Answering questions about new high school diplomas

Public officials hear voters' concerns on Indiana education proposal

By ANNA MITCHELL
 news@readthereporter.com

The State Board of Education proposed two new diplomas for Hoosier high school students in March 2024, and the changes are proposed to take effect December 2024.

State Representative Victoria Garcia Wilburn (D-Fishers) played host to a listening session July 29 to inform people on the new Indiana diploma proposal and to answer their questions. Hamilton Southeastern School Board member Sarah Donsbach and attorney Joel Hand also added their expertise.

The New Indiana Diploma Proposal includes the GPS (Graduates Prepared to Succeed) Diploma, the GPS Diploma Plus, and a federally required alternative diploma for students with significant learning disabilities. The information meeting focused on the GPS and GPS Plus diplomas.

According to Wilburn, the changes for the new diplomas include:

New things

If there is one thing that instantly sends me into panic mode it would be when someone suggests that I try something new.

As I sat in a local coffee shop a few months ago with my fellow columnists turned mentors/friends, each one of them enthusiastically suggested I should sign up to go to the writer's conference at Taylor University. I smiled and told them that I would think about it, panic silently setting in. Thoughts of inadequacy and self-doubt began to take root in my brain. Some were thoughts that many would likely have when going to something like that for the first time. Am I a good enough writer? Others have so much more experience than me. I haven't even written my first book yet.

Along with those thoughts, came concerns that others may not have. Will it be accessible? Will I be able to wheel myself, or will there be carpet which makes it so much harder with my weak arms? Will I be the only person in a wheelchair? Will the bathrooms be accessible? Can my body hold up to the demands of two days in a row? Will the doors have accessible buttons? You get the point. There is another level of what ifs when living with a disability.

However, this time, my desire to go outweighed my doubt. Their gentle encouragement led me to hit "submit" on the registration with a somewhat reluctant hand. With the conference still a few months away, it was easy to stuff those doubts down.

As the time got closer, the anxiety began to rear its ugly head. I am pretty good at talking myself out of things. This time those thoughts were certainly there.

Local Arby's owner donates $25,000 to Westfield Police Department's K9 initiative

Submitted

The AES Restaurant Foundation has announced a donation of $25,000 to the Westfield Police Department (WPD) to purchase and train a brand-new K9 officer. The Zionsville-based Foundation saw the GoFundMe efforts on a local Facebook page and stepped up to provide the final donation that will allow WPD to add and enhance the K9 program.

The AES Restaurant Foundation was started by the CEO and COO of the AES Restaurant Group to strengthen, enhance, and enrich the lives of people in the communities the group calls home.

"Our Foundation exists to give back and live one of our core values: Make a Difference," AES Restaurant Group CEO John Wade said. "When we saw this opportunity to support the Police Department and the community of Westfield, we knew we needed to provide the balance of the funds for this worthwhile campaign." The initiative could not have come at a better time, as the AES Restaurant Group is breaking ground this week on a brand-new Arby's location in Westfield.

"We are so excited to finally have a restaurant in our own backyard," AES Restaurant Group COO Jay Bedrosian said. "With multiple members of our leadership team residing in Westfield, we cannot wait to bring the AES restaurant experience to the Arby's on Chatham Commons Boulevard this fall."

In recognition of the donation, Sergeant Dewey Abney, head of the K9 program for WPD, granted the donor the honor of naming the K9 officer.

The AES Foundation's Board of Directors has chosen the name "RB." A formal donation ceremony was held on July 29 at the Westfield Police Department.

Westfield Washington Schools Superintendent Dr. Kaiser discusses rapidly growing district

By HANNA MORDOH
 WISH-TV | wish.com

The Morning Bell is a conversation focused on new or exciting programs and accomplishments within Indiana schools. This week, The Morning Bell's focus is getting people ready to head back to school through interviews with superintendents in central Indiana.

On Wednesday, Westfield Washington Schools Superintendent Paul Kaiser joined Daybreak to discuss the upcoming school year which begins on Thursday, Aug. 8.

Adapting to a growing district

Westfield is one of Indiana's fastest-growing school districts and will likely reach 10,000 students in the 2024-2025 school year. The district plans to keep pace with the growth while offering a nationally recognized academic experience called Destination Westfield. The district has a goal to ensure every student has a great Westfield experience, no matter what elementary or middle school they attend. Leaders want to maintain the "hometown feel" as they transition into being a bigger city.

"We think that a more community-based school is critical," Kaiser said. "Parents and kids love their elementary schools and we want to keep those small."

Construction projects

The district is undergoing new construction projects to help with the additional students.

"We think going to the second middle school is really important somewhere down the road," Kaiser said. "If we continue to grow, there'll probably be a third middle school. But right now, we're focusing on the beginning construction of the new middle school. And then expanding to two more elementary schools will be huge and keeping our class sizes small and that local neighborhood feel for our kids and our school."

The projects include:

- Two elementary schools
- One middle school
- Renovation at the current middle school

Myrtle et al.

Here's another story from my mother.

My younger sister was eight years younger than I was. She was a tiny girl, barely tall enough to reach the latch on the chicken house door. But she managed to never let a chicken escape.

If Little Sister was not in the house, Mother could look out the back door and through the window of the chicken house. There she would see Little Sister squatting patiently. Maybe half an hour later, if she looked at just the right time, she could see Little Sister pick up a chicken.

There would be no squawking, no wild running, no excitement. Just two little hands caressing a chick. Once after she was a little older, a friend gave Little Sister some ducks. The weather turned cold. By then the chicken house had been dismantled. Baby ducks had to be brought into the house in a big box. They were kept in the box until the weatherman turned on some heat. Little Sister raised them all. That summer a frequent sight was Little Pied Piper leading a troop of ducks across the yard. They followed faithfully wherever she went.

Fall came. Downy ducks had matured. The time had come to fulfill their ducky destiny, but Little Sister loved them too much. What to do? Very often Daddy bought or sold livestock with Mr. Johnson. Little Sister decided to do some dealing, too. The next time Mr. J. stopped; she was ready with two questions. (1) Will you buy my ducks? (2) Will you promise not to kill my ducks? Out of the mouths of babes! What questions! Dealers don't buy unless they plan to resell or use the meat in some profitable way.

How did Mr. J. answer? Never hesitating his answers were (1) Yes, I will buy. (2) Yes, I will promise not to kill them. What kindness! Mr. J. Lived on a farm. A small stream meandered through his Meadows, so we had an ideal spot for the ducks. They became a permanent part of his farm.

The next year the same friend brought Little Sister a large grocery bag half-full of goose eggs. To this day Mother has never eaten (at least not knowingly) a goose egg. What to do? Well, Daddy said there is a hatchery just a few miles north of us. Maybe they would set these eggs. Little Sister was ecstatic. She just KNEW they would. And yes, they would hatch them for a fee. Daddy supplied the fee. Several days later Little Sister was in the goose business.

What students can look forward to

"For our exceptional learning kids, we're opening a new cross-categorical program at Carey Ridge," Kaiser said. "We have it in there. We expanded that program for our special kids with autism and other exceptional learning needs. That will open up this Fall. I just think the overall – we have a freshman orientation program which is really important. We've done that for a number of years and just welcoming the new students to our community and to our schools."

Career technical education programs:

- Culinary arts
- Construction
- Firefighting

- CNA certification
- Interior design
- EMS
- Family and consumer science programs – baking, fashion, event management, entrepreneurship

Kaiser's advice to students

"I think the biggest thing about school, it's all about relationships. You may not remember the physics class you took, you may not remember the history class you took, but you're going to remember being involved in band. You're going to remember being involved in extracurriculars and clubs. And it's all about relationships. Just get involved as much as you can and your experience at the high school will be fantastic," Kaiser said.

Luckily, I had a meeting already set up with the other columnists a few days before the conference. After meeting and discussing some of what I may need from them to help me successfully attend, I settled down a bit. It's not that I doubted them. They are incredibly kind and made it clear that they would be more than willing to help me. I doubted my ability to express my needs to them. My biggest fear is that my needs will take away from someone else's experience.

The day before the conference, I was very close to telling them I wasn't going to make it after all. I picked up the phone and called my mom. As always, she set me straight. "She said, talk to them and tell them exactly what you need. I know they will be more than happy to help, but you have to first tell them how they can help you." Sounds so simple, but it is so incredibly hard for me. After 50 years you would think it would be easier. It's not.

I often feel silly at all the fretting I do before an unknown situation. More times than not, it turns out to be just fine. When I tell you these ladies knocked it out of the park as far as stepping up for me, I mean that wholeheartedly.

Even Jan, whose plate was full, as she was a presenter at the conference (by far my favorite, just amazing stuff), made it a point to check on me a few times during those two days.

As for Amy and Sharon, well they were my right-hand ladies. They are "instinctually blessed" as I call it. They didn't skip a beat as we unloaded my wheelchair and laughed as we fumbled to get the wheels on. They offered to push when they knew it was hard for me, and also gave me space to be independent. That's usually a dance learned much later in my relationship with people, but it was instantly there. I am beyond grateful for their help last weekend.

As for my first writers conference, it was incredible. I learned so much, met a few new people, and just enjoyed being there taking it all in. The venue itself was very accessible. My only complaint would be no accessible buttons to get into and out of the restroom. A sure way to solve this common problem would be to have the people designing these buildings to have to use the restroom from a wheelchair just one time. I guarantee there would be accessible buttons on every restroom door.

Until next time ...

Indiana being what it is, warm days again turned cool. Geese had to be housed in the kitchen for several days. Little Sister was diligent about keeping their box clean, so mother didn't object to much. Soon the geese were outside and gobbling all the food they could find. They were a noisy lot and announced the arrival of everyone with loud honking. Little Sister had them pretty well trained before the summer was over. All too soon, it seemed to her, the geese were grown and it was time to sell. Little Sister knew exactly what to do. She would call Mr. J. And ask two questions: (1) with you by my geese? (2) will you keep my geese?

Mr. J. was ready with answers because he had seen the geese often during the summer. (1) Yes, I will buy your geese. Then before little sister could ask the second question, answered it. "But I won't keep them. They will have to move on." No, Little Sister wasn't much upset about that. The money she received soothed whatever ruffled feelings she might have had.

Another year, another bird. Two of them in fact. These were college birds. For a class experiment one of the girls hatched three leghorn chickens. Then she had a disposal problem. The prof kept them in his utility room until his wife ordered them out. Out!

So one weekend Sister carted them home to Little Sister. One little bird was sadly crippled. After a few days, it died. The other two grew into handsome white roosters. They sat on the board fence and announced the dawn to anyone who otherwise might have missed it.

Again the cycle of seasons. Again the question: what to do? Little Sister could not bear to eat her pets nor to have anyone else eat them. Only two! Can't we keep them? Against her better judgment Mother finally consented. So the two grew older and tougher while Mother grew wiser. Have you heard of the pecking system? These two, whose names elude me, became proficient at flopping Mother any time she went into the barnyard. They had a definite system. If both roosters were present, Rooster A flopped while Rooster B stood by, looking innocent. Let A be out of sight, B would flop with a vengeance.

Mother carried a broom and did some "flopping" too, but she could not train them to leave her alone. They were smart enough not to attack her front side, but oh, that unprotected back! So the two roosters grew older and tougher and tougher and tougher. Mother would not have cooked them even if someone had dressed them for her.

Billy Zaugg was the neighborhood repair man. He lived alone and seemed to be a forlorn character. One day he was called to repair a roof. Then Mother had a bright idea. Since Billy did his own cooking, why not give him the roosters? Why not indeed! No! No! Billy would not cook Little Sister's pets. He said they would be delicious stewed a while and then fried, but the answer was No! No! Extra shingles were kept in the barn so mother walked along with Billy to show him where they were. Mother was not smart; she did not carry her broom. The roosters walked along, too. They stayed a few steps behind. Mother forgot about her own behind when she bent over to get the shingles for Billy.

Number I rooster saw his chance and flopped her good. She turned to swat him with her shingle. Number II saw his chance. Oh, what flopping! Billy stood by laughing hilariously. Now he knew why to Mother meant when she said the roosters were mean. Now he was willing to take them, but he was sure they were too wild to be caught. That was all the encouragement Mother needed. She picked up some string and a couple of gunny sacks. Then she called the dog. Dixie was smarter than the roosters. Billy soon had them tied up and ready to move.

Mother sighed. What a blessed relief!

State Rep. Victoria Garcia Wilburn testifies about proposed changes to high school diplomas

Submitted

On July 30, the State Board of Education (SBOE) and Indiana Department of Education (IDOE) held a public meeting regarding the proposed GPS and GPS Plus high school diplomas. Educators, concerned parents, and legislators gathered to voice their concerns about the new diploma requirements.

State Representative Victoria Garcia Wilburn (D-Fishers) provided the following statement regarding her testimony:

"I consider myself lucky to represent a district with some of the most involved parents in the state. I've held two listening sessions in my district so that residents could get their questions answered and express their concerns. I have been blown away by the level of engagement I've received, from parents of middle schoolers to retirees who want to ensure that their grandkids' education is what they deserve.

the sentiments of my constituents who took the time to share their thoughts with me for the State Board of Education and Indiana Department of Education.

"First, people are overwhelmingly concerned that this proposal lacks balance. As the daughter of a union cement mason and cosmetologist, I understand and appreciate how essential the trades are to our state. However, it's important that all of our graduates, no matter whether they want to enter the workforce right after high school or pursue additional education, have a solid foundation that prepares them to be informed citizens in the world. As a result, most of my district believes that eliminating requirements for world history, foreign language, geography, advanced math, and health will not serve students or our state well.

"Additionally, District 32 shares the concerns of Purdue University's president about eliminating the academic honors diploma.

Dr. Chiang confirmed that neither diploma's base requirements meet admissions standards for Purdue, and even shared data that the completion of an academic honors diploma in high school sets Hoosier students up for better outcomes once they are on campus at Purdue. On behalf of House District 32, I urged IDOE and SBOE to reinstate the academic honors diploma in this plan. I also pointed out that neither House Enrolled Act 1002 (2023) nor House Enrolled Act 1243 (2024) called for a complete reworking of Indiana's high school diploma system — they just called upon state education officials to add a workforce-training-based diploma.

"Apart from these concerns, my constituents have questions about how these workforce and extracurricular requirements will limit students from fully participating in their beloved athletics and clubs. I share these concerns, along with questions about how our businesses will find the time and resources to manage and create a safe workplace for minors who are participating in the internship or apprenticeship part of the diploma at a time when our workforce shortage is glaring in every sector.

"Finally, I asked IDOE and SBOE to share more of the peer-reviewed research that led them to make the large changes in this plan, such as the elimination of classic high school standbys like world history and health class. Right now, the proposal only has links to other websites, which as a researcher, I view as insufficient rationale for these changes. My office reached out to IDOE twice to request this research and received no response. Their lack of response is indeed a response.

"My parents instilled in me a commitment to assuming best intent. I believe that this proposal was crafted by IDOE with the best intent in mind, and I believe that they will take today's feedback from the public to heart in making revisions to the plan.

"Thank you to the constituents who have taken the time to share their thoughts and feedback with me as well as the IDOE and SBOE. Your input is invaluable and I am so thankful to you for your thoughtfulness and concern for our kids."

DIPLOMAS

"I believe that every child should have the opportunity to receive a robust education that will set them on the trajectory to be a successful lifelong learner and hopefully be in my classroom one day in Graduate School," Wilburn said. "However, I do share some great concerns that the latest diploma proposal focused on 'Reimagining High School' will leave our students without the tools to adapt to the ever-changing economy. The members of the State Board of Education have expressed that the driver behind the proposal is to allow more students to enter the workforce. Yet in the same breath, the same board has noted that only just over half of Indiana High School students go on to higher education. So my opinion is that education should be about expanding opportunities for our students and making them well-rounded citizens, not about catering to one certain industry to fill a one-time need."

Others shared Wilburn's concerns and questioned whether their children would be prepared for their futures. Their questions included:

- How are colleges involved in the conversation?
- How will this impact rural and underprivileged communities?
- What data are they basing these changes on?
- Will the current diplomas be offered alongside the GPS and the GPS Plus?
- How will a child prepare for college if they change their mind about what courses they want to take or what they want to do in the future?
- How will not taking the SATs impact college decisions?
- Who verifies the workforce competencies?
- How will this affect kids in sports, IV classes, ACP classes, or AP classes?

Wilburn, Donsbach, and Hand presented the information they had and were open about when they did not know the answer.

Donsbach noted that all the classes offered previously will still be available. Students will be able to take the electives and subjects that interest them or align with their intended career path.

"None of these requirements prohibit students from taking these additional courses," Donsbach said. "None of these courses are going to go away just because they're not required. We as a school district do that based on demand, so there are still going to be kids who are in college, who are college-bound, and who are on a college track. They know that that's what they want to do, and they will continue to take these courses that will continue to be available. But there might be someone who maybe wants to go into cosmetology or into welding, who might not necessarily need to take a whole lot of extra biology classes or earth science classes because they want to be able to take those welding classes earlier and then actually go out and get on the job experience, which will help them get a job quicker."

Donsbach also said students will have more flexible schedules, enabling them to take more relevant classes. Before, they may not have had the opportunity to take those classes because of the current graduation requirements.

On July 30, Wilburn attended an Indiana Department of Education and

State Board of Education (SBOE) public hearing on the draft diploma proposal, which you can read about above. She is still communicating with the board and encourages people to reach out to SBOE at SBOE\_Comment@sboe.in.gov or to her office at H32@iga.in.gov with their questions and concerns.

Shaffer applauds Ascension St. Vincent Heart Center

Dear Editor:
A round of applause, please, for Ascension St. Vincent Heart Center in Carmel.

Ranked No. 2 in the nation by Money Magazine's survey of the best heart centers, St. Vincent is joined by only one other Indiana center among the top 75 – No. 66 Parkview Health in Fort Wayne.

We too often overlook the world-class health care and medical resources in our community.

Money Magazine considered hundreds of variables measuring track records of delivering high-quality care and staffed by the best cardiologists, cardiac surgeons and other heart specialists.

Good for Ascension St. Vincent.

RFK Jr. officially on November ballot

By MICHAELA SPRINGER
WISH-TV | wishtv.com

Independent presidential candidate Robert F. Kennedy Jr. has officially landed a spot on Indiana's November presidential ballot.

After submitting his ballot access signatures to county election officials on July 1 and with the Indiana Election Division on July 15, his campaign announced Monday he'd been added to ballots in Indiana, Alaska, and Nebraska.

His name officially appeared on the Indiana Secretary of State's candidate list on July 24.

Kennedy – and his running mate Nicole Shanahan, a California philanthropist – are the ticket for 13 states: Alaska, California, Delaware, Hawaii, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma,

Kennedy

South Carolina, and Utah.

His campaign also says it's submitted signatures in 19 other states and has collected enough signatures for ballot access in two states.

In total, the 34 states have 348 electoral votes. Kennedy would only need 270 to be elected president.

Indiana Capital Chronicle previously reported that Kennedy ranked 9 percent in a polling average, according to survey data by FiveThirtyEight. This score placed him far behind former President Trump at 43.5 percent and President Biden's 40 percent. The poll did not include data on Vice President Kamala Harris and her bid for the presidency.

Three great bands, one great venue

Bill Miller has become our unofficial concert photographer this year, but this time it was entirely a labor of love. We have never met a bigger Styx fan than this guy. He sailed away to Ruoff Music Center (it's still Deer Creek to Bill and to us, but we do appreciate the Ruoff investment in Hamilton County) and he was just gone, gone, gone. It was nothing but radio silence for several hours while he enjoyed the music of Styx, Foreigner, and John Waite last Friday night. We thought it was urgent to get these photos on the news budget. We hope all that good music did not play head games with him. We'd hate for him to have driven home with double vision. He's back on his feet again and ready for the next show. Don't worry, venue formerly known as Deer Creek, Bill ain't missing you at all ... because he will be back soon! (Photos provided by Bill Miller)

AG Rokita invites Hoosiers to visit Indiana Unclaimed booth at State Fair

The REPORTER

Indiana Attorney General Todd Rokita is inviting Hoosiers attending the Indiana State Fair to meet the team, learn about the office, and reunite with your unclaimed property.

The Indiana State Fair runs Friday, Aug. 2 to Sunday, Aug. 18 and is closed on Mondays. AG Rokita's booth is located in the Mercantile Building and will be staffed from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. each day.

"The Indiana State Fair is a cherished tradition for Hoosiers of all ages," AG Rokita said. "It is also a great opportunity to interact with our team, learn about the Attorney General's Office and the services our office provides – including reuniting Hoosiers with their unclaimed property."

Representatives from

the office will be available to assist Hoosiers with unclaimed property and provide information to help consumers protect themselves and their family from ID theft and other clever scams. Copies of Attorney General publications like the Parents' Bill of Rights, Gun Owners Bill of Rights, and Indiana Constitution will also be available.

Attorney General Rokita's office has returned over $45,000,000 so far this year and much more is ready to be claimed. With more than $1 million returned to Hoosiers every week, don't miss out on your chance to be next.

Farrell's team frequently appears on the Feinstein's stage with their tribute presentations. Some include All the Way: A Frank Sinatra Tribute, Because of You: A Tribute to Tony Bennett, and Sweet Caroline: The Life and Music of Neil Diamond. ## Nieshalla & Elliott applaud public pension plan's fast action to divest assets from China

Indiana State Comptroller Elise Nieshalla and Treasurer Daniel Elliott offer their praise for the speedy action taken by the Indiana Public Retirement System (INPRS) to divest assets from China. Both Comptroller Nieshalla and Treasurer Elliott are INPRS board members.

In 2023, Indiana became the first state to enact a law, Senate Enrolled Act 268, requiring the public pension system to divest within five years from "any investment that is domiciled, issued, incorporated or listed in the People's Republic of China or the Chinese Communist Party." The law passed both chambers with unanimous, bipartisan support. As of July 1, 2024, just one year later, the pension plan has divested 100 percent of the $1.2 billion investments in

Elliott

Chinese entities.

"China is one of the foremost threats against our country's national security, and INPRS has nobly exceeding the parameters set forth in the law by divesting Hoosier's pension dollars from China ASAP," Nieshalla said.

"By divesting from China and focusing on investments in countries that value the principles of democracy, capitalism and freedom, we are safeguarding the best financial interest of Hoosiers and our nation," Elliott said.

Both Comptroller Nieshalla and Treasurer Elliott commend State Senators Chris Garten, Aaron Freeman, and Travis Holdman who authored SEA 268, and the Indiana General Assembly for passing this necessary common-sense legislation.

Noblesville Creates announces featured artists for August

The REPORTER

Noblesville Creates will welcome Lisa Macha's A Few of My Favorite Things exhibit, Gal's Guide Library's Things We Found in Books exhibit, and HCAA's All Our Best exhibit in Noblesville City Hall, among its other artists of the month in August.

Macha

Details on A Few of My Favorite Things, Things We Found in Books, and All Our Best, as well as information on the August artist exhibit dates and receptions, are available below.

Stephenson House
Lisa Macha

"Paint what you love, and love what you paint" is a guiding theme of Lisa Macha's artistic journey. She describes herself as an emerging artist and is more interested in creating works that speak to specific emotions, rather than in trying to accurately depict a place or object. She enjoys experimenting with techniques and color combinations to change the mood of a painting and elicit different emotional responses.

This theme will be on display in her upcoming show, A Few of My Favorite Things, which is an homage to her artistic journey and the people who have guided her way. Macha credits several well-known local artists/instructors (i.e., Penny Roberson, Deb Slack, Randall Harden, and Rita Spalding) with helping her learn a variety of techniques that she combines to create unique pieces. These creations will be on display during the show, where she hopes to engage the viewer through a bit of beauty, humor, and contemplation.

Before becoming an artist, Macha spent nearly 30 years as a litigator in California. In 2017, her family relocated to Westfield

After the children left home, she had time to explore her interest in oil painting and fell in love. She enjoys experimenting with new tools, media, and techniques, and is currently working on combining the use of brush, palette knife, glazing, and scumbling in her work.

Macha is currently a juried artist who shows her work regularly at Art on Main Gallery and Gifts in Carmel. Also, she recently had her work juried into the Steuben Arts Scene in Angola, Ind., and the Ignite Gallery in Fishers. She is a member of Noblesville Creates and recently won "Honorable Mention" in the 2023 "Prized" competition for her oil painting "Strut."

Macha says she sees her style as still evolving and looks forward to fine-tuning her distinct artistic voice so that her work is easily recognizable.

The full exhibit, A Few of My Favorite Things, can be seen in the Stephenson House from Aug. 2 to 31, Wednesday through Friday from noon to 5 p.m., and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Visitors can meet Macha at her First Friday open house reception from 6 to 9 p.m. on Aug. 2 on the Noblesville Creates on 8th campus.

Gal's Guide Library

Have you ever lost a receipt, a note to yourself, or another piece of memorabilia? Chances are you might have forgotten them in a book. The Gal's Guide Library is exhibiting all the quirky bits and bobs folks have left behind in their donated books in its August exhibit, Things We Found in Books.

The Gal's Guide Library is the first Women's History lending library in the United States. The organization's mission is to provide an independent women's history library to preserve, collect, share, and champion women's achievements and lessons learned. Gal's Guide strives to act as a catalyst to creators who utilize their resources to guide others to role models who have been waiting in the shadows of history for too long.

Gal's Guide was started in 2016 and opened a physical library space in March 2020. The library currently runs a number of monthly programs and yearly events, ranging from Walking Club to an annual Galentine's Brunch. This exhibit is the third the library has held on the Noblesville Creates campus.

Things We Found in Books can be seen from Aug. 2 to 31 in the Judge Stone House gallery. Visitors can expect to explore plane tickets, handmade bookmarks, Post-it notes, dedications, and more. The Noblesville Creates on 8th campus is open Wednesday through Friday from noon to 5 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Noblesville City Hall

Submitted

Melanie Kingsley, M.D., a local board-certified and fellowship-trained dermatologist, has announced the opening of the permanent home of MK Dermatology, now located at 12174 N. Meridian St., Suite 210, Carmel.

MK Dermatology specializes in dermatologic and cosmetic treatments such as laser therapy for cosmetic and medical skin concerns, injectable treatments (including filler, neurotoxin, platelet-rich plasma), skin resurfacing, skin tightening, as well as treatments for acne, rosacea and scarring. The practice also performs surgeries and treats dermatologic diseases and skin cancers through pioneering technology.

"We built this new office to be more of a destination for our patients, a place they look forward to visiting, receiving treatment and relaxing all while receiving the quality care and expert treatment they deserve," Dr. Kingsley said. "We pride ourselves in treating any and all skin concerns through customized treatment plans for everything from mild cases of acne to skin cancer."

Originally opened as a temporary office space in Noblesville with a team of four, MK Dermatology has grown with the addition of a Physician Assistant, a nurse, two medical aestheticians and a second patient registration specialist. The beautiful new office space features a warm and inviting lobby, Dr. Kingsley's own CAMU Anti-Aging and CAMU ClearSkin skin-care products lining the walls, stunning artwork and thoughtful design, private relaxation rooms and more.

MK Dermatology is also the only Direct Care dermatology practice in Indiana. With a patient-centric approach to healthcare, this model means insurance companies have zero influence as to how they treat patients. Patients are provided with the best possible treatments and solutions, without the fear of surprise bills, copays or the constraints of reimbursement concerns.

Dr. Kingsley completed her medical education and dermatology residency training at Indiana University School of Medicine, where she served as chief resident and was awarded the Francour Award for Outstanding Dermatology Resident. Following residency, Dr. Kingsley completed a prestigious laser, cosmetic and dermatologic surgery fellowship at SkinCare Physicians in Boston, with clinical faculty from the Harvard and Yale Departments of Dermatology.

In addition to her practice, Dr. Kingsley is also an Assistant Professor of Dermatology at Indiana University School of Medicine. She founded the Cosmetic Dermatology and Laser Center at IU Health Physicians (IUHP) in 2010 and helped build a very successful clinic through 2023.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

Then the Lord said to Moses, "See, I have made you like God to Pharaoh, and your brother Aaron will be your prophet. You are to say everything I command you, and your brother Aaron is to tell Pharaoh to let the Israelites go out of his country. But I will harden Pharaoh's heart, and though I multiply my signs and wonders in Egypt, he will not listen to you. Then I will lay my hand on Egypt and with mighty acts of judgment I will bring out my divisions, my people the Israelites. And the Egyptians will know that I am the Lord when I stretch out my hand against Egypt and bring the Israelites out of it."

Moses and Aaron did just as the Lord commanded them. Moses was eighty years old and Aaron eighty-three when they spoke to Pharaoh.

Cesare brings Pax Westfield to the golf world Shamrock player dominates at Northern Amateur tournament

The REPORTER

Westfield's Alec Cesare has picked up another big tournament victory.

Cesare won the Northern Amateur, which took place July 24 to 26 on the Marsh/Creek course at Sand Creek Country Club in Chesterton. Cesare was dominant the entire week, going under par in all three rounds to finish with a 10 under 206 for the tournament.

The tone was set in the first round, when Cesare blitzed to a score 66, going six under par for the day. Cesare totaled six birdies, including five in a row from holes 13 through 17. In the second round, Cesare carded a three under 69, pouring in five birdies during the round.

The third round was made interesting by the performance of Andrew Tan from Austin, Texas. Tan was one under after the first two rounds, but put together an incredible final round, scoring an eight under 64. Tan made eight birdies and 10 pars to jump into contention for the trophy.

But Cesare was able to hold on with his third under-par round of the tournament. He carded a one-under 71, totaling four birdies. Cesare made three consecutive birdies on holes 8, 9 and 10, and another birdie on the 15th hole turned out to be the clincher. He made 15 birdies for the entire tournament.

Cesare has transferred to Indiana University after playing his freshman year of college at Ball State University, where he helped the Cardinals to a Mid-American Conference championship and an appearance in the NCAA tournament. Cesare's younger brother Jake Cesare, an incoming senior at Westfield, announced his commitment to IU in the spring.

Indiana men's golf coach Mike Mayer said in a news release that "Alec is a fighter, a bulldog on the golf course who will never give up on himself or his teammates. He has the talent, athleticism, and ability to play at this level." Cesare has three years of eligibility for the Hoosiers.

Harvey takes third

Another Westfield golfer made some waves at Marsh/Creek. Will Harvey, an incoming senior for the Shamrocks, tied for third place with an eight under par 208.

Harvey also got off to a strong start, carding a three under 69 for his first round. He drained six birdies, including five in a row on holes 6 through 10. Harvey had an even better day in the second round, finishing with a five under 67. He totaled seven birdies in that round. In the third round, Harvey scored an even par 72. He made another four birdies, giving him 17 for the tournament.

Leo Wessel, a recent Guerin Catholic graduate who is heading to the University of Cincinnati, tied for seventh with a five under par 211. Wessel also had a fantastic start to the tournament, with a five under 67 for his first round. That included an eagle on No. 6 and four birdies.

Wessel scored 73 in the second round, making two birdies. He got back under par in the third round, scoring a one under 71 and draining four birdies. Wessel made 10 birdies for the tournament.

Westfield's Andrew White tied for 34th with a score of 221. White was 73-75-73 for the tournament, making five birdies overall: two in the first and third rounds and one in the second round.

Carmel's Rajeev Ram, shown here at another tournament, advanced to the semifinals of the men's doubles tennis tournament Wednesday at the 2024 Paris Olympics. Ram and partner Austin Krajicek beat Spain's Carlos Alcaraz and Rafael Nadal to advance to today's semifinals.

Ram now one step closer to bringing home a medal

The REPORTER

Carmel's Rajeev Ram is one step closer to playing for an Olympic medal.

Ram and partner Austin Krajicek advanced to the semifinals of the men's doubles tennis tournament Wednesday at the 2024 Paris Olympics. The Americans beat the Spanish team of Carlos Alcaraz and Rafael Nadal 6-2, 6-4.

Alcaraz has already won four major singles titles, while Nadal holds a record 14 singles championships at the French Open, which is played at Roland Garros, the tennis site of the Olympics. But the fourth-seeded Ram and Krajicek easily won the first set, then took care of business in the second set.

Ram and Krajicek will play the Czech Republic team of Tomas Machac and Adam Pavlasek in the semifinals today. The winner advances to the gold medal match, while a loss means the team will play for a bronze medal. Ram will be going for his second medal at the Olympics; he and Venus Williams won the silver medal at the 2016 Rio De Janeiro Olympics.

Indy to host upcoming Big Ten basketball tournaments

By MICHAELA SPRINGER & KYLA RUSSELL
WISH-TV | wishtv.com

Indianapolis is adding several major sporting events to its schedule for the next couple of years.

The Indiana Sports Corp announced Wednesday that The Big Ten Conference has picked Indianapolis to be its host for four upcoming Big Ten Women's and Men's Basketball Tournaments.

The 2025 TIAA Big Ten Women's Basketball Tournament is set for March 5 – 9, followed shortly after by the 2025 TIAA Men's Basketball Tournament from March 12-16.

Indianapolis will host the women's tournament – and the Men's Final Four – in 2026. The men's tournament will return to the Circle City in 2027.

Both tournaments will take place at Gainbridge Fieldhouse, and will be the first to feature a 15-team field from the 18-team conference following the additions of Oregon, UCLA, USC, and Washington earlier this summer.

Indianapolis has an extensive history of hosting both the Big Ten Women's and Men's Basketball Tournaments, according to the Indiana Sports Corp. The Circle City has "previously hosted the Women's Tournament 27 times and the Men's Tournament 13 times, each most recently in 2022," they said in a release.

Patrick Talty, Indiana Sports Corp president, says the partnership to host the tournaments will continue the city's "storied tradition of Big Ten basketball while working to further enhance the tournament experience for the member institutions, student-athletes, coaches, and fans."

The announcement comes after the conference said Indianapolis would host the football championship until 2028.

"Just phenomenal for the city, especially coming off of last week's news about football," Dan Gilot,

The Purdue men's basketball team and Braden Smith will be returning to Gainbridge Fieldhouse this upcoming season, as Indianapolis hosts both the Big Ten women's and men's basketball championships. Westfield's Smith was an integral part of the Boilermakers' run to the national championship game last season.

director of marketing and communications at Indiana Sports Corp. said. "The Big Ten is here to stay and we're really excited about that."

The move is also set to bring in cash for the city.

"Anytime we get to host a large scale sporting event, like Big Ten football, Big Ten basketball, that means the hotels are filling up, the restaurants, the bars," Gilot said. "Both with last week's announcement with the football championship at Lucas Oil Stadium through 2028, and these basketball championships, through the life of that partnership, we're looking at about $150 million of economic impact for the city."

Ticket sales for each tournament will be announced at a later date.

Colts looking forward to dynamic backfield duo

By JOSH BODE
WISH-TV | wishtv.com

WESTFIELD – Anthony Richardson and Jonathan Taylor only played one game together last season.

This year, that is set to change. The two dynamic runners are both playing in training camp, something that did not happen last year.

The opportunities in the run game now have completely opened up, with head coach Shane Steichen being able to maximize the benefit of both of their playstyles.

"Well, I think it's exciting because the playbook is open to everything," Steichen said. "You've got a quarterback that can do everything. He can throw from the pocket, he can get out of the pocket, he can run the football. Then you've got Jonathan Taylor, who's one of the best backs in the league and to have both those guys in the backfield is going to be critical for our success."

For Taylor, this is the first time that he's ever gotten to share the backfield with someone as athletic as him.

"I think this year we got a little taste, especially getting some work during OTAs," Taylor said. "Now, just every single day hitting it during training camp, and I think we will be able to put something really nice and special together."

The dynamic potential that Richardson and Taylor have in the backfield together is exciting for their blockers as well. Quenton Nelson said that the duo has brought them a lot of energy on the offensive line.

"It brings a different dynamic to the offense where the linebackers can't just go straight downhill for Jonathan (Taylor)," Nelson said. "They got to be ready for AR to pull the ball. So, those split seconds of them overthinking it makes a big difference for us being able to get up to the second level and get on blocks."

Mo Allie-Cox added that it reduces the stress for them as tight ends blocking on the outside against the defensive ends. He said there will be huge holes in the defense because defensive ends can't crash on Taylor because if they do, Richardson will keep the ball and showcase his speed on the outside.

The backfield duo will get back to work at training camp on Friday. Practice runs from 9 to 10:45 a.m.
