby Sister joined the family. She had a new walker before she was big enough to ask for one. Did she use it? The house had expanded so it could be use some, but there were no sidewalks. It folded rather neatly but Mother found it a nuisance to take in the car. Besides, Baby Sister walked at nine months.

But to answer your question: Yes, she did use it a lot – as long as she played with dolls. She probably had a barrel of fun with it.

Ah, wheels!

Stamp Out Hunger proves success . . . what next?

By AMY ADAMS
news@readthereporter.com

Saturday, May 11 was the annual Stamp Out Hunger Food drive put on the United States Postal Service and the National Association of Letter Carriers. The final numbers are not yet tallied, but tens of millions of pounds of nonperishable food is expected to be donated to food pantries around the country thanks to the generosity of countless Americans and the hard of the folks in collecting and distributing that food.

Now that Stamp Out if passed, what comes next?

Lend a helping hand

Cleaning out our pantries is great. What else can we do? We're glad you asked.

"Personally, I was always one of those people who cleaned out their pantry when there was a food drive," said Carrie Larrison, vice president and director of special projects at Open Doors in Westfield. "But now that I volunteer, I do things differently. When I see something I know we need that is on sale, I buy it. Keeping your eyes open on a regular basis makes the best use of your own money."

Both Larrison and Anita Hagen of Hamilton County Harvest Food Band (HCHFB) recommend familiarizing yourself with what your local food pantry needs and share these suggestions for how to support your local food pantry on a regular basis.

1. Check in with your local food pantry often to see what is most needed, then purchase items to donate when you see them on sale or as buy-one-get-one deals where you can still stay within your own grocery budget.

According to Greg Garmong, Carmel collected more than 18,280 pounds of food, and Westfield collected over 14,750 – both of which are increases from last year.

2. Set up a monthly subscription to items that are in ongoing need and have them shipped directly to your local food pantry.

3. Donate financially to your local food pantry. Often your dollar will go farther than if you shop on your own since food pantries can purchase bulk food at a discount. You can also donate to specific causes such as Meating the Need and Meals for Kids at hhchfoodbank.org/donate.

4. If you have a garden and often find yourself with extra zucchini or too many tomatoes, go to hamiltonswcd.org/donateyourvegetables.html to find out where you can donate your produce overflow. Or consider planting a row for those in need.

5. Volunteer your time. Many food pantries have SignUpGenius lists for volunteers to help sort and stock food, which is as needed as any commodity.

6. Initiate your own food drive anytime at your office or through your child's sports team. Or, on a larger scale, Hagen said HCHFB and your local food pantry are always looking for collaborations and partnerships.

7. Lastly, participate any time you see a food drive, even if you just donate one item. Every little bit helps.

Don't miss Pack the Cruiser coming up Saturday, June 1, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. In its eighth year, local police departments will be on hand at nine different Kroger stores throughout the area collecting food for the programs providing summer meals for local kids.

Need a helping hand?

If you or someone you know are in the position of needing more food than you have access to, Hagen recommends that you start by reaching out to your township trustee. Hamilton County is made up of nine townships whose mission is to help families and strengthen the community. They can provide a list of local food pantries as well as point residents to other resources, such as providing guidance with filling out SNAP applications. Find out more at hctaindiana.com.

Another useful resource, according to Hagen, is The Community Compass, a food assistance app and website through the Indy Hunger Network that can help you find food near you by ZIP code. Find it at communitycompass.app or where you download your apps.

You can also find a complete list of food pantries and meal programs across Hamilton County, go to tinyurl.com/HamCoPantriesApril2024.

As warmer weather nears, it's time to pay special attention to our furry friends

"I love a dog. He does nothing for political reasons." – Will Rogers

This week I am subbing for my human mom as she is on a well-deserved get away from me and my dog sister, Blue. I will be spending some fun time with my pet sitter Ashley, and Miss Blue has other arrangements made this time. Sometimes we need a break from each other as well!

Both Blue and I are what you might say "middle age" dogs, so we don't cause too much trouble around the house except for some barking now and then, that sort of thing. We love the groomer and just tolerate the veterinarian – although we know that we need our health updates.

In considering some topics for this column, I find I have a few which may be news to some and hopefully taken in the spirit in which they are intended. After all, my furry friends and their well-being is important to me, and I know it is to all of you pet owners, too.

Summer is just around the corner – yay! More outdoor time, more walks, more yard creatures at which to bark, I love it! However, there are some summer related issues which might affect us dogs so let's talk about it.

Fleas and ticks – yuck! I am very grateful that my humans make sure that I have the necessary meds to keep those pesky and dangerous critters away from me. Not only are they dangerous for me (and Blue of course!) but may also affect my humans so we need to follow our vet's advice on that topic.

Outdoor activities – as much as we love spending time with you, we do not especially enjoy being taken along on a hot day to a ballgame, concert, parade ... you get the picture. If you feel you must take us along, please be sure we have access to shade and water. And I don't know if you would like to walk barefoot on hot pavements, but OUCH, that can be quite dangerous.

"Pavement, like asphalt or artificial grass, can become incredibly hot and cause discomfort, blisters, and burn a dog's paw pads," says Dr. Jerry Klein, DVM, Chief Veterinary Officer for the AKC and an expert in veterinary emergency and critical care.

I bet he has seen a few examples in his practice.

Thanks to public service awareness, most people are now aware of the dangers of hot cars, for both people and pets. Did you know that the inside of a closed car on an 80-degree day will heat up to 99 degrees in only 10 minutes and up to 109 degrees in 20 minutes?!

Yikes!

So, I hope you reconsider traveling us around to events in very hot weather as most of us (all of us I imagine!) would prefer to wait at home in the A/C until you come home to play with us. You may also know that both the City of Noblesville and Hamilton County have passed legislation which addresses the legal obligations of pet parents in relation to the above.

I think a mention of crowds and associated noise levels warrants a mention here. We canines have very sensitive ears, as you may know. Most dogs are uncomfortable at a noise level over 70 dB. Most humans are uncomfortable over 85 dB. Many outdoor concert venues present music over 120 dB.² We know our humans love their music and they like to show us off (that is sweet), but really, we do not have the need to be exhibited nor are we able to cover our ears. This applies to the Fourth of July events as well!

If I could put in a word about the importance of pet rescue organizations, please consider adopting your next pet – and yes, I am a rescue dog. What a relief – I was really scared (still kind of a sissy) and it has taken a lot of love and patience, but I am much better now – whew! Blue is also a rescue, and although she is really lazy and not much fun, I know that she is very happy here as well.

We miss our humans, but we know that they will be as glad to see us (right?) as we are to see them when they return. I have enjoyed writing for you – and who knows, maybe I will get another opportunity if the humans need a break. This was fun!

The way to a co-worker's heart is through their stomach

Do you want to really bring big-time joy to your workplace? Then think about food!

Birthday cake. Birthday pie. Birthday cookies. Most of the time you can't go wrong with a yummy birthday dessert. Even people who have special dietary needs can have desserts with all the gluten and sugar-free options available now.

Or if you have someone who is eating extremely healthy, you can be quite creative with fruit. I've seen a watermelon "cake" online made with 100 percent fruit that looks absolutely heavenly!

Whether you buy it, bake it, or make it, a birthday dessert can mean a lot to a co-worker and bring everyone together for a few minutes of happiness. My father-in-law, Ron, made it a point to remember everyone's birthday while on the job and to bring in a cake. One 18-year-old girl who had a difficult family life burst into tears when he brought her one for her special day.

"No one has ever done this for me before," she cried.

I was touched at the Soil and Water Conservation District when my boss asked what my favorite cake was. I told her I liked German chocolate cake and was blown away the next day when she brought in one for my birthday that was homemade! This was one busy lady, so her taking that time meant a lot to me. My friend Claire is a donut fanatic, so of course we had to have a donut cake for her special day.

Which brings me to my next point. Sometimes it's just not possible to break away during the day to buy a cake or other dessert. When times got busy at the City of Noblesville and it was difficult to coordinate schedules, we often gathered for a birthday breakfast before the official start of the workday. Sometimes it was healthy, sometimes it was not (French toast casserole anyone?) but enjoying a treat together was a wonderful way to start the birthday person's day.

If you plan a bit ahead, you can take it to the next level and have potluck lunches for birthdays or holidays. One large department at the City of Noblesville held a potluck each month to honor everyone's birthday for that month. They held it on a specific day each time, so staff members knew to keep their calendar clear.

To prevent everyone from bringing all desserts or all side dishes, this is another instance where creating a template comes in handy. Create a main dish section, followed by side dishes, desserts, and drinks (non-alcoholic of course!) Print it out when needed and post it in a common area along with a pen so it's easy for people to sign up to bring a dish. I always post the sign-up sheet at least a week ahead of time so people can plan things for their grocery lists.

My father-in-law always had potluck lunches, and this is one of the reasons people wanted to be on his crew!

I always enjoyed special Christmas potluck lunches when I worked for local government. Sometimes we played easy games like Uno or did Secret Santa reveals. "White elephant gift" lunches were also a blast, especially when you could steal a gift up to three different times.

It might be tough to find an entire hour for a potluck lunch sometimes, so this is another opportunity to go with breakfast instead. If you make this big enough, no one will need to even eat lunch later! And sometimes a breakfast can involve easier dishes than a lunch, which might help time-crunched coworkers.

If you need to keep things simpler, gathering five dollars from people and ordering pizzas is sometimes the way to go and can really boost morale! Taking 15 minutes to laugh over a couple slices of pepperoni can help a team through a challenging project.

And remember to celebrate coworkers' big achievements as well as birthdays. Running a half or full marathon, having a first child, celebrating the opening night of the play that an employee is starring in – these are all huge accomplishments that deserve a show of support from coworkers.

How I Broke This, Episode 6: Rock Hard Pretzel Company

INTRODUCTION V.O.: Ineptitude ... Failure ... Inanity ... Stupidity ... Murder ... Murder! This is How I Broke This.

SFX: CAR-TOONISH BROKEN SPRING.

GUY RAZZ:

I'm Guy Razz, host of How I Broke This. Not to be confused with that other podcast by that other guy, Guy Raz, called How I Built This. Welcome to my narrative journey about business ineptitude and the failed leaders who failed to learn from their failures. Listen as my guests reveal what led to their crushed entrepreneurial spirits – and hopefully, they'll reference a murder or two to boost my dismal ratings.

V.O.: Murder ... Murder ... Murder!

GUY: In this episode I talk with William Tell of failed Rock Hard Pretzel Company in Rock Hard, Indiana. Welcome, Mr. Tell.

WILLIAM: Thanks, Guy. It's an honor to be talking to you ... I guess ... or a dishonor, considering the purpose of your podcast.

GUY: The pleasure's all mine.

WILLIAM: My loss; your gain; I get it.

GUY: Mr. Tell, tell listeners about your family business.

WILLIAM: Our pretzel company was the town's very first employer. In 1858, pretzel mining was billed as the next gold rush. Settlers came to Rock Hard to work in our pretzel mines. Our first contracts were military.

GUY: The military?

Makes sense. Pretzels represent the perfect ready-to-eat meal for soldiers. I get it.

WILLIAM: Guy, our pretzels weren't MREs. Actually, they were originally purchased as weapons.

GUY: The original Rock Hard pretzels weren't snack food?

WILLIAM: Have you tried to bite a Rock Hard?

GUY: Real jaw breakers, huh?

WILLIAM: That's putting it mildly. More like face breakers. Southern Indiana pretzel deposits, due to intense geologic processes, represent the densest material mined from Earth's crust. The military was so impressed with the rigidity and durability of our product that, during the Civil War, pretzels represented the highest percentage of its arsenal. Forget musket balls! Not only were pretzels used for offensive maneuvers, but they also represented a primitive form of missile defense system, shattering approaching cannonballs in midair.

GUY: Were there pretzel guns?

WILLIAM: No guns, Guy. Slingshots. When Fort Sumter fell, we began mining pretzels 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Pardon the pretzel pun, but my ancestors were soon rolling in the dough. We were honored by the President for helping the Union win. World War I was a great boon for the Rock Hard Pretzel Company, too.

GUY: Your pretzels killed and maimed a lot of people. Excellent! Killings are good for podcast ratings.

WILLIAM: Unfortunately, The War To End All Wars ended too quickly due to the effectiveness of our pretzels. Enemy surrendering was swifter than planned. We banked on a longer war. We became a victim of our own success. Our mass mining surpassed pretzel demand. Onsite inventory crippled our bottom line.

GUY: So, business was touch-and-go until Pearl Harbor?

WILLIAM: We braced for another war-fueled boon, Guy. Early on, that Oppenheimer fella even visited us, interested in designing the perfect pretzel to drop and end the war, but the devastating results of crunch tests at Los Alamos made Oppenheimer go pale. "I cannot be part of such monstrosity on mankind," he said. "I actually feel guilty wiping out all that cacti." He was OK with the harnessing of atomic energy though – less death and destruction, but just enough to kind of make a point. The Hague Conventions regarding humane use of weaponry was modified to outlaw pretzel warfare, thanks to Oppenheimer's reluctance. We were stuck with enough pretzels to last five world wars.

GUY: I guess you were caught between a Rock Hard pretzel and a hard place.

WILLIAM: Grandpa Tell knew we needed to change with the times. Snack foods were rising in popularity after WWII, and he was always intrigued by the popularity of pretzels being served as edibles in Germany. Unfortunately for us, Bavarian mines produced a much softer pretzel that still came with a satisfying crunch. He experimented. No matter how many times it was dunked into his beer stein, the Rock Hard pretzel never softened. Knowing that salt could melt snails and slugs, R&D sprinkled salt on the pretzels. It didn't make our pretzels any easier to chew, but taste tests revealed that local consumers would put anything in their mouths that had an abundance of salt.

GUY: If you salt it, they will come.

WILLIAM: Food Marketing 101. Local business boomed. Residents exhibited great community pride in knowing that Rock Hard, Indiana, was built on our pretzels, so our product flew off grocery store shelves. Dentists loved us, too. We had the highest dentist count per capita in the U.S. Nine out of 10 dentists recommended our product to patients.

GUY: As a company town, you had a captive audience. Why did the company fail?

WILLIAM (holds up a magazine): This 1955 cover of LIFE says it all. Read the headline for listeners, Guy.

GUY: Rock Hard, Indiana. The Town With No Teeth.

WILLIAM: Rock Hard, Indiana became the butt of Ed Sullivan jokes. Our pretzels broke so many teeth that dentists ran out of patients and uprooted. People stopped buying pretzels. The duration of community pride is only as long as community tooth count. Peace is hell, Guy.

to change this, the easier it is to let things roll off my back, and then I have more energy to focus on more important things than dwelling on a negative experience. I think some of that comes with age, too, and just life experience.

In the past few years, I have started to look at my disability in a very optimistic way. I have even come around to feelings of gratefulness for my disability. At times, I even feel blessed to be disabled because of the unique life lessons and front-row seat to a totally unique perspective that it has brought about. A few years ago, if someone told me that was the way I would view my disability I would have vehemently disagreed. There is NO way I would have even been able to muster up those kinds of thoughts, even just a short time ago.

So, what changed?

My faith became stronger, and I started to pray. I prayed that God would show me my true purpose in life. I had thoughts that if I died, I wouldn't be happy with the way I left things. I felt unfinished, unsatisfied with the work I had done at that point. It wasn't enough.

Now, I feel like I have made a dent in my purpose. While I will never be perfect in my optimistic mindset, I've improved. I don't like to dwell on thoughts of my death, but it crosses my mind from time to time, and I do like to think of my life's path as purposeful. I want to help and make a difference in the people's lives that I was supposed to. Humbly courageously, and optimistically moving toward the future, but also very much taking it day by day. Living in the moment. Doing my best with the hand I was dealt.

There were no mistakes, it was meant just for me, and I believe yours is, too.

Until next time ...

Thomas Lee Hamble

September 30, 1935 – May 14, 2024

Thomas Lee Hamble was born on September 30, 1935, in Fishers to Hollis and Frances Hamble. He died on May 14, 2024, in Fairmount, Ind.

Tom was proud of playing basketball at Fishers High School where he graduated as valedictorian of the Class of 1953. In October of 1954, he joined the U.S. Army, and upon completion of basic training was stationed in the Panama Canal Zone. He married his high school sweetheart, Norma Louise Cash, on January 5, 1955, and together in Panama they began their lifetime journey of nearly 70 years of marriage.

After service to his country, Tom returned to Indiana where he farmed with his father and son-in-law for nearly 50 years until his "retirement" a few years ago. Old farmers never really retire; they remain as weather and crop-watchers, offering advice and counsel to the "young guys." Tom did this well. In 1993, he moved the family farm from Hamilton County to Grant County. There he was instrumental in building a successful no-till farming operation and was considered an expert in this method of farming.

Tom and Norma had three daughters, three sons-in-law, five grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren. Tom was enormously proud of all of them and was active in their lives until he died.

Tom and Norma were best friends forever and had a marriage filled with love, joy, laughter, and adventure. They traveled the country in a succession of Buicks, the last being a '22 Enclave that he wanted as his last car.

He was a very intelligent man and an avid reader. His family considered him an expert on multiple subjects, especially WWII. It was easy for him to solve difficult acrostic puzzles.

Tom was preceded in death by his parents; a brother, Charles; and a sister, Sara.

He leaves his cherished wife, Norma; daughters, Susan (John Miller), Sandra (Don Myers), and Sonya (Monty) Mullins; grandchildren, Katelyn Earnest (Trent Morgan), Andrew Miller (Lauren), Hunter Myers (Courtney), Lindsay Jensen (Jake), and Tommy Mullins; great-grandchildren, Nora, Henry, Quinn, Abigail, Naomi, and Luke. He had several nieces and nephews.

Arrangements for Tom have been entrusted to the Fairmount Chapel of Armes-Hunt Life Celebration Funeral Home and Cremation Services, 415 S. Main St., Fairmount, IN 46928. There will be no services.

Memorial contributions can be made to Second Harvest Food Bank, 6621 N. Old State Road 3, Muncie, IN 47303.

Stephanie Ann Ottinger

July 31, 1973 – May 11, 2024

Stephanie Ann Ottinger, 50, passed away at her home in Sheridan on Saturday, May 11, 2024. Born July 31, 1973, in Noblesville, she was the daughter of the late Floyd Matthew and Janet Rose (Keesling) Ottinger.

She was a June 5, 1993, graduate of Westfield High School. While everyone remembers the year they graduated high school, they don't necessarily remember the date. That was never a problem for Stephanie's family, as her graduation day was also the day that country music legend Conway Twitty passed away.

Both Stephanie and her twin sister Jennifer were always very proud of their family's military service. Her way to show her support was through her membership in the KV Elliott Post 67 American Legion Ladies' Auxiliary.

As folks get older, they get set in their ways, and Stephanie was no exception. She loved to go for rides with her family (she had her favorite routes), and while out and about, why not get something to eat? She had her favorite spots, but the top of the list was always the McDonald's in Cicero. They treated Stephanie like a queen every time she and her family would visit. Stephanie also enjoyed the Blizzard specials at the Dairy Queen, and she was a big fan of free pie Wednesdays at O'Charley's.

Stephanie enjoyed watching her favorite TV programs. Let's Make a Deal and The Price is Right were her morning standards, but she also liked watching NASCAR races. Nothing went better with TV watching than peanut M&M's, junk food, and an ice-cold Pepsi.

Stephanie was a huge IU fan. Some of her friends from "around the neighborhood" loved to torment her by hanging Purdue stuff on her wheelchair. Their antics drove her up the wall, but also showed her that she was loved by many.

Stephanie is survived by her twin sister, Jenifer Rose Ottinger of Sheridan; aunt, Carol Jean Keesling of Ft. Smith, Ark; many cousins; and by her pug, Buddy.

She is preceded in death by her parents, Floyd Matthew and Janet Rose (Keesling) Ottinger; paternal grandparents, Francis Leonard and Ocal Leona (Brown) Ottinger; maternal grandparents, Kenneth G. and E. Fern (Whicker) Keesling; many aunts and uncles; and her canine furbaby, her pug, Buster.

Visitation and services were held on Monday, May 20, 2024, at Kercheval Funeral Home, 306 E. 10th St., Sheridan. Burial followed at Spencer Cemetery in Sheridan.

Pastor George Cooper officiated.

Carmel Education Foundation awards $139K

The REPORTER

Carmel Education Foundation (CEF) has awarded 109 scholarships totaling $139,000 to Carmel Clay students. A majority of these were presented on May 14, 2024, to 97 members of the Class of 2024 Carmel High School (CHS) seniors.

Scholarships represent the legacy of area educators, athletes, scholars, performers, school and civic leaders, and families who have invested in a scholarship to promote life-long learning for Carmel students. Additionally, one CHS junior and 11 Carmel Middle School students received the Nick and Lisa Allemenos Scholarship which funds summer learning in music or journalism camps or programs.

A full listing of Foundation Scholarship recipients, along with photos, can be found at ccs.k12.in.us/foundation/scholarships/2024.

The 2024 awards included seven new scholarships, including two funded by CEF community partners, Summers Plumbing Heating and Cooling and The Skillman Corporation, with funding for students pursuing education or employment in a trade related field. The Carmel Culinary Boosters Cheftaculur Scholarship recognized three students who have been active in culinary education during their time at Carmel High School. Two other new scholarships especially hit home to the school community as they honor Eugénie Corbin and Sydney Suiter, former Carmel teachers who made a significant impact on hundreds of children. The Murray Family Scholarship recognizes the legacy of the Brian Murray Memorial Stadium where countless soccer, lacrosse, and other games have been enjoyed by athletes from across the region.

CEF Executive Director Jennifer Penix thanks the 60 donors, and their representatives, who attended the ceremony to present their scholarships in person or by video.

“We are so fortunate to have a community where families and individuals make it a priority to be part of this special evening,” Penix said. “Not only have these families carried on legacies of their loved ones, they support the aspirations for our future leaders. Our scholarship night is a remarkable celebration for all.”

CEF received 518 scholarship applications, representing over one-third of the graduating class. The process uses a “common app” style application providing students the opportunity to qualify for multiple scholarships. To honor as many students as possible, each student may only be awarded one CEF scholarship. Selection of these recipients involves over 65 individuals and families and is a complex and thoughtful process. The annual ceremony is a collaboration between CEF and the Carmel High School Counseling Department.

Jim Streisel, a CHS teacher and 2012 Carmel Clay Schools Teacher of the Year, served as the Master of Ceremonies. A reception for presenters was held prior to the start of the event and all honorees and their guests enjoyed a dessert reception following the ceremony.

“Carmel High School students are truly amazing and this is especially shown in their scholarship applications,” CEF Scholarship Chair Amy Blume said. “Our process is designed to award students who have personal achievements in many areas and facets of life. In fact, oftentimes grades and classroom accomplishments are not the most significant consideration, but assessing how students have overcome obstacles, persevered through scenarios, served their community, and expressed personal insight in living out the mission of Carmel Clay Schools is at the forefront of our selection conversations. Furthermore, all applications are reviewed without names to establish a fair and equitable process.”

CEF is the non-profit partner of Carmel Clay Schools and is governed by a volunteer board of directors who raise funds to support the scholarship program, to fund teacher and school grants, and to provide resources for Carmel Clay Schools.

The CEF scholarship program is the largest public education foundation scholarship program in Indiana. Southeastern stages sectional sweep

sports@readthereporter.com

WESTFIELD — The Hamilton Southeastern boys track and field team made it a sectional sweep last Thursday.

The No. 1-ranked Royals dominated the sectional at Westfield's Riverview Health Stadium, ringing up 168 points to claim their first sectional title since 2018 and fifth in program history. The Southeastern boys won their trophy one day after the HSE girls triumphed at the sectional at the Royals' stadium.

"We did almost exactly what I thought we were going to do," said Southeastern boys coach Garrett Lawton. "We had a couple guys with some performances that they weren't quite where they wanted. But overall, very, very pleased with how everybody did."

The Royals won six events on their way to the title. That included Mason Alexander's sweep of the 100 (10.94 seconds) and 200 (22.36 seconds) dashes. Alexander also was part of Southeastern's winning 4x100 relay team, which finished in 42.38 seconds. Silas Newton, Chandler Weston and Liam Boyd also ran on that squad.

Christian Ortiz paced the 400 dash (48.91 seconds), and served as the anchor of the 4x400 relay, which clocked in at 3 minutes, 17.52 seconds. Hunter Hoefft, Jaxson Wantz and Michael Griffith also were part of that relay. Over in the field, Josiah Bird won the discus with a top throw of 177 feet, 3 inches.

Lawton believes there could be more solid performances to come.

"I don't think we've gotten everything out of them that they can give," said Lawton.

Fishers placed second with 112.5 points, also winning six events. Tyler Tarter continued his domination of the hurdles, sweeping the 110 (14.03 seconds) and 300 (36.74 seconds) by solid margins.

The Tigers opened the meet with a victory in the 4x800 relay, which finished in 7:51.82. Declan Mohr, Bryson Slagle, Parker Melling and Makell Wiggins were the runners on that team. Matthew Kim claimed the 800 run with a time of 1:52.84.

Fishers also got two filed event wins. Joel Gates was the shot put winner with a top throw of 55 feet, 3.75 inches, while Jonathan Hall soared to a long jump win with a best leap of 23 feet, 3 inches.

Carmel scored 87 points to finish third. The Greyhounds got a 1-2 finish in the 3200 run from Tony Provenzano, the winner in 8:59.99, and Kyle Grove, the runner-up in 9:08.39. Provenzano also ran on the 4x800 relay team with Max Meisner, Cooper Szotek and Kiefer Jay; they finished fifth but their time of 7:53.51 was under the state standard, giving the Carmel team an automatic place at the Lafayette Jefferson regional next week.

Noblesville took fourth as a team with 86 points.

Jack Strong was the winner of the 1600 run, running that event in 4:20.10.

Westfield scored 67.5 points to take fifth and, like the other county schools, had several other performances that finished in the top three, thus qualifying the regional at Lafayette Jeff. There's also the possibility of callbacks to the regional as well, although the Shamrocks' 4x800 relay team of Maxim Poirier, Caleb Haney, Jack Loiselle and Will Snedeker placed fourth in a state standard time of 7:53.22, so they get a spot at the regional automatically.

Hamilton Heights' Peyton McQuinn won the pole vault with a best jump of 15 feet, 6 inches. Sheridan's Damon Winston was the high jump winner, clearing 6 feet, 6 inches.

More than tennis: Noblesville girls play for Great Pyrenees

Submitted by Pam Boyd

The Noblesville High School Girls Tennis Team has dedicated a portion of its 2024 tennis season to help Indy Great Pyrenees Rescue (IGPR).

Coach Pyle and Coach Oilar met with the team's seven seniors in December to plan their senior season, including team building activities like goat yoga, teacher appreciation, and a new tradition to highlight a cause special to the graduating seniors. The NHS Girls Tennis Seniors choose to highlight Indy Great Pyrenees Rescue (IGPR) due to their love of dogs and sincere wish to help more of these sweet dogs find their forever homes.

In order to raise awareness and encourage adoption, fostering, donations, and volunteering, the team hosted a Match for a Cause for IGPR and invited the community to attend. The special guest at their Match for a Cause was Finn, a recently adopted Pyrenees, and his new "Mom," Carrie Huffman, a Noblesville High School Science Teacher.

"Finn was so happy to have been the guest of honor at the IGPR match," Huffman said. "He loves being an ambassador for the Indiana Great Pyrenees Rescue so more of his fellow fluffos can find forever homes just like he did."

You can learn more about IGPR and make donations at igpr.org.

There is a national crisis of animals being surrendered to rescues and shelters. Your donations will go towards housing and medical expenses of the IGPR foster dogs.

Great Pyrenees are majestic, intelligent, and loyal family dogs. They are very social and typically get along extremely well with other pets. Great Pyrenees are calm companions and vigilant guardians of their home and families.

FISHERS – Another year, another set of new sectional records for Hamilton County girls track and field athletes.

The 2024 girls track and field sectional took place last Wednesday at Fishers, with Hamilton Southeastern the official host. The Royals claimed their eighth consecutive sectional championship, surging ahead toward the conclusion of the meet to score 129.5 team points. Carmel was the runner-up, totaling 114 points.

“This sectional is so hard,” said HSE coach Julie Alano. “I was just telling them, the times out of this sectional are unbelievable.”

Southeastern got a boost from its performance in the 3200 run. The Royals went 1-2, with Elizabeth Butler racing home in a time of 10 minutes, 50.76 seconds. Maggie Powers placed second, clocking in at 10:53.58. Powers had already won an event, the 1600 run, in a new sectional record time of 4:54.47.

Freshman Anissa Lammie continued her remarkable rookie year by setting a new record in the 400 dash. Her winning time was 56.29 seconds. The Royals were also boosted by runner-up finishes from Elia Blackmore in the 100 hurdles and 300 hurdles, while EJ Shults soared to second place in the long jump.

“We ran better in the hurdles,” said Alano. “The long jump didn’t come in until much later, but I knew we had done well in that.”

The Greyhounds won four events, starting with a new sectional record in the 4x800 of 9:15.29. Larkin Taylor, Annabel Pollert, Olivia Cebalo and Kaitlyn Oshimura were the runners in that race. Carmel finished the meet with a close victory in the 4x400 relay; the team of Gabriela Grande Rosas, Sadie Foley, Cebalo and Emily Norris won that race in 3:54.64, just 0.12 seconds ahead of Southeastern’s Addison Smith, Lammie, Chloe Senefeld and Camryn McKinney.

Grande Rosas triumphed in the long jump in another close competition; her winning leap was 17 feet, 0.75 inches. Norris won the 200 dash in 25.07 seconds.

Noblesville, the defending state champion, scored 107 points for third place. The Millers also collected four event wins, including three in the field.

Hannah Alexander again dominated the throwing events, winning the discus in a new sectional record of 161 feet, 10 inches. Alexander also claimed the shot put in 44 feet, 9.75 inches, while Delaney Teachnor led a 1-2 finish for Noblesville in the pole vault. Teachnor’s winning vault was 12 feet, 3 inches, with Amelia Smith clearing 12 feet for second place.

Summer Rempe won the 800 run in the closest race of the night. Rempe clocked in at 2:15.66, holding off a fast-charging Ciara Kepner by .02 seconds. Brinkley Cooper placed third in 2:15.76 – one tenth of a second separated first and third places.

All three of those runners are advancing to Tuesday’s Lafayette Jefferson regional, along with any other finisher in the top three in each event. This sectional is also expected to receive several callbacks to the regional as well.

The Fishers boys volleyball team won its own regional last Saturday, beating Hamilton Southeastern in a four-set championship match. The Tigers qualified for the state finals for the seventh consecutive year; this year state takes place at Butler University’s Hinkle Fieldhouse.

Fishers headed to state finals

The REPORTER

The Fishers boys volleyball team will make an appearance at the final IBVCA-sponsored state finals.

The Tigers clinched their seventh consecutive trip to state last Saturday by hosting one of four regionals across the state. Fishers beat Fort Wayne Snider in the semifinals with a 25-10, 25-16, 25-16 sweep, then edged out Mudsock rival Hamilton Southeastern in a four-set championship match. The scores were 25-20, 20-25, 25-18, 25-16.

“We played really well,” said Tigers coach Carlos Capó. “We were struggling a little bit in this match with our serve, serve receive and our outside hitting, so I made an adjustment. I moved one of our middles. Nate Fitzwater was a beast. We’ve been practicing that a little bit and he came through and he just could not be stopped. That got us over the finish line.”

The Royals reached the championship match with a semifinal sweep of Homestead, 25-19, 25-14, 25-9.

“They came to play,” said Capó. “We had to play well. Otherwise, there’s no way we would’ve won.”

Westfield played in the Franklin Community regional last Saturday. The Shamrocks fell in the semifinals to the host Grizzly

Cubs in five sets, 25-20, 20-25, 25-21, 18-25, 15-10.

Fishers will be one of the four teams playing in this Saturday’s state finals at Hinkle Fieldhouse at Butler University. The first semifinal match is between Cathedral and Brebeuf Jesuit, with the Tigers playing the second semifinal against Roncalli. The two winners will play for the state championship later that evening.

Indy AlleyCats drop first game to Atlanta Hustle

The REPORTER

The Indianapolis AlleyCats dropped their first game of the season last Saturday to the Atlanta Hustle 25-18.

Seth Gudeman and Cameron Brock both had three goals for the Cats, with Cam Thatcher and Nick Betsch both making three assists. Nick Hutton and Brock both dished out two assists, while Elliot Hawkins, Jake Kenniv, Drew Happe and Ben Close all scored two goals.

Indianapolis coach Drew Sheppard said the difference was “self-inflicted mistakes. We could look at the stats, I bet we had three giveaways to every one takeaway that they had. Play that, get beat.”

The AlleyCats are 1-1 and are off next week; they host the Chicago Union Saturday, June 1 at Grand Park Events Center.

No. 3 Shamrocks come out on top at Pebble Brook, Royals' Nate Benson wins medalist award in playoff

The REPORTER

With the top three teams in the state and another ranked in the top 10, it's no surprise that there were some incredible scores out of the Hamilton County boys golf meet last Friday at Pebble Brook.

Third-ranked Westfield, the team champion, finished with a four under par 276. No. 2 Guerin Catholic was the team runner-up, carding a one under 279. No. 1 Hamilton Southeastern scored an even par 280, but had two of its golfers involved in a playoff for medalist – after each went four under for 66s.

In all, six golfers were under par and the next four were even. The Shamrocks were led by Jake Cesare, who tied for third place individually with a three under 67. Will Harvey was fifth with a two under 68, while freshman Brayden Worthington was even 70, putting him in a four-way tie for seventh place.

All three of those golfers made five birdies at the meet. Ryan Cesare had three birdies on his way to a 71.

"In this county and on this golf course, you got to take it low," said Westfield coach Josh Bryant. "Something we did today well was, we started strong. The guys held in there with a little hiccup in the middle of the round. Our finishing holes of 17, 18, one and two, we scored really well, made a couple birdies coming in. The guys really held their composure and competed today and they were excited to play."

Eli Wessel led the Golden Eagles with a 67, tying him for third place. Leo Wessel scored a 69 for sixth place, while Owen Nielsen's 70 put him in the seventh-place tie. In the birdie count, Eli Wessel made four, Leo Wessel had three and Nielsen drained two. Will Parenteau and Gabe Berglund both made three birdies.

Nate Benson and Mattingly Upchurch both scored 66 for the Royals, with Benson winning the medalist award in a playoff. Benson totaled seven birdies and Upchurch had five.

"My full swing was working really well for me," said Benson, who noted that 66 is his all-time low score. "I had a lot of really good shots that gave me some pretty simple birdie opportunities. As any golfer would say, I still left some strokes out there. I could've done better. But I'm still really happy with the way I played."

Kai Warner's round of 74 included three birdies, while Jordan Huxford drained one birdie while scoring 74. Vijeet Akala also had one birdie, he carded 83.

Ninth-ranked Noblesville scored 293, with Drew Werkley scoring 70 to get into the seventh-place tie. Werkley made four birdies in his round. Alex Peck's 71 included three birdies, Rory Bushong had two birdies, while Brady Mangin and Lance Decker both made one birdie.

Fishers totaled 293 as well, with Tommy Klinker's 70 putting him in the seventh-place tie. Klinker had four birdies in his round. Lucas Brown drained three birdies, Ryan Stewart made two birdies and Will Major had one birdie.

Hamilton Heights totaled 319 as a team, the Huskies' lowest team score in 22 years. Caleb Sullivan drained two birdies, while Nathan Cox and Drew Woodruff each made one birdie.

University scored 391. Nick Quinto had two birdies and Tyler Davis made one.

Sheridan totaled 395. Tyler Garner and Zack Phillips both drained one birdie.

Team scores: Westfield 276, Guerin Catholic 279, Hamilton Southeastern 280, Noblesville 293, Fishers 293, Carmel 298, Hamilton Heights 319, University 391, Sheridan 395.

Medalist: Nate Benson (HSE) 66, won in playoff.

Westfield scores: Jake Cesare 67, Will Harvey 68, Brayden Worthington 70, Ryan Cesare 71, Hudson Kutchma 79.

Guerin Catholic scores: Eli Wessel 67, Leo Wessel 69, Owen Nielsen 70, Will Parenteau 73, Gabe Berglund 75.

Westfield wins first-ever sectional championship

Carmel claims 32nd consecutive title, Fishers gets fourth trophy in a row

The REPORTER

The Westfield girls tennis team made history last Thursday, winning the first sectional championship in program history.

The No. 16-ranked Shamrocks beat Hamilton Heights 5-0 at the Noblesville Tennis Complex. Westfield's victories came from Isabella Norris, Juliette Grilliot and Addi Kooi in singles, with the teams of Jenna Berry/Bella Rivera and Bri Saylor/Carlie Lukowiak both winning doubles matches.

"I'm so proud of the team," said Rocks coach Trudy Coler. Westfield won a close semifinal over No. 9 Noblesville on Wednesday, and the Shamrocks kept themselves focused in order to win the sectional.

"We came out with a focus on just the match in front of us," said Coler. The coach said the team had several goals from the first day of the season and is happy to see the hard work of her players pay off.

"I really like that we were able to accomplish the goals we set this year," said Coler.

Westfield beat No. 9 Noblesville 3-2 in last Wednesday's sectional semifinal. The Millers' No. 1 doubles team of Lina Hamashuk and Cami Crist won their match and moves on to the individual tournament. Heights beat Lapel 5-0 in the other semifinal.

Westfield will return to Noblesville on Tuesday to play Alexandria in the regional semifinal.
